GARDINER DEFENDS GOVT. POLICIES IN NOISY BATTLE

Opposition Members Heckle Speaker

Ottawa, March 9—(CP)—The 1949 general election campaign echoed through the Commons Wednesday.

It was injected into the Throne Speech debate, now in its third week, as the government's agricultural policies swung between defence and attack in a noisy verbal battle between Agriculture Minister Gardiner and opposition members.

Mr. Gardiner, defending those policies, repeated previous assertions that Canada has no large agricultural surpluses available for export, promised that farmers would not lose money if government moves to balance trade and chided opposition members for their long memories in parliament.

The same up against two opposition speakers in the short three-hour afternoon sitting—Dr. W. C. Blair (PC—Lanark), who plumped for larger markets for Canadian cheese, and Joseph Johnston (CCF—Bow River) who charged that farmers had been bribed into voting Liberal last year with their own money.

Toronto, March 9—(CP)— A wild taxi ride from London, Ont., to Toronto ended today with the arrest of the passenger on a charge of kidnapping the driver.

Arrested was Bruce R. Rossiter, 22, of London. Police said he will be taken to London to face trial.

The cabbie, Lorne Saunders of London, said he was ordered to drive to Toronto by a stranger who claimed to have a shotgun under his overcoat.

Saunders quoted Rossiter as saying he had "a job to do and it couldn't wait."

Kept Apologizing

He said the youth kept apologizing during the journey but said time was urgent.

When he arrived in Toronto, Rossiter told Saunders he hadn't been hurt because he had been a good chauffeur. They headed out of the cab and advised him to get back to London in a hurry, Saunders added.

Saunders said he stopped at Ingersoll for gasoline during a snowstorm and slipped a written note asking for help between the dollar bills he handed to the service station attendant in payment for the gas.

Rossiter, sitting in the rear seat, had told Saunders to write his address on a piece of paper and he (Rossiter) would send his taxi fare for the trip as soon as he reached a job in Toronto.

Rossiter had warned Saunders not to make any outcry. "I don't want to kill you because I don't want to face a murder rap" Saunders quoted Rossiter as saying, "... soon as Rossiter got in the cab at Soon as Rossiter got in the cab at the London intersection, Rossiter pulled the shotgun from under his coat. He said he had no opportunity to call on his two-way radio. He added Rossiter was not abusive but handed him cigarets during the drive here.

Police said he was not drunk but liquor could be smelled, Saunders said.

Says Accused Gave Her Money, Clothes

Quebec, March 9. (CP)— A murder trial jury heard today of the love life of Mrs. Albert Guay and were told by his 19-year-old Enamorata that her association with the jeweller accused of wife murder had been tempestuous, filled with quarrels.

This testimony came from Marie-Ange Robitaille, a Quebec city waitress who said she lived with Guay and travelled with him at times.

Her appearance on this 12th day of the Crown case brought people to the courthouse about midnight to queue up for seats at the hearing of the many others attempting to prove that Guay, seeking to free himself of his marriage ties, arranged an explosion aboard an airlines last September which took his wife, Rita, and 22 others were killed. Tried for Love—Guay

Miss Robitaille—her name in English is translated "Angel Mary"—said that many times she tried to leave Guay. Time after time he induced her to remain with him.

The girl said that after she left home, following a family quarrel over her association with Guay, the jeweller persuaded her to live her in the apartment of Mrs. Arthur Pitre.

Mrs. Pitre, a key crown witness, had testified that at Guay's request in July she received a death plane a package which Guay later told her contained a bomb.

The waitress said she roomed on Richelieu street for a few months until January or February.

Lived Secluded Life

"Guay supplied me with money for food," she said. "He gave me two or three dollars at a time. He bought my clothes."

"I rarely went out," said the girl in a low voice. "Most of my people were under the impression I was in Montreal. I had gone there for a few months after my trip.

The waitress said Guay tried to get a separation from his wife but he could find no way to arrange it.

The dark-haired 19-year-old witness stopped quietly after the witness box late Wednesday to testify on account of meeting Guay when she was in the restaurant business. Guay was a regular customer.

Miss Robitaille said that she and Guay was married but when he visited her home he passed himself off as an uncle. The man she used the name "Roger Angers".

The waitress said that a the start the acquaintance was a matter of weekly excursions to theatres and restaurants but later "when Mrs. Guay was away on a trip she went to his apartment."

Finally, she made a trip with him to Montreal by automobile, she said.

DIES FOLLOWING ACCIDENT

Double Shooting Ends in Deaths Of Wife, Husband

Hamilton Man Kills Bride After Night of Quarrelling

Hamilton, March 9 — (CP) — John Kovach, 51, died today of what police said was a self-inflicted bullet wound a few hours after killing his sleeping bride of three months with a revolver.

Investigators said the shooting apparently stemmed from a family row. They said the 41-year-old woman, Sally Kovach, an assault charge against her husband last Saturday after he allegedly blackened her eye.

The assault charge was scheduled to have been heard in magistrate's court today. The court clerk called out Kovach's name and a court attendant said that the accused man was in hospital.

Scolded Wife

Other tenants in the couple's east-end Erie Avenue home said the shooting followed a night of quarrelling during which the husband scolded his wife in Hungarian for laying the assault charge.

Three shots rang out at approximately 7 a.m.

Police found Mrs. Kovach, in night attire, lying on a studio couch in the living room near the upstairs apartment. Under her head was a blood-soaked pillow.

Police said three shots had been fired from the revolver. The weapon contained three unspent bullets.

Complained of Treatment

When Mrs. Kovach complained to police last Saturday about her husband's treatment of her, Assistant Inspector Alex Roughead said, she met Kovach in England last fall and married him there in December after a whirlwind courtship.

She said Kovach had been on a visit to Europe after living for a number of years in Hamilton and Windsor. She had lived in England for about nine years before meeting Kovach.

The marriage was a stormy one, Mrs. Kovach complained and his wife went out to work. The husband remained unemployed, police said, and finally the wife asked for police protection.

ALL 20 STOLEN RADIUM NEEDLES ARE RECOVERED

Ottawa, March 9 — (CP) — National Research Council officials today reported they have recovered all of 20 radium needles stolen from a National Research Council storehouse.

The last 15 dangerous needles were found in the lower town district in a torn cardboard carton stuffed with paper and matted with snow.

Five of the missing needles had been found Wednesday night, one in the bottom of a bushel basket of garbage and four tucked in an envelope in a city mailbox.

All-Night Search Succeeds

Research Council and R.C.M.P. officials who conducted an all-night search today declined the exact location of the finds, but all the needles were believed to have been recovered within a five-block radius of the N.R.C. headquarters.

Authorities issued a warning Wednesday when it was discovered that the 20 needles — in appearance resembling fishing nails but dangerous to anyone handling them — were missing.

Five of the needles were discovered Wednesday night and the remainder rounded up today by a five-man team of scientists and police equipped with Geiger counters.

Corporal H. R. Greaves of the R.C.M.P., in charge of the police part of the search, declined to disclose the names of the children responsible for the theft, but said they were between 12 and 15 years of age.

He said no charges would be laid.

Meanwhile, Research Council authorities, concerned about the health of the children, said they believed none of the youngsters involved has suffered from radium burns.

However, Dr. Jacob Kastner, F.R.C. physicist in charge of radium calibration, said a check will be made in a few days for time on the health of the children and that they would be kept under observation for some time to come.

A tip by a young boy led police to the area where all 20 needles were found.

Only one of 13 boys and girls en route home from high school at Mitchell, 17 miles northwest of Stratford, escaped injury when the bus swerved in icy ruts and overturned. One girl suffered a broken collarbone; 11 others were treated for bruises and sprains.

Hockey Team Marooned

Four automobiles carrying a team of midget hockey players home to Woodstock after a game in Walkerton ran into trouble. Two cars, fighting drifts and poor visibility, stopped for the night at Listowel. The boys were to continue to Woodstock by train today.

The other cars, driven by team manager Doug Watson and his wife, tried to continue the journey but were in a minor collision between the Listowel and Atwood. There were no injuries.

Mr. and Mrs. Watson and the boys remained in Atwood overnight.

Throughout the Stratford district, driving was hazardous. Provincial officials reported visibility still "very poor" today and forecast no let-up in the storm.

Elsewhere in the province, communities battled flood conditions. At one time, weather relief was expected to relieve the situation.

GOVT. TO DELETE SOME CLAUSES IN NEW LABOR CODE

Toronto, March 9. (CP)—Ontario's proposed new labor code will be amended to delete the section that requires recent labor organizations to put the pressure on local unions striking illegally.

Labor Minister Daley told the legislature Wednesday he will delete from the bill a section which gives the Ontario Labor Relations Board power to deny the services to a parent labor organization if one of its member locals engages in an illegal strike.

He said there would also be an amendment to the section which outlines that a union's bargaining committee must include employees of the firm involved. He did not specify what this amendment would be.

Both amendments likely will be presented during committee stage. Debate on second reading of the Labor Bill was adjourned Wednesday by Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver at the suggestion of Premier Frost. Mr. Oliver will be first speaker when the debate is resumed, probably Friday.

The legislature today resumes the debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. There are still seven speakers to be heard.

Labor Minister Daley, who has received Labor protests against the section of the code dealing with illegal strikes, indicated earlier that this provision would rarely be invoked by the board.

Eamon Park (CCF-Toronto-Dovercourt) and J. B. Salsberg (Lab.-Prog.—Toronto-St. Andrew) attacked the bill as it was called second reading.

Fourteen Military Prisoners Trapped, Burned to Death

Albuquerque, N.M., March 9 — (AP)— Fourteen military prisoners were trapped behind bars —died late Wednesday when a fire swept through a wooden guardhouse at the Sandia Secret weapons base.

Two other prisoners were critically injured. Seven men were overcome by smoke which boiled out of the temporary barracks type structure as the A-bomb-assembling reservation.

The fire apparently broke out in a coal-burning stove at the far western tip of the L-shaped building. It spread with tremendous speed down the ceiling of the tinder dry prison and hallway to the other end.

Flames licked out from the ceiling and walls and even the steel inner cell blocks where the men were held prisoners behind heavy doors.

The fourteen died of suffocation and burns. Authorities said 13 apparently were dead when taken from the building. The 14th died in hospital.

Guards Overcome

Two guards—only occupants of the prison in addition to the 16 prisoners—were on duty at the time the building. They were overcome by burning smoke.

Sandia is a field installation of the United States armed forces special weapons project. It works closely with Los Alamos atomic installation, 60 miles to the north, and nearby Kirtland Field, the air force's special weapons command.

One of the guards, Cpl. Richard Miller, said he saw a flash of light and called out to Pte. William Henry, the other guard, to sound the fire alarm.

"I started to try to release the prisoners from their cell blocks," he related to investigators. "Before I was able to unlock the first door, the smoke and heat and fore drifting out into the lake.

Brantford, March 9 (CP)—Nine freight cars, one laden with highly-inflammable benzol, were derailed today on the Canadian National Railways' westbound main line at the Albion Street subway. They were part of a 46-car train.

Slight delays were caused to westbound traffic which had to be switched to the eastbound track from Brantford to Paris Junction.

Railway officials said they hoped to have the lines cleared by 3 p.m.

Three of the nine cars were badly damaged while the others only needed lifting back on the tracks. Two hundred feet of track was uprooted. The train was travelling at approximately 25 miles per hour.

A broken truck on the lead end of a laden box car was the cause of derailment, officials said. No Benzol was spilled from the tank car which was only slightly cut in the line.

The cars derailed were directly ahead of the caboose, which stayed on the tracks.

Father Sold Pint Of Blood to Buy Children Food

Phoenix, Ariz., March 9 — (CP) — Nearly 100 starving children are eating their first nourishing meal in a year and a half at a migratory workers camp near here today, thanks to a kindly judge.

Food boxes and medicine poured in after Judge Dudley Wednesday on orders of Judge Thomas C. Croaff, Maricopa county juvenile court judge, shortly after the situation was first disclosed.

Judge Croaff said children ranging from 17 months to 11 years have been existing on meager food for 10 days and a crippled father sold investigators he had sold a pint of his blood to obtain food for his six children.

Mrs. Ethel Hall, 34, a mother of two children, told investigators. "Before I was able to unlock the first door, the smoke and heat and fore drifting out into the lake.

Asks Labor's Help To Hold Down Building Costs

Ottawa, March 9 (CP)— Concern over rising costs and construction labor for higher pay was expressed today by Robert Drummond, M.P. for Kingston and the Canadian Construction Association.

Mr. Drummond in a statement following a meeting of the C.C.A. management committee, said that labor for co-operation in holding down building costs.

"The industry recognizes the vital importance of stabilizing construction costs for a long-term ever possible," Mr. Drummond said.

The committee met to keep new construction attractive and economically feasible in all regions of the country."

The C.C.A. president's statement was issued against a background of two major wage disputes—in Toronto and Ottawa—in which plumbers are seeking pay increases. There is some feeling in the industry that wage increases obtained by these groups could be a pattern for similar demands in the construction trade across the country.

While not committing any government forecasts of a good volume of construction in Hamilton, Mr. Drummond said there would have to be assurance of cost stability and confidence operations in the industry before this could come about.

"The construction industry's desire to hold the cost line it is 1950 is not merely an intention to gain advantages at the expense of labor," he said. "It is based on the sincere desire to retain the stable cost position which was achieved last year through the industry's strenuous efforts, and which has since been maintained if the industry is to continue in the market for large volumes of construction and thus provide the employment that goes with it."

OSHAWA'S CENTENNIAL

Oshawa, March 9. (CP)—Mrs. Evelyn Bruce, wife of a former fellow aldermen to act on an Oshawa centennial committee. Three refused. She finally got support for a request that the committee "investigate" the matter, it. Said Mrs. Bateman: "It would be a poor outlook if nothing were done to celebrate this city's 100th birthday."

INDUSTRY NOT HIT BY ATOMIC BLACKOUT

Paris, March 9. (AP)—Thousands of utility workers struck throughout France today but a government spokesman said personnel kept the lights and gas burning.

The only immediate noticeable effect of the stoppage was a lowering of gas pressure. Householders found it took a long time to boil potatoes.

Industry did not appear to be hit by the walkout, which was scheduled to begin at midnight (6 p.m. E.S.T.) last night.

DUCKS COVERED WITH OIL

Sarnia, March 9 — (CP)—Local bird experts are puzzled. Scores of dead and dying ducks, covered with oil, were found floating in the St. Clair River recently. The birds were well up stream from Sarnia industrial plants.

Advises Farmers Primary Objective Should be Soil-Improving Crops

Niagara Falls, Ont., March 9— (CP)— Farmers' primary objective should be to use soil-improving crops, an agriculture expert told a meeting here.

"No other farm objective is as worthy or as profitable," said J. J. Neilson, assistant superintendent of the Ontario Experimental Station at Ridgetown.

Supervisors have a duty, not only to veterans but also to Canada as a whole, to promote a doctrine of "land first", he said.

"Only he who farms his land with such intention is a true farmer and only he should be allowed profit-taker to farm."

Keven of Barrie, a V.L.A. administrator, urged farmer-veterans with limited financial resources to "go slow on livestock. One good-grade cow is a profitable unit, two or three poor ones, he said. Yet the good animal requires little more feed and care.

A good cow should produce 8,000 pounds of milk and a live calf every 12 months, Mr. Owen said. The Ontario average was less than 5,000 pounds.

"At the 5,000-pound level, prices are practically negligible or non-existent, yet many of those cows, under better care and management, could be raised into the

Novocaine Injection Used in Hope Of Temporary Relief of Hiccups

Montreal, March 9 (CP)— A 22-year-old girl, hiccuping for long intervals since New Year's eve, Wednesday night was given a novocaine injection in hope it is hoped will give here temporary relief.

Olive McKelvey of Cherry River in Quebec's Eastern Townships was brought back from a Florida rest cure and entered hospital here to receive the injection.

The former Mayag, Que., bank clerk also had motion-wide attacks in January when she was unable to overcome the spasms for weeks. Doctors estimated she hiccupped 400,000 times at a rate of about 15 to 20 times a minute.

She was given two previous similar injections—one 15 days after the continuous spasms had started. This brought her a six-day relief, but she developed hiccups so weak that she had to be fed intravenously.

Her family doctor then suggested that she go to Florida for a rest.

While in Florida, the attacks occurred again and doctors there gave her another novocaine injection. Miss McKelvey once more knew relief—that is, until last Saturday when she suffered a third relapse and was returned to her hometown.

Load of Lumber Dumped Sooner Than Expected

The driver of the lumber truck may have been in a hurry to get rid of his load and get back home but at that he dumped his lumber a bit sooner than expected.

Walter Chisholm, Chisholm's Mills, yesterday afternoon was delivering a load of lumber to an address on MacDonald Avenue. He attempted to back into the driveway for easier unloading but as he did so the road gave way dumped into a ditch and the weight of the lumber carried the truck over onto its side.

Damage to the truck amounted to only $10, but the load of lumber was still several yards short of where it was intended to be unloaded.

Surface Water Causes Cellars To Be Flooded

With rivulets of water running in every direction yesterday as a result of the mild temperature and the day's rainfall, complaints of flooded cellars turned in at the police station.

Last night persons complained of having been drenched with dirty water thrown up from the wheels of passing cars. In each instance the motorist's number was taken and he will be called upon to pay for a dry cleaning job.

Cellars which had been dry for the greater part of the winter in some instances had the surprising depths of water as result of surface water flooding in.

But an abrupt change in the weather today promptly ruled out the likelihood of pedestrians being splashed and at the same time took care of any surface water. During the night the temperature dropped 30 degrees with the weathermen said the turn for the colder would continue throughout the day.

(Contributed)

Employees of the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission played at a friendly game of hockey at the arena last night from 10 o'clock to 11 p.m. Shubert Sluggers defeated Grant's Growlers 3-3. The game started with a long ball followed down as the game proceeded, because of the speed that some displayed at the early stage some soon had sore rear ends, legs, wrists, fingers, necks, heads, arms, backs and lungs.

A large crowd of spectators turned out, many of the Hydro staff families were among the crowd cheering for their favorites. Charming Miss Helen Lethe cheered one player who scored three goals in succession. Fred Simpson, Miss Beth Davis and a great job of goal tending. Miss Mary Flynn and Miss Alice Vanderwort did a remarkable job of refereeing and were very efficient as were Bud Dorsey the penalty timekeeper, with Miss M. Flintoft, score keeper. Miss Beth Davis and Miss Dorothy Norman, goal judges.

The players that kept the spectators on edge most of the time were as follows:

Fred Simpson, Roy J. Messer, C. J. Palmer, H. Bowan, K. Jummo, B. Cleveland, B. Sinfield, A. Saunders, D. Grant, J. Gray, C. Hall, R. Miffin, E. Denyes, K. Davis, J. Barnett, E. Moynes, R. Mouck.

Planning Board Will Prepare Traffic Plan

At the inaugural meeting of the Bellevile and Suburban Planning Board held in the city evening, J. J. Trudeau, local business man, was elected chairman of the board for another term. Vice president is Reeve Anthony Harris of Thurlow township, while Freeman Burrows was named secretary.

Represented at the meeting were Mayor Lloyd Allin, J. J. Trudeau and J. T. Ransom from the city; Reeve Harrison and D. Aikins from Thurlow township, and H. Wright and J. B. Harder from Sidney township.

Chairman Trudeau reviewed the work of the planning board and called for suggestions from members for the 1950 program.

After considerable discussion it was decided to prepare a traffic plan covering a study of traffic flow, providing street extension and widenings, with the view to the preparation of an official plan. Additional basic maps contained in the report to be kept continued studies, will also be provided.

Will Prepare Plan

The board also decided to prepare a plan embodying the new sub-division in the east of the city, covering the area in the area bounded by the Bogart sideroad on the west, the Bell telephone line on the east; and from the bay front to the proposed new Bell Telephone line. A copy of this map would be shown the proposed location of future residential and recreational areas.

Board members noted they would be required to study major project, which councils of the municipalities included in the area may submit for their consideration.

Mr. Ransom suggested that a master plan be prepared in sections, the first section of the area under consideration and that each plan would be a complete section which would include ownership of property, levels, surveys and other data.

May Extend Sidney Street

Mayor Allin believed that the four-lane highway to be constructed from Trenton and Belleville would be completed sooner than many realized and that the main traffic arteries should receive early consideration.

The board recommended that Sidney Street be extended through the exhibition grounds to a width of at least 66 feet, it being suggested that the road would be closed during the period of the agricultural fair.

Mayor Allin noted that the opinion of the planning board was that the decision with respect to the disposition of Zwick's Island should be withheld until the long term lease of the island was under consideration but some members of council believed the island should be retained and used by the city. Chairman Trudeau noted that the planning board had not yet recommended the island be retained as a public park. Board members have also passed the recommendation.

Also in connection with city parks, the planning board members met with the Parks Committee at the corner of MacDonald and Victoria Ave., and will forward their recommendations to city council.

The services of the Department of Planning and Development, A. E. K. Bunnell, will be invited to attend the meetings of the board to discuss problems of the local planning board.

The Yangtze River in China is the longest in Asia, and is navigable for 1,300 miles.

No Wonder Police Arrived Quickly

"Canada is a great country and Canadians are great people," said an American visitor to the city today.

"I was particularly impressed with the Toronto Police Department during a brief stay in their city. It is efficient, well-disciplined and the last word in servicewilling firemen," he added.

"Take my own experience, for instance," he smiled. "I was driving my car along streets that were slippery when suddenly the blamed thing slipped out of control and bumped into a car parked near the curb."

"Why, it wasn't three seconds before a pleasant voice murmured in my ear, 'Okay, buddie, shove over.' A burly policeman eased himself behind the wheel.

"I wondered how much damage I had done, but I also wondered how the limb of the law arrived on the scene in such a short space of time. Remarkable state of efficiency, I thought. I must tell the boys back home about this."

Glancing out the car window, it suddenly dawned on me how come the cops were Johnnies-on-the-spot.

"The parked car I had struck was a police cruiser, complete with personnel."

O. Dalrymple, agricultural representative, is treasurer.

Association members took the entire day for their annual meeting with lunch served at noon under the supervision of Miss Elsie M. Irvine, home economist. Sixty-five attended the meeting with six of the seven county junior clubs represented.

Excellent reports of successful Junior Farmers and Junior Institute meetings and club activities were given by Thurlow, Rawdon, Sidney, Tyendinaga and Sidney clubs. Melrose Junior Farmers have reported showing fine progress.

Guest speaker was Miss Helen McKercher, home economics education supervisor with the Women's Institute Branch of the department of Agriculture. She pointed out the value of planning a program so the clubs would know where they are going, and that more interest would be shown and more members continually, developing them to become future leaders.

Seven members took part in a panel discussion on program planning, following which discussion groups prepared one program which was later read to the assembly. This proved helpful to those responsible for programs in local clubs.

Motorists Persist In Making Wrong Turn at Corner

City police are having a field day in mailing out summons to motorists who persist in making left-hand turns at the corner of Bridge and Coleman Streets contrary to city traffic regulation. On the average day from ten to a dozen summons are forwarded to motorists, who will be called on to enrich the city coffers by five dollar fines.

And police say that motorists have no excuse. Large signs approaching the intersection in question plainly state that left turns between twelve noon and one o'clock and from four to six in the afternoon are not permitted. But motorists take the chance only to have their number taken by police.

Police Co-operate To Apprehend Hit-Run Driver

City and provincial police co-operated early today in the apprehension of a hit-run driver who had been involved in an accident on the Belleville-Trenton highway.

Shortly after midnight the provincial police patrol officer radioed headquarters asking that an auto bearing a certain license number be stopped as the driver had been involved in an accident and left the scene. City Police were notified and officers in the vicinity of the sight pointed spotted the wanted car parked on Bridge Street West.

The driver was located and was charged with failing to remain at the scene of an accident, and also with failure to leave one half the highway free.

PICTON

Tourist Industry To be Assisted By the C of C

Picton — To promote the tourist industry in Prince Edward County the Chamber of Commerce directors yesterday endorsed a suggestion that operators be invited to form an association in conjunction with the Chamber. L. B. Calnan and J. L. Mackle, with secretary Phil Dodds, were named to arrange the meeting. The Association would deal with various matters in connection with the industry, including the setting up, and financing of an information bureau in town. The Chamber voted $250 to assist this project.

Disturbed over the impending action between the Town and the McFarland Construction Co., the directors unanimously passed a motion urging the town to seek an available settlement of the matter. It was revealed that another contract has made an attractive offer to the company to locate there.

Stresses Importance

Jack LeHeup stressed the importance of the company to the town. J. L. Mackle told of dealings with the company while an officer in the RCAF. "I believe Mr. McFarland to be an extremely honest contractor, and in my dealings with his firm he never failed to give satisfaction", he said.

The Chamber decided to ask the Council to proclaim Monday July 3 as a holiday, instead of observing Dominion Day on the previous Saturday.

In its budget the Chamber included $50 to Picton Fair, $25 to Cheesemakers' competition, $400 for Santa Claus parade.

The Fishing competition is to be continued with rods and reels for largest small-mouth bass, large-mouth bass, maskinonge, pike and pickerel. In addition prizes are to be given for largest fish caught each month. A grand prize, donated by George Publow, will be 1½ h.p. outboard motor. This will be awarded on a basis of the size of fish caught, type of rod and line used, and any unusual features. This is designed to help record unusual fish stories.

EDUCATION WEEK

The place of education in life has never occupied so much attention as at the present time. More and more importance is attached to the schools and the preparation of the young for their fulfillment of life's richest blessings.

While individual subjects are studied in school they are part of the scheme which is laid out for the upbringing of the young people into the inheritance which is theirs in this great land in the New World.

A folder issued for the observance, "Education Week in Everybody's Business," devotes attention to the main factors which are at work in Canadian life, the church, the home, the school, the farm, industry and commerce, labor and the community. Each is treated in consideration of the education therefore covers the entire gamut of the life we live.

It is pointed out that "no lesson is so important to learn and no habit is so important to acquire as a right judgment based on fine characters and noble decisions." The school must ever be an instrument of the greatest power. It is not just what is learned in detail but rather in the attitude towards life which the school builds up in the young and through them in the generation which is to succeed today's adult generation in the course of a few decades that education counts.

The school aptly fits in the training of the young for their future citizenship and takes its place among these paramount influences that are making the future today. Education in the school is a progressive force and an institution which meets the changes of the ever oncoming generations. It awakens aspiration, develops the skills, nurtures appreciation of the beauties of nature and science, teaches how our civilization has come about and how the whole human family is knit together and dependent one on another.

It meets and satisfies the urge which is born in every child to follow the impulse to create. It points and directs the way to good citizenship.

Truly education is a great living force, working on the most flexible material in the world, the tender mind of the child waiting to be developed and to find opening before it the wonders of the universe and especially of the race of man.

The school leads like a kindly mother and father the young to the expanding world before them which will open opportunities so that their entire lives may be a continued process of development and growth in all that makes up life in the community and in the wide world.

BRITAIN'S NEW COMMONS

Modern air-conditioning will be one of the features of the new British House of Commons. Hitherto in the old House air entered the Chamber through grating in the floor and was distributed through the roof and so any dirt or dust carried in on the member's feet had a tendency to be carried into circulation by the current of rising air. But in the new Chamber the air enters horizontally through side inlets from channels in the side galleries. Air for the new part of the House is led in through openings in the floors, supplemented by additional extracts near the floor.

One of the features will be that the air which circulates in the Chamber and corridors will be maintained at conditions appropriate to those of a fine spring day out of doors, with the temperature about 65 degrees in the daytime. At night temperature will be raised a little higher — at 70 degrees. Metal panels under the carpet will be warmed to about 80 degrees to make certain that the feet of the members are kept warm.

Humidity control will have a place. Moisture during the summer will be removed from the air by passing it over coils through which refrigerant is circulated; the moisture then condenses and the air will be raised to the desired temperature. In winter moisture will be added to the air before it enters by direction injection. The air will be cleaned electro-statically, eight panels below the floor of the Commons Chamber, and supply 1,500 cubic feet of air per minute for each occupant.

Rapid adjustment of temperature of the air is made possible. For instance, when suddenly and unusually there is a large increase in the number of people in the House the condition is immediately met by the provision made for flow of air. Local controls serve the members' individual rooms.

When a man has not a good reason for doing a thing he has one good reason for letting it alone.—Sir Walter Scott.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST
(Copyright, 1950, Edgar A. Guest)

LIFE IS LONG

Is there another life than this?
If not, then this be plain
And vain the far-flung goal we win,
And vain the one we gain.

Unless the soul immortal be,
And there is more to earn,
And more with clearer sight to see,
Then vain is all we learn

If life end here, then it is plain
The oldest wait to die,
To suffer loneliness and pain,
The blest are first to leave.

'Tis faith alone that keeps us strong!
That faith when hope seems gone;
That death is brief and life is long
And somewhere we live on.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

TREASURE

Rich today and poor tomorrow
How true that is! Yes, but the latter part—poor tomorrow—is the lot of everyone. For every human being is born penniless, and dies penniless. At death even the millionaire goes from riches to poverty. We brought nothing into the world and we shall take nothing out. One second after the heart has stopped beating, everybody becomes a pauper.

Why, then, should we pit so much stock in the things we cannot retain? What fools men are who sell their eternal souls for money, and then in the twinkling of an eye find themselves owning nothing. We put great store by the things money can buy. We long for luxuries—for the finer things of thing seldom brings happiness. And the most devastating aspect of the whole situation is that at last we have to let go of every thing we own and turn into another life.

The things which are seen are temporal, but the things that are unseen are eternal. "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth where moth and rust corrupt and where thieves break through and steal; but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven where moth and rust do not corrupt and where thieves do not break through and steal; for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

The daughter of a well-to-do family created a domestic scandal a couple of years ago by taking a job in a factory. Her family set up all kinds of office jobs for her, among their friends; library jobs, secretarial jobs—any kind of job except a factory job. But the girl was resolute and humorous about it. For two years, she has been as happy as can be.

Her job for two years has been counting brass screws. She works in a big factory where they manufacture parts for radio. And among their other products are small brass screws used in the radio mechanism. She has a measuring device for the rapid counting of these tiny brass articles. All day long, eight hour day, five day week, she goes through the rhythmic process of counting thousands upon thousands.

"What you people don't understand," she said at her shower the other evening—she is being married to one of the young engineers on the factory staff, "is that there are tens of thousands of us who love routine work. You look with horror on a mechanical job. There are countless thousands of mediocre minds who are born with the kind of jobs white collar workers do. After all, this world is what we have to do is earn a living. And I can't imagine any happier way of doing a day's work than in the rhythmic performance of a mechanical job. Besides, the helter-skelter sort of work stenographers, librarians, and all the rest of the pretty-clothes workers have to do seems frowsy, untidy. It must be terribly irritating. One thing can be said about mechanical jobs: they are never irritating. In fact, they are deeply soothing."

Impressions of Britain

(By Ralph Campbell)

THE CO-OPERATIVES

Oxford, England — One of the biggest businesses in Britain is the co-operative, or one should say co-operatives, since there are 1,030 independent societies. But all can be grouped together as being both a gigantic business, and at the same time a voluntary organization with a social purpose. Since the movement is so extensive and mature in Britain, and the opposite in Canada, we found it especially interesting to become acquainted with it.

Now, as members of the Oxford and District Co-operative Association, we are two of about ten million members in Britain. We have not received any dividends yet since one must let them accumulate first until the one pound, ($4.15) membership is paid. But since the usual dividend is 7½ cents in every dollar or all purchases made, we look for forthcoming.

One may ask, how is the "Co-op" able to pay these dividends, when during the war amounted to about 12½ cents in every dollar? Is it poorer quality, higher prices, different weights and measures, or what? Our experience has been that prices are the same, if not anywhere else — many prices are of course, still controlled, particularly any of the foods of lower quality. Service seems comparable with all other retail companies, and there is weekly delivery to house in our village. Part of the answer would seem to lie in the large turnover of the individual stores, the Co-op being wholesale mass buying and co-operative manufacturing, and the vast dividends not actually taken the place of owners' profits.

Some Statistics

Perhaps a few statistics on the Co-op and its importance to life in Britain might be enlightening. Of all retail sales in Britain, about one-tenth, the percentage sold by the Co-operative is as follows: Groceries 30%, boots and shoes, 20%, cheese 25%; all groceries 20%, coal 30%, tobacco 10%, drugs 10%, clothing 7%, household furniture 7%, pharmacy 4%.

You will notice that the emphasis is on standard products established and well-known ones, not requiring little change in design or approach. This development is a natural outcome of the origins and background of the co-operative, and perhaps the fact that it is a common people's movement with dimensions of leadership coming from the solid, less imaginative, socially-minded citizens, rather than from brilliant individualists. The founders of the first co-operative near Manchester intended that it should serve the common people of that industrial area by providing them with the necessities of life at the lowest possible cost. In spite of the gigantic growth and development of the co-operative movement since that time, the economic aims are largely the same — to provide the poorer and industrial section with standard basic commodities at a minimum price. Their appeal to richer folk has not been great but they have provided a real service to a great majority.

Two Organizations

Although the retail co-operatives are independent, they have been integrated in two large wholesale organizations, the co-operative Wholesale Society (CWS) and the Scottish counterpart, the SCWS. The CWS operates over 100 factories and factories throughout the nation, and eliminates the middleman in a number of commodities. The products of the CWS must all be sold by the retail societies. Control prevents the expansion and consequent savings which would result from indiscriminate sales and distribution.

But the aim of the co-operatives is not just to provide dividends — they have a social aim which is one of even greater importance to the members. This is the part played by the extensive voluntary democratic action and the social educational work done.

On the local boards of the distributive societies are ordinarily housewives and laborers who accept responsibility for local leadership as they could never otherwise do. In many cases their voluntary labor and devotion have contributed to the growth and success of the whole system. And the governing machinery does not seem to be dominated by a famous "one member vote" slogan is still enforced as it was in the early days when executive committees are dissolved and re-elected annually, and made responsible to the quarterly members meeting. The balance between democracy and bureaucracy is a delicate one, and efficiency will reveal the position of the size and ip direction of the activities of the societies.

Last year about 1,100,000 dollars were spent on educational activities through a good deal of this actually was propaganda and entertainment. But there has been a real contribution in trade schools, cultural societies, and the one-year residential course at Co-operative College. So that, in spite of a 100,000-dollar annual surplus for the co-operatives last year, not all its benefits are purely monetary.

MacKenzie's Column:

Grand Defence Strategy of West Europe Begins

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press Staff Analyst)

The $1,000,000,000 United States Military Aid program for the rearming of Western Europe got under way Thursday, thus starting the implementation of the Grand Defence strategy of the Atlantic Allies.

The first shipment was to France. This consisted of warplanes which were put aboard the French aircraft carrier Dixmude at Norfolk.

France will get further help, and her ambassador, Henri Bonnet Daridan, declared that the aid program "will facilitate the determined effort which France is making to insure her own security, a condition and consequence of the security of all."

Basis of Strategy

The current state visit of French President Vincent Auriol to London is said to be centered in part with defence of Europe in general and of France in particular. As Paris knows, the American-Western European military strategy is based on Britain.

The French want the defence centred there, and beyond that country so that it won't again be overrun by the Germans.

France's pact with Germany's former rich area—bringing Saar Basin fits into this picture.

The Saar Basin is of vast strategic value militarily, and apart from her wealth of coal. France wants this zone as a buffer against invasion.

Heretofore French fears of aggression have been directed towards Germany. And although Germany is impotent at the moment, the French naturally don't want to take chances.

Western Europe's Concern

However, the major fears of France and the rest tof Western Europe are directed towards the possible extension of the cold war into Europe.

French anxiety is greatly increased because of the country's large and active communist population. The French Reds are doing everything possible to hamper military preparedness but the government has served notice that sabotage will be dealt with ruthlessly by force.

Thus the military shipments to the Saar will be a big boost for France at this crucial juncture —and by the same token for the rest of Western Europe.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SO WONDERFUL!

The majority of people only get excited and are thrilled over exceptional sights, events, or happenings, whereas there is something wonderful all about watching enacted every day. I recall sitting in the lobby of a hotel in Boston, awaiting a friend, when a lame woman passed by me, but she was not disconcerted when she carried that arrested my attention. Her countenance was radiant and beautiful. I have carried its memory with me ever since.

Looking out from my library window I note the bare leaves of dozens of trees that are grouped together. From great trunks to the tiniest surrounding branches, character is expressed, and nature is giving rest to each until the springtime will burst the buds that will close the tapestry of branches into the glorious green foliage that is so wonderful at such a time.

In many of these trees, at the topmost location, are to be seen nests that squirrels have made in the Autumn for their later sleeping-places and nurseries. They are friendly creatures, coming regularly to my window for nuts that are taken from my fingers. Many a time, during the Winter days, have I noted the life of the sun upon these interesting formations of branches, now bare, and at other times, clothed in their luxuriant foliage.

Life is so wonderful if we have cultivated a sense of values, and rightly understand it. We can even sense music in color and be lost with the rhythm of the universe. We can see, and listen, to God's great symphony all about us and grow rich in mind and spirit by adapting the lessons that they teach.

We think little of it, but the very fact that we are alive is so wonderful! A few years ago, when I was in the grip of illness for many weeks, that morning light was the most wonderful experience of those days; each new day's light is still wonderful to me.

Books are so wonderful. They record the thought of the great and keep them living. They enrich us in mind and heart. They both relax and inspire us. They urge us to activity. We happily live. They take us away from ourselves and at the same time help us to reveal ourselves to us. Genuine friends are so wonderful.

BLUE BABIES

A "blue baby" is the victim of a defect in the heart disease in which the arterial and venous blood are heavily mixed. Arterial blood is that in the blood contained within the arteries while on its journey by the veins, conveys carbon dioxide which it receives from the lungs, to the various tissues of the body.

Venous blood, is blood occupying the veins on its return route to the heart, which has given up its oxygen to the tissues and which, must pass through the lungs to become re-oxygenated. Venous blood which has a bluish tint, becomes very red when it takes up oxygen.

The blueness of the blue baby is caused by the continuous entry of venous blood into the arterial circulation. This is due to continued communication between the two which is present in the birth development is closed.

While the diagnosis may appear to be quite obvious in the typical blue baby there are variations in potential heart disease which call for more information than can be obtained by using the stethoscope. A boon is more easily assisted by the use of X-rays than is soft tissue. The shadow of a bone, thus is more distinct than that of a soft tissue. The soft tissues also vary in their density and create shadows accordingly. The distinction between these shadows, both of which are very soft, requires a highly trained eye and a profound understanding of the anatomy and physical factors involved. Obviously this is the field of the specially trained physician.

The ordinary X-ray film of the chest will reveal the position and contour of the heart and to some extent, the position and condition of the great vessels in the heart's vicinity.

But this type of film does not directly reveal the contours of the interior of the heart, the great vessels and their connections. A great need obviously existed for some means to more keenly create increased density or opaqueness of the blood within the heart and great vessels in order to obtain shadows on an X-ray film which would show in this manner, the contours of the interior of the heart and great vessels.

This need has been met—and revealed, by the development of a chemical which can be injected directly into a superficial vein and in such a manner immediately finds its way into the interior of the heart. It is carried by the blood stream in which the chemical is swept through the heart, a rapid action, camera-like device records not

Downs-Coulter Plant Closed Down Indefinitely

Strike-bound for the past three months, the Downs - Coulter plant at Trenton will be closed down indefinitely, it has been decided by officials of the parent organization in Great Britain. Statement to this effect was received today from Mayor Kenneth Couch of Trenton.

Word from Britain ordering the indefinite closing of the Trenton plant came during the midst of negotiations by striking workers during which they voted 74-20 to return to their jobs, providing they received wages offered at the time of the walk-out and there was no discrimination shown by plant officials in re-hiring workers.

In uniting to return to work under the above conditions, employees also asked the right to negotiate after their return to work.

Coffee Bar Will Feature New Radio Store

Trenton (Special) — The spacious quarters recently vacated by the Kent Shoe store will be the new location for Gauthier's Radio and Appliances store.

A special feature of the new shop on Front Street, will be coffee and refreshment bar. "A coffee bar and a record bar are all the rage in the United States," said Mr. Gauthier. "Tired shoppers or people waiting to be served can sit down and enjoy a cup of coffee while they are looking around or listening to the records."

Three individual booths have been installed, which will enable customers to listen and compare different arrangements and artists, or to have a more personal playing of the record they have just chosen. One booth will be used specifically for the fifteen minute long playing records. Television is also to be installed in the near future.

Commenting on his new quarters, Mr. Gauthier said "My new location will provide, most of all plenty of room. My record bar, repair shop, and show room will all be on the same floor and this will add greatly to the conveniences of both the customer and myself."

SHANNONVILLE

Dr. D.G. McVicker Addresses Open House On 'Disease Prevention'

Shannonville— The Home and School members as well as non-members of the Association enjoyed the regular meeting followed by "Open House" recently held in the school house. Junior and Senior rooms were open for inspection and the children's work displayed for the parents' approval. The ladies of the Sewing Club also had several articles on display as they are getting ready at this early date for their annual bazaar that is held in the fall.

Minutes of previous meeting were read by Mrs. Helen Louis. Home and School Secretary and approved. Treasurer's report was then given by Mr. Walter Blount who stated that after the purchasing of several articles for the school the amount of $57.63 was spent, leaving a balance of $175. The Home and School Association have decided to give a schholarship of $50 to the Shannonville entrance pupils, this being divided into three parts $25, $15 and $10, to be presented in the fall with the understanding the winners must go to High School. A box social is being planned for the children and parents to be held the third Monday in March.

Mrs. Jerry Dafoe's resignation was accepted and replacing her for executive committee, Mr. Peter Marlow. A vote of thanks was given for Mrs. Jerome for her donations to the Home and School Association as well as to the Sewing Club.

Guest speaker for the evening was Dr. D. C. McVicker, his speech being on "National Health", he said that public health must be brought to keep pace with the advance in medical science. He also spoke of several dreaded diseases and how the spreading of these could be avoided to safeguard the children.

Mrs. Philips, senior teacher, thanked the Home and School Association for all they had given to the school for the comfort as well as the enjoyment for the children she mentioned all articles that had been presented to the school.

A song was then rendered by the school children. Mrs. Rielly sang two beautiful solos. Mr. Hagerman, one of the trustees, was present to enjoy "Open House."

Delightful refreshments were prepared by the ladies of the Association and served by the social conveners. Mrs. Gordon Johnston, and Mrs. Boyce Cook.

Spring Fashion Show is Delightfully Presented by Women's Hospital Auxiliary

Smart simplicity was the keynote emphasized yesterday afternoon and evening at the Spring Fashion Show held in the Capitol Theatre under the auspices of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary. Here, before a full house, the charming mannequins modelled before an attractive backdrop depicting a Paris Salon fronted by a garden profuse with spring flowers, the suits, dresses, coats, long and short, beautiful fur wraps, and cocktail ensembles which will be worn by milady this coming season.

Mrs. George H. Stobbs, becomingly gowned in black accented with white, with matching hat, introduced each model, and added her delightful commentary, stressing the highlights of each costume modelled, while Mrs. W. Warham provided the musical setting.

In harmony with the weather outside, the first models showed weather-proofed satin rain-coats in various shades of royal, deep coral, green and black with or without hoods. A new note was added in the extra skirt for the double purpose suit. One smart model showed a black coat with wide lapels of checked material worn with a white wool skirt, which had a black cord as an addition. In practically all instances the skirts were pencil slim with pleats for ease in graceful walking, and in length slightly above the fat part of the calf.

Shortie Coats Popular

The shortie coats so much in vogue for this spring, have full, flaring backs, with the accent being on yoke, collar, or pockets. Several also have buttons extending from the tip of the collar back, down for several inches. All were exquisitely tailored. The full length coats or three-quarter coats were witty pleated at the back, and worn belted in, or without belt, full and loose, with swagger effect. Harris tweeds were quite prominent.

Among the three-piece ensembles was one showing a large grey check shortie coat with brown collar, lined in chestnut brown. With this was worn a chestnut brown suit, with matching brown handbag, and a beautiful piece of costume jewellery. A small head-hugging hat with brown flowers at the side. Another three-piece suit of note consisted of the red, white and blue color scheme, highly emphasized. The coat was short, loose and rippling with blue and white checks; the dress was red having white pique collar and cuffs. With this was worn white gloves and red hat. In many cases the gloves matched the purse.

Costume jewellery held a prominent place in the wardrobe, and was worn on the neck, in laces, and wide bracelets, with the long, pendulum earrings taking precedence, especially with dinner and evening dresses, while the latest kind were worn with suits and ensembles. The Gibson Girl sailor hat was seen with suits and was quite "chic" with its tiny veil.

Exquisite Furs

Like the suits and ensembles, furs were all-purpose, being worn with gowns, suits, and coats, and were quite in a class by themselves. One especially fine coat was of Canadian black muskrat, featuring a four-ripple back, full sleeves with crossed-over cuffs. This was an ideal coat for either street or dress wear. Another model showed a full-length grey lamb with moderate-ly full back, an outstanding coat; while others included rich black Persian lamb of lovely even curl; a rich brown Alaskan seal, all greatly to be desired, but the outstanding fur of the afternoon was a silver blue mink cape, with full, flaring back, longer than the front. This fur was suitable for evening wear, being made from perfectly matched skins, and of exquisite workmanship, priced at $2,000.

The cocktail dresses were made with either soft pleats or flowing panels at the sides, and dainty bodices of chantilly lace with tiny jackets matching the skirt. When worn with the jacket it is suitable for street wear.

Capes were also shown. One particularly stunning three-piece model showed a navy blue wool with shortie coat effect. The skirt slim and piped with red. A tiny hat with huge red poppies at each side, a red handbag completed a smart outfit.

Plaids still hold their own and never go 'out.' A particularly fine model was shown of a full length swagger coat in fairly large design of red and white, called the "June Richards model" with this was worn a white pique front. The plaids being perfectly matched in front and back.

Bridal Party Featured

Since no fashion show would be complete without the bridal party, this climaxed an altogether flowering, and wearing apparel. Two bridesmaids, one in soft blue with billowing chiffon and long bodice with underdress of matching blue lilacs; the other in similar material of soft pink with matching pink lilac headdress attended the bride, lovely in her fairy like gown of orange blossoms, and bridal gown of tier-ed flounces, and wearing a bouquet of deep red roses with red satin ribbons.

The evening guests were beautifully attired, one in bitter-sweet, embroidered net bodice, side panniers, having a slightly Spanish air; another in brown with bodice embroidered with bronze beaded leaves; while another wore white organza with pink. The bride's mother gowned in sapphire blue crepe with iridescent beaded bodice.

On behalf of Miss Ivy Dickens, the president of the Women's Auxiliary, who was unavoidably absent, Mrs. Stobbs extended appreciative thanks to all the bands of the executive for their assistance in the fashion show; to the Walker Hardware for their help; to the management of the Capitol theatre for their most pleasant associations; to the Belle theatre for the loan of the spotlight; to the Belleville General Hospital for its co-operation; to Mr. Robert Tanner for his help in the P.A. system; to the community as a whole for their co-operation; to the Ontario Intelligencer for their splendid co-operation; to McNabb's for the dresses and suits; to Ashley's Furs for the furs; to the Campbell millinery for the lovely hats which matched so beautifully the gowns and suits; to McIntosh Bros. for the gloves and handbags; to McKee's for the costume jewellery; to Leeman's, Vogue and Greta Wray shops generally; to Barber and Sons for the lovely spring flowers; to Latimer's for the commodious rooms; to Ralph Morton for the loan of the white tables and chairs; to Mrs. Imlah for her table; to Mrs. Harley Wray who had charge of the fashion show; to Mrs. Evelyn Warham, who backgrounded with her music; to the Belleville ushers who throughout the years have added their support; to the models who gave generously so wholeheartedly to the work, and to all who in any way have assisted in making the fashion show such a success. Appreciation was also extended to Mrs. George Faulkner for her excellent scenery backdrop which added so much to the beauty of the stage decorations. .

Roses Presented

Following the close of the show beautiful arm bouquets of red roses were presented to each model, to the pianist, and to Mrs. Stobbs by Mr. K. Bolton, proprietor of the McNabb store.

Those who modelled were: Mrs J. A. Marsh; Mrs. G. V. Faulkner; Mrs. J. Forrester; Mrs. F. M. Chandler; Mrs. Ross Richman; Mrs. J. B. Driscoll; Miss Marilyn Meyers and Mrs. Callaghan.

MARIO ... In his distinctive feature about Food... What's Cooking?

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

Beau Brummel set the food fashions in his day.

Although we think of him as one of the earliest male fashion plates, he was equally well known in his time for his elaborate table. Strangely, this Frenchman didn't choose a French chef to do his cooking but hired three foreigners, a Greek, a Chinese, and a Persian, whose exotic dishes were sufficiently novel to attract attention.

In spite of Beau Brummel, there are dozens of native French recipes which seemed to have survived all the whims of time and fashion.

Chicken stewed with white wine is at least 200 years old, and the recipe hasn't changed much in that period.

Briefly, it's browned chicken cooked with mushrooms, wine and stock. The stock we use today may be canned chicken broth. Chicken, vintage 1950, are undoubtedly more tender than the old barnyard fowl of Beau Brummel's day. But the net result is a blend of flavors that always seems both familiar and novel.

Chicken with White Wine
4 Servings

Have the butcher cut up a young 3 1-2 pound chicken as for frying. Hold chicken over an open flame, exposing each section for two or three seconds to singe. Pull out any pin feathers or the feathers that lie partly under the skin). Wash chicken.

Place chicken in a heavy paper bag containing 1-2 cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Shake well to coat chicken.

Melt 3 tablespoons vegetable shortening or chicken fat in a heavy saucepan. Brown chicken on both sides. Remove chicken from pan. If fat has become black, wipe pan dry, and add 2 tablespoons fresh fat.

Add 2 tablespoons onions chopped fine, 1-2 teaspoon chopped garlic and 1-4 pound sliced fresh mushrooms. Simmer slowly until mushrooms are tender.

Add 1 cup undiluted chicken broth, 1-2 cup water, 1 tablespoon tomato paste, 1-4 cup dry white wine, 1 tablespoon parsley chopped fine, and 1-4 teaspoon powdered thyme. Add chicken. Cover pan with heavy lid. Simmer 1 hour or until chicken is very tender. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Ingenious Woman Changes Hutches to Model Chalet

By ANDY ANDERSON

Lake Wales, Fla., (CP) — Chalet Suzanne is what you can do with a few rabbit hutches, some imaginative and a background of world travel.

Mrs. Bertha Hinshaw had these and little else except an enormous capacity for doing things when she was faced with the necessity of making a living and rearing two small children.

Friends told her she was a little daft, but what she started 18 years ago has made her a quiet but far-flung reputation for good food and lodging; and has promoted some reputable hotel men to take a page from her book.

Chalet Suzanne is a veritable doll's village near here. It looks like something out of a far-off land tucked strangely behind a fold of the low-rolling hills of the lush Florida citrus ridge section.

Your quarters at first puzzle, then delight you. Doors are sometimes so low that anyone nearly six feet must stoop. Almost no two rooms are on the same level. One apartment has a bedroom 13 by 13 feet, a sitting room eight by eight around a corner, a bathroom with standing space only of about 30 inches—and 30 windows.

The furniture and rugs may have come from Victorian England or Persia—or an obscure second-hand or antique shop.

Guests eat food of unusual preparation and unsurpassed quality with silver and from china and pottery dishes from almost every country you can name. They drink from world-gathered goblets which hold from a few ounces to something just short of a quart.

Chalet Has Lake

There are 30 rooms at the chalet, including efficiency cottages and apartments; and you may take your meals in the dining room which juts out over basin-filled Lake Suzanne, or in your private patio, or where you please.

The remarkable thing about this place is that there is no breakage. Guests hold the unusual glass and dishes in too high regard to be careless. And there is just no thievery, probably due to the charm of Mrs. Hinshaw.

People who boast of turning a stable or barn into a country home can take a lesson from this hardy woman whose banker-husband retired in the prime of life, only to have the stock market wipe him out and leave him so utterly defeated that pneumonia killed him in four days.

Mrs. Hinshaw bought the estate where Chalet Suzanne now is. When he found himself without money he spent his last few thousand dollars to see if rabbit raising would be a livelihood. It wasn't—and suddenly his widow had to make her own way.

Fire has forced her to rebuild part of the chalet, since she turned over her home, their playrooms the rabbit hutches, the stables, a huge chicken house, and servants' quarters into the guest spot at the end of a quarter-mile old brick road leading from the highway.

Two great assets are Mrs. Hinshaw's son Carl, 27, who has absorbed her delicate culinary touch and supervises the kitchen; and his wife Vila who is mistress of the dining room.

Mrs. Hinshaw describes herself as "a worker"—which means if something needs repairing, she will probably do it. She goes abroad almost every year, and each time the costuming of the women folk of the chalet reflects her visits (this year it is Norway).

She is up each morning about four, and gives her age like this: "I have always said I will never be older than 65."

Fashion Achieves Smart 'Top'

By JEAN THOMPSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto (CP) — Herald of spring in the fashion world is the spring fashion show. And the current show at a large department store here (Simpson's) has a refreshing collection of exciting clothes.

Largely from United States designers, the models included some French imports and a group from Nicol of Sweden. Leading designers were Christian Dior of New York Paulina Trigere, Nettie Rosenstein and Ben Reig.

It is to be a season of color despite forecasts of a navy-blue-and-white spring. Yellow, green, tangerine and straw are important whether in coats, dresses or hats. Grey and navy blue, however, still hold their own.

With both coats and suits it is the "top" look this year. This is achieved by turned-up collars, bolero sleeves and full backs tightly belted. Skirts are slim beneath the full tunics. A monotone two-piece suit with a pleated back to the waist, had push-up sleeves and was worn with a tangerine straw hat and elbow length white gloves.

Coats may be worn either belted or loose. For casual costumes they are often short, made of fleece material, and paired with a matching gabardine skirt.

For Mature Figures

A group of clothes for the more mature figure featured darker clothes and highlighted accessories. One striking dress in navy wool with white piqué trim, had straight overskirt of navy lined with piqué. White gloves, navy cords or suede bags and shoes to match with a color of flower-accented hat completed the costumes.

Pure silk is a favorite fabric it appears in prints, shantung and surrahs, frequently teamed up in color with the coat or coat lining. White is used for accent particularly in gloves. Little girls' coats had white overcollar of piqué, or eyelet embroidery The classic pump is still the shoe for 1950, and here fabrics lend a new touch, linen for day and satin for evening.

Hats really have something new this season. It is the forward look. Last fall hats were pulled to one side, but the fashion-wise woman will now wear her hat straight on the head.

Flowers are everywhere. Lily Dache's black straw and pink roses, and Sally Victor's natural straw sailor had lilacs. For a more tailored effect, the modified derby and the forward cloche are important.

The newest evening gowns are shorter, and with them are usually worn many-strapped satin sandals. A lovely two-piece formal gown jit a soft blue linen had a strapless sheath topped with a full silhouette jacket with encrusted lapels. There was a touch of the '20s about Ben Reig's white hand-beaded formal with satin dipping to just above the ankle.

ABANDONS HOPE OF ASSISTANCE

Toronto, March 8 — (CP) — Mayor Hiram McCallum said today he has virtually abandoned hope of getting federal assistance in the unemployment problem.

The mayor told Board of Control: "The Prime Minister has said that he could see no reason for public works to meet the unemployment situation and I suppose that ends it."

Adaptable Jacket Is Wardrobe Boon To Business Girl

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, (CP) — A "must" in London's spring fashions is the "odd" jacket to be combined with dresses or skirts.

Skirts have interchangeable jackets; jackets have interchangeable skirts; dresses are combined with loose box jackets or swing-hip jackets.

These odd jackets are already in the shops and finding a ready market with business girls. They mean interchangeability — the boon of a small wardrobe—and are going like hot cakes.

Selling at $12.00 upwards, they are obtainable in many materials and styles. Favorite choices are the short swing jacket of smooth, grey suiting and the loose "greatcoat" jackets with tie sleeves, low, half-belted waistlines and low-set pockets.

A popular interchangeable idea is the suit with two skirts: one pleated and one straight. These run from £7 up.

Blouse-jackets are a popular feature of the style. One suit costing 28 guineas had an Irish worsted blouse-jacket over a pencil-slim black skirt. The belted jacket had a deep, draped neckline.

Youthful Look

Box jackets are especially popular with teen-agers. These short straight jackets with their "little-boy" look can be worn with high-collared blouses and plain, straight skirts.

Another pupular idea fr brightening dark suits and dresses is th. waistcoat, fitted like a man's or straight and loose, caught at the waist in a blouse effect.

Designers are shdwing fitted waistcoats, combined with shirts, in place of blouses, and loose, sleeveless, blouse-waistcoats are combined with straight-skirted dresses.

Waistcoats are made in both silks and wools and can be plain or patterned. Stripes are especially popular for useful combination with more than one color.

One useful interchangeable jacket was made in rayon and cut on tunic lines with a sailor collar double-breasted buttoning, slit pockets and half-belt. It was sleeveless and striped. Actually part of a two-piece costume, it would be extremely useful combined with a smartly-tailored linen dress.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A nagging wife makes his life miserable

At 65, one of my male readers thinks I will tell him he is old enough to solve his own problems. He then goes on to say that he has been trying to do so for the past fifteen years, but that matters between himself and his wife, who is a few years older, have just been going from bad to worse.

The trouble seems to be that his wife is a confirmed nagger, and takes the attitude that nothing her husband does is right.

She has antagonized the neighbors so that many of them aren't speaking to her any more, although he himself is on good terms with them. If he does any small kindness for any one of them in a neighborly way, "she flies up and we have it again. What do you think I should do," he asks, "give up my neighbors and submit to her?"

So desperate was this husband that at one time he "even tried hiring her to be good." Every evening he came home from his work, he would put down some money without saying anything about it. This brought peace in the house for about two weeks But suddenly the truce was over, and the war on again. "So I never put down the money anymore and she has never mentioned it to this day," he says.

Sometimes when they go to church, he is so moved emotionally that tears come to his eyes. Then, when church is over and they are back home again, she storms at him for being "a hypocrite."

"We have plenty of everything around us, but can't enjoy anything," the harried husband ends his pathetic letter.

Now of course there is something radically wrong with a woman who continually nags and scolds. Usually the "something wrong" is a feeling of frustration; a vague underlying dissatisfaction with what life has brought her.

Perhaps this woman wanted a totally different kind of life than the one she has, possibly, even a different sort of husband. Obviously, she is at war with herself and with the world in general, and since her husband is her only available means of expressing her sense of dissatisfaction, she takes it out on him.

To tell him that his wife is actually a sick woman, however, will hardly make his existence any more endurable. The only thing that could improve the situation would be for his wife to undergo a change of personality, the most difficult thing on earth to bring about.

In the town near which this couple lives there is an organization whose business it is to try and help troubled people solve their problems. It might be that if the husband would go and talk matters over with someone there, he could get some suggestions that would help him. Perhaps what this wife needs more than anything else is more outside activities to interest her, and more friends. Someone might be able to go and see her and find out, if possible, just what is at the bottom of her unhappiness.

If my correspondent would like to consult this organization, I will be glad to give him its name and address if he will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Beautify in spare moments

There are women who look after their homes and every member of the family except themselves. If they were not so conscientious they would be better. If one of the kids says, "Mommie you need a permanent. Why don't you get it?" Mommie will say she hasn't the time. The wife and mother should keep herself in tip-top form, look as lovely as ever she can because her loved ones want to take pride in her. To let herself go to seed is to do them an injustice.

Complexion, hair, fingernails and the figure require a certain amount of attention, no matter what happens. There should be no armistice with Old Man Time. It is a long, long war and unless you fight hard you're going to lose out. Even the busiest woman can indulge in a session of self-improvement before she says her prayers and crawls into bed. She must wash and cream her face, lotion her hands, brush her hair, give her scalp a five minute tingling to hustle up the blood streams.

She will experience a feeling of righteousness. She has attended to her pulchritude duties, will sleep better for it. To take an unwashed face to bed is a br[illegible] lapse of which any woman should be ashamed.

One can help along the beautifying project by availing oneself of spare moments.

When standing on a street corner waiting for a bus, you can airwash your lungs. Nobody will be the wiser; nobody will suspect that you are cultivating cheek roses that will not come off, as will those that you pluck from the rouge compact. Pull up your spinal column, hoist up your chest, tuck in your tummy muscles. Inhale deeply and slowly through your nostrils, exhale through the lips. You will experience a sense of buoyancy and well-being.

Fresh air is not only a physical stimulant and tonic, but it clears away worry-webs from the mind, if they happen to be there. The blood streams, rushing through cerebral cells, give the order "Out, morbid thoughts". Try it. It works.

While waiting for an appointment with dentist or doctor or anybody else, rest your eyes, your nervous system and your soul. Go limp, relax down to your little pink toes; think of nothing at all. Your eyes, weakening every waking moment, will catch a bit of rest behind closed lids. Even a short period of relaxation will pick one up, help one to get through the day's activities.

When walking you can improve your figure and retain the youthful silhouette by maintaining correct posture. Have your head on the level. Walk with a brisk step. Be vibrant and alert.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

A boy guest should bring hostess a birthday gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A very dear girl friend of mine is giving a party to celebrate her sixteenth birthday, a party for both girls and boys. She is inviting her best girl friends who in turn are to invite their own escorts. Should each girl be expected to buy only the present she is giving, or a present for her and the boy to give also? And if the boy doesn't chip in on this present, should card be signed with the girl's name only, or with both the girl's and the boy's name?

Puzzled Teen-ager.

Really a boy should have sense enough to know that if he accepts an invitation to a birthday party, whether or not he knows the birthday-er, he should take her a present. A most attractive inexpensive present will do so show he knows what's what. Just a merry present from the five-and-ten, or a box of cards, perhaps, from the corner stationer, or in addition to party-fodder, a small box of peppermints (ten or fifteen cents) or one or two bars of candies from the nearest drug. If a boy whom a girl has invited to share the birthday girl's hospitality isn't willing to "give", with even five or ten cents for a present, the girl can do without him (and I should think she would wish to do this) cover-up for escort's thoughtfulness by providing for him a trifling something to give to the hostess when he arrives at the party.

When bride is welcomed to new community

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married soon, and in the community in which we will be making our new home it is the custom to have a shower for the newcomer, to present her with a gift for the new home. Someone will read a speech welcoming me into the community in which my husband-to-be grew up. How should I respond to this speech?

D.

You might say something like this. . . in your most gracious manner, "I thank you with all my heart for your warm-hearted words of welcome . . . how good of you to offer to me the 'right hand of friendship.' I most appreciatively and humbly accept your welcome, and I am most grateful. I shall do everything in my power to deserve your faith, your kindly welcome, your friendship. Thank you deeply, highly."

Flowers not the best man's responsibility

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We have been told by several people that the best man furnishes the flowers. I would like to know if this is correct.

L. B.

This is not correct. The status of the best man at the wedding is an honorary one . . . not a financial one. The only two "financial" responsibilities of the best man are: (1) to provide the attire designated by the groom, to be worn at the wedding, and (2) to send a wedding present, to the bride-to-be.

No candles on luncheon table

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I give a bridge-luncheon is it good taste for me to use candles on the table?

Hostess

No. . . candles should not be used on a luncheon table, unless they are absolutely necessary because the dining-room is dark and there are no sidelights.

SAVE ME, JUDGE

St. Peter Port, Guernsey (CP) — George Joyce was always in trouble over drink. Appearing in court he asked the judge to bar him from pubs on this Channel Island. "For five years!" asked the magistrate. "No sir life," replied Boyce. Application granted.

Fashion Flashes

UNMISTAKABLY new are the Spring suits now appearing in smart shops. The favorite jacket silhouette is short, full and belted, with deep armholes and slightly bloused back.

BY-THE-SEA fashions are more colorful, more sensible and less bizarre than we have seen for many a season. A new one-piece swim-suit is of jersey knit —in a small square design in red, white and navy blue—finished with bands and midriff of solid blue wool jersey. With it a solid blue wool jersey coat with puffed dolman sleeves.

IT'S ONLY NATURAL, since the short-cropped, neat hair-do is so popular, that the matching little helmet hat should be equally in demand. A softly curved helmet, fashioned entirely of flat velvet panules in the new rose pink to deep mauve, and softly misted with tulle is offered for early Spring wear.

STILL RARE, but slated for wider distribution next Winter, are coats of Persian lamb dyed in such shades as sapphire blue, emerald green and burgundy red. Midnight blue Persian is liked for early Spring jackets, while American broadtail somewhere lamb in various shades of blue is gaining acceptance.

ANOTHER REVIVAL that is sure to be catching on is that of the colorful wool coat with collar of fluffy fox, a good choice for resort or Spring travel wear. Pale tangerine yellow is chosen, for a handsome coat, full length, with fully flared back topped with a big, shawl collar of lynx-dyed fox.

Evening Service

A good attendance was present at the Sunday evening service in the United Church. The Rev. L. Scott chose his sermon text from Luke 13:31 "We Go To Jerusalem". He spoke of Jesus' last journey to Jerusalem and how He had faced the cross without fear or hesitancy. His mind was made up and He went forward courageously.

The pastor expressed the hope that in the Lenten season it might be seen and understood why Jesus went to the Cross. That His great love for all and for all mankind might be realized in doing so. His only motive being love to God, and love to man.

Mr. Scott concluded his sermon with the thought that if Jesus' suffering and death had any significance that all should show Him greater love and reverence at this season of the year. With more of Christ's love and His spirit in the heart all might be better followers of the Lord.

Former French Premier Passes Away

Seventy-eight-year-old Albert Lebrun, last president of France's pre-war Third Republic, ill for past month from pneumonia, died on Monday. Lebrun, deposed in July, 1940, had his powers taken over by Marshal Philippe Petain who became chief of state at Vichy during the German occupation. After his arrest in 1943 by Gestapo and his later release, he went to his villa at Vizille, in the Alps, where he lived under the surveillance of Italian occupation authorities. After liberation, he avoided politics during the formation of the Fourth Republic. Later, Gen. Charles de Gaulle, French leader in the liberation, absolved Lebrun of blame in France's downfall. — Central Press Canadian.

Mrs. Ed. Kent reminded the group that Blue Cross fees were due.

It was decided to send a card of congratulation to Miss Margaret McIntosh who has just recently received her cap as a nurse.

Agriculture and Canadian Industries

The special theme for March was "Agriculture and Canadian Industries" under the direction of Mrs. Percy MacMullen, and her assistant, Mrs. Fred McDonnell.

Mrs. MacMullen presided and read a selection entitled "A Farmer—More Than Anyone in the World—Lives by Faith." She spoke briefly and urged housewives to serve more apples, cheese and eggs in their homes and so help with the surplus production. If every adult ate two ounces of cheese per week and used two dozen more per week and a few more apples each week, meals would be nutritional and cheaper.

Mrs. Don Donohoe read "A Man With a Mission", and "A St. Patrick's" poem. Mrs. Ralph Utman contributed a piano solo "Melodie D'Amour".

Guest Speaker

Mrs. Fred McDonnell introduced the guest speaker, Miss Elsie Irvine (Home Economist of Women's Institute Branch) who gave a special address on "The Wise Buying and Preparation of Canned Goods."

Miss Irvine told how the canning industry was started 150 years ago. She said, during the French Revolution a prize was won by a Frenchman for a good idea re keeping food from spoilage. In 1810 an Englishman patented an idea and nine years later another patent was taken out in the United States. By 1853 firms began to can milk.

Today our modern machines turn out numbers of tin cans per minute and these so-called tin cans are only one-fifth tin and the balance is steel coated. Cans are well made with special enamel linings for berries, cherries and fruits which keep their color, and a special C-enamel lining for corn.

In a large canning factory the vegetables are washed, graded, sorted and blanched, after which any necessary peeling or coring is done, after which the cans are filled, preheated and cooked.

Can Sizes

Pineapple is packed in standard size tins, also asparagus tips. A No. 1 can holds ten ounces and a No. 1 tall, 16 ounces, while a No. 2 can holds 20 ounces and a 2½ size is 28 ounces. The housewife should buy the size of can that can be eaten up in one meal.

Cans should be stored in a moderately cool place. Frozen food is all right to eat but the texture is not so good. Cans should never be stored near steam pipes. A rusty can is all right if the rust has not penetrated through to the food.

Canada was one of the first countries to have a "Food Act". There are certain regulations enforced re name on label, time and correct descriptions of food and all tea food must be of good quality.

Qualities of Food

"Fancy" is best quality of fruit and vegetable and "choice quality" is slight variations in size with clear liquid. "Standard quality" is not uniform in color or shape but can be used successfully in salads and escalloped dishes. The last grade "sub standard" is the poorest.

Canada's food rules tell what should be eaten every day for health. Children should have one and a half pints milk per day—item agera should have one quart and adults one pint daily. One serving of citrus or tomato juices every day. Each household should can twelve quarts per person of tomatoes for winter use. Each person should have daily one serving of potatoes and two other vegetables, green or yellow, preferably raw.

Wrong Daily Habits

Miss Irvine finds in her work that so many club girls do not get the right food for health. One serving whole grain cereal daily, four slices bread, one serving of meat, fish or poultry. Eggs and cheese should be served three times weekly.

Today all the salt is iodized but plain salt has better keeping qualities for salted pickles and beans.

Canned vegetables are already cooked so the housewife should first drain off the liquid, heat, put in vegetable, heat again and serve. Any juice not needed can be used in soups, and left over fruit juices in jellies.

It has been found best to keep food in the can rather than to empty in a bowl, just cover balance and set in a cool place. Canned fruit juices should only be kept two days. Acid powder used in canning tomatoes is harmful and should never be used.

Pressure Cooker Canning

Peas and corn should be canned in a pressure cooker. Tomatoes are the most dependable for canning purposes, so that is what club girls are encouraged to do. It has been found that glass jars are not feasible for canning commercially.

Mrs. Gerald Brooks tendered a vote of appreciation to Miss Irvine for her interesting and informative address which had been very helpful.

Demonstration Given

Mrs. Hugh Jones gave a splendid demonstration of a "Molded Salmon Salad" and a "Tomato Soup Cake". She showed tins of food bought, gave some helpful advice re food and then explained her recipes step by step, urging the necessity of exact measurements and careful preparation. The salad and cake both looked marvellous and later during the luncheon period, they were sampled by all and Mrs. Jones received many words of congratulations on her culinary art.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen thanked all who had helped with her program. The president then resumed her duties, the offering was received and the meeting closed following which the lunch committee served refreshments. Sandwiches, white cake and chocolate cake, while Mrs. Jones served her salmon salad and tomato soup cake with the hostess providing cherry tarts and homemade candy.

Mrs. Ross Bush voiced thanks for hospitality, program, special address and refreshments.

'Mercy' Death Case Concluded, Goes to Jury

Manchester, N. H., March 9 — (AP) — The "mercy" death case of Dr. Hermann N. Sander probably will be given to an all-male jury late this afternoon after summatings by the defence and state and the judge, Harold Wescoth's charge to the jury.

Presentation of evidence in the trial of the 41-year-old country doctor charged with murder by air injection into the veins of a dying cancer patient, Mrs. Abbie C. Borrato, ended at 4:45 EST Wednesday.

The trial lasted 13 days. The defence used 33 witnesses, including Dr. Sander and his attractive wife. The state called only 17—two of them medical experts who stated Mrs. Borroto died of air embolism. There is no question whether Dr. Sander attempted an air injection. He admitted it freely on the witness stand.

"Something snapped," he told the jury. He said his actions "didn't make sense."

Arguments Unfolded

The trial unfolded these arguments:

For the defence:

1. That Mrs. Borroto was dead before Dr. Sander attempted to inject the air.

2. That her veins had collapsed and it was impossible to inject the air-filled needle into her arm.

3. That 40 cubic centimeters of air (which the state charges was injected by Dr. Sander) is insufficient to kill any human being, even if it were possible to inject the air into her veins.

4. That death resulted from coronary or cerebral thrombosis causes, or a combination of them; namely, inanition (starvation) bronchitis, pneumonia, or destruction of the liver by cancerour growth.

For the prosecution:

1. That air embolism caused death in the wife of a retired oil salesman; no other cause could be found at the autopsy.

2. That Dr. Sander dictated a statement that Mrs. Borroto visited 10 minutes after this (the air injection) was started."

3. That Dr. Charles Snay, key defence witness, told conflicting stories regarding Mrs. Borroto's condition when he saw her just before the arrival of Dr. Sander at Room 4 in Hillsboro County Hospital.

Taipei, Formosa, March 9 (AP) —Nationalist planes today rained bombs incessantly on the communist invaders of strategic Weichow Island, off the South China coast.

Radio contact with the Nationalist defenders had been lost. It was not clear whether that meant all resistance on Weichow had ceased.

Weifhow is not a large island. But it may become a Red airfield for attacks on Hainan Island or serve as a lookout post for any Nationalist attempt to invade the mainland from Hainan.

In Hong Kong, a dispatch from Hoihow, Hainan Island, to the Independent newspaper Wahkiaopatpo today, said the fourth effective Chinese communists to land troops on Hainan in 36 hours had been beaten off.

Ottawa, March 9 — (CP) — Passage of an all-inclusive social security program at this session of Parliament headed a list of demands presented to the government today by the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

In their annual legislative submission to the cabinet, officers of the 460,000 - member Congress also declared unemployment had become a "national emergency" and called for immediate action to provide work for an estimated 390,000 jobless.

The latest Labor Department report on unemployment placed the jobless total at 378,300 on Feb. 16).

In its contributory social security plan, the Congress urged:

1. Health insurance covering various services.

2. Old age pensions of $60 a month payable at 65 for men and 60 for women without the means test, and with the Dominion government taking full responsibility for old age and blind pensions.

3. Mothers' and widows' allowances.

4. Increased benefit payments and extension of coverage in unemployment insurance.

Resumption of price control was again asked by the T. L. C., which urged as complementary measures subsidies on basic food products and reimposition of the wartime 100-per-cent excess profits tax.

The Congress was critical of the government's action in allowing domestic rent increases late last year, declaring that it had displayed a total disregard of living conditions.

Declaring the shortage of homes in most sections of the country was still critical, the Congress asked the government — to undertake a nation - wide low-rental building program for former servicemen and those in the low-income brackets.

Other Recommendations

Other major recommendations:

1. Lower taxation in the lower brackets. This would include lifting the income tax exemption to $2,400 for married persons and $1,200 per year for single persons, making the exemption for each child $400, and exempting family allowance payments. All sales taxes also would be removed, and union dues would be tax-exempt.

(The current income tax exemption for married persons is $2,000 and for single persons $1,000. The exemption for children qualified to receive family allowances is $150).

2. The National Labor Code, Federal Industrial Relations Statute covering certain industries, should be broadened in scope and its administration improved.

3. Federal aid to education should be extended on a per capita basis.

4. Parliament should adopt a Canada-wide fair price control which would include citizenship and voting rights for Indians.

5. While the Congress believes Canada can continue to welcome new citizens, it does not endorse large-scale immigration at the moment, when neither reasonable employment opportunities nor proper housing are available.

6. Civil conditions of government employees should be improved.

7. The voting franchise should be extended to all citizens over 18.

Govt. Plans to Prosecute Alleged Combine in Canada's Wooden Match Industry

Ottawa, March 9 — (CP) — A Montreal lawyer today began sifting evidence in an official combines investigation preparatory to launching court action against an alleged price-fixing combine in Canada's wooden match industry.

Justice Minister Garson announced in the Commons Wednesday that John G. Ahearn of Montreal has been retained as government council to press charges against the Eddy Match Company of Pembroke, Ont., and its subsidiaries.

Mr. Garson said a report on the alleged combine had been submitted outside counsel for opinion and that the government had been advised prosecution is warranted.

The report was the last combines investigation report prepared by F. A. McGregor before he retired as chief Combines Commissioner Jan. 1, 1950.

It marked the second time Mr. Garson had announced intention to prosecute the match industry. He erroneously told the Commons Feb. 28, in answer to a question from the opposition, that the alleged match combine would be prosecuted. He retracted the statement the following day, explaining that he was not sure of the evidence in the matter and had believed it referred to another alleged price-fixing combine in the flat-glass industry.

The match report was made public Jan. 9. It named the Eddy Company as the dominant concern in an international cartel controlling the match industry in this country.

Subsidiaries named in the report as part of the combine were Commonwealth Match Company of St. John's, Que., Canada Match and Federal Match of Hull, Que., and the Valcourt Company of Quebec.

If the corporations are charged under the Combines Investigation Act, conviction would carry a maximum fine of $25,000 for each offence. Conviction under the Criminal Code would carry a $10,000 maximum fine for each offence.

Mr. Garson has not disclosed under which statute the alleged combine will be charged.

Man, Daughter Dragged up Cliff On Stretchers

Toronto, March 9 — (CP) — A man and his daughter were dragged up a 150-foot cliff on stretchers late Wednesday night after ice and floodwaters isolated their home in the valley at Highland Creek, east of Toronto.

Firemen, police and ambulance attendants joined in the rescue after the reeve of Scarboro township got word the two were ill and the road into the settlement was impassable. Frank Savage, 36, was removed to Toronto hospital suffering from pneumonia. His five-year-old daughter was taken to the Hospital for Sick Children for shelter.

At Long Branch in the western suburbs, Reeve Lawrence Iles said he would confer with army officers about the possibility of using flame throwers to cut a channel through the frozen mouth of the Etobicoke River.

Many sections of Long Branch are flooded and one pregnant woman had to have her bed placed on blocks to put it out of reach of the flood waters. Automobiles stalled in the fast-running water when residents attempted to move their belongings to higher ground.

Cooler weather today was expected to alleviate the flood conditions, while rescue almost every year in the event of a fast thaw.

TAKE OUT INSURANCE

Cornwall, Ont., March 9—(CP) Cornwall public school board voted Wednesday to take out earthquake insurance on the two schools under its jurisdiction. Cornwall schools have not suffered from earthquakes since 1944 when damage estimated at $24,000 was caused by a severe tremor. Tremors have been felt since that time.

Well Drill Blown Through Man's Face

Welland, March 9 (CP)—Henry Patterson, 62-year-old Dunnville contractor, was severely injured Wednesday when an explosion during well-drilling in Humberstone township propelled an iron bar through his face from the left eye to the mouth, fracturing his upper jaw and smashing teeth. He pulled the bar out unaided and an emergency operation was performed to remove his crushed eye.

Sees Vocational Grants Lower

St. Catharines, March 9, (CP) —J. A. MacDonald, accountant of the Hamilton Board of Education, said Wednesday night that he believes vocational grants to high schools will take a drop under a new system of calculation being used this year.

He told the Niagara Zone conference of the Urban School Trustees Association of Ontario that most elementary and secondary schools will be hit by the changes but vocational schools will probably suffer.

"In some cases, it may be that the increases in other panels will offset the loss suffered by the vocational schools," he said, "This will not be the case in large centres."

He said that, at present, vocational education is "vitally important" in maintaining employment and preventing an increase in lawbreaking.

"What it will be much better for our Department of Education to help the Boards of Education produce good citizens through vocational education than to expand the reformatories and prison farms?" he asked.

British Migrants Praise, Condemn New Zealand Life

By J. C. GRAHAM
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Auckland, N.Z., (CP)—Opinions of post-war British migrants to New Zealand vary all the way from unreserved praise to bitter criticism of the Dominion as a place to live.

Some have returned home in disgust. Some say they will go as soon as they save enough for the fare. The majority are satisfied with their new life and are settling down well although they have individual points of criticism. Others again have nothing but praise for the country.

The housing shortage is the most serious problem that faces most immigrants, but in many places it is minor points like absence of the English-type pub or the shortage of entertainment at weekends which most irritates new settlers. This attitude was summed up by one who declared:

"New Zealand is the land of can't. You can't smoke where you like in a tram. You can't smoke at all on a bus. You can't smoke at the cinema. You can't go anywhere unless you have a car—transport's a boor. You can't go out and have a drink when you feel like it in the evening.

"And this is the worst can't of all—you can't do anything here at weekends. The weekends are absolutely dead.

"There's not enough freedom here for me. I've booked my passage to go back to Britain. I'll be more freedom to do all the things I like doing and have my friends around me. I'll be able to smoke where and when I want to and drop into the local for a quiet drink in the evenings."

A Different View

The opposing view was eloquently put by a woman migrant:

"We are a family of six and would not leave this lovely country for anything," she said. "Your people are far more courteous, your housing on the whole much better advanced, your shops just one joy. The cost of living is not so high, but one can spend a whole lot more because there is so much to get that none of us has enough for. Wages are up 25 per cent more, so one can indulge in a little spending. We all feel the much greater sense of freedom and good fellowship.

"I have four children, all of school age, and not one of them would leave this country. They are all perfectly happy. My husband, a tradesman, has met no resentment whatever among his workmates, but was one of them right away. We came here because we wanted to find a way to live. The other life had become an existence. For us all we possessed to get settled here, but we are quite content with what we have got for our money.

"As for the long 'dead' weekends, the criticism is just stupid. There's plenty of sport and amusements and a grand get-together for families. We are here to stay."

THINGS GET LIVELY IN BUS

Toronto, March 9 — (CP) — Things got lively but in a trolley bus Tuesday night after the driver tried to enforce a "no smoking" rule.

The action started when driver George Troup repeatedly asked a man to put out his cigaret. The passenger refused. The driver asked again. The passenger went over to him and, Troup told Leite, punched him in the face.

Several other passengers leaped on the smoker and held him down until police arrived.

Then the passenger was arrested on a charge of assault.

10 Best-Dressed Men Named At Men's Show

Toronto, March 9. (CP)—Canada's 10 best-dressed men were named Wednesday night at the close of the two-day annual Canadian Men's Apparel Fair held here and the list was headed by Governor-General Vincount Alexander ,who also headed the list a year ago.

Second and third were George Drew, leader of the Progressive Conservative Party, and Prime Minister St. Laurent. The list also included Premier Johnson, of British Columbia; Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland; Mines Minister McDiarmid of Manitoba; E. P. Taylor, Toronto industrialist; J. Lawrence Rumbin, automotive executive; J. E. Campeau, Windsor radio executive, and R. W. Southam, Ottawa newspaper executive.

The failure to include any members of the Ontario Legislature in the top 10 prompted the Ontario Press Gallery at Queen's Park here to hold a poll of their own. They placed Campbell Calder, Liberal member for London, first by a scant two votes over Attorney-General Porter, with Premier Frost, third; John Hannas, Progressive Conservative member for Huron-Bruce, fourth; and William Houck, Liberal member for Niagara Falls, fifth.

Newspaper Linage Higher in January

Toronto, March 8—(CP)— A 30.9 per cent increase in national advertising linage in Canadian daily newspapers in January, compared with the same month last year, was reported Wednesday by the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association.

"This compares most favorably with the gain of 14.6 per cent in United States newspaper linage in this classification," the Association added.

January's local advertising linage showed a gain of 4.4 per cent, classified a drop of 4.8 per cent and total advertising linage a gain of 4.9 per cent over January 1949.

Traffic Safety Coloring Book Is Published

Toronto, March 9—(CP)—Because more children are killed by traffic accidents than by any other single cause the Ontario Highways Department has printed a coloring book, "The A.B.C. of Traffic Safety," to teach children safety rules.

Highways Minister Doucett Wednesday showed the book to members of the legislature. "It has a brightly colored cover and contains outline drawings to be colored with crayon or paint by school children. Each page carries a picture, a letter of the alphabet, and a safety rule, starting with "A. is for accident we learn to prevent. Let's always be careful wherever we're sent."

Copies have been sent to all school principals who may order additional copies from the department.

Since the beginning of 1937, 1,506 children under the age of 14 have been killed by traffic accidents.

Whitehall Notebook:

No Appointment More Welcome Than Maurice Webb as Food Minister in Attlee Cabinet

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 9 — (CP) — Maurice Webb is one man who will not have a chance to practise in office what he preached in private.

As a lowly back-bencher, Webb pleaded with the Labor party to cut the cost of living, especially on food. Today, as Britain's new Food Minister, he brings the influence and authority of cabinet status to bear on what has long been his pet project.

Warm Welcome

In the government reshuffle following the Feb. 23 general election, Webb took over from John Strachey. Among the new appointments, none was welcomed more warmly than the change at the Food Ministry. Labor, conservative and independent newspapers joined in wishing Webb well.

There was general agreement that the former chairman of the Parliamentary Labor party, who visited Canada last year as a member of a Commonwealth delegation, would breathe a new and more human spirit into the tricky, thankless job of negotiating food supplies for Britain's 50,000,000 population.

Webb, 45, is short and cheerful, with a round, boyish face. He is informal and easy to meet. His predecessor, witty and sophisticated among friends, had a stiff, almost clerically aloof manner in public. He was once described as being "frigid as a prairie winter" in his relations with Canadian food negotiators.

Strachey, now Secretary for War, is believed to be regarded in high government circles as a brilliant planner, lacking the chummy approach of previous food ministers. Lord Woolton, wartime food boss, was popularly known as "Uncle Fred." His jovial manner made shortages easier to bear.

Fireside Chats

Webb may restore the personal touch. Friends expect him to deliver broadcast "fireside chats" to housewives. A hint of what may come cropped up in his first speech, when he said: "I will try not to call the word 'calories' at any time, but just talk about food."

Part of Webb's popularity arises from his cheerful contempt for a personal handicap. Six years ago, playing with children on a Christmas party, he injured a knee. Two years later his right leg was amputated above the knee.

REQUIREMENTS NEEDED

Niagara Falls, Ont., March 9—(CP) —A dairy cow should produce 8,000 pounds of milk and a heifer calf every 13 months, Art Owen, a Veterans' Land Act administrator, told officials of the Administration Wednesday.

Addressing the officials on the third day of their annual convention, Mr. Owen said the average production for Ontario is less than 3,000 pounds a cow and at that level "profits almost disappear." He said that many of these cows, if given proper care, would jump into the profit-making class.

Canada's Surplus Cheese Market Must be Found

Ottawa, March 9 (CP) — Dr. W. G. Blair, PC-Lanark) said Wednesday in the Commons markets must be found for Canada's surplus cheese.

The cheese industry he said during the Throne Speech debate was an important part of the economy of his constituency.

He felt the United Kingdom could take more than 80,000,000 pounds of cheese contracted for this year. But it was evident that Canada would have to buy more from Britain if the U.K. was to obtain dollars for purchases in this country.

"Imports from the United Kingdom should be diversified," he said.

Special steps should be taken, he said to increase domestic consumption of cheese. He believed that if cheese was put up in five and 10-pound packages the sales in Canadian homes would increase. The per capita consumption of cheese in Canada, now at four pounds a year, was one of the lowest in the world.

Dr. Blair urged the Agriculture Department to take steps to curb mastitis and banish disease in Canadian cattle. New Zealands lost most of her cheese market in the U.K. because the producers there were forced to pasteurize the milk going into cheese because of the prevalence of mastitis, and bang's disease among cattle.

If the diseases were not curbed in Canada, the Canadian producers might also have to pasteurize milk going into cheese. The pasteurization took away the taste from cheese and it was likely that Canada would lore her overseas market.

Dr. Blair supported requests from farmers for a floor price of 42 cents a dozen for eggs, 34 cents a pound for bacon and 30 cents a pound for cheddar cheese.

Parliament At a Glance

(By The Canadian Press)

Justice Minister Garson announced prosecutions will be launched against an alleged combine in wooden-match industry.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner said he would hesitate to tell the world Canada has any large food surpluses.

Dr. W. G. Blair (PC-Lanark) said markets must be found for surplus cheese.

C. E. Johnston (SC-Bow River) charged that farmers had been bribed into voting Liberal last year with their own money.

Thursday:

The Commons will resume the Throne-Speech debate. The Senate will not sit.

Ladder-Climbing Dog Has Home In Country

Toronto, March 9 — (CP) — Whisky, the ladder-climbing dog, Wednesday found a new home in the country where he can climb and bark — to his heart's content.

The two-year-old mixture of beagle and collie won a reprieve by a last gas chamber. It was his own bounding spirits that nearly put him there — this business of clearing nine-foot fences and climbing ladders.

Owner Robert Greer announced Tuesday that he just couldn't go on paying fines because Whisky was running loose and would have to destroy him. He changed his mind, however, after more than 200 offers of adoption came in.

Greer selected Larry Bright of nearby Unionville. A gentleman near 60 who lives alone, he and the dog took to each other at once. Besides that, Bright can offer Whisky a home in the country.

The Golden Shoestring

Faith Baldwin

"No." She pulled off her hat and sailed it across the lanai, where he was lying in a big wicker chair. He was thin and brown. He had come in much earlier, showered and changed, and now he sat in a welter of papers and with a long mild drink. She said, "I'll get supper ready in two minutes."

"Sit down. Here." He drew her down beside him. "There's all the time in the world."

"The Hartleys are coming for bridge at eight."

"There is still all the time in the world."

"The Kalens suggested we go to the beach Sunday for a picnic that is, if nothing comes up at the hospital. If it does, we can go without him, you, Mrs. Kalen, the kids and I."

"All right, the beach it is What have you been doing?"

"Shopping for some mats and a bathing suit. I stopped at the bank, I had lunch at the Peterson' with Lillie. She took me to your mother's, and Mrs. Kalen picked me up. And we're having our party Saturday night, everyone's coming, including Jack."

"He won't, to none."

"You saw him?"

"For a moment," she answered and he was satisfied. There was nothing unusual about Jack's being home in the middle of the afternoon. And Terry went on, "he's astonished, I think, at the way you've taken hold."

"And how would he know that?

"Oh," she said, "I told him. But I dare say I'm not the only one."

"Funny," he said, "I can't work up even a slight sweat over Jack now. I'm tired. It's a good feeling. Yet I minded like hell at first, the getting up before dawn, the interminable hours. I don't now."

Sometimes it seemed to him he had always been here, although this was not a plantation he had known well. But it was like many others allowing for its own difference. Now it had come clear and familiar, he could find his way to this house, among all the houses, blindfolded. The offices were known to him the tall chimneys of the factory, the sweet heavy smell of sugar. His ears were tuned to the rumble of trucks, the blasting whistle. It was as if he had always seen this particular recreation building, this special hospital, this school and church, and the big house in which the Langers lived. He knew, by heart, the scent and sound and look of morning, and of evening; her shifting shadows on the colored mountains, the clouds in the pure blue, the sudden slanting rain. By heart, too, the worker's camps, so called tacitly divided by nationality yet not really so, as one nationality merged into the other in the interracial population. He had become as familiar with his car as with his hand, the heavy boots he drew on each morning were known to him, as were the acres of cane fields, as well the faces he looked for each day and now knew by name.

Terry said "I'll change now and get supper.

On Saturday night, everyone had come, overflowing from living room to lanai, Mrs. Kalen was as efficient in a kitchen as in an operating room and Kane a brown little woman, more precious than gold. They had set up the buffet, of hot rice and chicken, sold crab, salad, raw vegetables, fruit and cheese, and coffee, hot or cold. And Cordelia looked around, remembering her first house, her heart tight with an old sorrow. For she had hated that house on Maui to which Hugo had brought her as a bride. She looked at him now, talking to Kurt Langer, a neglected child in his hand, his undistinguished face alive with interest, while Langer listened, knowing you can always learn from the men who know. And now Hugo lowered his voice to ask, "how's Chris making out?"

"All right."

It wasn't high praise but Langer was not given to praise. And right meant just that. He added "he gets along with his men. They come to him to settle problems ex-officio. Or so I hear. And he does. It's usually something personal—a wayward daughter, a bad-tempered wife, a fight..."

Cordelia could not hear what they said, but she knew that, whatever it was, her husband was pleased. Curious, how fond she had grown of him, she thought. Perhaps inevitable in the circumstances. She knew his faults and his stubbornness, a stubbornness not unlike her own; she recognized his small values and his limitations He was a good man, he had loved her always and been kind and patient, a patience she had tried on more than one occasion.

Beside her, Mrs. Langer was talking about Terry. Everyone liked her, she said. She fitted in Did Mrs. Russell know Terry had organized a little class of Portuguese women, the older women who spoke so little English, Terry spoke Portuguese as fluently as Spanish. So she taught them English.."

Supper was good, conversation relaxed and no one stayed very late although Saturday night they could stay later than other nights. The men abhorred weekday night festivities, always remembering the blast of the whistle in the dark.

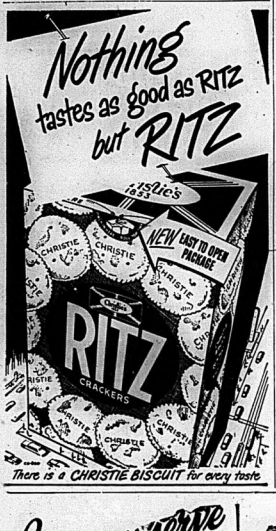
"But I said, no gifts," Terry cried, dismayed. "And Lilia said she wouldn't, Chris and I promised we wouldn't. Not this year."

"But it belongs really to Chris. It was his mother's. I found it among her things in Paris. I suppose he's forgotten it. I kept it Terry." She smiled, "I don't want it now, perhaps I haven't wanted it was a miniature set in a big locket of gold, seed pearls and enamel. It opened and a face looked back at you. Terry held it in her hands and looked at the smiling face that smiled back at her. The man looked like the portrait of Bob grown older, and smiled as Chris did.

"Thank you for giving it to us," she said.



"It's not very good," said Cordelia. She closed the locket and shut it into Terry's hand.

"Are you finding it hard here?" she asked.

"Often, I'm not as practical as I thought, and much more ignorant, I don't always want to be silent as I often must be, nor always as polite. I like Mrs. Langer. She's about the most active woman I've ever known, and one of the nicest. I like Mrs. Kolen too. Some of the others seem trivial to me or uninteresting They're all ambitious of course. Some are gossips, some are plain ordinary cats. But most of them work hard for their husbands. We have that much in common. It was more difficult at first of course, knowing that the gossip had got around and that—" She broke off, then said helplessly "Sometimes people are nice to you because they're sorry for you as like being sorry!"

Cordelia patted her shoulder She said "hand me my wrist will you?" And then "you'll make out all right, Terry, you are Chris."

ndon (CP) — Calling ssasaurus! Calling Cadboro, rust British Columbia's coast- sea-serpent! Take a deep- ing into the Gulf of Georgia stay there! The hunt is on! for from Copenhagen Charles ot of Reuters writes that an petition will go out from here September or October to up once and for all whether hat there are sea monsters. whether or not there are sea nsters, the man says, as ough he hadn't settled that s ago.

e expedition doesn't say ether or not it is going to put hat specifically on you, but says it is going to spend two ys "fishing"—yes, "fishing" man calls it—to depths of 000 feet in nearly every sea ation in the world.

hat let Groot of Reuters tell story and you'll know what watch out for. Say he:

The expedition's main equip- nt will be a 22-ton steel wire e especially constructed to nd enormous strains and fitted th nets, trawls, grabs and other truments which, when low- ed over the ship's side, will ep the sea bottom to a depth eater than the height of Mount erest, the world's highest ntain.

What do you think of that, dy? And there's worse to come:

Six Miles Down

When the wire is out, the expe- dition ship, Galathea, formerly the World Friendship vessel, Friendship, will steam slowly a- head in an effort to trap in the wire creatures, vegetation and any other objects which may be lurking nealy six miles below the keel. The wire, paid out to its full length, will take up to 1hrs. days to wind in again.

The scientific leader of the ex- pedition is 47-year-old Dr. Anton Bruun, of the Copenhagen Zoo- logical Museum, who expects to make some sensational "catches". He says there have been so many reports from different parts of the world, of sea monsters and sea serpents, that there may well be some truth in the old belief of their existence.

With the help of specially de- signed scientific instruments, the expedition hopes to collect a mass of information about the extreme depths of the world's oceans. Apart from temperature readings, currents and similar de- tails, a specially constructed ra- dioactive instrument will yield information of plant life on the ocean bed.

At the suggestion of Dr. Niels Arley, a young assistant of Prof Niels Bohr, Denmark's No. 1 atom expert-an investigation will be made of the world's magne- tism at the ocean floor. The re- sults of these investigations may provide new evidence in connec- tion with the Einstein theories on gravity and world forces.

Dr. Bruun believes the possi- bilities to be unlimited. "Two- thirds of the world's surface, he said, are covered by sea water. Only a relatively minute part of this area has been explored.

Dr. Bruun is not disturbed by the possibility of bringing to the surface some gigantic and fero- cious sea monster. "Anything of that sort will almost certainly be dead by the time it reaches the surface," he said. (Nice thought, Cadborosaurus!)

The expedition is expected to cost between two and three mil- lion kroner (between $280,000 and $420,000), from which it being provided partly by the Danish expedition fund partly by the Danish government, partly by the Carlsberg Foundation and partly by private contribution.

The Galathea will be manned by a Danish navy crew of about 75. The commander will be Cap- tain Svend Greve. Ten Danish scientists will form the expert team and a number of foreign scientists are expected to join the expedition as it reaches the wa- ters near their home countries.

Quadruplets Show Marks of Identity

Toronto, (CP) — Dermatog- lyphics —the study of skin for- mation—is what tells Dr. Norma Ford Walker that the Sault Ste. Marie quadruplets born to Mrs. Oasis Hargreaves last October, are identical babies.

Dr. Walker, associate professor of human genetics at the Univer- sity of Toronto, has made a spe- cial study of insulin births in her research into heredity. Fing- erprints, handprints and foot- prints all play a large part in this study, since they are the only things which do not change throughout a person's life.

This woman scientist can tell that the quads will look very much alike because the right hand of any one of the little girls is more like the right hand of any one of her sisters than it is like her own left hand. The same thing applies to feet.

The next thing Dr. Walker wants to know about the quad- ruplets is their blood-grouping. But she won't know that until they are about six months old. She will also make a study of their teeth, noting when they ap- pear and in what pattern.

Children inherit the pattern of the growth of their teeth from their parents, she said. But blood-grouping is the only phys- ical factor that is governed en- tirely by heredity and has no environmental influence.

The Hargreaves are the fourth set of quadruplets Dr. Walker has studied. They don't come very often about once every 312,000 births. These little girls bear out several interesting facts that she and other geneticists have found:

In single births and twins there are more boys than girls. But in triplets or more, girls pre- dominate. Also there are more left-handed children born in threes and fours than single— Emilie Dionne is a southpaw.

Dr. Walker, who has been on the University of Toronto staff since 1918, went to see the Har- greave babies.

"They are lovely babies," she said. "Dr. John MacDonald de- serves a tremendous amount of credit for the way he has looked after those children. They are so healthy, so well-adjusted and so responsive."

Lard, Suffrin'! Airmen are Tops To Labrador Boy

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Port Hope Simpson, Labra- dor — (CP) — Boys in Labra- dor have more than an ordinary interest in aviation and airmen.

Eight-year-old Piercey Rus- sell who lives in this winter- bound village is no exception. Fliers are his heroes and he talked enthusiastically about them when this reporter met him on one of a number of mail and mercy trips with a bush pilot.

There's just one thing I want to be when I grow up and that is one of them bush pilots and you needn't tell me any differ- unt.

Sufferin'! You must've seen them when they came down in a snowstorm and pitch on the harbor here or on the pond wherever you live, Sufferin'! There ain't anybody like them or my name ain't Piercey Rus- sell.

Two of them just flew away now and I'm surer than ever I was about what I want to be although I'm only eight years old and my whole family are un- kids but me.

Whatsis always puzzlin' me is how they ever find this place becus my old sister—she's 28 if she's a day—sez we live in one of the last places God made. But that just shows she's stupid and only worried bout there ain't many people. I told her last night lots of people are big boots and not a bit scared. They just talked to one another mostly. Sufferin' what I would not give to be like them.

When they go to wing I al- ways run away to a hill by my- self to watch becus I can feel myself lift too. Today one pi- lot looked over and saw me there when he was turning in the air and he waved. He didn't pay any attention to the other how is how they ever find this place only silly codfish heads anyway and that's true although I re- mit. I was thinking of that silly codfish head next door at the time.

"...t after those pilots pitched today they walked over to each other and one looked out at the harbor and said:

"Nice smooth surface, ain't it?"

Lard Suffrin' I wish my sis- ter could've heard that— the silly codfish head.

Tweed Defeats Madoc 6-2 To Even Series

By WALLY MOFFAT

Tweed—Sparked by the brilliant goal tending of Bill Beglev, who came out of retirement to don the big pads, Tweed Greenshirts tied their best-of-five finals at two games apiece by trouncing Madoc 6-2 here Monday night. The deciding game will be played Wednesday in Madoc. Last Friday Madoc won the third game by edging the Greenshirts 3-4. Last night's game, played before a capacity crowd in Tweed arena, was a fast and comparatively clean, only one penalty being handed out by referee Jack Begley, who handled the game alone.

Only in the first period could the Madocers keep pace with the Greenshirts. Madoc opened the scoring at 6:50 when Alexander cashed on a pass from Nichol, with Bob Maynes of Tweed in the penalty box. Tweed carried the play and finally tied it up at 13:30 when Don Sherry, set up by Joe Courtney, sailed in on Carswell to pick the corner. Play roared back and forth with both goaltenders called on to pull off some great saves, particularly Bill Dickie.

The Tweedsters, facing elimination, turned on the steam to take a 3-1 lead in the second period. At 9:45 Joe Courtney, one of the best men on the ice, took a pass-out from Doug Reid and blazed a high, hard one past Carswell. Twelve minutes later Lorne Gehan started a rush at his own blue line, passed to Tiny Rivers who cut in, then whipped the rubber across to Spike Meraw, who drew Carswell out, then flipped the puck in the empty net.

Letting Madoc carry the play in the third, Tweed were content to protect their 3-1 lead. The first half of the period was scoreless, but at 13:17 Spike Meraw beat Carswell with a low, long shot that the Madoc goalie stopped but couldn't hold. That seemed to make victory sure, but Madoc fought back and Kellar broke through to beat Dickie at 17:30. Madoc pressed, and a four-man rush paid off with only Johnny Orr back. But Orr made a great check to break up the play, and carried on the ice. Fighting in over the blue line he passed to Tiny Rivers, swooping in on Carswell and Rivers banged in number five. Fifteen seconds later Joe Courtney whipped a shot across the goalmouth that Don Sherry tipped in to finish off the scoring at 19:10.

Joe Courtney turned in another good effort and led the scorers with a goal and two assists. Don Sherry scored two well-earned goals, while smooth-skating Spike Meraw rounded out two more. Lister turned in a solid effort on the Madoc defence, while Keller and Smith were good up front. Deciding game of the series will be played in Madoc Wednesday night.

2 Ontario Rinks Running Close For Curling Title

Vancouver, March 9. (CP) — The Canadian Curling championships rounded into the stretch drive today with the strong possibility an Ontario rink will give the province its third Dominion title in the 23-year history of the spiel.

The final three draws are on the card—morning, afternoon and evening—and a picture before the country's 68,000 curling enthusiasts is one that isn't entirely familiar.

Ontario and Northern Ontario are the province has two entries—head for the wire neck and neck with Quebec and Alberta in contending spots, Nova Scotia, British Columbia and Manitoba coming in on a prayer and New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Saskatchewan definitely out of the running.

Western Canada curlers have predominated in the scene for years but the only real hope this time rides on the experience and calmness of Edmonton's Cliff Manahan, two-times Dominion champion. He has a 6-2 won-lost record. Quebec entry, against 5-1 records of the Kitchener and Kirkland Lake entries from Ontario.

In a first-place tie develops tonight, a playoff will be held Friday.

The last unbeaten team fell yesterday as Northern Ontario dropped Jack Asmussen's Kitchener rink in the afternoon by a handy 11-5 margin and stayed with the Southern Ontario quintet last night. Ontario walloped Prince Edward Island 18-6 and Tom Ramsay's steady all-round-able northern rink took Saskatchewan 13-5. Ernie Whitsett's Prince Albert crew dropping its fifth.

Ramsay's rink broke through the younger Kitchener rink and won going away. Ability of the all-miner outfit to get out the shots they wanted, running, draw, raise, or freeze, was responsible.

Best games last night developed as four teams in runner-up spot battled.

Many Persons Taking Syntona Say They Have Fewer Colds. Aids System of Excess Acid and Poisons, Improves Action of Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Helps Throw Off Lingering After-Effects

If you are unable to throw off the after-effects of colds, flu or grippe you are probably rundown and need a good tonic like Syntona to improve the action of the stomach, promote appetite, aid elimination of excess acid and poisonous waste matter, and to purify the blood.

Here, for example, is the experience of Miss Alice Vincent, Canaanoque, Ontario, as told in a recent report:

"Last winter we had a series of severe colds in our family and in my own case I just couldn't seem to regain my former strength. I felt so weak and rundown so that I continually suffered from headaches and nervousness. I tried to do what I could but everything I tried to do was such an effort that my nerves were all on edge, my sleep was restless and I was constantly tired out.

"Realizing this need of a tonic I began taking Syntona and found it gave prompt relief that was of a very real kind. Then I ordered it to other members of my family and they also found it very helpful. Since using Syntona we've had fewer cold than during any similar period. Also, I found that most other cold remedies upset my stomach, but Syntona helps digest and correct it, so in this respect Syntona helped my digestion, gave me a better appetite and I soon felt better my strength had returned and I was able to get more sleep, rest and energy.

"I think people should know about this additional use for Syntona and that it would be helpful for them to know that Syntona can be obtained at Dodds' Drug Store."

Mercurys Firm Favorites to Win Hockey Title

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 9 — (CP) — Hockey is big business in Britain now. It will cost an estimated £15,000 ($46,000) to bring nine teams from overseas to compete in the world championship here March 13-22 — and sponsors hope to make a profit at the gate. Expenses and travel costs for each team are borne by hockey-controlling bodies of their own countries and the British Ice Hockey Association will pay all expenses incurred in London during the tournament.

Secretary John F. (Bunny) Ahearne told reporters this would cost the B. I. H. A. about £350 a team. But that should be covered by gate takings at London's three largest arenas — Wembley, Harringay and Empress Hall.

Additional expenses should be written off by barn - storming games played en route to and from Prague, Czechoslovakia. For instance Edmonton Mercurys, Dominion representatives, played 30 games before the tournament — winning the title share—and drawing good crowds in England, Scotland, France, Italy, Switzerland and Sweden.

Most expensive proposition is bringing a team from the United States. It will cost £4,000 to fly 14 players here March 11 and back March 23.

The Mercurys are firm favorites to regain the honors Quebec Bunny Wolves lost to Czechoslovakia at Stockholm last year. Several members of the local Canadian colony have backed them strongly and there is attracting odds of 5 to 4, and Ahearne has been quoted as saying:

"Canada is a 30-1 cinch to win the title, as far as I can see."

Bunny, who is about Europe's smartest hockey operator, has kept most of the squads which will oppose the Mercurys.

Chief menace will probably come from Czechoslovakia and more.

Canadians who play in the B. I. H. A. are ineligible to represent Britain in the world competitions.

Other countries taking part are Poland, Germany, France, Sweden and Switzerland.

BROCKVILLE WALLOPS KINGSTON 53-38

Brockville, Ont., March 9. (CP) — The Brockville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School rolled to a 53-38 victory over Kingston Collegiate 55-38 Wednesday to take a 17-point lead in total points scored in round to count series to determine the Eastern Ontario Secondary School Association Southern Section championship.

The second game will be played in Kingston Friday, the winner of the round meeting Renfrew Collegiate in the E.O.S.S.A. finals.

Don Murray was high scorer for Brockville, tipping in 24 points, while Bill Purcell led Kingston with 14 points.

The league decided to affiliate with the Ontario Football Association making it eligible to participate in Ontario cup competition. It named a discipline committee consisting of Messrs. Harvey, John Jones and Henry Drury.

The league will make every effort to interest junior clubs. The secretary was instructed to contact various organizations which might be interested in sponsoring the minor clubs.

Teams of the league will participate in exhibition games with teams of the Eastern Ontario League. Efforts will be made to secure the playing field here two nights a week and Saturday afternoons for Belleville clubs. The entry deadline was set for April 15th.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Ole Master Mauler from the faraway Manawa Hills still has his heart in the sport that made him millions, and one of the most popular figures of the century.

Le Dempsey was in his room in a Toronto hotel the other day when the telephone rang. It was the irrepressible Sarge Mike Kelly, Trenton ECAF boxfight impresario who had an eye to business.

"How about coming down to God's country and refereeing the best boxing show since you beat Tunney but not the long count in Chicago back in 1927?" (What a mel the long count in Chicago back in 1927?" (What a memory the gun's got) asked the sarge.

"Just when is this epic of the beakbusting fraternity taking place?" came back the ex-champion.

"March 15th, at the Trenton Air Station sports hangar — eleven bouts all told — first bout starts at 8:30 — best boys in Eastern Ontario will be here — not a dud in the whole shebang—promise plenty of action", rapid - fired ole Publice Relations Kelly.

"Hmf, I'm afraid it is a trifle out of the question", Dempsey said, a note of regret in his voice. "You see, I'm due in California about that time, and the oranges can't wait."

Kelly was plainly disappointed. He has one of the best boxing shows in a decade lined up and he figured a real big sey being one of the officials would add the spice to the attraction.

About to hang up, he was greeted with "Just a minute" over the wire.

"I'm sorry I can't accommodate you", said Dempsey, "but here is what I will do. I will have two pairs of brand new boxing gloves here as a present to your show. One pair will be awarded to the boy putting on the most scientific exhibition, and the other to the boy proving the gamest loser. Both boys must be service men", said Dempsey.

The sarge grabbed a nearby phone for support. He mumbled his thanks in Gaelic, and then dashed for the sports hangar. A few minutes later Flight Sergeant Perkins was wheeling a brand. Sho-nuff, the gloves were waiting, each bearing the autograph of the former world's heavyweight champion. They were turned over to the station boxing show March 15th. The winners will be selected by a special panel of judges.

By the way Ronny Lacelle, sensational young fighter out of Ottawa will headline the card with Jackie Diamond of Athletic Club, Toronto, a protege of Promoter Vic Bazarko, who is well-known in this district. In the semi-final Bob Maisef, (180), Grenadier Guards, Montreal, amateur champion of that city in his weight, will meet John Dutrisac, (159), another Montrealer and 1949 champion of the Canadier Guards regiment. Nine other outstanding bouts round out an attractive card.

Increase the freight rates, reduce the crews, pile up the coal and reinstate passenger service, may be all-important issues in the coming employee - management bout to be puck-chasing buckaroos of the Yardmen and Car Department hockey teams they are seconding. They will meet in a series of three with a championship series and the Townsend Trophy. Each team has a victory to its credit and on Tuesday night they battled to a one-all tie. It was a fast, well-fought battle with neither team scoring until the third period. The game, however, was marred by an injury to Mike Gerow of the Car Dept. squad who suffered a fractured arm, and will be out of action for the rest of the series.

The clans are gathering. From the far-off jungles of the coal-chutes to the sprawling plain that lies to the westward come numbers of wee, hockey war, that is. For tomorrow night the CNR Diesels and the Northern Electric squads clash in the third game of the District Hockey League finals. Warriors of both teams are girding their loins. The Cow-bell Clan of the planters has re-clapered its instruments. Horns have been extracted from bags of local concoctives. Ominous sounds emanate from the rival camps. "There's going to be a hot time in the ole town tonight" is the consensus. And likely there will be. Both teams have no intention of letting the enemy get the "jump" and the game should be a rip-roaring battle from whistle to tape. As far as we can ascertain, the squads will be at full strength with Northern using a top-notch goalie from one of the league teams. Diesels have agreed to the replacement of Art. Plumley, and all is well along that lane.

Officials of the Class C Border Baseball League have set a 130-game schedule for this year, opening May 10 and closing Sept. 8.

An all-star game, scheduled for July 12, will pit the top team in the league as of June 30 against players chosen from the other five teams by sportswriters in the home cities. The game will be held at the home park of the leading club.

Rampaging Rangers Move Into Third Place of N.H.L. With Victory Over Chicago Hawks

By HARRY ECCLES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

James Donald Raleigh, the centre from Kenora, Ont., scored 3 goals Wednesday night as New York Rangers defeated Chicago Black Hawks 4-2. The victory jumped Rangers into third place in the National Hockey League, leaving Montreal Canadiens in the fourth and last play-off position.

The league-leading Detroit Red Wings beat Boston Bruins 5-3 in the night's other game, considerably dimming Bruins' slight mathematical chance of gaining a play-off berth.

Don Raleigh, the 23-year-old centre with a left-hand shot, played 15 games with Rangers as long as six years ago. He returned to professional hockey in the 1947-48 season. This year the slim sharpshooter has been a potent figure in the Ranger drive for the play-offs. He scored early in the first period at Chicago Wednesday night and twice more in the last frame, with Tony Leswick-setting the other New York goal. Gus Bodnar and Gaye Stewart were the only Hawks to beat Rayner in the Ranger nets, though he was peppered with 41 saves against only 8 for Frankie Brimsek.

Lindsay Scores Two

At Boston the league's leading marksman, Ted Lindsay of Detroit, scored two goals when the Wings beat Bruins. Lee Fogolin, Captain Sid Abel and big Jack Stewart scored the others. Johnny Peirson, Ed Harrison and Captain Milt Schmidt counted for Boston.

The Bruins out-shot the league leaders by 23-14.

Wing and Rangers clash tonight at New York, while Toronto-Maple Leafs travel to Montreal. The Gardens-Forum will be the first encounter between Canadiens' rugged Ken Reardon and Leafs' centre Cal Gardner since Reardon was fined $1,000 for published threats he made against Gardner. Reardon can apply for return of the amount at the end of his career but if the two should happen to collide-evidently it's going to cause the league bosses considerable cogitation.

Eddie Sawyer Picks Phillies To Finish Third

"We'll be lucky to finish as high as last year," says Sawyer. "If I had to pick the finish this season, I'd list them just the same as in 1949," Sawyer said.

Sawyer lists only seven Phils as sure fire starters. They are outfielder Del Ennis, third baseman Willie Jones, shortstop Granı Hamner, starting pitchers Ken Heintzleman, Robin Roberts and Russ Meyer and relief pitcher Jim Konstanty.

Eddie Waitkus will play first if sufficiently recovered from the wounds he received in the bizarre shooting incident at Chicago last summer.

"If Eddie can't go every day, we'll have Dick Sisler who filled in for him last year," Sawyer said.

Mike Gollat, a rookie from Toronto with previous experience at third and first, is being molded into a second baseman. The veteran Eddie Miller is in reserve.

"Ennis is our one regular outfielder," said Sawyer, "I'm giving Eddie Sanicki every chance to make it in center. If he comes through, Richie Ashburn will go to left and Ennis will play right."

Indians, Reds Gain Ground On Ramblers

Springfield Indians and Providence Reds gained ground on the idle New Haven Ramblers in the eastern division of the American Hockey League Wednesday night as the battle for the last two play-off positions draws to a close.

The Indians came up with a 7-3 victory over St. Louis Flyers while Providence downed Hershey Bears 5-4. Springfield now has a four point lead over the fourth place Ramblers and the Reds are up three points.

Mike Narduzzi and Armand Lemieux fired three goals apiece for the Indians with Whitey Peyko getting the other. Cliff Simpson, Pat Wilson and Ernie Trigg counted for the losers.

Jackie Hamilton with only 30 seconds to play fired the winning goal for Providence. He also scored another goal earlier. Jack McGill, Jack Stoddard and Eddie Kullman notched the other Providence tallies. Hershey goalgetters were Frank Porteous, Arnie Kullman, Gordie Bruce and Roly McLennan.

Cincinnati Mohawks, last in the western division, scored a 6-3 victory over the eastern division leading Buffalo Bisons.

Tod Campeau led the Mohawk attack with two goals while Phil Hergesheimer, Bobby Frampton, Gerry Plamondon and Irwin netted the others. Don Asbee scored twice for Buffalo and Sid McNabney once.

Pittsburgh Hornets and Cleveland Barons battled to a 4-4 draw. Andy Barbe, Fleming Mackell, Les Costello and Stan Kemp scored for the Hornets. Cleveland marksmen were Bobby Carse, Harry Taylor, Roy Kelly, and Bob Dawes.

Master Hypnotist Works Wonders With St. Louis

(By The Canadian Press)

David Farrell Tracy, doctor of metaphysics, showman and master hypnotist, says the time has passed for the jokes about hypnotizing the St. Louis Browns into belligerent candidates for high honors in the American League.

Dr. Tracy, as the ball players address him, offers several forms of proof.

For, one thing, the entire program is instil confidence into this perennially-low second-division club now is serious business with the people for whom it was intended —the player.

His job is to help the players get rid of these mental problems —the fears, for instance, of what might happen from thousands of shrieking fans, teammates, the manager, the front office, if they commit an error. The problems apply, he believes, to seasoned veterans as well as rookies.

Power to impound money payable to participants in boxing and wrestling bouts would be given to Ontario athletics commissioner Fred Steele in a bill introduced in the Ontario legislature Wednesday by Education Minister Porter.

The Minister said that under present regulations violations of the act which require an impounding order have to be authorized by himself and during the time involved in such a procedure the person and money had sometimes left the province.

Li'l Arthur King, British Empire and Canadian light-weight boxing champion, will meet Humberto Sierra of Cuba in a 10-round non-title bout here March 30, it was announced Wednesday night at Toronto. King's last fight in Toronto was in defence of his Canadian title when he knocked out Harvey Mathe of Sudbury.

Ottawa University announced Wednesday night that it will sponsor an annual boat race on the Ottawa River patterned after England's Oxford - Cambridge classic. The race will be held during the last week of May and will be known as the P. D. Ross Memorial race in tribute to the late publisher of the Ottawa Journal.

The University said challenges are being issued to McGill University, Montreal; McMaster University, Hamilton; and the University of Toronto.

Andre Corriveau of Valleyfield Braves has won the Quebec Senior Hockey League scoring race after a nip-and-tuck battle with Ralph (Bucky) Buchanan of Shawinigan Falls, who was top-man until a few weeks ago. Corriveau had 87 points—33 goals and a pace-setting 54 assists — against Buchanan's 36 and 49.

Other necessary qualifications —must be a bachelor, "first class" player and willing to coach Finland's national team during the 1950-51 season. The news of the vacancy was published at London Wednesday by Bob Giddens, Canadian-born editor of the London weekly, Ice Hockey World, who said he had the news from "a Canadian in Finland."

The 1951 all-Canada high school curling championship will be held in Nelson, B.C., it was announced Wednesday at the annual meeting of the Dominion Curling Association at Vancouver.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By GERRY PRATT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, March 9 — (CP)—It's curling, curling, and more curling in Vancouver these days, the Brier has arrived. Andy (Vancouver Sun) Lyle has some unhappy comments on the merits of the "Bonny Brier."

"What on this green earth," says Andy, "could be more pollahtic, could the average sports fan get out of watching men shoveling 40-pound rocks, and yoksing off ahead of them giving longue like hounds beating cover?

"On the ice, or behind the brooms, men are cursing and up in the stands or from behind the posts their wives and children are crying their hearts out."

All in all, Andy believes it is merely a matter of taste.

"I would prefer canasta or lapping up distilled damnation."

Eric (Vancouver Daily Province) Whitehead, recently returned from covering the Empire Games in New Zealand, has a protesting voice when he warms to the subject of Canada's touring games team.

"One half of our games team," says Eric, "is whisked right home after the games, while the other half will board a steamer for leisurely cruise around the world via India and England.

"One of the bad parts of this," he said, "is that the great record of such a wonderful holiday, goes almost exclusively to also ran."

"It is wrong, if only for the fact that the touring squad is a very weak one and hardly representative of, or good publicity for Canada."

Whitehead blames the situation on "short-sighted planning by the officials who arranged the trip."

Aja Vrzanova Retains World's Skating Crown

London, March 9 (CP) — Although the Canadian skaters failed to make a great impression in the world figure skating championships at Wembley Wednesday night, they'll go home with something that will help them in the long run—experience that can only be gained in top-flight competition.

It was lack of experience that seemed to tell most against Suzanne Morrow, Ottawa, Barbara Roger Wickson and Don Gilchrist during the three-day title meet which drew nearly 25,00 persons to Wembley Arena.

The Canadians were beaten by skaters with that indefinable touch of more polish that makes all the difference to international judges.

Miss Morrow, the 19-year-old Canadian champion from Toronto, made the most creditable showing by gaining fourth place in the women's singles which wound up the tournament last night.

In this event Aja Vrzanova, brilliant Czechoslovakian stylist, came through as expected to retain the world crown she first won last year. Next in line came two seasoned campaigners, Britain's Jeannette Altwegg and Yvonne Sherman of New York.

Gave Polished Performance

The tall, blue-haired Czech beauty gave a graceful, polished performance in the free-skating Wednesday night to leave her rivals far behind. Her final winning margin was 14 points.

Final top scores for the top four were: Vrzanova 1,359.16; Altwegg 1,345.71; Sherman 1,330.58; and Morrow 1,319.73.

Miss Main, a member of the Toronto Skating Club from Niagara Falls, Ont., placed ninth with 1,257.43 points.

In earlier events, Wickson, from Vancouver, finished ninth in the men's singles won by Dick Button of Englewood, N.J., for the third straight time; and Miss Smith and Gilchrist, a Torontonian, finished sixth in the pairs won by Karol and Peter Ken-

54 Horses Left In Grand National Chase

The final acceptors included all of the horses that have figured in the official callover of odds on the race.

Russian Hero, last year's winner, is the only previous victor in the list.

Roimond, which finished second last year, and Royal Mount, third in 1949, also are on the list.

Tuesday night was the deadline for final acceptances. The list was announced today.

Freebooter, which did not run a year ago, is the current prerace favorite at 20 to 2.

nedy of Seattle, Wash.

All four Canadians made known Wednesday night they would like to "come back for another crack" if possible, and such rinkside critics figured the Dominion's young team will be a lot tougher to humble if there is a next time.

Only Miss Morrow is heading back to Canada immediately. Suzanne wants to return in time for the Toronto skating club carnival in Maple Leaf Gardens, for which rehearsals are due to start shortly.

The other three, accompanied by Norman Gregory of Montreal president of the Canadian Figure Skating Association and a judge at the world meet, will head for Paris today and another international tournament there Friday and Saturday.

Field Narrows In Minor Hockey Playdown Series

Only six defending champions and three new teams in the runners-up slot last year, remain in the running for the titles which will be handed out by the Ontario Minor Hockey Association. St. Catharines Juvenile, midget and bantam A series champions are still in the thick of things, as are Midland midget B titlists, Elmira bantam A champions and Ayr, the Waterville D champions. The three 1948-49 runners-up still alter one of this year's crowns at Toronto Marlboros in the juvenile and midget A and Barrie Flyers in the bantam A series.

Three hundred and thirty-three teams (a new all-time record), went to the post in the O.M.H.A., and now, with title time in sight only sixty-six are still around, and each night will see another group dropping by the wayside.

INSTRUMENT FALLS FROM PLANE

Toronto Marlies Beat Dutchmen In Overtime

(By The Canadian Press)

You wouldn't notice him on the ice as a spectacular player but when Al Buchanan turns on the steam he's murder around the net.

Wednesday night the husky winger was really flying as he scored the goal that gave Marlboros a 5-5 tie in the third period against Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen and then came roaring back for the overtime period to ram home the winning goal with less than two minutes to play.

The tight win gave Toronto a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Senior A final series. The two clubs go right back at it Friday night in Toronto, the second game in a row on Toronto ice.

Though Biltmores and Barrie Flyers continued their unpredictable series at Guelph and when the two clubs finished three periods of furious hockey the Biltmores owed a 5-3 win and a 2-1 edge in the best-of-five Junior 'A' semi-final. Barrie has another chance to extend their unbeaten playoff record on home ice Friday night.

Kitchener looked like sure bets to cop the second games of the final series as they outplayed the Marlboro Club by a wide margin in the first two periods to take a 5-4 lead but Buchanan's third period marker deadlocked the affair and sent it into the 10-minute overtime.

Sullivan Scores Three

Frank Sullivan, Marlboro's veteran centre, clicked for three goals to lead the individual scoring while Chuck Blair notched the single.

The Dutchmen's scoring was distributed with Harvey Jacklin, Doug Verity, Mike Druxa, Ron Hewitt and Doug Grasser all pumping in goals.

Guelph and Barrie battled through the first close game in their semi-final series. In the opening tilt on Biltmores ice the Flyers handed the Flyers 5-0. Not to be outdone, Barrie came right back to their own arena and sang Guelph 6-0.

The Haters started off early Wednesday night and by midday in the opening frame had taken a 2-0 lead on goals by Andy Bathgate and Steve Brklacich.

Wetld Hill broke out in the period and six major penalties were handed out, three to each club. Barrie seemed to take the steam out of the teams and they settled down to two periods of smooth, clean hockey.

Red Barber put Barrie back into the fight with the only marker of the middle session but an even split in the third frame gave Guelph the narrow victory. Don Bellringer opened third-period scoring, real Cinderella doing the honors for the Flyers.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, March 9 — (CP) — When Ray Famechon, the French challenger, was introduced to featherweight champ Willie Pep, Ray looked him over carefully and exclaimed: "What a nice head to punch around." - -It's a good thing Willie doesn't understand French, or the fight might have taken place then and there instead of in the garden next week. - - -At that, Famechon might have got about as much dough for it - - - After yielding graciously to all at Manager Lou Vicna's demands, the Frenchman came out with a minimum "cut" and that will be tied up to assure a return bout. His share will be about enough to pay off his training expenses - - - Jersey Jones, who mixes in the cauliflower importing business, insists Famechon doesn't need the money because he can pick up about $25,000 a year fighting in Europe - - - What he wants is the title and he's so confident that he is also objecting to the 60-day return agreement - - - Too short a time to return to France and too long to hang around doing nothing. He'd like to fight Pep again right away and settle it for good.

My small daughter brought to light the origin of the strawberry shawn, for her bedtime story, she handed me her book containing the tale of the wandering chick. I enjoyed it as much as she.

March has arrived with its usual blustery winds. I have been noticing the attractive weathervanes as I travelled across Southern Ontario. Not only are they of use to the amateur weatherman, but they add a touch of beauty when carefully chosen to suit the location. I was so favourably impressed with three of the designs, I am passing them along to you.

Bricks and Books

I have been searching some time now for a bookshelf that can be placed under a window as my books are overflowing their present space. If I had only thought to talk with the people next door, my search would have been shorter. They built one of bricks and inch lumber that is cheap, easy to set up and very attractive. You can select the bricks to blend with your color scheme and add pieces of thin building board between them to give the appearance of a cemented pir.

Wonder if anyone gets the first twinge of summer outing fever early in the season? I'm just in the midst of making a step-ironing table for the cottage from two orange crates, patterned after one I saw in a magazine the other day. It provides the extra needs couple, but would be equally adaptable to an attic or bedroom.

Well . . . well . . . well . . .

Gardeners are thinking in terms of soil fertility these days as plans are laid for the rush of spring work. I first saw this novel idea for camouflaging the compost heap a few years ago. By dressing the pile up to look like an old-fashioned well you do not lessen its usefulness in any way and you add an ornament to the grounds.

For more details on weathervanes or any other items mentioned by Tom Gard—write him c/o MOLSON'S (Ontario) LTD., P.O. Box 990 Adelaide St. Station, Toronto, for the illustrated booklet "AROUND THE HOME".

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

The Kibitzer

Your opponent may have a mind of his own, too. This must be taken into consideration when planning to make a tight contract. Such as in the duplicate deal shown here:

WEST EAST

West was in three no-trump. North club king and south ace took two tricks. North king won the return heart that west finesses. Club queen was cashed and declarer then got his nine tricks.

At another table north had a better idea. Instead of cashing club queen, he returned a spade. Declarer now lost the contract. A lack of entries to west prevented taking three diamond finesses.

Declarer need not lose this contract. He can prevent it with deep planning. The planning must be done before taking the heart finesse. It may suggest that the heart finesse is inadvisable.

Such planning may seem far fetched, in the midst of a bridge game, avoiding the heart finesse may not even be considered. But is good practice to see what can be done in this case.

After the two clubs and south heart return, west can refuse to finesse and win with his ace. Diamond jack is led and east ace wins the fourth over. Spade king is cashed right there for an unblock. Now an east heart return forces north king to win.

Whether he cut club queen loose, declarer makes his contract. A diamond return gives dummy a quick finesse. West covers east heart, cashes two spades. Another diamond is finessed for two more tricks.

Instead of a diamond, will north return a spade? It runs to west. A diamond is finessed. West overtakes the east heart. Another top spade is cashed. A diamond is finessed for two more tricks.

Thus does declarer pet four diamond tricks. His three spades and two hearts are then enough for the nine tricks he needed.

To make some failures strangers, anticipate the dangers.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 9 — (AP) — Film producers should turn to the Bible in their search for vital movie subjects.

This advice comes from a fellow producer, but one cast in a different mold. He is Rev. James K. Friedrich, Episcopal minister and head of Cathedral Films. He has produced several dozen well-made films which are shown in Protestant churches and to Catholics and Jews as well.

"The major film companies could do a great job for religion," Mr. Friedrich remarked. "But they are too wrapped up in making 'entertainment' pictures.

"The trouble is that the producers portray their own idea of entertainment. That's why we see so many race track pictures."

He indicated that movie makers could make exciting and significant pictures from Bible stories. But not, he added, the scriptures according to Cecil B. Demille.

Liberties Taken

"Mr. Demille's 'King of Kings' took decided liberties with the story of Christ," said the parson-producer. "I haven't seen 'Samson and Delilah.' But friends of mine say there is not much resemblance to the Bible story and there is some mystery as to what the message is.

The minister declared that Protestants have received little attention in film subjects.

"It is our own fault," he added. "We have failed to organize while Catholics have. A picture about Catholicism has a ready-made audience."

He said that one of the few pictures about a Protestant preacher, "One Foot in Heaven," was "an insult. It showed the minister (played by Fredric March) as a blackmailer forcing the town merchant to contribute to building a new church to be exposed."

Using an inheritance, Mr. Friedrich founded Cathedral Films. His first and only feature film, "The Great Commandment," was bought by 20th Century Fox for $150,000. Profits from the sale were put back into Cathedral, which is not a money-making venture.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book

We got our report cards in school today, and Sam Cross's was the worst one in the class, and he was walking home with me and Puds Simkins and I said to the boy, wail till you get home with that report, you'll catch it good and plenty.

Like heck I will, Sam said, I remember the time I would of worried about taking home a report like this, but now my father will just give it without even looking at it, he said, and Puds said, Like fun he will, why will he?

Because he's decided he wants us to be a wild animal trainer, so a good report or a bad report, what's the difference? Sam said, and I said, Aw, I bet that's just another one of your big lies.

Then you bet wrong, Sam said. At first my mother didn't like the idea of me associating with wild animals, but finely she agreed to agree to it if I proved I could train our cat and our canary and our 3 gold fishes, so I proved I could, he said, and Puds said, Aw how did you?

Easy, Sam said. I trained our cat to stand on one hine leg and look cross eyed, and I trained our canary to slide down a little board into his bath tub like a shoot the shoots, and I trained our 3 gold fish to ballance pop corn on their noses like trained seas, he said, and I said, Okay, take us in your house and let us see them do it!

I can't, because it's still suppose to be a secret about me going to be a wild animal trainer, Sam said.

And he went in alone and didn't come out again, probably not being allowed to on account of his report card, and proving he's still the biggest liar around and probably one of the biggest that ever lived.

GARDINER DEFENDS

He also met, periodically through his 50-minute speech, a confusing hub-bub of half-heard interjections as opposition members took issue with him on the points he was making.

Losses Made Up

Mr. Gardiner said he entered the debate to make clear that western farmers would not lose anything through the government's action in inducing the British government to divert available funds from wheat to pork, lumber and fish products. If there was any loss—and he did not think there would be—it would be made up out of the federal treasury.

As for talk of food surpluses, Canada had only small surpluses of cheese, butter and honey, said Mr. Gardiner. The food and Agriculture organization of the United Nations had asked Canada to catalogue her surpluses only last week and he would hesitate to say large surpluses were available.

Swinging to political issues, he denied charges that he and Trade Minister Howe had been guilty of misrepresentation in the 1949 election. The Progressive Conservatives would have won more seats had they talked more about "Conservatism" while the C.C.F. party would have done better had it not agreed so much with the Conservatives.

Because the Liberals believed in trade—and the Conservatives didn't—Canada always had good times when the Liberals were in power and poor times when the Conservatives held office.

Used Board For Own Purpose

Mr. Johnston said the reason why there were no food surpluses was because the government had been encouraging the destruction or curtailment of production. Farmers were concerned about the government's plans for price support legislation.

On the election issue, he felt it was obvious the government had used the Canadian wheat board as a political instrument to further the party's interests. The reason the farmers voted Liberal in 1949 was that they had been "bought" with their own money through wheat participation payments.

"Your remarks," shouted a Liberal member, "are an insult to the intelligence of the farmers of Canada."

"My remarks," Mr. Johnston retorted, "are based on facts."

Dr. Blair, seeking more markets for Canadas surplus cheese, said he felt the United Kingdom could take more than the 80,000,000 pounds contracted for this year. Steps should be taken to increase domestic consumption of cheese.

He supported requests by farmers for floor prices for eggs, bacon and cheese and said they wanted only a reasonable profit on their farming operations.

GOVT. TO DELETE

He said that in a recent vote among employees of the Toronto Telegram to determine whether the American Newspaper Guild (C.I.O.) should be certified the union had won a majority of votes cast, but lost the right to be certified. At the International Nickle Company at Port Colborne, a similar provision in the 198 labor code had worked to the benefit of the "communist-dominated" International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, he said.

Scared to Defend Claim

If the same principle applied in provincial elections none of the present legislature members would have won their seats, Mr. Park said.

Mr. Salsberg said the Labor Minister was "scared to stand up and defend your legislation before a committee." He termed the bill as it stood an affront to labor and an insult to the trade union movement."

The House also give third reading to a bill implementing a federal-provincial low - cost housing plan.

William Dennison (CCF-Toronto) said government spokesmen had given contradictory accounts of the part to be played under the plan by private builders and asked clarification.

Mr. Frost said the test of the act will be in its administration as far as Ontario was concerned it would be given the "most generous interpretation." Even if the government decided to eliminate down-payments he could not be considered that would "not be going a long way." Ontario, however, was only 25 per cent partners with the Federal government which would have to be consulted.

Weak, Tired, Nervous, Pepless Men, Women

Get New Vim, Vigor, Vitality

Say doctors in these week. Always tired, nervous, pepless? Lack ambition? Feel old before your time? Are you a victim of the "fatigue" of modern living? Then you need an invigorating tonic. Take Ostrex, the tonic containing Nux Vomica, Iron, Calcium Glycerophosphate, Manganese Glycerophosphate, Quinine, Strychnine and Vitamin B1. Ostrex helps you feel "tip" top. Ostrex Tonic Tablets are inexpensive, easy to take, and very fine. At all druggists.

Disturbed that none of Ontario's MPP's were included among the 10 best-dressed women in Canada, reporters yesterday held a poll of their own. The Press Gallery's selections were Attorney-General Dana Porter (left) and Campbell Calder, Liberal member for London, the latter placing first by a scant two votes. Premier Frost was third; John Hanna, Wingham haberdasher, fourth, and Mayor William Houck, Niagara Falls, fifth.

Both proposed amendments to the motion to give the bill second reading. Mr. Park moved that second reading be withheld because the bill denied "fundamental democratic practices in voting procedures," established "complicated and inexplicable conciliation machinery" and ignored the principle of union security.

Mr. Salsberg's amendment was that the bill should be referred to the standing committee on labor.

Mr. Daley said the bill was not sent to the standing committee because it was of such importance that its details should be discussed by the whole legislature, not by the comparatively few members of a committee.

There was no reference to union insecurity, the minister continued, because "organized labor has a job to do for itself." If a union had the confidence of its members and of management, union security would follow "as sunshine follows the rains." There should be no hesitation on the part of management to grant a check-off system of union dues payment to an established union, he added.

Criticizes Provision

Mr. Park criticized the provision which gave government-conducted vote the union seeking certification must get a majority of all eligible employees in the plant at the time of the vote, rather than a simple majority of those voting.

Labor Survives First House Test By Fourteen Votes

Govt. Faces Fresh Trouble in Another Crucial Vote Mon.

London, March 10 (AP)— The Labor government squeaked past its first major parliamentary test Thursday night. But uneasy Labor members face fresh trouble in another crucial vote Monday.

By a 14-vote margin, 310 to 296, Prime Minister Attlee's Socialists beat back a Conservative motion almost against impending nationalization of the iron and steel industry. A defeat would have forced the government to call an election weeks after it won a second term in a close general election.

Instead of the government —whose over-all majority in the House of Commons was cut Thursday to only six seats—is a vote Monday on another Conservative motion. This deplores the government's failure to suggest housing program. Improvement in the speech it prepared for the King to deliver at Parliament opening last Monday.

Like the nationalization censure vote Monday, the housing motion proposes an amendment to the Throne Speech. The government has said that such amendment is an issue of confidence. Labor members are dead beaten, they would resign and call a new election.

Housing Record Criticized

The vote on housing may find it worth while for the Labor government to keep all its members in line. Labor backbenchers of Parliament have criticized the government's housing record in the past.

Labor lost one seat of its tiny parliamentary majority Thursday when Conservative Florence Horsbrugh defeated the Labor candidate Rowland W. Cassells in the Moss side constituency of Manchester. The election had been delayed 15 days by the death of a previously nominated Conservative candidate.

Parliamentary whips of both parties summoned the heaviest attendance in the House of Commons since 1892 for Thursday's record vote. Labor got the votes of all its members who were not prevented from voting by illness or parliamentary positions— all but five of the party's members.

Nine Conservatives Missing

Nine Conservative members were kept away by illness, the balloting but all nine Liberal members voted with the Tories. More than 70 M.P.S. are in the government administration. Many have offices away from the parliamentary building. All were present for Thursday's vote, but the Independent Times pointed out today:

"The strain of making such efforts for a party vote could be made intolerable in the long run."

The Liberals, who made no mention of steel nationalization, which was voted by the last Labor conference in the party platform Prime Minister Attlee had announced the nationalization legislation of carrying out the steel ownership law. Under the law a compensation commission can be set up October 1 to take over the iron and steel industry next day.

In the Manchester election Miss Horsbrugh, who based her campaign on Conservative opposition to nationalization, polled 25,347 votes. Her Labor opponent garnered 16,769 and Liberal candidate Eric Atkin received only 2,607 ballots.

SOCIAL SECURITY THINKING CALLED SNARE, DELUSION

Liberal Says State Does Not Owe Man Living

Ottawa, March 10 — (CP) — The meandering Throne-Speech debate, rolling through its third week, hit a few high spots in the Commons Thursday, but didn't move in any specific direction.

Without creating anything in the way of parliamentary fireworks, a number of speakers showed off against current-day theories of some-we-a-living philosophy. And a few members pressed for such institutions as business, agriculture, the press and the radio.

Acheson clutched this new outline of national support for United States foreign policy three weeks ago, in an informal White House talk before the advertising council, a private organization of leaders in the field of advertising.

Officials said the talk was kept secret, in the expectation that Acheson might make some ideas in a public address in late February or early March. When this did not materialize it was decided to make a reconstructed talk of his speech public.

In it, Acheson declared that the United States must do far more than it is now doing to halt Soviet plans for "world domination," Acheson said:

"We clearly are not focusing our resources in the winning of that struggle."

What is needed, he said, is a single-minded, "voluntary" campaign by all elements of the U.S. — Congress, the executive departments of the government, and the people. He mentioned particularly such institutions as business, agriculture, the press and the radio.

The second policy line, he said, must be to build up these economic, political, social and psychological conditions that strengthen and create confidence in the democratic way of life.

In this connection, he cited the European program and American aid in bringing independence to Indonesia. Then he added:

"One of the things that we must do is to enable other countries to buy with their own products the raw materials that they need to feed and clothe and employ their own people. That means that we must buy their goods and their services to a greater extent than at present."

'Total Diplomacy' Battlecry Raised by Acheson to Curb Russian Expansion Efforts

Washington, March 10 (AP) — A new cold war battlecry—"total diplomacy" has been raised by State Secretary Dean Acheson. Its meaning: an all-out effort, short of shooting, to curb Russian expansion.

Declaring that the United States must do far more than it is now doing to halt Soviet plans for "world domination," Acheson said:

"We clearly are not focusing our resources in the winning of that struggle."

PRESIDENT AURIOL ENDS TRIUMPHANT VISIT TO BRITAIN

Two Nations 'Guardians Of Great Hope' He Says

He was on his way home after a triumphant three-day state visit to London.

The London "Auriol Week" in London, with colorful horse and coach parades, solemn receptions with the royal family, ceremonies of tradition and banquets and theatre nights glittering with the diamond tiara and scarlet sashes of royalty.

King and Queen at Station

The King and Queen saw the French President and his wife to the station.

Londoners gave Auriol a rousing send-off. Thousands of people waited under cold, gray skies, and they swarmed past the police on the road to besiege the president's car on his last drive in London.

At Dover the battleship Vanguard lying a 21-gun salute after the president boarded the French steamer Arromanches. British and fighters flew to fly off their escort to the president's vessel in the Channel.

British destroyers, too, waited in Dover harbor with full steam up to escort the president halfway home on his return journey.

Premier Attlee and his cabinet members of both houses of parliament, the Royal Diplomatic and House of Lords. Speaking in French, Auriol said Britain and France "are the guardians of a great hope."

He added:

"The democratic nations expect a lead from us in the guidance of Europe to her destiny of unity and liberty. The treaty of Brussels, the Atlantic pact and one important step in the accomplishment of the historic revolution.

"The Atlantic Pact, affirming as it does the solidarity of the United States and of democratic Europe in the defence of peace and of our liberties, has given a reinforced and enlarged a community which, as from being exclusive, is already to welcome every one of good will, every sincere desire for co-operation."

Retired Hotel Man Guilty Of Exchange Violations

Montreal, March 10— (CP) — Vernon Cardy, retired hotel owner, today pleaded guilty to violations of foreign exchange control board regulations involving a total of $200,000.

The plea of guilty was made through counsel, Raymond Noel, and Judge Gerard Almond delayed sentence until March 24.

The prosecution, represented by John Ahearn, suggested the imposition of a fine of $100,000. The prosecutor said that originally it was thought the amount involved would be $500,000, but it was later discovered that the amount was actually less than half this because of duplications of amounts mentioned in the four complaints.

Publicized Hotels

Mr. Noel told the court that Cardy violated regulations by failed Dec. 5, funds he published his horses through the publicity of his horses in Canada and the U.S.

Cardy, who disposed of his controlling interests in a chain of five Canadian hotels and a summer resort in January, won considerable publicity when he appeared at many horse shows throughout Canada and the United States.

Cardy's control of the hotels, the Mount Royal, Montreal, the King Edward, Toronto, the Royal Connaught, Hamilton, the General Brock, Niagara Falls, and the Prince Edward, Windsor, and the Alpine Inn at St. Marguerite, Que., passed to the Stanton Corporation of America nearly two months ago.

Prosecution Asks $100,000 Fine Against Cardy

MEMBER CLAIMS MANY AMERICAN WORKERS ON JOB

Toronto, March 10 — (CP) — Men from the United States employed in building Toronto's new subway system are doing jobs that could be done by Canadians now unemployed, the Ontario legislature was told Thursday by J. S. Dempsey (PC-Renfrew South).

Mr. Dempsey said during Throne-Speech debate that 40 per cent of the men employed on the Toronto Transportation Commission's subway project are from the United States, and he felt Mayor Hiram McCallum should "look into" the situation.

The Americans employed were not all born but left Ireland and welders, "and even some electrical workers." He asserted that some were paid as high as $1,000 a month.

(W. C. McBrien, Toronto Transportation Commission chairman, said Tuesday night in commenting on Mr. Dempsey's statements that only about five per cent of the workmen on the job are from the United States. He said they are all key men who will return to the U.S. as soon as Canadians can take over their jobs.)

Other speakers in the debate were E. Jolley (CCF-Port Arthur), S. L. Hall (PC-Huron), G. T. Watson (Lib.-Brantford) and J. B. Salsberg (Lab.-Prog.-Toronto St. Andrew).

Mr. Robinson called on the government to implement recommendations of the Gordon royal commission on forestry. The commissioner, Howard Kennedy, in his report tabled in 1947 recommended establishment of integrated logging systems to conserve forest resources.

Cops Would Quiz 'Willie the Actor' In $63,000 Haul

By JOHN RANDOLPH

He's known to police for most of the last 33 years as one of the slickest strikers in the big mob era, and a prison escape artist to boot.

And he's wanted more than ever today as the No. 1 suspect in Thursday's $63,000 daylight minute robbery of a branch bank where they found a branch $63,000 in untraceable small bills.

If police ever catch up with Willie they'd like to be shot about that $1,500,000 Brink's robbery last January—biggest cash holdup in United States history.

Willie's real name is William Sutton. He is known as Slick Willie the actor for the disguises he used on various jobs.

Willie—if it was Willie— and two other gunmen hit the bank before opening Thursday morning and forced their way in with the first employee to arrive.

The others walked in one by one, were caught in the mousetrap and made to lie down. Then as soon as the time locks opened in the vault doors, the gang cleaned out all the paper money on hand and disappeared spurning $11,000 in silver. Police believe two others were involved in the stickup—although the trio might have escaped by subway.

In addition to robbery, "Slick Willie"—as they call him in Philadelphia—has an impressive record as an escape artist.

He was one of the few men to make good an escape from Sing Sing—New York's tough prison on the Hudson River.

Mr. Saunders said also that two big steam plants under construction at Nanticoke and Windsor have been redesigned to burn oil as well as coal. Combined horsepower of the plants will be 428,000.

"All it needs is for a few taps to be turned to switch over from one fuel to the other," he said.

He said the change was made partly because of new oil sources in Alberta.

"It will be strictly a matter of economics whether we use coal or oil, or both — depending on availability of either and, of course, price."

Who Will Work on H-Bomb One of Big Problems for U.S.

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

Washington, March 10 (CP)— What is needed scientists, particularly those from overseas apparently is one of the big worries in the drive for a new hydrogen bomb program.

The problem may involve such issues as:

1. Setting up safeguards against another Fuchs spy case.

Drawing scientists from universities and industry to an extent that might cripple the training of the physicists of the future.

4. Making another deal with Britain.

5. Amending the atomic energy law.

6. Opposition of some scientists to going ahead with the super H-bomb at all.

In developing the atomic bomb, the United States had to draw heavily on the talent of refugees overseas, men like Budapest-born Dr. Edward Teller and Rome-born Enrico Fermi, both of University of Chicago.

While the theory of the hydrogen bomb has been known for years, getting this proposed super weapon into production again would be likely to require many such scientists in key places.

Getting British scientists opens up some difficulties.

Some authorities say it would require an agreement with Britain, and loosening U.S. atomic energy controls over atomic information.

Some doubt that any scientists there are out there in sufficient number could be employed on the H-bomb project unless the law is changed.

There is some thought that we should negotiate with Britain informally but that Britain wants a closer partnership, one more likely to give some A-bombs, and perhaps H-bombs on an if and when basis.

Sander, Acquitted On Murder Rap, Returns to Home

Candia, N.H., March 10—(AP)— Dr. Hermann Sander, acquitted of murder in the death of a Peterborough girl, is still under a hearing before the state board of Registration of Medicine.

Dr. John A. Wheeler, state health officer and secretary of the board, said Thursday that the board will decide what medical action, if any, will be imposed on the 41-year-old country doctor.

Dr. Wheeler said his board has authority to take any disciplinary decisions to practice medicine.

Wheeler said the same after court attaches had told newsmen that Dr. Sander was free to resume medical practice immediately. They said that records had been withdrawn prohibiting him from practicing during trial were lifted with acquittal.

The handsome young doctor and his wife, Mary, 28, were the undisclosed place Thursday night after the jury returned its verdict. Joined in a homecoming party to the people who swear by him.

Last of Nearly 100 Witnesses Heard In Guay Trial

By WILLIAM STEWART
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Quebec, March 10 — (CP) — The last of nearly 100 witnesses was heard today on the 13th day of the murder trial of J. Albert Guay, 32-year-old jeweler whose wife perished with 22 others in the Sept. 9 wreck of a Canadian Pacific airliner.

With more than 80 witnesses, the Crown tried to prove to a 12-man jury that the slim unemotional jeweler engineered the plane crash so he could marry Yvonne Beaudoin, $10,000 insurance on Mrs. Guay and because he loved a young waitress.

The defence used a dozen witnesses to try to throw doubt on the elaborate case built up by the Crown.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, March 10 — (CP) — Synopsis: Chilly winter weather returned to Ontario overnight. Temperatures dropped sharply in Northern Ontario and Kirkland Lake and the winds diminished from the strong gales of yesterday, to moderate breezes. Temperatures reached thirty below at Kirkland Lake and north of Lake Superior. Even in the lower lakes district minimum temperatures were close to ten above.

Scattered snowflurries still in progress near Lake Huron and Georgian Bay should end by early afternoon.

The weather will be sunny and cold in most of the province today and Saturday.

Chinese Reds Use Extortion To Get US Funds

Ottawa, March 10 — (CP) — Chinese Communists have a new method of obtaining foreign currency — extortion.

Bruce Rankin, former Canadian trade commission in Shanghai, told of a press conference Thursday of the methods used in Red China to "milk" foreign companies of their money.

"They lock the management in their offices, cut off supplies of water, until they get what they want," said the Edmonton-born trade commissioner.

Another favorite Red "blackmail" method to obtain foreign exchange is to refuse foreigners leave China until they pay income help. If they do, they must pay huge lay-off awards.

The Reds also use other methods, Chinese Communists had built up a huge trade with Hong Kong, amounting to about $17,000,000.

Then Red agents in wedding Canadian officials in Shanghai, he said. He believed they were interested in Canadian Canada once Canada granted the Red government diplomatic recognition.

COUNTERFEIT $10 BILLS

Oakville, Ont., March 10 — (CP) — A crop of counterfeit $10 bills has been discovered in the Oakville-Bronte district, Chief Constable John Berry said today.

The chief constable described the bills as "the best-looking" counterfeits I have ever seen.

Night Watchman Overcome and $48 Stolen

St. Catharines, March 10 — (CP) — A lone, blond bandit, armed with a short, black revolver, broke into the Fleischer poultry farm here Thursday night, threw the night watchman down the cellar stairs and escaped with about $48 from the till.

Just five minutes before the hold-up, a phone call led the one man on duty in the garage, mechanic Charles Grummett on a wild chase to Western Hill in search of a car reported stolen.

The night-watchman, Joe Helmsley, 70, was left alone in charge of the garage for more than 10 minutes after the gunman had forced him on him. "He told me to give him the money, or he'd kill me, said Helmsley.

Eight Escape Burning House, Twins Carried Out

Toronto, March 10 — (CP) — Eight persons, four of them children, fled in the street in night attire early today when fire broke out in the kitchen of a flat on Avenue Street home. The blaze, believed started by spontaneous combustion, did damage estimated at $700.

Among those who escaped from the blaze were Mrs. Frank Deschenes, her four children, Carl, 14, Paul 9, and the twins, Margaret and Shelagh, 2, and her brother-in-law, Miss L. Quentz and Marcus Quantz. They were given shelter by neighbors.

Ask Ban on Sale Of Margarine With Color Capsules

Toronto, March 10 (CP)— The Ontario Federation of Agriculture today asked the Ontario government to forbid sale of margarine with color capsules enclosed in or attached to the package.

A delegation presented a brief to Premier Frost and his cabinet contending that color was the natural trade mark of butter and coloring of margarine should be more strictly controlled.

The brief also charged that margarine manufacturers are using misleading advertising to such slogans as "country fresh" and "milk making the flavor." Uses of preservatives other than common salt should not be permitted, the federation said. Other preservatives were forbidden in butter.

"It is unfair and unjust to be faced with a competitor which legally may be disguised with such a chemical preservative such as benzoate of soda," the brief said.

Production and sale of margarine should be controlled by means of a provincial licence of a quota or tax, the brief said.

Legalization of the sale of margarine in 1949 resulted in a direct loss to the Ontario cream producer of $7,500,000, the Federation contended.

The brief also supported the demand of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association for a two-cents-a-pound cheese subsidy. Cheese prices tended to control the price level of milk, it said.

The brief also asked that wine manufacturers be prohibited from using their own grape production to lower prices paid by individual grape growers. In the event of a surplus wine manufacturers should purchase individual crops ton-for-ton with their own.

The federation asked that daylight time on the grounds that it could not be uniformly adopted throughout the province. It also asked a more equitable basis for taxation in rural areas as well as urban communities. Increased demands for public services in rural areas are placing a heavy assessment burden on farm lands.

CONNECTED BY BONE

Port of Spain, Trinidad, March 10. (CP)— Mrs. Ivan Lewis died Monday and was joined by bone rather than by flesh, making separation more difficult, her husband said on Thursday. Doctors, who declined to identify the names, said X-rays would have to be taken before a decision is made on whether to attempt placing a bone assessment burden on farm lands.

Britain's Socialized M.D.'s Threaten Strike on Pay Scale in London Suburb

London, March 10 — (AP) — Rumblings of discontent over the pay scale of Britain's socialized medicine program threaten a walkout in one London suburb today.

The British Medical Journal reported that the Harrow division of the British Medical Association had passed by a large majority a resolution to withhold services from the "inadequate medical attention" unless the government agrees to pay doctors.

Copies of the resolution have been sent to other Medical Association divisions throughout the country for their consideration.

The Medical Association said there were some 200 doctors in the Harrow area of Greater London. The Ministry of Heel.h reported that between 18,000 and 19,000 doctors participate in the National Health Service.

The system of payment for doctors in the National Health Service, which now includes some 93 per cent of British medical men, is a complicated affair.

Funds are turned over by the government to local pools out of which doctors are paid. A doctor may collect an annual fee of about 19shillings ($2.70) for each person on his list. He is entitled to receive a basic salary of £200 ($800) a year, proportionately lower fee for each individual.

The maximum number of persons can each doctor's list is 4,500 and the Medical Association said the average is about 2,500.

This would make the average income of doctors under the plan somewhere around £2,000 a year. And any doctor is free to accept private paying patients.

SNIPE-SHOOTING BEING REVIVED

The art of "snipe-shooting" is being revived. Not the firing of shotguns at the feathered population of the name, but the retrieving of partially-smoked cigarettes from resting places, in parks, on pavements or any other places where the butts are thrown.

The other day, a "knight of the road" was seen armed with a pipe-polished stick and paper bag, executing the dampened "fag-ends" from the ivy pavements near the arena. As it was the morning after a hockey game, the "bag" appeared to be packed.

The robins are here. That's what the man said, and he can prove it. Bell Telephone School Provides Excellent Results

Excellent results were obtained from a four-day school of instruction sponsored by the Bell Telephone Co., Ltd., for the benefit of representatives of independent telephone systems of Hastings and Prince Edward County. The school which started on Monday concluded in the offices of the Bell Telephone Company branch here last night.

Attending the course were two representatives of the McCreary Telephone system, Plainfield; Messrs. Jay Sprague, and D. Jones, Sprague Telephone system, Mountain View; Carl Austen and J. Downs, Austen Telephone system, Frankford and Wooler; Fred Ferry, Deseronto Rural Telephone system; A. Brason, Ontario Forestry Branch, Plevna and James Martin, who operates a system between Frankford and Tweed.

The course was held under the instruction and supervision of Mr. Clayton Tousaw, special representative of the Bell Telephone Company, Montreal. It was offered to the representatives of district companies at no cost.

Discussion Period

Instruction was given through the media of miniature models on construction, installation, maintenance and construction of lines and other important phases of telephone work. With the use of practical demonstrations, were given instruction pamphlets in which important matters were studied. Problems of rural lines were also discussed and during the course full information was forthcoming. Booklets covering the wide field of telephone work, which included diagrams and other information were distributed to the representatives.

The general consensus was that the school proved of great assistance to those attending it. In fact they requested that a similar school be held next year.

This is the second course of instruction of its kind sponsored by the Bell Telephone Company. Previously, it sent a special representative to rural telephone companies systems, but it was felt that a centralized school of instruction was the best method and last night would prove of greater benefit to rural line representatives.

Re-Routing of Main Highways Thru City to Relieve Traffic Congestion Will be Proposed

In a move to relieve traffic congestion at the main intersection of Front and Bridge Streets members of the local traffic committee, through Inspector J. C. Hayes of the local police department, have applied to the highways department for re-routing of two of the three highways passing through the city.

The application to the highways department asked that westbound traffic on No. 2 highway use Pinnacle Street from Bridge to Dundas with east-bound traffic to continue using the present route, It was also asked that the route of No. 37 highway be from Front Street along Bridge to Pinnacle and then north to Station Street to join with the present route.

The above changes, the request has been informed, would eliminate left turns at the corner of Front and Bridge Street, which cause a great deal of congestion. Council members at their committee meeting on Thursday evening approved of the request made to the highways department.

Committee Formed

A council committee will be formed to investigate the suggestion of the suburban planning board for closing Front Street to continued through the exhibition park. A committee will also be appointed to consider the letter from the Board of Transport Commissioners regarding the fatal accident which occurred at the Geddes Street crossing on Jan. 7th and the recommendation for additional crossing protection made in the coroner's jury verdict.

A committee will also be appointed to go into the matter of the two building lots in Reynolds Crescent sold to the White Lumber Company and later turned over to Thurlow township for road purposes. No payment has been received by the city for the above lots.

To Consider Recommendation

Members of the fire committee will consider a recommendation regarding a by-law covering the use of automatic fire controls being used for the transportation of oil and gasoline. Council does not approve of the automatic fire tainer being used for both products.

Quick and Robertson were awarded the contract for the supply of 30 firemen's uniforms at $44 each, and an Ottawa firm was given the contract for the supply of 31 uniform caps at $2.50 each plus tax. Ninety fire hydrants shirts will be purchased from McIntosh Bros. at $3.50 each.

Program Plans For Merchants Are Discussed

Program plans for the retail merchants' committee of the local Chamber of Commerce were discussed by representative members at a meeting held here when a wide range of problems relative to retailers, manufacturers, professional and commercial men were discussed.

It was decided to hold a general meeting during the year for each of the above groups, the "retailers' meeting to be held near the end of March. It was suggested that this meeting take the form of a merchandizing discussion with a report and criticism of the sales approach received in local stores will be given.

Holiday schedules came under discussion, it being felt the only holidays in question would be July 1st, which comes on a Saturday, and November 11th. Since July 1st is a Dominion holiday no action was taken, while it was decided stores would remain open on November 11th with employees wishing to do so to be given the privilege of attending memorial services. The Christmas schedule will be discussed later.

No Action Taken

No action was taken with respect to store hours, although the matter of closing time was discussed.

Special spring and fall sales campaigns will be entered into by retailers to encourage shopping in Belleville by rural residents of the surrounding district.

The parking problem in the city was briefly discussed with a special report on this matter being referred until the next meeting. Four locations were suggested which might be obtained for parking lots and it was recommended a committee investigate each and bring in a report. It was further suggested that revenue from parking meters should be set aside to create a fund for the leasing or purchasing of lots for parking purposes as these become available. The secretary was asked to check the parking by-law.

Frank Follwell Guest Speaker For Ex-Airmen

Frank Follwell, M.P., Hastings South, guest speaker at the monthly meeting of Belleville Wing No. 418 RCAF gave a highly informative address on governmental policy regarding the air force last night. He was introduced by Bob Brennan with Pete Burnett expressing the wing appreciation.

Plans were laid for the first social function of the wing which will take the form of an "At Home"-at the Club Commodore on Thursday, March 23rd. The wing hopes, through the medium of funds raised at the function, to lay the foundation of an air cadet corps in the city.

Fred Evans was named treasurer of the wing to fill the vacancy caused by the withdrawal of Peter Brennan, who cannot act due to pressure of business. Ralph Knowlton, chairman of the membership committee reported a membership of over 100. Lady members turned out in larger numbers last night than heretofore and it is hoped to increase the number at future meetings of the wing.

Following the business session, the members saw two motion picture films, "Memphis Belle" a bombing film and "Target Within Wings", a film dealing with the activities of ground crews. Refreshments rounded out a successful meeting, attended by over sixty ex-members of the RCAF.

Moira R. Survey To be Available Early This Spring

Addressing the Belleville and District Fish and Game Protective Association, Col. Roscoe Vanderwater announced that the survey of the Moira River made by the Department of Planning and Development in 1948 would be forthcoming late this spring. The surveyors with headquarters at Stoco Lake reported on an area of 1,000 square miles of the Moira waters.

Col. Vanderwater dwelt on conservation, informing the club that recommendations have been made in official circles for the formation of a Department of Conservation in the province of Ontario. He felt sure that legislation would institute the protective body at this sitting of provincial parliament.

New member, Don MacKinnon, who represented the Rod and Gun Club, suggested that all members of the club should be made Special Constables as wardens to enforce conservation. Another representative, Mr. MacKinnon that similar measures had been tried by other clubs with some success and some without.

Majority Favor Ban

A majority supported a motion by a showing of hands that fishermen be banned from using aircraft in connection with hunting grounds. One member considered the airplane an inducement in bringing American tourists and added wealth into the country.

A motion asking that a rod limit of 8l per rod be established was voted down unanimously when it was revealed that children of 16 years and under would not be assessed an old timer said would not favor the limit, while if the age limit was up to a hundred.

It was announced that only members of good standing of Moira Lodge will be eligible to enter the Association's annual contest.

On March 21st and 22nd a meeting for representatives of all Conservation groups will be held at the Parliament Buildings in Toronto.

Two excellent films were shown during the evening.

Proposed Change To Affect Chain, Mail Order Firms

Toronto, March 10 (CP)— The business assessment of large chain stores and mail order firms is increased from 25 to 50 percent by a bill introduced Thursday in the Ontario legislature.

Chain stores with more than five retail order offices and mail order firms have their assessment increased to 50 percent and assessment of wholesale merchants is reduced from 75 to 50 percent by the terms of the bill.

Another change clarifies the right of the assessor to gain access to property. If after two visits to the property, he has been unable to obtain the necessary information, the property owner is compelled to complete a questionnaire submitted to him.

An assessor who improperly disclosed information obtained by him in the course of his duties leaves himself open to a fine of not more than $200 or six months or both.

Washington—A Seminole Indian told Congress Thursday it ought to remove from its walls a picture of an Indian scalping a white man.

At least, Grounds contended, the picture ought to be changed to show the red man as the victim.

"History tells us that it was the white man who started that scalping," he said.

MRS. ROOSEVELT CHOSEN

New York, March 10 (AP) — Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was chosen "America's most influential woman" in a poll of 272 women leaders conducted by pageant magazine.

Asked to vote for five women "who exert the greatest influence on modern life," 214 of the American scribes rated the widow of the late president of the United States.

Etiquette expert Emily Post was second, Slater Kenny, Australian polio worker, was third and writers Clare Boothe Luce and Dorothy Thompson came in fourth and fifth in that order.

PARENTS ON PROBATION

Chicago, March 10 — (AP) — The parents of a baby girl found dead of malnutrition last April 14 were placed on probation for five years by a judge Thursday after they pleaded guilty to manslaughter. Martin King, 44, and his wife, Eileen, 36, were arrested after their daughter, three-month-old Kathleen, was found dead in a filthy, unkempt apartment.

Legless, Armless Boy Stands First Time On Plastic Stumps

West Orange, N.J., March 10 (AP)—Freddie Thomason, nearly two, of Magnolia, Ark., stood up for the first time in his life Thursday.

Freddie was born with neither legs nor arms.

The plastic stumps are attached to a corse-like harness the child wears around his hips. The 'toes' of the stumps point backwards for better balance.

When he learns to balance and his muscles are strengthened, the shy, tow-headed boy will be fitted with a new pair of legs made to support a bigger boy. These will give him more agility.

Bodies of Kovachs Not Yet Claimed

Hamilton, March 10—(CP) — Police said today no one has claimed the bodies of John Kovach, 51, and his wife, Rosalie, 42, victims Thursday of a murder-suicide shooting.

They believe Mrs. Kovach has a brother, John Kopacsy, living in Hamilton. Efforts are being made to locate him.

An inquest into the shooting, the climax to an all-night quarrel in which three revolver shots were fired, is unlikely, police said. They believe it is a clear case of murder and suicide by Kovach.

Prather (PC) — Peterborough West drew attention to the Commons the fact some of the clocks in the corridors were out as much as half-hour. WEATHER AND CLOTHING

Medical scientific progress is serving a great cause as it brings more and more light of understanding of matters of health. That the health of the people is improving must be taken for granted in view of reports to that effect and of the growing longevity and advancing life expectancy which latterly has made impressive strides.

The National Health Association furnishes valuable information as to the right dress for health. It stresses the care of the skin on which so much depends for the condition of the whole body. It has a role to perform of great value, to regulate the body temperature so that it remains steady. The body works best at an even temperature of about 98.4 degrees and that is why, when one is hot, the skin flushes and sweats, so that blood is brought to the surface and cooled by the air. When the skin goes "gooseflesty" and drives the blood away from the surface to prevent it becoming chilled when one is cold.

Care of the skin requires it must be kept clean to prevent blocking of glands by dirt and so if possible the whole body should be exposed to the air for a short time every day. A rub-down with a towel keeps the skin in condition and makes it less likely for one to catch cold.

In this climate warm clothing is necessary to protect the skin from cold air. Loose underclothing with open meshes is advised for the warm air trapped in the meshes will protect the body from the chill. Out-of-doors, thicker outer garments prevent the wind from driving out the warm air.

In warm weather or hot rooms only light clothing is advised, taking care of course to guard against sudden changes. Light colored clothing is then favored.

Such a piercing wind as blew on Thursday lowered the temperature of houses and of human life to the open. Such shows the importance of accommodating one's dress to the temperature and atmospheric conditions.

The winter of 1949-50 now hastening to an end has shown forcibly to everyone the necessity of protecting oneself against the wind and cold and changes of temperatures.

FATE OF DINING ROOM TABLE

The dining room table was quite an important fixture in the day and was, in fact, the focal point of home life. Front parlors were rather frigid and stiff regions, reserved as week-nights for the eldest daughter and her beau, and on the Sabbath, after the evening church service, for an hour's visit by friends of the parents. Then coffee would be served and mother would flutter around with helpings of her best cream cake — a creation of luscious abundance and sure to win praise — which she would pass off with: "Oh, it's nothing really."

The dining room, however, was the place where the family gathered three times a day and as age before people began to cramp themselves in breakfast nooks or eat from the tops of trunks and improvised ironing-boards. It was usually a leisurely repast mingled with light conversation concerning the day's activities. Children and their elders took part. The peace and security of home, and all the happiness that the world evokes, hovered over such scenes.

With the meal finished and the dishes removed, the white cloth would be folded and replaced, perhaps, with a homespun cover. It was then that the table further demonstrated its hold on a family. Its substantial solidity would drop their chairs a little closer and begin the study of their school lessons. Father would light his pipe and read the paper. Mother would get her basket of mending and darn socks or stockings. So it went until bedtime — seldom later than 10 o'clock.

Now, so young moderns will tell you, a house is dated a Victorian if it has a dining room. The old table has suffered frightful indignities. In some instances its legs have been cut off to reduce the floor level, its top reduced to the dimensions of a cocktail tray. Or, completely unrecognizable, it may be serving as a bridge table. Dad may have it out in the garage, or down in the cellar, for service as work bench. Many of them have ended up in summer cottages, their once-lovely walnut or mahogany wood hidden by atrocious enamel and paint, made, in emergencies, to function as Spartan couches for an overflow of weekend guests. — Hamilton Spectator.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

IT TAKES ALL KINDS

Here are two stories, both true. The first is as mean as a thumb in the eye; the second as heartening as a sunrise.

The mean one is about a Philadelphia millionaire. He's also one of his frequent business trips to New York, made the acquaintance of a young lady whose good looks were only surpassed by her smiling affability. The fact that he was married, the tycoon began to see a lot of the girl, and it wasn't long before he had set her up in a Madison Avenue apartment and was feeding her over $300 a week to cover expenses.

After a couple of cozy and clandestine years, the girl said to him one night, "If something ever happens to you, Daddy, I'll be left without a penny. Don't you think you ought to do something about securing my future?"

"You're absolutely right," said the industrialist. "Give me a few days to work it out."

The next time he called on the girl, he handed her a million dollars worth of three per cent railroad bonds.

"These will yield you an income of fifteen thousand a year," he said. "If anything happens to the coupons come due, clip them and I'll cash them in for you, and you can use the money to buy expenses. You'll notice I haven't put your name on the bonds either. Well, that's because the transfer of so large a sum would come to the attention of the board of directors and cause a lot of talk. However, if anything happens to me, you can write your name in and sell the whole lot at any brokerage house."

The girl thanked him, and the affair continued seeing each other until the tycoon keeled over in his Philadelphia office a couple of years later with an attack of coronary thrombosis. When his lady friend read the obituary in the papers, she wrote her name on the bonds and took them to a brokerage house.

The broker examined the certificates. "You're a little late, Miss," he said. "This railroad went out of existence almost thirty years ago."

The girl picked up the worthless paper and walked out. "Old dirty double-crosser," she muttered. "All he gave me was the same three hundred a week."

And now let us take the thumb out of your eye and show you the sunrise.

Seven years ago, an Iowa garageman went bankrupt and decided to make a fresh start in another state. He scraped together a little cash, loaded his wife and kids into a beat-up Chevrolet and headed for California. Unfortunately, the jalopy broke down outside Tucson and the cost of getting it fixed cleaned him out.

To get a little eating money for the family, he got a job parking in town for a job but quickly found the supply of local labor was greater than the demand in Tucson, because of its climate it was filled with tuberculosis cases, many of whom were mechanics.

So the last garage on his list he repeated his hard-luck story to. "I've come through more than last me six months," said the mechanic, "and the doctor who's been treating me for TB says that's all I figure to live."

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

I noted in your issue of March 4th, a brief item concerning that the first Young Men's Christian Association was formed in Boston on December 29th., 1850. I know you wish to have a correct statement of fact.

The first Young Men's Christian Association was organized in the city of London, England, on June 6th., 1844, by George Williams, who was later knighted by Queen Victoria. A group of young men in their early twenties, emerged in the dry goods business, felt a need for improving conditions for their associates and fellows. Many of these young men had come from country places to the great city with the advent of the Industrial Revolution. They were found spiritual and moral conditions intolerable and undertook to do something about it.

The hundredth anniversary of this event was celebrated the world over on June 6th., 1944. On the American continent was founded in the city of Montreal. A month later on December 29th., 1851 the first, and oldest Christian Association of Boston was organized. The stirring accounts of the new movement which was providing respectable living accommodations, educational classes, and a wholesome recreation programs spread into many parts of the continent rapidly. Within five years of its establishment of the first association in Montreal in 1851, 33 associations were organized.

This year the Centennial of the YMCA in America will be celebrated. Plans are already underway for the event a most honorable one throughout Canada and the United States.

MacKenzie's Column:

Romance of Negro Chief Becomes Imperial Issue

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press Foreign Analyst)

The romance of the young Oxford-educated Negro chief of the South African Bamangwatos, who made a white London typist his bride, has suddenly become an imperial issue and put the British Government in the most uncomfortable spot.

Seretse Khama, 27-year-old ruler over 150,000 subjects in Bechuanaland, married Ruth Williams, 24, a few months ago and took her to his capital as queen.

South Africa, a neighbor of Bechuanaland, has constantly begrudged the British policy of segregation of the white and the negro races. Seretse's case and his white queen suddenly got entangled in this broader question—and the young couple were in trouble.

The British Government invited Seretse to London, recently to discuss his status. The government decided that it could not recognize him as chief because of what was described as tendencies to disruption which might upend the protectorate. He was told that, for the present, he was his state, without permission, until the time of tribal rule is settled years hence.

The chief blew up. He said he had come back from his honeymoon in Africa and they were expecting a baby. He declared in effect that come hell or high water he was going back to his wife and people. He cabled the queen to sit tight.

Nobody put his finger on the present underlying reason for the government's action. That was left to the Commonwealth Relations Office. The London Times refers to the government being under "the urgent pressure of a Commonwealth crisis, arising political situation" and adds:

"The decision has been reached without any attempt to bring the union of South Africa to influence it. It is common knowledge, however, that the nationalists there are not only not committed to the doctrine of the separation of the race but dislike sharing their continent with white or communities in which it is not applied. . . .

"The truth is that British Africa is divided between one great independent state, which believes in the color bar, and a number of smaller states in which the color bar is repudiated. The conflict is tragic for the Commonwealth, but it cannot forever be evaded."

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

DO WE HAVE FREEDOM OF CHOICE?

We live in an age that talks a great deal about liberty. We must have freedom to do what we want to do; otherwise our lives are confined, our natural impulses suppressed.

Reflect for a moment on how little liberty and freedom of choice there is in life anyway. Did you choose the family into which you were born, or the age in which you were born? Did you choose your sex, or the color of your skin, or your native land? Ninety-five per cent of the situations of our lives are fixed and established quite apart from any choice of ours.

We are like children who sit on their mother's knee and listen to the automobile, and, because they have their hands on the steering wheel, they think they are running the car. If we had a real sense of humor, we would take a good look at ourselves and indulge in a hearty laugh every time we are tempted to use the word "liberty" and to plead for freedom of choice. Yet the child who sits on the father's knee is not a slave or an automaton, but a personality. And we are personalities, even though 95 per cent of our lives, and more, are fixed of our lives, are settled before we start to live. But the 5 per cent which is ours is so important, so full of issues so much ingenuity and character to bring to the development, that we may well congratulate ourselves on the opportunities we have.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

"He never done me no harm," said a quiet voice across the aisle of the day coach.

"Well, what from the way he was acting," replied another voice," he wasn't in the mood to be friendly."

This was not a conversation between radio character actors trying to portray hillbillies and hicks. Across the aisle from me in the train sat four presentable young fellows. They were Canadian. They might have been city boys, they might have been small town. But the dialect they were speaking is a dialect still to be found all over Canada, and which seems to endure despite a nation-wide and integrated educational system; and despite the fact that 94 per cent of children at the age of six, and keep them at school by law, until they are sixteen. Then they go out and do not appear to be sufficient to conquer half a dozen vowels. The sceners and the doners and the aint-noers are as vigorous and lively today as they were in pioneer times.

How does this dialect survive? Where is it nourished and perpetuated? In former times, dialects and oddities of English were preserved by isolation. But there is no isolation any more, with addition to the compulsory schools, there is the radio working from 6 a.m. to midnight every day in which, for the most part, grammatical English is spoken hour by hour. Surely an overwhelming majority of Canadians today are wholly incapable of employing a sentence such as "He never done me no harm." Yet a right-living, tight-little-minority among us clings to that idiom with the utmost tenacity.

Apparently the English they are taught in school appears to them to be something queer and foreign, like French: they learn it but they dont like to use it at home, among friends. It sounds affected.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

RESPECT

Robert Henri said of the painter Velasquez that everything he painted had dignity, from a clown to a king. "In the Infanta Margarita he painted the look of a child with that of a queen. He drew greatness with his models. He was a man in love with humanity. He had the utmost respect for the soul, the body and the dwarf." That is what made him great.

We cannot love anyone whom we do not respect. Nor can we give to the considerations that this is their due, unless we genuinely respect them. Respect alone is made unhappy, and often goes sparse, because it lacks the respect for those who are a part of it.

No leader can hope to have followers for long unless he demands and gets, their respect. Nor can that leader demand without character to back it with. That is what creates respect. We do not have to agree with the ideas of another in order to respect him. That is easy. Respect is a tribute to that one's honesty and integrity.

The God and good within us respect all races, color, and creeds, but that does not mean that we shall agree with all of the ideas of others. The meteoric and dramatic career of William Jennings Bryan brought to his standard millions of admirers, I being one of them. I knew him and respected him, but I could never vote for him when he was a candidate for the Presidency of the United States.

We would have more friends, and better ones, if we respected them more. Much of the unpopularity rule instead of our leadership comes from the cold heart should have respect for "the other fellow" and his viewpoint. Then there would always be understanding. The painter of a clown, or a tinker, should first respect him in order to correctly portray him.

The ideal democracy is where all ideas are respected. When this is not done, democracy falls apart and is unworkable. Even in the case of a benevolent dictator, the leader is not respected, that team will disintegrate sometime. The morale of the team breaks down. Respect is but another name for faith.

ELECTRO-COAGULATION OF INFECTED TONSILS

In a publication widely distributed to the piker practitioners around the country by the big specialists this interesting statement appears:

"We have never observed a patient whose tonsils have been entirely removed by electrosurgification. This method is not used at the Clinic."

It is safe to say that they have seen a good many persons there whose tonsils have been "entirely removed" one or more times by tonsillectomy.

According to Albert D. Kaiser a series of 403 operations the tonsils were "entirely removed" in only 110 cases. Careful examination of the throats a few weeks after the operation, in other words, showed portions of tonsil still present.

Despite the incessant blah-blah of the brass specialists, not only in the "clinics" but throughout the country, about the "importance of "getting all of the tonsil," every physician who knows what he is talking about knows more or less tonsil tissue is left in the throat after every tonsillectomy.

Not that the operator is at fault for doing so. Often the condition it seems to me, the patient who retains even a small portion of one or both tonsils after tonsillectomy is fortunate. Almost as fortunate as he who has been vaccinated with electro-coagulation (diathermy) destroying the infection focus of the tonsils.

The purpose of electro-coagulation of infected tonsils is not to remove the tonsils. There is no sound reason why a physician with brass throat specialties, is not to remove the tonsils. There is no reason why a physician should with to remove the tonsils "if they are" except when there is malignancy or leprosy or syphilis. Good, sound tonsil tissue is limited as yet to the tonsil. The purpose of electro-coagulation (diathermy or actinotherapy) is to infect, pasteurize, drain, eradicate or destroy the nidus, focus or center of infection which the physician believes to be the source of the patient's systemic trouble. The less tonsil tissue destroyed to accomplish this the better.

I have said several times and I say again, that the medical profession should be ashamed of its record in regard to the tonsil problem. If it were really necessary to subject children with merely infected tonsils to such a dangerous operation I would not dare to speak of it in this column. I tell you once more, parents, uncles, aunts, grandparents and all who have children to love and cherish, tonsillectomy is unjustifiable treatment for enlarged tonsils. When seuls are large enough to obstruct breathing the consequent disease and hemorrhage, safer office or home operation called tonsilitomy will give the necessary relief. Tonsilitomy is instantaneous slicing off of the obstructing portion of tonsil, neither more painful nor more dangerous than the extraction of a tooth.

There are increasing signs that at least a considerable number of physicians in general practice are beginning to think for themselves about the tonsil question. This is evident in the vast reduction in the number of tonsillectomies in the past decade. High time, too. The blinding of the men and file of the profession in regard to the tonsils has been anything but scientific since the era of wholesale tonsillectomy brought such great pickings to the specialist operators.

In another ten years, I venture to predict, the profession will have forgotten tonsillectomy, at least as a treatment for enlarged tonsils.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

One is as Good as a Pair

Can a woman with only one ear hear? Can a man with one eye see? I have two girls. Friends who have only boys have suggested I have two boys. My doctor insists I can have boy babies with the same ovary. — (Mrs. E.)

Answer—Listen to your doctor and let your friends tell their one to the marines.

Red Nose

What will prevent red nose in cold weather? (B. D.)

Answer—A spell of warm weather. Failing that, I would report that this has ceased to trouble them since they began taking the iodin treatment. Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask for writing for pamphlet, The Iodin Ration.

Hiccough

It seems that I read in your paper something about hiccough. Having just recovered from a two days bout with it I wish I had kept it. — (Hiccoughing, A. J.)

Answer—Inhalations of carbon dioxide. Physicians administer it in ambulances. It is made from pure carbon dioxide gas with oxygen. Some one can get sufficient effect from simply breathing in a paper bag for a minute or two at intervals. Hold the mouth of the bag over the nose and mouth. Inhale it and continue rebreathing.

Observes 86th Birthday

Life of Achievement Marks Career of William C. Springer

(By Arthur R. Walbridge)

Today is the birthday of William C. Springer (Bill) who was born in Cleveland, Ohio, March 10th, 1864.

Mr. Springer came to Canada in 1885 with several other skilled mechanics to commence the manufacture of builders' hardware at Peterborough, Ontario, a new venture, the first lock factory in Canada. He had been well trained in Cleveland, O., in wood-working, and had extensive experience in the manufacture of locks, globe valves and steamcocks. Within a day or so of his arrival in Peterborough he commenced the making of metal patterns for the infant industry by which was to grow into a very successful one, and is so today.

Mr. Springer stayed with the Peterborough company until 1894 and then went back to Cleveland for further experience in the manufacture of hardware. He returned to Canada to Toronto in 1899 where he worked as a pattern maker with the Massey Harris Company, and others.

Came Here In 1901

For some time the young mechanic had been in correspondence with R. J. Graham, then mayor of Belleville, who was anxious to obtain new industries for the city. Mr. Graham interviewed him in Toronto with the result that in 1901 he came to Belleville to make preparatory arrangements to start the Belleville Hardware Co., which he built up to sizable proportions in 10 years, and then sold out his interests in the company.

Later he started the Springer Lock Manufacturing Co., operating it for 20 years, when it was sold to the Canada Hardware Corporation of New Britain, Conn. It is now known as the Corbin Lock Co., of Canada Ltd. The original Belleville Hardware Company is now the Belleville-Sargent and Co. Ltd.

Mr. Springer's plants turned out hardware of the finest quality which was sold from coast to coast, and in England, Mexico, Australia, New Zealand, China and other countries of importance. Some of the finest buildings in Canada are equipped with Springer hardware and locks of high grade solid bronze.

Trained Many Men

Many hundreds of young Bellevillians obtained their knowledge and training in tool and pattern making in the Springer plants, moving on frequently to fine jobs and supervisory positions with industrial concerns in the larger cities. Mr. Springer kept his factories running, and his employees earning in dull times, by personally going after business, often making long trips to the Pacific Coast and to eastern centres, where, because of his experience, and his ability to figure costs right on the spot, was enabled to obtain orders.

Bill Springer commenced his industrial career doing odd jobs around a factory in Cleveland. He was ambitious, keen and observant; he wanted to become a mechanic. It was not long before he was allowed to run a lathe, and soon he could handle any of the lathes or machinery in the plant. It was not long then to his making patterns, particularly for locks, and "builders' " hardware, in which he excelled.

The starting of the first lock company in Canada at Peterborough in which Mr. Springer participated came about in this way. Business at Cleveland was slack, a reorganization of the lock company there was in prospect, and during discussions in the office, one of the office staff, a young man named Charles Lavis from Belleville disclosed the fact there were no lock factories in Canada.

Contacted Lawyer Friend

He proposed to write his friend a young lawyer named Stewart Masson in Peterborough, a place seeking new industries, to learn if the money necessary to start a factory could be had.

Masson soon replied that funds, and a building, would be ready for them anytime, in a day or two a former manager with a half dozen machinists, of whom Mr. Springer was one, together with trunk-fulls of lock patterns, were en route to Peterborough, and so began the hardware and lock business that later was to extend into Belleville.

It was Charles Lavis, Jr., who had posted Mayor R. J. Graham on William Springer's ability and knowledge of the lock manufacturing business. Stewart Masson, the young Peterborough lawyer, moved to Belleville to practise law, and later became police magistrate.

Mr. Springer can look back now with pride and satisfaction on the extent and permanency of the lock and hardware manufacturing in Belleville. He worked hard and successfully to achieve this, and although now getting on in years he is as smart and active as many men much younger.

Favorite Story

He likes to tell a story now and then of which he seems to have an inexhaustible store. His boyhood experiences in Cleveland and its environs are interesting and amusing.

When about 12 he and another lad of the same age got a job cultivating turnips on a farm in the country 10 miles out. They had to walk there and back every day, and take along a lunch as dinner was not included in the pay of 20 cents each per day. They dug turnips steadily for 12 days finishing the job.

"Now boys," said the old farmer, "let's see," (digging down in his pants pocket) "let's see — hmmm—"Twelve days each at 20 cents a day—I say boys how would you lads like to take your pay in turnips?"

Some time after his retirement from the lock manufacturing business Mr. Springer took over the idle Carthage Machine Company where for two years he directed the manufacture of paper making machinery, and turbines for water power. This plant is still in operation.

Pretty Waitress Unravels Love Affair With Guay

Quebec, March 10. (CP)— A pretty waitress Thursday unravelled the story of a two-year love affair with J. Albert Guay, on trial for murder of his wife in the Sept. 9 plane wreck that killed 23 persons.

The flowing-haired, 19-year-old Marie-Ange Robitaille revealed intimate details of her stormy relationship with Guay since the Spring of 1948 when she first met him. She was last of more than 70 witnesses brought before the court by the crown since the start of the trial Feb. 23.

Defence and prosecution were expected to summarize their cases before the 12-man jury today and Quebec Judge Albert Sevigny likely will deliver his charge to the jury Monday, outlining legal points and reviewing facts brought out in the case.

The petite, quiet-spoken waitress was brought before the court Thursday by crown prosecutor Jean Bienvenue to move to prove that Guay's affection for her was the prime motive in the alleged time-bomb plot which caused the crash of the Canadian Pacific Airlines plane at Sault Au Cochon.

Little more than five feet tall, Miss Robitaille commanded full attention from the packed court room as she referred to a letter Guay handed her last August in which he said one day he would be "free" and then she would be "sorry she didn't listen to him." No Mention of Fiat

She made no mention of the time-bomb plot. But she said Guay once tried to gain a separation from his 28-year-old wife.

The girl said that her love affair with the 32-year-old jeweler was punctuated by many quarrels.

Testimony of defence witness Henri Lavoie, grey-haired taxi driver, caused a surprise when he said he had taken Genevieve Ruest, 44-year-old watchmaker, to Mrs. Arthur Pitre's apartment the morning of Sept. 9. Mrs. Pitre had admitted delivering a parcel to the airlines which she first said contained a statue and later said was a bomb.

The taxi driver's testimony came into possible conflict with that given by Ruest who told the court that he made an alarm clock dynamite Pitre's apartment Guay and that Guay took it away Sept. 8, eve of the disaster.

Fiaest in Apartment

Lavoie's story also placed Mrs. Pitre in her Montgmor Gauvean Street apartment after 9 a.m. Sept. 9. She had testified about that time she was delivering the "large parcel"-to Quebec airport.

In her testimony, Miss Robitaille admitted she lived in a room which Guay rented after she quarrel with her family about keeping company with Guay.

"Guay supplied me with money for food. He gave me two or three dollars at a time. He bought my clothes . . .

Defence counsel asked her if Guay was sorry to lose his wife in the air crash.

She replied: "Yes".

Miss Robitaille also told the court that Guay invited her to go out with Him Sept. 22 his birthday—13 days after the aircrash.

"Did you go?"

"No."

Five Toronto Youths Arrested After Wild Chase

Toronto, March 10. (CP)—Five Toronto youths were arrested at gunpoint in a stolen automobile early today after police set up a roadblock in suburban Scarboro. They ranged in age from 16 to 19.

Police said the youths were surrounded by officers after a wild, seven-mile chase over icy streets and offered no resistance when stopped at the barricade. The car was reported stolen in London, Ont.

Constable Frank Bridle of the Ontario Provincial Police said he spotted the stolen auto shortly after Toronto police flashed a warning over the police radio. He was jointed by other officers at the roadblock.

MALARIA ENDED IN CYPRUS

Nicosia, Cyprus — (CP)—After a three-year campaign the island of Cyprus has been cleared of malaria-bearing mosquitoes. Three years ago there were 18,000 cases of the disease among Cypriots. The figure was reduced to 100 in 1949 and none of the reported cases was new.

First Milestone In Frequency Change Has Been Completed

Toronto, March 10. (CP)—The first milestone in the 10 to 12-year frequency standardization program in Southern Ontario has been reached in suburban Scarboro where the work of changing electrical equipment from 25 to 60 cycles has been completed.

Robert Saunders, Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission chairman, made the announcement on Thursday night. He said it took approximately five months to convert equipment of the 10,924 consumers. Of this number, 10,198 were domestic: 636 commercial and 90 industrial.

The number of appliances and pieces of equipmept converted totalled 42,239.

On March 13 the standardization operations move into the Markham district. In Western Ontario, a second front was opened Jan. 11 at Corunna, down-river from Sarnia where to date 1,233 consumers have had their equipment converted. Total cost of the program is expected to be $200,000,000.

Well-Paid Women Trade Their Jobs for Country Life

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London—(CP)—Two women both at the top of their professions, both in their 30s, are resigning high-salaried jobs in London to live quietly in the country.

Slim, blue-eyed Jean Nicol, for 11 years public relations officer for the Savoy, Claridge's and the Berkeley Hotels, is one of them.

Her job consists not only of keeping the three hotels before the public but in stopping indiscreet stories from getting into the newspapers—such as the story of the colonel with a D.S.O. who worked in the kitchens at the Savoy.

She also has to protect shy or retiring celebrities from the glare of publicity.

Said Jean: "Most people think I'm crazy because I want to give up this job and live in a tiny cottage in Cornwall with my husband.

"What on earth will you do there?" everyone asks me. Well, I shall garden. I shall help grow flowers and potatoes for selling.

"In London I have a gay time and meet lots of amusing people and have lovely clothes and wonderful meals. But that doesn't make up for never having time to be myself.

No Papers Near

"Here I'm always rushing out for every edition of the papers. Down in Cornwall it's a three-mile walk to the nearest paper shop."

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

Salt water life is seldom salty, as far as cooking is concerned. Sea bass, blue-fish, halibut are flavorless unless first dipped in a strong salt water solution or sprinkled generously with salt.

Of sea foods, oysters need the least amount of salt. Perhaps this is due to the fact that oysters are the thirstiest creatures alive.

A single bivalve will take as much as 26 quarts of sea water an hour through its gills. This provides the oyster not only with liquid but solid nourishment too.

When you make fried oysters, you should sprinkle them with salt the instant they are removed from the fat. Cracker crumbs or white bread crumbs make a more delicate coating than toasted bread crumbs.

Fried oysters with melted cheese sound virile but they are not heavy eating. You can melt the cheese under a very slow broiler flame or in a slow oven. Intense heat makes the proteins in the cheese tough and stringy and causes the fat to separate from the cheese.

Oysters with Melted Cheese
4 Servings

Order 24 large size oysters. Go over oysters carefully to pick out any pieces of shell.

Dip oysters in 1-2 cup milk or light cream. Dip in fine white bread crumbs or cracker crumbs. Dip in 1 beaten egg to which 1 tablespoon oil has been added. Dip again in fine bread crumbs.

Fry oysters in deep fat heated to 360 degrees. Or fry in 1 inch of hot fat in a shallow pan.

Place oysters on 4 slices of toast. Place toast on a greased cookie sheet. On top oysters place thin slices of old American cheese or process type American cheese. Spread 1-4 cup of chili sauce over cheese.

Place under a very slow broiler or place in a slow oven, until cheese begins to melt.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

Some Early Church Quarrels

By ROY L. SMITH

There is a tendency among modern churchmen to assume that those first century Christians were all perfect people, with a complete understanding of the message of Jesus, and to undervisting devotion to the Christian cause.

The truth is, they were far from perfect, and a little close study of the New Testament Church, placed under the surface, reveals the fact that some of the controversies inside the Christian community were rather serious and sometimes bitter affairs.

The First Clash

It is more than a little significant that the first quarrel to upset the early Christian Church was not one in which theology figured in any way. The whole trouble developed over the question of who was to get the relief which the Church had to distribute.

There were at least three groups represented in the first Christian Church. (1) There were those Jews who believed that Jesus was the promised Messiah; (2) there were Greek or Jewish converts who had a Jewish religion who now added their Christian faith to their Jewish religion; (3) there were Jews of a devout turn of mind who lived in other parts of the world and who returned to Jerusalem in order to attend the festivals. This latter group, representing Jews who had grown up in the influence of the Greek civilization of the world, far removed from Jerusalem, were actually more Greek than Jew in their culture, and it is from this element were very frequently called "Greeks."

The Sunday School Lesson for March 12: "Church Organization and Leadership," Acts 6: 1-6; 20:17—21:0; 1 Corinthians 12 I Timothy 3.

In distributing relief to impoverished widows of the congregation of Christians, these Greeks claimed their women were discriminated against. What the fact may have been we do not know but may have been pure fancy, or it may have been a real grievance. At any rate the elders of the Church worked out a clever solution.

They Appointed A Committee

In order that everyone might be satisfied, and that no one would be able to claim an injustice had been done, the complainers were put on the committee. Seven "Greek" women were responsible for administering the entire relief fund.

The Church made use of an excellent principle of organization in this instance. They placed responsibility in the hands of the faultfinders. It has always been true that the possession of a power is very apt to make the radical conservative.

The Friction Was Economic

It was true then as it is true now, that Christian principles must invade the areas of economics if the kingdom of God is to be established.

A fair and equitable distribution of economic goods became the test of the Christian integrity of the young church, and the same factors are a test of the sincerity of our scientific professions in this modern day.

Under the conditions of machinery," Dimmick told the first interviewers. He then described in detail, saying it was 46 feet in diameter, built of a metal somewhat stronger and much harder, and powered by two motors.

He said he was taken to the scene of the crash by associates and that the wreckage was roped off. The crash occurred three months ago, he said.

Dimmick said later that the piece of metal he actually saw was about a foot long, eight inches wide and three-quarters of an inch thick.

Says Statement Of Rev. J. Endicott Is Ridiculous

Ottawa, March 10. (CP)—Absurd and ridiculous is the way External Affairs Minister Pearson described a statement made in Moscow by Rev. James Endicott, of Toronto, chairman of the Canada-China Congress.

Mr. Endicott charged that tens of thousands of Canadians had been permanently barred from the United States because of their activities on behalf of peace.

Mr. Pearson said at a press conference Tuesday "there were 30,000,000 border-crossings between Canada and the United States last year and the cases that caused trouble were well under 100."

He pointed out that Mr. Endicott was one of those from Canada to enter the U.S. to appear at a United Nations Assembly meeting.

The cases "that caused trouble" involved U.S. immigration rulings barring certain Canadians, Mr. Pearson said recently official discussions had been held in agreement that will keep them to a minimum.

Reports Seeing The Wreckage Of Flying Saucer

Los Angeles, March 10. (AP)—An expert on chemicals and explosives today told reporters he has seen the wreckage of an ultra-streamlined flying saucer on a secret, top mountainside, and that top U.S. military officials have viewed it. L. Dimmick, sales manager of the Apache Powder Co., and the air force in Washington said it had nothing about it.

Dimmick later told other reporters he actually saw only a strip of metal which he was told came from the space ship.

The remainder of his information, Dimmick said, came from a man in Mexico City, one an American, the other a Chilean-Mexican.

Part of his information, he said, described a man 23 inches tall, the pilot of the object, died in the crash and that his body was embalmed for scientific study.

Accidental Death Jury's Verdict In Philip Case

Trenton, (Special) — Accidental death caused by fracture of the spinal column and severe shock was the verdict ascertained by a panel of five jurors in Trenton held last night in the town hall, into the death of Kenneth Philips, 28, who was killed as a result of being struck by a 30-foot log at the Dominion Tar and Chemical plant here on March 1st. When presenting the verdict, the five jurors, Ross Gunter, Paul Lozo, Keith Hadley, Peter Dempsey and Frank Filion stipulated that no blame should be attached to anyone concerned.

Mr. J. Brant, an employee of the plant, in the capacity of conveyor, testified that he had been operating the crane when the accident occurred. He said that Philips gave the signal for him to raise one end of the logs. He saw Philips reaching for the cable to be slipped under the metal connecting link and jumped on the flatcar caused one log to slip out striking Philips on the back of the neck and knocking him backward off the flatcar on to a pile of steel. A second log was also dislodged which rolled off the car and struck Philips on the head, pinning him fast. Mr. Brant said he ran over to Philips and endeavored to help. He lifted the log off his chest and held it until fellow workers arrived to assist him. Brant who has been employed at the Creosote for 28 years, said that Philips had not had much experience at that particular job.

Logs Were Icy

Cecil Kelly who was working with Philips on top of the load said that as the first load was raised he spoke to Philips saying "this is my cable, Ken," but that he received no answer and that his vision was blocked by the raised logs. It was then that he heard Brant calling for help. Mr. Kelly said that the weather had caused the logs to become icy, but, he added, that in his opinion no precaution could have been taken to prevent the accident.

Dr. G. J. Johnston who was called immediately when the accident occurred testified that he found Philips in very bad state of shock and that his general condition was poor. After treating him for shock, Dr. Johnston ordered, him removed to Belleville General Hospital. When he arrived at the hospital, Philips was put under the care of Dr. G. S. Cronk. He stated that Philips was placed in oxygen all day Thursday but he failed to respond to a state of semi-consciousness, but was unable to speak. After examinations and X-rays an operation was performed to remove the pressure on the spine, Philips died shortly after the operation. Dr. Cronk said that later findings showed that had the patient lived he would have been completely paralyzed.

The post-mortem which was performed by Dr. J. H. Bateman showed that although injuries included a crushed breast bone death was obviously caused by fractured vertebrae and serious shock.

Adenauer Will Protest Recent Franco-Saar Pact

Bonn, Germany, March 10 — (AP) — Konrad Adenauer, West German Chancellor, told a special Parliament session today he will protest to the Western Allies against the recent Franco-Saar agreement.

The agreement gave the German-speaking, 700-square-mile Saar almost complete self - government in return for assigning its border area coal wealth to France for 50 years.

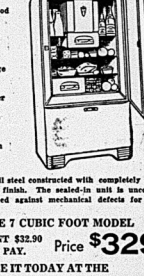
Adenauer's government Thursday published a white paper proposting to Western Allied authorities that the Saar be placed under international control similar to that which rules the industrial Ruhr.

The accord between the Saar government and France aroused a storm of protest in West Germany.

Adenauer today repeated his claim that the West German Republic, as a signatory of the future German Peace Treaty, should have a share in deciding the fate of the disputed territory.

Adenauer claimed that the Franco - Saar convention created conditions which could not be changed by a peace treaty, though the French have said the convention is subject to final confirmation by the future treaty.

The Chancellor asserted the conventional would prejudice the final treaty and that the agreement made the Saar a "complete political and economic dependency of France."



His government, Adenauer said, considers "the conventions illegal since they contravene international law."

In its white paper the Bonn government said any possible severance of the area from Germany, which held it prior to the end of World War Two, should be determined by a plebiscite of the Saarlanders.

Jet-Propelled Car Demonstrated by British Company

By DONALD B. SCHWIND

Towcester, England, March 10. (AP)—The British automobile industry's biggest postwar secret—a sleek jet-propelled car—was given its first public demonstration yesterday.

Moved by a pair of twin kerosene-fed jet turbines, the automobile—a sports coupe—whipped over a concrete landing strip near Towcester at nearly 90 miles an hour.

It idled and reversed with the ease of a conventional car.

The new machine—a version of which the makers say should be in mass production in from two to four years—is aimed at giving Britain a bigger chunk of the dollar motor market.

The car was put through its paces at Silverstone Airport near here by F. R. Bell, engineer in charge of its development for the Rover Motor Company of Birmingham.

Outwardly, it looks like a normal two-seat sports car, except for three air intake openings on either side and two square exhaust grids on which hot colorless gases escape behind the driver and his passenger.

The car uses kerosene-operated turbines lie behind the driver's seat. The turbines are hooked directly to the rear wheels, eliminating clutch and gears.

The driver uses only two pedals—accelerator and brake. By slacking off on the accelerator, he cuts down the flow of fuel and so slows the turbines.

Performance

1. From a cold standing start it got under way in 3-3 seconds.

2. It streaked along the runway at between 80 and 90 miles an hour. Peak speeds are still a secret.

3. It cruised with a high whistling noise that sharpened as the speed dropped, but was never much louder than a noisy conventional car.

4. A slight smell of kerosene swept from the exhaust vents, but there was no smoke except a few slight puffs of dark blue vapor when the turbines were started.

Bell, who directed most questions for figures, said the firm still has several major bugs to shake before the car can make its assault on the gasoline-engined auto market.

Fuel consumption is too high, he said, but new engines are expected to get the fuel factor on a level with that of present cars.

Bell said the jet car is slightly heavier than a normal auto. A lighter model is under development.

The turbines will probably be moved into the conventional forward position when the car is finally marketed, he said.

Unlike the jet plane, which gets its forward push from back bases, punching out from combustion units against the open air, the new car's built-in jet turns the turbines that power the rear wheels.

The car has an 111-inch wheelbase and a width of 52 inches.

Liquor Profits Become Revenue Producer for PEI

(By The Canadian Press)

First report of Premier Edward Island's Temperance Commission tabled in the legislature at Charlottetown shows a profit of $550,719 in the 1948-49 fiscal year, Prince Edward Island had prohibition until 1948.

The Island Temperance Commission reported total sales were $1,919,837, or about $22 for each person, believed the highest per capita consumption in Canada.

The P.E.I. Temperance Act, while doing away with the necessity of obtaining scripts for the purchase of liquor, provides more and stiffer penalties for infractions of the law and commission officials believe it has been proven satisfactory legislation for both "wets" and "drys."

The New Brunswick legislature resumed Throne Speech debate at Fredericton. Dr. E. S. Kennedy (PC-Kings) said he had received numerous protests against a provincial sales tax which has been rumored lately. Revise Inheritance Laws

The Quebec Legislative Assembly debated a bill revising delinquency laws while Chief Justice Antonin Galipeault, acting in absence of Lieutenant-Governor Sir Eugene Fiset, who is ill, gave Royal assent to 29 government measures. These include supplementary estimates to carry the government over to the end of the fiscal year March 31.

The Ontario Legislature continued Throne Speech debate and J. S. Dempsey (PC-Renfrew) claimed 40 percent of the workers on the Toronto subway project are from the United States at a time when large numbers of Canadians are unemployed.

The Saskatchewan Legislature defeated by 39-19 a motion by J. W. Horham (L-Wilkie) urging the government to write hull insurance on ships using the Hudson Bay route.

The Alberta Legislature defeated two opposition requests for information on oil lease tenders and public works contracts. After Lines Minister Tanner and Public Works Minister MacMillan asserted that publication of the requested returns would not be in the public interest, the House rejected the motions by votes of 46 to 5, in each instance.

Hour-Long Chase Recaptures Escaped Lifer

Gaylord, Mich., March 10 (AP) —State police engaged in an hour long pre-dawn chase on Northern Michigan roads today to recapture a fleeing criminal.

Although handcuffed, Benoit stole a police car about 2 a.m. and raced 20 miles along a dark highway before another officers' car overtook him.

He surrendered peaceably. He had been free about an hour.

In the car, police said, were two axes which they reported Benoit had obtained by breaking into a shack in his wild flight.

The convict went to prison for life in 1937 in the sadistic killing of a policeman. The slaying had spurred one of Michigan's greatest manhunts.

On Jan. 19 1937, Trooper Richard Hammond picked up Benoit on a road near Monroe in southern Michigan for routine questioning. Later Hammond, shackled to a tree, was found shot to death.

Police Continue Probe of Theft Of Radium Needles

Louise Gobeil, pretty 'teen-age laboratory worker, helped recover the $2,000 worth of needles Thursday near the home of a 12-year-old schoolboy.

Finding the needles ended a frantic search to recover the needles before the dangerous rays emitting particles would harm anyone in possession of them.

The schoolboy in whose possession the needles were found told authorities he found the needles on the ground outside the storehouse Sunday.

Police said they believed an adult may have broken into the storehouse and discarded the needles after carrying them outside the frame building situated at the rear of N.R.C. headquarters.

Meanwhile Trade Minister Howe, responsible to cabinet for N.R.C. activities told the Commons that he has asked for a report on the disappearance and eventual recovery of the needles.

No Charge Planned

It was reported that N.R.C. security regulations were under review, but E. R. Birchard, N.R.C. vice-president, said no charge is planned security regulations is planned.

Disappearance of the needles was first discovered Sunday.

Wednesday, acting on a report that a grade-six pupil at Lasalle Academy had been seen playing with the needles, Miss Gobeil, 18 accompanied Dr. Jacob Kastner,

Eats 18 Cream Puffs In 15 Minutes To Win Crown

Timmins, March 10 — (CP) — Dick Carbone's cream puff crown fell Thursday night to William Cicconi, 38, who demolished 18 in 15 minutes.

Former champion Carbone, whose strong point is capacity not speed was at a disadvantage in the seven-man contest.

He arrived late after playing 10 minutes overtime in a Mercantile League hockey game and had to start eating alone after the others on the cream splatter-ed stage.

Long on appitite but short on wind, he downed 14 in 13 1-2 minutes, dropping out of the running when his wind gave out completely. He is considering challeging the new champion under better conditions.

N.R.C. physicist to the school and interviewed the boy.

Then, using a geiger counter, she swept the grounds around the boy's home until all 20 needles were recovered. Four needles were found in a nearby mail box in an envelope addressed to N.R.C.

He said he had mailed the needles after hearing radio warnings telling of the danger of retaining possession of the needles.

Mystery Marks Death of Major Kurt Gottlieb

Rome, March 10—(Reuters)—Maj. Walter Kurt Gottlieb, Austrian-born British business representative in Rome, was found dead in his bath here Tuesday, with his wrist veins severed.

Today the independent Rome newspaper Il Tempo said he was in London at the time of the Fuchs atomic secrets inquiry and later returned to Rome "a completely changed man."

It declared that Gottlieb, an Austrian Jew who became a naturalized Briton, showed a disquiet which resembled fear when he returned from London.

It asked: "was Maj. Gottlieb caught up in that network of investigation that the British and American secret police have been spreading over all countries in Europe since the Fuchs case?"

Gottlieb was formerly a major in the intelligence service in the British Eighth Army.

On the evening of March 6, the newspaper adds, he received some unknown news from London. Next morning he was found dead.

Il Tempo said that five "farewell" letters were found by the police.

In one, addressed to "Simon," Gottlieb said "I die for my country and for my stupidity."

In another, addressed to "Dama," he said "I love you and am dying for something I cannot tell you about."

The newspaper said that another "violently bitter" letter was addressed to Derek Verschoyle, first secretary at the British Embassy in Rome. Il Tempo suggested the police were concealing the contents of this letter.

The 17 members of the bank's staff were permitted to enter as they reported for duty. Each was made to take his regular post and appear to be working.

Marion Douglas is a sister of Jack Douglas also charged as an accessory and now out on $2,000 bail. She is said to have lived with Hancock in Peterborough and Vancouver. Other charged as accessories and out on $1,000 bail are Richard O'Brien, 25, and James Xing, 25, of Peterborough.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The stage is all set for the ice "drammer" of the season in Memorial Arena tonight. Northern Electric and Diesels resume their all-winter feud, and the boys in the back room aren't offering anything better than even money. In fact some are inclined to favor the plainters, but there are others who are definitely Diesel-minded. In any event "I've put my money and taken my choice." Both teams are reported to be at full strength with Tytyn, Rockets goalie, retired to not assignment for Northern, with the full consent of course of the railroad master-minds. Clare Williamson will be back in harness for Northern as will the rest of the crew. Diesels too, will throw their full power at the enemy as they are anxious to have the matter settled as soon as possible. Electrics favor a longer series and it won't be their fault if the matter is extended. In any event there will be plenty of high jinks and whatnot tonight when the squads steam into action. Game at 8:30.

Presentation of trophies will feature the game between the second and third periods. The Boland and Wh'en Trophies, gifts of the Oddimers Hockey Association will be presented to J. Keyes, Trenton, RCAF goalie, and Jackie Wardhaugh, fleet-footed wingman of the Northern Electric team. These players were adjudged winners of the awards by a panel of impartial observers. Bill Green will present one of his distinguished number of the OTHA during the honors with the other. Miniatures of the baubles, the gifts of the Belleville District Hockey League will be presented to the players by president Eddie Schrieder.

And while on the hockey question, (Seems to us the game was played here a short while back), the Intermediate Nylons and Peterborough Legion are staging epic battles in their struggle for Senior "B" supremacy in this district. Both teams have hard hitting squadrons and each outside warriors have annexed two victories each with hockey bordering on the brutal. Something each hard-fought battle. Nylons have turned back the Legionnaires twice on their home ice and dilte the warriors from the Kawarthas. Right now it is anybody's bauble. The teams are evenly matched and each meeting is a surging, heavy checking classic of the ice times. Both teams rate a look in on home ice means, if not curtains, then something very close to elimination. Thus far, it would appear that the "breaks" have been conspicuous by their absence, and the teams have won strictly on their merits. Kingston entertain their foemen tonight in the Jack Hartz Arena and the game is a 'must' for the Men o' McKnight. Should they falter by the wayside, Legion stands a stout chance of winging the group. And vice versa. The series will likely go the limit of seven games, and if such is the case, the final joust between these flying gladiators should be one for the archives.

MASS DEFENCE

Ole Cunnel Branch Rickey predicted at a dinner a couple of months ago that the following play will soon be accepted as routine baseball procedure: with vital runs on first and second and a hopeless hitter up, two outfielders will be called in to make a six-man infield. Two of the infielders will play say 20 feet from the plate and the single outfielder will be in centre. The Dodgers are experimenting with the play in the Vero Beach workouts. Clay Hopper of the Montreal Royals pulled a play something like it against the Leafs in the first of the Little World Series. There were men on first and second with nobody out and the pitcher at bat, obviously ordered to bunt. Clay brought Al Glossbrenner in from left field and placed him about halfway between third and home. The pitcher's attempted bunt resulted in a feal pop that "CLY" catch. Wally Alston, who will manage the Royals this season, was managing the Saints then and he was severely criticized for not instructing the batsman to swing against that kind of a set-up.

This is the story of the Bashful Goalie. It's a true human-interest yarn, as told by Harold Ballard, president of the Toronto Marlboros.

As the Marlboros were warming up in Maple Leaf Garden for the first playoff game against Windsor Spitfires in the OHA Junior "A" series a few days ago, Goalie Don Lockhart was injured. He was hit by a stray puck, suffering enough damage that it quickly was obvious he couldn't play.

Ballard knew that Johnny Henderson, 17-year-old goalie for a midget team, was in the audience, and decided on him as a sub.

The word was passed over the p. a. system: "Henderson reports to the Marlboro dressing room."

The prospect of advancing into junior "A" competition at such a crucial time — first playoff game, and before 10,000 fans — was a little more than Johnny could stand right then.

He grabbed his coat and headed for the nearest exit. Word of this retreat was relayed to Ballard who dispatched a trainer in chase.

Henderson finally was caught outside the building, brought back, still nervous and trembling, dressed and suited and helped out on the ice.

To make it a happy ending just like in fiction, Henderson lost his jitters and delivered a snappy game to beat Windsor 5 to 2.—Hockey News.

Rangers Victory String Tangles up N.H.L. Playoff Strategy; Leafs Earn Tie

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York Rangers just can't be stopped in the National Hockey League's closing drive.

Rangers made it third straight by defeating Detroit Red Wings 3-1 Thursday night, consolidating New York's hold on third place.

Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs deadlocked 1-1 at Montreal, and the two results portend a terrific struggle for vantage points in the play-offs.

When the league schedule ends March 26 the top four teams go into the Stanley Cup semi-finals, and the system calls for the first and third teams to battle in one bracket, while the second and fourth teams collided in the other. Right now no one could predict the cup lineup.

Detroit with 76 points, virtually certain of first place. Toronto is second with 67, New York third also with 67, Montreal fourth with 63. Montreal has nine games to play, others eight. Boston with 53 points and Chicago with 46 may be left out of cup consideration.

League fans are figuring that Rangers' terrific rush is chance of driving into second place, the most coveted spot since the second place team will likely draw Detroit in the semi-finals

Ahead All The Way

Rangers were ahead all the way at Madison Square Garden Thursday night and they out-shot the wings 31-20. The pressure may have been a factor in two penalties given Detroit's goalie. Harry Lumley in the wild third period. He drew minors for holding Alex Kaleta during a Ranger flurry, and for interference later.

Fred Shero scored for Rangers in the first frame and Ted Lindsay tied it up in the second. Ed Slowinski and Nick Mickoski scored the other Ranger goal in the third period, when a fight broke out between Lindsay and defencemen Gus Kyle of Rangers. Lindsay and Kyle were each given major penalties.

At Montreal Forum a crowd of 14,003 saw Canadiens come from behind to gain the tie with Leafs. Bill Ezinicki scored for Toronto in the second period. Canadiens drew level on Billy Reay's goal at the 17-minute mark of the third.

All the penalties, 11, came in the first two periods, with eight of them to Leafs. Leafs' Juzda and Canadiens' Richard, sent off for roughing, resumed their tussle in the penalty box and Richard threatened to take a hand but the linesmen quickly signalled when Juzda and Richard were ordered to the dressing rooms for the rest of the first period.

Flying Dutchmen Must Make up Minds--Panter

Toronto March 9 (CP)— The Ontario Hockey Association has left it squarely up to the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen whether they want to continue along the playoff trail.

George Panter, assistant secretary of the OHA, told the senior city club's officials they had their choice between playing hockey under conditions set down by the association or defaulting their final series against Toronto Marlboros.

The idea of defaulting the series originated with the Dutchmen, who complained of the refereeing after they lost the first two games of the series. They threatened to withdraw unless the officials were changed.

Thursday night Panter said the OHA would stand pat.

"Wherever possible we shift referees around," he added, "but we never permit clubs to tell us who to use...the surest way for a team to get a referee they don't want is to tell us that they refuse to have him..." He said the referees for tonight's game had been assigned "and they will not be changed."

The situation came to a head after Tuesday night's game when Marlboros beat the Dutchmen 5-2 to overturn to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven series for the senior title.

Coach Eddie Schrieder of the Dutchmen said the refereeing was the worst of the year. He was particularly bitter over a penalty to Roy Flick in the overtime period which, he said, resulted when Flick tried to pull his stick away from Frank Sullivan of the Dukes who was holding it when Flick tried for a breakaway. Toronto scored the winning goal during the play.

Scherer said: "If they want to start paying refunds on 10,000 or 12,000 admissions in Toronto all they have to do is trot out Red Farrell and Mahlenbacher."

He said the refereeing led indirectly to Dutchmen's failure to gain a tie. Eight penalties were called against Kitchener as against three for Toronto.

Thursday night's ultimatum was the second within a week forwarded by the Dutchmen. Earlier they said they wouldn't play a scheduled Monday night game because it came right on the heels of their round-robin series. The series ended Saturday night, and the Dutchmen finally agreed to play Toronto Monday after the OHA refused to alter the date.

Conacher Fined $200 For Attack On Sports Writer

Montreal, March 10 (CP)—The National Hockey League today slapped a $200 fine on Charlie Conacher, coach of Chicago Black Hawks, for his attack on Lew Walter, Detroit hockey writer, last Feb. 8.

"The sports writers and radio men have a job to do in covering the activities of the league and its clubs and they are entitled to decent, courteous treatment all hockey personnel while they are carrying out their duties," said league president Clarence Campbell.

Walter dropped court action against Conacher in Detroit Thursday. He said he had received a public apology from the big Chicago coach. Walter had claimed in his complaint that Conacher had knocked him down in the Chicago dressing room after Detroit Red Wings had beaten the tail-end Black Hawks in Detroit.

The charge of assault and battery laid against Conacher in the Detroit courts having been dropped, there no longer is any reason for deferring league disciplinary action," said Campbell.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

ACES EVEN SERIES

Quebec, March 10 — (CP) — Quebec Aces Thursday night whitewashed Valleyfield Braves 5-0 to tie their best-of-five Quebec Senior Hockey League quarter-final play-off series, at one victory apiece.

Flashy left winger Martial Pruneau led his team to victory when he turned in a three-goal effort. The other Quebec counters were by Armand Gaudreault and Herb Carnegie.

WINS TILSON TROPHY

CP

George Armstrong, centre for Toronto Marlboros, is the 1949-50 winner of the Red Tilson Memorial Award, given annually to the player in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league judged most valuable to his team and most gentlemanly. Armstrong, a rangy 20-year-old forward from Falconbridge, Ont., was chosen by sports writers in cities in the league. The award was established in memory of Tilson, a Regina product who played for Oshawa Generals before being killed in the Second World War. — (CP Photo.)

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By BRUCE FINDLAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, March 10 — (CP) — Every time the National Hockey League playoffs roll around again the old arguments against the present method of awarding the Vezina Trophy is raised.

The trophy, first presented in 1926 in memory of George Vezina, goalkeeper for the Montreal Canadiens, goes annually to the goalie who plays most games for the team with the least goals scored against it during the season.

"Why should a goalie have a counter charged against his record that is fired into his net when he is not even on the ice."

This happens in the last moment of a game when the coach pulls the goaltender off the ice and puts six forwards in a last-ditch effort to tie the score.

"N.H.L. goalies accept such a move in a close game as proper team strategy," says Doug. "But that doesn't say they like having a record marred without even a chance to do anything about it."

Particularly when each shot may make the difference between

...yes and no for the $2,000 prize.

Team Trophy

Doug points out that "under existing regulations governing the cup, it is not a reward for individual goaltending but, rather, a team trophy. In other words, a good defensive club can win the cup for a mediocre netminder.

"This contrary believes the best way to choose the Vezina winner would be to use the system now played in awarding other individual trophies such as the Hart, Calder and Lady Byng — have referees from each city, with a team in the League, vote for the man they think is best.

"If that is not acceptable then it could be left to the various team coaches to name their choice, just as they do in picking the league's all-star team each year."

Scotch Curling?

Scotland may lay claim to be the birthplace of curling but, as Chick (Stratford Beacon-Herald) Appel has noticed, the names of those who practice don't always ring with a burr.

A check-up of curlers named Schultz, Schmidt, Schantz and Asmussen representated Ontario in Vancouver this year.

Northern Ontario Rink Wins Title At Vancouver

Vancouver, March 10 — (CP)— Four Kirkland Lake hard-rock miners emerged today with the Canadian curling championship, a pot of gold that has eluded northern Ontario throughout the 43-year history of the classic. But the runner-up spot still was in the air, a toss-up between Ontario and Manitoba.

The scramble for No. 2 position in the 10-rink four-day competition, at one time involving four clubs, was cut to two early this morning when the Kitchener, Ont., rink defeated Alberta's entry 7-5. The Winnipeg Elmwood ring of Bill McTavish, which vaulted a bye into the playoffs, takes on the easterners to decide the issue at 12 noon EST.

There was no denying Tom Ramsay's driving march to the title. The quartet needed only eight rounds of the nine-round competition to pile up the championship-winning score, manufactured by seven straight victories following an initial-round 12-12 defeat to Cliff Manahan's Edmonton rink.

The ninth round, played Thursday night, was anti-climactic as the northerners battled point-hungry Manitoba to the wire before locking it in with a five-point last-half drive that turned into tricks for the Winnipeggers.

The victory gave the McTavish rink a 6-3 won-lost record, equalled by Ontario which walloped New Brunswick 24-4 and Alberta which battled to an 11-10 verdict over Nova Scotia. It was in Quebec's grasp to keep pace with the second-placers but Bernie Sparrow's strong rink fluffed it with an indifferent display, conceding the game to Saskatchewan in the 11th end with the score 16-2. Ontario plays Playoff.

After the cheering, trophy-giving and picture-taking was over before a crowd of more than 2,500, Ontario and Alberta got down to the business of deciding which rink would take on Manitoba. In view of the hour— it was well past midnight—it was agreed to play only eight ends each conceding alternative singles for the first hour.

Alberta	101	000	120	000	—5
Ontario	010	100	001	121	—7

Whatever the result of today's game, the Huzzahs belong to Skip Ramsay, vice-skip Len Williamson, second bill Weston and lead Bill Kenny. They sliced western Canada's string of titles at seven straight and the victory probably will be the same a big fillip in Ontario's north.

In addition, it was a personal triumph for skip Ramsay, an old-timer in the competition. He was vice-skip on the 1933 northern Ontario rink and skipped the northerners in 1946 when they lost a first-place playoff to Billy Rea of Sedgewick, Alta.

Result of the championship crossed the experts who called Manitoba and Alberta to fight it out for top position with northern Ontario getting the nod to end third or fourth place. The Ontario rink skipped by Carl Asmussen was an early dark horse with four straight victories but fell back under the pressure.

Committed for Trial On Charges of Arson

Leyburn, Yorkshire, England—(CP)—Thomas Jackson, 28-year-old painter who "longed to be a fireman" was committed for trial by Leyburn magistrate's court on charges of arson.

The prosecution charged Jackson had set fire to a racing stable and a neighbor's house. In one case he had given the alarm and in both he had helped firemen fight the flames.

A statement read to the court said Jackson had "longed to be a fireman." He had applied to the brigade but had been turned down on an eye test and this had been "a great disappointment."

Mercurys Ready To Win Back World Title

(By The Canadian Press)

Edmonton Mercurys flew into London from Stockholm Thursday, fit and raring to go in the World Hockey Tournament which starts Monday.

Coach Jimmy Graham said he figures his squad's chances are "good" to win back the world crown for Canada.

The team came through their Swedish tour undefeated while they won six and lost one game, without injury, and have been boosted by the spirit from Canada of Don Stanley, veteran centre.

The Mercury's lone setback in Sweden was a 5-3 defeat by the Swedish National team in Stockholm last Saturday.

With one more exhibition game before the world tournament starts, the Mercurys have a record of 3 wins, three losses and four ties.

Canada's Empire Games competitors won three races, gained two second places and took one third in seven events contested at Sydney, Australia, Thursday night at an invitation meet.

Jean Stroud of Vancouver broke an 18-year-old New South Wales record by 2/5 seconds when she won the 110 yard breast stroke in one minute and 20 seconds.

Lucien Beaumont of Quebec City won the 110-yard men's free-style event in one minute and one second. The third Canadian victory came in the 220 yard women's race which Kay McNamee of Victoria captured in two minutes and 48 2/5 seconds.

At Jacksonville, Fla., John Henry Oke, 69, former Canadian golf champion, died at his home Wednesday night after an illness of several weeks. Oke, a native of Northam Devonshire, England, won the Canadian Open in

Dog and Owner Reunited After Long Separation

Timmins, March 10—(CP)— Dolly, a pedigreed Doberman Pinscher, was reunited with her owners Wednesday night after a difficult trip from Czechoslovakia.

The dog first reached Timmins last December but had to be sent to Levis, Que., to be placed in quarantine.

Her owners, Carl Moravec, former Czechoslovakian army captain and now a northern Ontario gold-miner, saved more than $400 to pay for her inoculations, a new British pedigree, transportation and quarantine expenses.

Moravec and his wife were at the station last night when the train brought the dog, which had been separated from them for several years. Dolly reached here in good shape, although slightly ill from the quarantine and the effects of the long train trip from Levis.

The 1950 Dominion Junior basketball final will be played in Vancouver in April, it was learned Thursday. Playoffs now are under way in the western division with the prairie champions selected to meet the British Columbia titlists at Vancouver.

Pillovesan Hoards Fortune in Silver

St. Helier, Jersey, Channel Islands, —(CP)— Plumber George Nicholas, using pipes beneath the floor of a house, came on a hoard of silver coins worth more than £2,000 ($18,000) and weighing nearly a ton.

The coins were stowed in pill-lowcases and leather bags in the chimney of Walter W. Binet, a tied fish dealer who died last July. The money will be divided among the heirs.

Plan Dutch Exhibit At 1950 Trade Fair

Amsterdam, — (CP) —Practically the whole of Netherlands industry will be represented in the Dutch exhibit at Toronto's International Trade Fair, May 29 to June 9, the ministry of economics announced.

Improvement of export possibilities to the dollar area as a result of Netherlands currency devaluation last September has prompted country-wide interest in the Canadian market.

One of them picked up a pair of slippers, wrapped in cellophane, but compiled when the widow cried out "put them down, it's a present". When detectives arrived she handed them the parcel with the fingerprints on it. The two men were arrested soon afterwards.

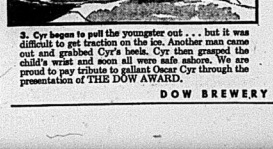
VET CRAWLS ON CRACKING ICE, SAVES GIRL FROM DROWNING



House-painter Oscar Cyr, of Eastview, Ont., Uses courage and haversack to rescue child

1. Riding home in a box near Ottawa, Canadian Army veteran Oscar Cyr was startled to see a child floundering in a large hole in the ice of the nearby Rideau River. Ordering the bus to stop, Cyr raced to the shore and began running out on the ice towards the almost frozen little girl.

2. The ice started to crack under him and Cyr was forced to drop prone and crawl the rest of the way. Under his arm was his army haversack — now used for carrying paint brushes. The 9-year-old girl remained calm as Cyr flipped the haversack straps to her. Her little hands, numb with cold, finally managed to grip the straps!

3. Cyr began to pull the youngster out . . . but it was difficult to get traction on the ice. Another man came out and grabbed Cyr's heels. Cyr then grasped the child's wrist and soon all were safe ashore. We are proud to pay tribute to gallant Oscar Cyr through the presentation of THE DOW AWARD.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Ribbizer

Competitive bidding spices the game of bridge. It often forces partners beyond their capacity. Or finds a player in the doubtful position of not knowing whether to double or keep bidding.

There came this deal:

NORTH
♠K 9 5 3
♥A Q 4
♣J 3

WEST
♠10 7 6 4 2
♥8 7 5 3 2
♣A 2

EAST
♠A 3 2
♥None
♦J 10 6 4 2
♣K 10 9 6 4

SOUTH
♠J
♥K J 10 9 6
♦K 8 5
♣Q 8 7 5

The bidding went like this:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 D	2 C
2 H	2 S	3 H	3 S
4 H	Dbl.	All Pass

North has a count of six tricks; five high cards and a short card in clubs. South has a count of five tricks; three highs and two short spades. Therefore, no slam was indicated.

West did not have a true biddable spade suit. But he felt it was a good spot to offer some interference. If he was doubled at two spades, he could run to three clubs, if necessary.

When east made a free assist of spades, west was encouraged to go four in that suit. But when south reached four hearts, a different slant on the situation presented itself.

West was not too sure that four spades would make. On the other hand, with five of the opponent trumps he could make it tough for south. It looked as if he could defeat four hearts.

Right here is where some south players would have redoubled. But a wise player considers all the angles. A redouble may drive opponents into four spades. Their loss might not mean as much.

It happens that the four heart bid can be defeated but west and east first took two club tricks and east returned club ten. This enabled declarer to take the last 13 tricks.

Hollywood, March 10—(AP) — Having treated the problems of unwed mothers and polio on the screen, Ida Lupino is now tackling the subject of rape.

The actress discussed the question in a rare moment of leisure during the filming of "Outrage", which she is directing. She relaxed at lunch with Collier Young, with whom she is still on friendly terms as co-producer but not as husband. They are separated maritally.

"Our picture," said Miss Lupino, "deals with the psychological effects of rape upon an average American girl, we are treating the subject not in a shoddy or sensational way, but with a clinical approach."

She related that the heroine is the daughter of a college professor and the fiancee of a normal young man. She is attacked by a rapist who has been eying her for some time.

Censor Trouble

"That was our only trouble with the censor," the actress-director said. "Originally we pictured the rapist as mentally deranged. We had to change it so the act was premeditated."

The rest of the picture will show the effect of the rape on the girl. She shuns her boy friend and flees to a small community. There she comes under the influence of a minister, who tries to treat her mental instability.

All goes well until a boy tries to kiss her at a country dance. She clouts him senseless with a farm implement. A trial determines whether or not she should be punished.

"Perfect Strangers" (W. B.) tells the story of two people who fall in love serving on a murder trial jury. Both are married to other people. The premise is good and it's carried out with judgement and an eye for creating apt characters. Ginger Rogers and Dennis Morgan show admirable restraint in the leads, and Thelma Ritter supplies some fine comedy.

What sets "Battleground" apart from so-called war pictures is the fact that it tells the human story of a group of typical American fellows. It's got heart-appeal, and homeappeal, and laugh-appeal, all the things that make for a great movie.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book

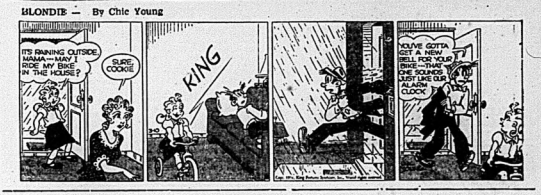
I was downtown with ma on account of needing new shoes again, and we were on our way to the bus to go home, and we started to go passed the Narcissus Theater, and she says, Bitter Ashes, with a name Amarillo, and ma said, Bitter Ashes, may be we'll have time to stop in and see it.

Aw heck, ma, I'd rather go rite home than see that darn thing, I said, and ma said, Now how can you tell it a darn thing when you dont know the ferst detail about it?

Sure I do, ma, a picture cant be any good unless it's funny, and how can a picture called Bitter Ashes be funny? I said, and ma said, I never heard anything so silly. There's something amusing in every picture. That's one of the ferst rules of the box office. You cant judge pictures by their names any more than you can judge people, and you cant tell if people are funny just by their names, can you for land sakes? she said.

Sure you can, ma, I said. There's a fellow at school and his name is Benny Jones, and there's another fellow named Pinface Allen, and they're both funny names and they's both funny guys. But if I knew a guy named Bitter Ashes I wouldn't expect him to be funny and probably he wouldn't be, either, I said, and ma said, Anyway, we won't argue the point till I find out what Linwood Roof says about the picture in the Daily spectacker.

And she bawt a paper from these news stand and looked to see, saying, Well, here Linwood Roof declares Bitter Ashes is the most rediculis picutre he ever sat half through.



Well then G, ma, let's go in and see it, I said. Rediculus meens funny. For instance what's more redicu lus than the Blotz Brothers? I said, and ma said, You are.

And she wouldn't go in no matter how much I argued, being quite a lot.

We have watched this game going on for years and years, and we never seem to get closer to the big move needed to meet the problem."

Consider Almighty Dollar

Mr. Robinson said that the Imperial Oil pipeline from Edmonton to Superior, Wis., was "a shining example of the tendency to consider the almighty dollar ahead of Canada's welfare." The eastern terminus of the pipeline could have been at the Canadian lakehead.

To make it an all-Canadian line would cost about 10½ cents a 45-gallon barrel, based on an estimated capacity of 35,000 barrels a day. Actual capacity however, was closer to 70,000 barrels and the cost would be about 5¼ cents a barrel. Additional pumps would be needed on a Canadian route.

He called on the government to float a bond issue to finance completion of 175 miles of No. 17 highway around the north shore of Lake Superior. Such a road would be one of Canada's greatest tourist attractions, he said.

Mr. Robinson described the unfinished 175 miles of road as "the missing link."

United States citizens were "much more aware" than Canadians of the value of the road, he said.

"When and if" the road is completed, it would be "in a class by itself as a scenic route," he said.

Building of the road should be undertaken jointly by both the federal and provincial governments.

Lot of Red Tape

Mr. Gordon described the plight of more than 1,000 persons living on the site of a former flying school near Brantford who pay taxes to the city and yet may not take part in municipal elections.

He said "a lot of red tape" was depriving these "municipal D.P.s" of their right to vote. He urged the Ontario government to intervene.

Also he asked for better salaries for guards at provincial reformatories. A large turnover in personnel of the Ontario Industrial Farm near Brantford could be traced to the fact "no married man with a family can hope to live on what the government is paying." Salary was $12 a month plus a $15 cost-of-living bonus.

Mr. Gordon told the house the recent increase in hydro rates would not have been needed and hydro plants would not be municipally owned across the province if the present government had carried out proposals for hydro development when it assumed office in 1943.

Spoke Briefly

Mr. Hall spoke briefly, describing CCF opposition leader E. B. Jolliffe as the opposition's "first fiddler" who had "failed to strike a single note" in his contribution to the Throne Speech debate. He went on to describe other party leaders as "second fiddler" and "third fiddler" but finally became confused and addressed the Speaker as "Mr. Fiddler."

Mr. Salsberg asked the government to decare itself in favor of removing the means test for old age pensioners. He said the unemployment crisis was not an act of God and the government should do something in a hurry.

He said abolition of the means test would contribute to the solution of Labor disputes in Windsor, Oshawa, Brantford, St Catharines where unions are negotiating for pensions.

A DANGEROUS ROAD

London — (CP) — Camberwell's road safety committee sent out 5,000 leaflets about accidents on the Old Kent Road. The road has the biggest accident record in the area. The leaflets were headed: "Knocked 'Em In The Old Kent Road."

SANDER

Louis E. Wyman, 71-year-old defence counsel, said that he felt "the evidence in the case justified the verdict."

All Delighted With Verdict

Reginald Borrolo, husband of Abbie Borrolo—the woman Dr. Sander was charged with killing by air injection—said the acquittal was "the most heart warming news I have ever received. I don't know if I can express any happier thoughts than that."

A Harvard pathalogist, who testified Mrs. Borrolo did not die of air injections, said he was "delighted" with the verdict.

Dr. Richard P. Ford, 35-year-old head of the Harvard Medical School Department of Legal Medicine and the defence's key witness, said:

"I am delighted an American jury will not convict a man on word or mouth, unsupported by thorough investigation, when it's a charge of murder."

Miss Elizabeth Rose, the nurse who saw Dr. Sander make the air injections said she was "glad it's all over with."

Her testimony was the cornerstone of the state's case. The pretty 24-year-old young woman testified that she heard Mr. Borrolo utter a "loud gasp" as Dr. Sander injected a hypodermic needle into his arm.

The final courtroom scene moved swiftly. The word went around at 4 p.m. the jury was ready to report. They were only given the case at 2.51 p.m.

The crisp-spoken "not guilty" from the jury foreman set up a wave of "ahs" from women spectators, but occasioned not the slightest change in Dr. Sander's expression.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Modern Conception Bad

Mr. Mutch declared himself in favor of Social Security measures which were borne by the public generally and were in the public interest and for the public good. He had a "holy horror" of the modern conception of the welfare state.

Any approach to the question of Social Security from the standpoint that the "state owes us something" was not only "fallacious but exceedingly dangerous." It was a doctrine that could pave the way for communistic control of Canada.

"Today, the communists among us are quiet and restrained. They can well afford to be, because many of those who sincerely hate communism and decry the communist himself are doing his work for him.

Mr. Mutch said nothing in his record would show that he was opposed to any or the existing Social Security legislation or an expansion of state assistance that would properly be a charge against the nation as a whole for the benefit of the nation as such.

"I have a holy horror of the of the existing Social Security legislation was a "confession of failure."

He added:

"I h ave a holy horror of the modern conception of the welfare state. I have a congenital distrust of planners, and a passionate, persisting faith in the good judgment of that great mass of people who, about all things, desire to be protected from the dishonest and rapacious few and to be left-alone to work out their own salution."

Speeches Support Contention

Mr. Diefenbaker wanted the government to remove discriminations against western Canada before the recently-announced freight rate increases are allowed to be put into force, to open the way for full utilization of the Hudson Bay railway to the port of Churchill and to proceed with irrigation works in southern Saskatchewan.

Then he quoted speeches given by Mr. Gardiner to support his contention that the agriculture minister said at one time that Canada had no surpluses of farm products for export and at another time that they did.

E. D. Fulton (PC—Kamloops) renewed a Progressive Conservative demand for a Commonwealth conference to promote prosperous trade within the Commonwealth and quoted statistics showing a steady decline in Canada's share of the sterling markets.

B. Poulin (ind—Beauce) urged the undertaking of public-work projects as a means of relieving unemployment and said steps should be taken to make pulp and paper companies pay fair wages to lumbermen.

W. E. Browne—(PC—St. John's West) felt that the government was trying to minimize the number of unemployed. It was a paradox that a country as wealthy as Canada had 400,000 persons receiving unemployment insurance. It would appear that Canada's wealth was not properly distributed.

J. W. Noseworthy (CCF—York South) asserted that the government had abandoned its field of post-war public works. They were needed to take up the lag in the activities of private enterprise.

GOODWILL GIFT

Birmingham, England — (CP) — Ald. Walter Lewis received a letter from Cora Chamberlain of Wheeling, Va., asking where she could get a tea-kettle and enclosing a dime. Lewis, chairman of the Midlands Electricity Board, sent one as a "dollar investment".

The Golden Shoestring

Faith Baldwin

When they had gone Terry was conscious of a letdown, her back ached and her feet. Also her face, probably from smiling. She emptied ash trays and straightened furniture, Kazue and the little girl, hired for the occasion, had left the kitchen in order. And tomorrow was Sunday.

"Tired?"

"A little. But it was fun. Do you think they liked it?"

"Of course." He put his arm around her. "Oh, you," he said, "you'll do. And you do look so pretty."

She wore the yellow dress and the pearls, and said, smiling "but Lilia's prettier."

"I suppose so, in a way. But I've come to prefer you. It's an acquired taste, like olives."

She released herself and went into the bedroom and he followed her. She said "it was sweet of Helen to cable. I wonder if they'd come out this summer? After all, we still have an extra bedroom."

"What do you mean still?"

"Nothing at the moment, I just thought, in another year, if you're not against the idea, it might be occupied permanently."

"Haven't you enough to do?"

"Has any woman? Look Chris." She opened the dresser drawer and took out the locket.

He looked at it open in her hand. "I'd forgotten it. Where in the world did it come from?" he asked.

"Aunt Cordelia had it, and gave it to us tonight. It was like writing finis to a long chapter for her. Does it look like him?"

"Very much. I remember the artist—father lent him money. I don't know where. He picked up the locket. Wait a minute—Yes, I do. In a pawnshop of sorts, in London. That was the year he made quite a little, writing, and we went everywhere practically. I remember Morocco best."

She said "Chris, it's incredible, but I don't know your father's given name. Your mother was Olivia. But your father . . was he Christopher too?"

He looked at her in astonishment, "Surely," he said, "you knew that his name was John?"

She shut the locket and closed it. "I didn't know. So Aunt Cordelia gave it to her son, as a middle name. You were called Christopher; and Jack wasn't, although he was older. I've wondered about that."

"I never thought much about it Terry, are you happy?"

"I've never been so happy."

"Does that make me a reformed character," he warned her. "There are times when I find myself getting that what-the-hell feeling. It doesn't last. But I dare say it will come when things go wrong, when I can't see my way clearly, when I get sore about something: when the whistle blows and I get up and it's raining or there's trouble brewing somewhere or someone steps on a pet corn. But this much I know. I'm going to stick if it kills us both. I've something to work for; someone to work for and with; and something ahead. You'll be fed up lots of times. The difference between the halfhearted job I once did and this is plain enough—I didn't want to like what I was doing then. Now I do." He went back in the living room and opened the desk drawer. "Come here, Mrs. Russell," he said.

She followed and he turned, with a little package in his hand. "I broke my promise. I have an anniversary present for you."

"Oh Chris," she said, distressed "that's not fair. I kept my promise."

The money for the emerald, banked jointly, for emergencies; it was disaster insurance. They were not to touch it, they had pledged, unless it was vitally necessary. The little house was rent free, they would live on his salary, banking as much as possible of the extra money, his monthly check and hers. For the first time in their lives they would save. And, she had thought, when the time comes there must be money for the future—not her future alone, nor Chris'—

He said "I didn't tap the bank roll, darling. I squeezed out a little here, a little there, and there's an old Chinese who works reasonably in gold . . ."

"Chris, are you crazy?"

"No, I ordered it after I got the job. It will serve several purposes. As a reminder, as a warning, as a bond . . ." He took her in his arms. "Never take it off, darling. It was once bad luck, but not anymore."

He kissed her and then opened the box and took from it a very delicate narrow bracelet, thin and fine. He put it around her wrist, fastened the intricate catch, and she looked at it between tears and laughter. It was a symbol and a promise, the little bracelet, fashioned in the likeness of a golden shoestring.

Better than the emerald, which she sometimes missed, heavy on her hand, better than the pearls which also could be insurance, coiled about her neck, better than the jewel box glittering with her mother's things and those Aunt Delia had given her. Better, even than Chris' rings on her left hand.

He said "stop staring at it, and come to bed. It's late and if we're really going on that picnic . . ."

"It's beautiful Chris," she said "I'll never have anything I'll love so much."

"There are times," he said, "when the foreworn extravagance is indicated. Do you think Jack's mentality disturbed? When he left he shook me on the back and said 'you're doing a good job —all the luck in the world.' I think he meant it. What came over him?"

"Mr. Langer perhaps, I heard him telling Jack how well you're doing."

"That's no reason, in Jack's book."

She switched out the last light in the room. "Come out on the canal a minute," she said, and when they stood ether together she looked up at the black immensity of the sky, hung with stars and at the darker shapes of the mountains. She said "Let the feud die. This is your home, I am your wife, and we have one lives before us."

Someone walked down the street singing, a clear young voice The flowers dreamed in fragrances, the night was warm and still. Terry's bracelet slid down on her wrist, she could feel its fragile weight. I shall still wear it, she thought when I am very old.

She turned to Chris and held fast to him, knowing that she must grow old, knowing a wild rebellion that some day she must die, or he before her, yet rejoicing that they were young and loved each other, that in their time they would know struggle and grief, anxiety and fulfillment, and always, the important thing, the sharing of these.

And in that moment she relinquished her last hold on that which was past and turned her eyes toward the veiled and challenging future.

(The End)

METERS GIVE LOW READINGS

Preston, March 10 — (CP) — Hundreds of Preston householders probably are getting cheap water and electricity through "hidden losses." Dick Holborn, Commissioner of the Preston Water and Light Commission, Wednesday urged a campaign to replace old electricity and water meters that give low readings. He said they should be changed every six years. Some have been in use here since 1936.

What is an Executor?

It's not necessarily an honour . . . it may mean years of exacting work! Before you accept this specialized responsibility, even from your best friend, examine some of your duties:

- to value assets, trace all beneficiaries
- to deal with and assess claims of creditors
- to settle succession duties and income taxes
- to keep proper trust accounts acceptable to Courts
- to provide for the safekeeping and transfer of securities
- to shape an investment plan . . . manage real estate . . . or deal with a business forming part of the estate.

Are you prepared to do all this for your friend? Remember, it is the business of Victoria Trust to handle all these phases of estate management. Why not plan a visit with your friend to Victoria Trust today? No obligation is incurred. Advice is friendly and helpful

An Editorial
Regarding School Contract

Prior to the civic election last December, this newspaper suggested to the electorate that a period of economy was due in the spending of municipal funds. Past and future commitments were such that expenses and projects must be examined closely before deciding on approval or rejection. Unless these precautions were observed this city must resign itself to a tax rate that would be unduly burdensome on everyone concerned.

In response to the appeal voters gave an overwhelming approval to the suggestion and the by-laws which called for extra funds were defeated. Since that time we have seen no reason for changing our viewpoint.

This week the Board of Education accepted a tender for the construction of a school in the city at a price of $242,915. This tender was $23,641 higher than the lowest tender. No explanation was given beyond the statement by the chairman that the Board had acted in the best interests of the taxpayer in accepting the second lowest tender.

There is a principle involved when tenders are sought and received, and that is the lowest tender should be accepted, otherwise why call for them. If the contractor submitting the tender is financially responsible there would seem to be little justification for not accepting his offer. Less so when his tender is many thousands of dollars lower than the others.

The Board may have been influenced by a spirit of loyalty to home industry in awarding the contract to a local firm. There is unemployment here as everywhere else, and all of us would like to see this relieved if at all possible. However, laudable as this might be, we feel that the difference in prices is too great. In the present instance the difference amounts to almost ten per cent of the tender. Debenture cost on an extra $23,641 would be over $9,000 which plus the $23,641 would run to the sizeable sum of over $32,000. For this reason then we believe the Board erred in their decision.

Generally speaking we do not believe in interfering with the decisions of a governing body. The members have been elected for that purpose, and being in close touch with a problem, are in a better position to act than is any outsider. However, there are times when any individual or group of men can make decisions which can be wrong and there are all kinds of examples in the past if one takes the trouble to reflect on them. We have every confidence in our Board of Education for the members are all of good standing in our community. Their position is difficult one for they are up against problems that would tax the ability of any person no matter how experienced he might be in business experience. In a way theirs is a thankless job as are nearly all positions of public responsibility. We are all indebted to our public-spirited citizens who accept these tasks without thought of private gain and, often, at great inconvenience.

Nevertheless, we believe further construction should be given to this matter and if the Board feels they cannot do this then, we think, if the city council is to live up to its pre-election promises, it is justified in withholding their approval for the financing. Should this fail then it would be up to the provincial authorities for final decision.

POPE PIUS SAYS ARMS RACE MAKES ALL FEARFUL

Asks 'Prayer Crusade' For Remedy of Evils

Vatican City, March 11 (AP)—Pope Pius declared in a world-wide encyclical today the armaments race leaves "the souls of all fearful and suspended." He called for a "crusade of prayer" on Passion Sunday, March 26, to invoke of God "opportune remedies to prevent evils."

The Pope said:

"Although war has ceased at most everywhere, nevertheless the desired peace, a solid and stable peace that could happily resolve the many and always increasing motives of discord, has not arrived. Many nations place obstacles in each other's path and as trust faded there is a race to rearm, leaving the souls of all fearful and suspended."

The Pope said the sight of pilgrims flowing to Rome for Holy Year "has rewarded" Him us. Nevertheless, he added, "reasons of distress and anxiety are not lacking which sadden our paternal spirit."

The Pontiff said the "Root of all evil" was that "not infrequently hate and violence have unfortunately also been used as an instrument of dispute."

Without mentioning them by name, the Pope clearly lashed out against totalitarian regimes which, he said, were "not few," and where "no mark of God, not the church and of human nature itself are being offended and downtrodden."

"Sacred ministers, even though invested with the highest degree of dignity, are either removed from their own seats, exiled and jailed, or languish in prison, and this merely because they cannot exercise their ministry."

All these "innumerable evils," the Pope said, "arise from one source — the repudiation of God and disregard for His law."

It is, therefore, necessary, the Pope said, "to raise fervent prayers to God and to recall those principles from which alone can come light to minds, peace and concord to souls and the order of justice among the various social classes."

The Pope said he planned on Passion Sunday, March 26, to enter St. Peter's Basilica "to open his prayers "not only with those of the people present, but, as we hope — with those of the whole Catholic world."

The Pontiff urged those who because of illness or old age are unable to go to Rome on Holy Day to offer their sufferings "so that the prayer may be one breath and the wish of all shall be as one."

The Pope asked Roman Catholics, united with him in prayer, to ask God to hasten the day also for restoration of custom, there shall arise the new order based on truth, justice and charity."

Anglican Calls for Fast

Bexhill, Sussex, England, March 11. (AP) —A Church of England vicar has called on Christians to stop work and begin a solemn fast Friday, unless a National Committee is formed to negotiate on atomic weapons with the United States and Russia.

Rev. R. S. S. Waterson said in an interview the committee should include political, church and civic leaders and Nigerian scientists who helped develop the atomic energy. He compared the proposed protest to the passive resistance movement of the late Mohandas K. Gandhi.

Most Important Soviet Statement in Four Years To be Made by Stalin

Moscow, March 11 (AP)—Prime Minister Stalin takes the campaign platform tonight to make what most observers expect will be the most important Soviet Public announcement of the last four years.

Stalin's speech will climax a campaign for national elections to the Supreme Soviet (parliament) which takes place tomorrow. The Prime Minister himself is an unopposed candidate from the south of all fearful and suspended." The Prime Minister himself is an unopposed candidate from the south of Moscow's Hall of Columna Friday night, reiterated previous Russian statements that communism and capitalism can live together in peaceful economic competition".

But Mötolov blasted at "black-mailers from the Imperialist camp" for "efforts to poison the Soviet people with a hydrogen bomb which he said "does not exist".

Foreign diplomats studied with extreme interest the speeches of Molotov and other politburo members. They predicted the Soviet Union would make some overture toward a new effort to settle international problems which now split the world.

Stalin's speech will believes peace is possible, but that the Soviet Union must be on its guard.

"We firmly believe in the Lenin-Stalinist principle of the peaceful coexistence of two systems and their peaceful economic competition," Molotov said, "but we also know full well that for so long as imperialism exists there exists also the danger of a new war."

Molotov said "only fools can indulge in the insane calculation that they can terrorize the Soviet Union."

"No one can fail to understand that in present-day conditions, by rejecting peaceful competition and unleashing a new war, the imperialistic will inevitably evoke the just and resolute indignation of peoples which will sweep from the face of the earth for all time both imperialism and aggression," he added.

Juvenile Delinquency Cut 50 P.C. by Montreal Bureau

Montreal, March 11 (CP)—Energetic Police Capt. O. Pelletier today points to seven years hard work as the reason why juvenile delinquency has been reduced more than 5 percent in Montreal since 1943.

In that year the delinquency prevention bureau was set up with Capt. Pelletier in charge. A large scale program was immediately started to clean up juvenile crime at the root by providing children with ample recreational facilities.

The police officer now heads a squad of 75 men and women, members of the constabulary force, whose task is the welfare of the 250,000 youngsters of school age living in the city—and especially of the 30,000 youngsters in police juvenile clubs.

"These boys are doing good work," says Capt. Pelletier, whose Albert Langlois in an interview. "They may be proud to know that several European cities and several Canadian municipalities have written us asking how to organize such clubs."

The juvenile squad is responsible for investigating all taverns, bowling alleys, and other public meeting places, so as to make sure that no children under 18 years of age are found loafing there.

"Before our division worked on the juvenile problem," Capt. Pelletier said, "many children were left alone. Every police constable would find a youngster in a bowling alley or on the street and he would simply tell him to go away. The next minute the kid was back. They refused to be afraid of the police. They refused to suffer the responsibility," he said.

Only on the third time is the child sent to juvenile court unless he has committed an offence against the law.

GUBITCHEV WILL GO HOME INSTEAD OF TAKING TERM

New York, March 11 — (AP) — Valentin A. Gubitchev, convicted as a Soviet spy, will accept the United States government's offer to deport him from a 15-year prison term on the condition that he return to Russia, it was reported today.

The government had told the 33-year-old engineer that he could pick his own penalty for espionage and attempted espionage against the United States.

He could get out, and stay out, or he could get from a 10 to 20 years.

Both the New York Times and the New York Herald Tribune said they had learned of Gubitchev's decision to sail March 20.

The reported sailing date is four days ahead of the deadline set by Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan. Gubitchev was given two sentences of 15 years each to Gubitchev and his co-spy, 28-year-old Mikhail Svirsky.

The judge, on recommendation of the state department and the State Department, said the Russian's sentence would be suspended if he made full exit within two weeks — "never to return."

In Vienna, Mrs. Robert Vogeler expressed hope that the action would prompt Hungary to release her husband, an American citizen sentenced in Budapest last month to 15 years in prison on charges of spying for the U.S.

CANADA'S AGED DEBATE SUBJECT IN PARLIAMENT

Parties Agreed Better Pension Plan Needed

Ottawa, March 11. (CP)—All parties in the Commons agreed Friday there should be a better system of pensions for Canada's aged. Agreement ended there.

From various parts of the Chamber came conflicting views on what change, should be made, when they should be implemented and how they should be financed.

The debate, adjourned until next week, was on a motion by Frank Mutch (L-Bonavista-Twillingate) that establishment of a joint committee of the Senate and the Commons to study the whole pensions question.

Mr. Martin said the committee would study all phases of Old-Age Security, with the eventual aim of establishment of the "best possible Old Age and Retirement System for Canadians.

Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) said the government was establishing the committee to relieve itself of pressure from all parts of the country for improved pensions.

The Progressive Conservative Party, he said, wanted immediate implementation of a national contributory Old-Age Pension scheme.

Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) called for immediate repeal of the Means Test. He said the C.C.F. party, while in favor of a universal contributory Social Security program, was not in favor of a program requiring contributions for pensions alone.

Sponsors Amendment

He sponsored an amendment to Mr. Mutch's motion, with a view to making it clear that the committee would have the power to study the possibility of repealing the Means Test from the present pensions system.

Breach of Act Costs $150

Toronto, March 11 — (CP) — Mrs. Donna Grozdanove saved pennies for six years so she could have an operation. She accumulated $378 and Friday paid out $150 for a breach of the Foreign Exchange Control Act.

It all started when Mrs. Grozdanove and her husband took a trip to Niagara Falls, N. Y. Mrs. Grozdanove said she was afraid the money might be stolen so she took it with her. Back in the place where women usually hide their money.

At the United States - Canada border officials she tried to deceive the customs inspector but a later search uncovered the money. She pleaded guilty Friday to ignorance of the Exchange Act.

Crown Counsel Ald. Joseph Gould joined the defense in asking leniency. Magistrate J. C. Patrice reduced the fine to $150 — including the same as the amount involved.

Many in Britain Advocate Use Of Cat o' Nine Tails to Curb Crime

London, March 11 — (CP) — A recent outbreak of criminal violence in Britain has revived a question: Should the birch and the cat o' nine tails be brought back into service?

The Act of Parliament last year, British Magistrates' courts, magistrates lost the power to order whipping. But the toughness with criminal convictions want them restored.

At the Old Bailey recently, Lord Chief Justice Goddard said he regretted that he could not order whippings for two youths, aged 17 and 18, who attacked and robbed a woman in a train after striking her over the head with a heavy air gun.

Several police court magistrates have expressed similar views and newspapers have printed letters from readers urging reintroduction of corporal punishment.

Magistrate Frank Powell, 58, a kindly, mild-mannered man, said in an interview:

The father of three children, he added a kindly attitude towards most of the youngsters who stand before him in court.

"But," he said, "the young thugs who make cowardly attacks on defenseless people are going to be reasoned with.

"I have no weakness with contempt. In my experience, it is not often necessary for a magistrate to have to order corporal punishment. The fear of it is enough."

Many social workers declare boys of 17 and 18 are too old to be juvenile crime. But Scotland Yard officials say the time has come for drastic action. An end must be gone out to all London detectives to smash the boys' gangs and one suggestion is: "Find the girls."

"Girls who accompany these gangs are often the cause of the trouble," a Yard official said. "Many seemingly pointless assaults are the result of fights over the sole idea of impressing young

Fifty Injured In Violent Protest To Referendum

Leopoldists and Opponents Riot in Streets of Brussels

Brussels, March 11 — (AP) — Fifty demonstators were injured at Antwerp Friday night in a violent prelude to tomorrow's advisory referendum on the future of exiled King Leopold III.

Hand-to-hand fighting between Leopoldists and large numbers of his opponents broke out during a fireworks display staged by supporters of the move to bring the king back to the throne he left after surrendering to the Germans in 1940.

Three hundred policemen were needed to quell the riot.

Less than a year ago, records reported thus far in connection with the referendum, in which some 5,500,000 of the 8,000,000 Belgians are eligible to cast ballots.

Leopold has said he would abdicate in favor of his 19-year-old son, Prince Baudouin, if he received less than a majority of the votes. But if he does attain that majority, it will not insure his return.

The referendum is only advisory; to indicate the will of the voting population. Parliament still has the right to call on the 48-year-old Leopold to "resume his royal duties" or "exercise royal powers".

Surrendering Belgium's surrender to the Germans May 28, 1940, the King refused to follow the country's government in exile in London. Instead he remained to become a prisoner of the Germans and was deported by them to Germany in 1944.

Lives in Switzerland

The liberated country's parliament in 1945 voted he could not return, without the permission of both houses of the Belgian legislature by allied forces in 1945, the King has lived in Switzerland. He has been the centre of violent controversy at home, which the strongly Catholic Social Christian Party has campaigned for his return and Socialists, Communists and Liberals have bitterly fought the proposal.

The Rexist Party, headed by Leon Charles, has reigned as Regent in his absence.

Paul Henry of the Socialist campaign against the King, former Premier Paul Van Zeeland has declared that the referendum tomorrow will be "meaningless."

Besides his capitulation another issue in the campaign has been the King's marriage, while a prisoner of the Germans, to a commoner, Lilian Baels, who died in an automobile accident in 1935.

Leopold's followers argue that he surrendered to the Germans only after all hope of victory was lost, thereby saving the lives of his people.

Mystery Object Seen in Telescope May be Meteorite

The photograph was taken just before dawn March 2, the astronomer said.

"An exceptional object flew through space and crossed the field of our Schmidt telescope," he said. "Since that day we have been wondering what it was. We don't know."

At Juarez, just across the Rio Grande from El Paso, Tex., Mexican border officers reported Friday they saw a top-like disc revelling high in the sky and heading for mountains on the edge of El Paso.

Louis Herrera, Juarez travel agency owner reported that about two hours later he watched a flying saucer over the city for about 15 minutes. At El Paso, John E. Baird said he got out of his car to watch a flying saucer as he passed through Deming, N. M., today. "At times," he said "it looked globular, like a big planet."

Erro gave Excelsior the photo which he took through a telescope.

Erro said his guess is that the streak was caused by a meteorite that landed somewhere in Texas.

Asked if it could have been a flying saucer, Erro pointed out that various countries are experimenting with automatic defence against sudden attack from the skies.

"I have no doubt that strange things are being shot into the air and somehow made to fly," he said.

Ontario's 1950 Budget May be Presented Friday

Toronto, March 11. (CP)—Ontario's 1950 budget is likely to be presented to the legislature next week, probably Friday, government sources indicated Friday.

There are still 18 members who have indicated they want to speak in the Throne-Speech debate but this list may be cut down if the government is pressed for time. The budget usually is brought down following the Throne-Speech debate.

Premier Frost said Friday in an interview that debate on Ontario's proposed new Labor code is not likely to go through second reading before the budget debate is completed and the estimates approved.

If the budget is brought down Friday there might be a couple of hours' debate next week, the premier said. Two weeks' debate on the budget and estimates will follow. Also to be received is the report of the committee on conservation appointed at the last session. Allowing several more days debate on the Labor Bill, and perhaps several night sittings, the session could not be prorogued much before Easter, April 9.

Lone Rat Probably First of Species To Arrive Upsets Province of Alberta

Edmonton, March 11 (CP)— A lone and probably unescorted rat has thrown the province of Alberta into a tizzy.

The rodent, spotted and summarily dispatched in Edmonton, is the first known member of its species to cross the provincial boundary from Saskatchewan in years.

The little invader may be the forerunner of a devastating horde which could cause damage estimated at up to $15,000,000 and destroy the province's reputation as the only place in North America where the pest does not appear in numbers.

John H. Brown, provincial health department advocates an all-out fight against an expected influx.

Invasion with shooting, trapping, poisoning and gassing under supervision.

Mr. Brown, the Paul Revere of the crisis, is stumping the province to arouse the citizenry.

"It has been definitely proved he says "that rats can never be eradicated once they become established. Immediate action should be taken into an agreement with the Dominion government and the province of Saskatchewan to allow us to start eradication work in Saskatchewan."

He expects the invasion to come from the east, with the Rockies protecting the western frontier. Most insurgents to-date have arrived by "accidental importation" in box cars.

Family Court is Organized To Deal With Domestic And Juvenile Problems

In process of organization for the past two years the Family Court for the county of Hastings and the City of Belleville is now assuming its responsibility of attempting to domestic and juvenile problems within its jurisdiction.

The Family Court Judge is County Judge J. C. Anderson, with Magistrate T. W. Wills, as deputy judge. Probation Officer is D. I. MacKinnon, who recently came to Belleville from Ottawa. The office of the probation officer is upstairs in the county court building.

The Family Court is divided into two parts, domestic and juvenile. Generally speaking the juvenile court deals with offences by juveniles against the Criminal Code of Canada, the Revised Statutes of Ontario and Canada, local by-laws or with adult offenders against juveniles. The domestic court has to do with the same offences where husband and wife are involved, including the harmony or causing hardship in the home or homes affected.

Holding of Sittings

Sittings of both these courts are held when necessary, the domestic court at the present time by Magistrate Wills, following Thursday and Tuesday inquisitorate court sittings, while the juvenile court is conducted by Judge Anderson, usually on Friday or Saturday.

The public is not permitted to attend any of the sittings which are held usually in the Judge and the principals present. In many instances the probation officer does not attend, the courts can be held in the community in which the offences are laid.

In a large percentage of the domestic trouble which comes to the attention of the Court, every possible avenue will be explored by the probation officer in order to effect a reconciliation, safeguard the wife and children and so preclude the possibility of those involved becoming public charges.

Charges Laid with Probation Officer

Charges for offences coming under the Domestic or Juvenile Court should be laid with the probation officer, D. I. MacKinnon, at the police station here in Belleville. Any persons needing the assistance of the Family Court may call on Mr. MacKinnon at the court house or telephone 4082 for information.

At the present time the Family Court is sitting on the first Tuesday and in Hastings county outside Trenton, which town has not come within the jurisdiction of the Court.

The space in the buildings and on the city grounds is demanded as the merchants feel that the medium of advertising at the Belleville fair has proved a great benefit to them.

As the Fair draws thousands of people to the city, it is hoped that as many as possible will stay in Belleville for the week of the Fair.

Tourist Booklet To be Distributed At Clevelandshow

Arrangements by the Tourist and Publicity committee of Belleville, the City of Belleville, County of Hastings and the Hotel Keepers Association of this district for the distribution of the 1950 booklet of the City of Belleville and Highlands of Hastings at the Cleveland Sportsmen's show, were completed at a meeting held at the City Hall on Friday afternoon.

The expenses of the booth at the show, the decorations and lighting will be borne equally by the three committees, while the expense of the booklet will be borne by the city and county in equal shares. A member of the Hotelkeepers Association will be present during the entire show, from the 24th to the 31st. This will represent the city from the 20th to 25th of April, and Reeve Jack Kincaid of Madoc will represent the county from that time till the end of the show.

It was decided that specimen of mounted fish caught in the waters of Hastings county would be on display, photographs of water scenes, game birds and a large map of the roads and lakes will be available. The tourist and publicity committee felt that showing at the Cleveland show would be the equivalent of showing at Toronto due to the many new potential customers, that could be reached. The Hotelkeepers will run a contest during the show, the winner to receive a two-weeks' vacation at any hotel of their choice in any location in the County free of charge.

Those present at the meeting were Reeves J. Kincaid of Madoc, T. C. Graham of Tweed, Eric Denyes Coe of Clerk, Ald. Claude D. Tice for the city, J. N. Yanover and Elmer Lalmer of the Hotelkeepers with Freeman Burrows as secretary of the committee.

Two Kingston Brothers Shot And Wounded

Kingston, March 11. (CP)— A wild drive-in-shoot-out of an alleged stolen car on the outskirts of Kingston last Friday resulted in the wounding of two Kingston brothers after they had been surrounded by a score of provincial police.

In hospital are Clauston Vandenbogaert and his brother, Dalton. Police said the pair tried to shoot it out after being trapped in a tile factory near the northern edge of the city.

The pursuit began when Richard Brewer reported his car stolen from a downtown street. The car later was reported first in the vicinity of Norton and then Elgin, 35 miles northeast.

Police setup road-blocks and Brewer subsequently said the car was returning to the city. It crashed through one road-block near the Kingston tile works and two men were seen to abandon the car to flee into the company yard.

Firing broke out when police surrounding the area met resistance. One of the brothers was reported in serious condition.

Bat Population Being Surveyed In Tweed Area

Working through the co-operation of the Dominion Wildlife Service and the Fish and Wildlife Service, a party of Unit-ed States experts are in the Tweed district. The survey is to ascertain the exact bat population of the little animals.

The party so far has banded about 150 bats near Wakefield, Que., and at Eganville in Renfrew County. They will endeavor to determine whether bats migrate hence one year to another, the conditions under which certain species hibernate and the food habits of bats of importance to humans.

Bats, it seems, are harmless animals living entirely on insects. They cannot bite, they are not blind, nor do they fly during the summer evenings, the big brown bat, the masked bat and the long-eared little brown bat.

A few bats have been banded in the Tweed district during the years and some of these have been recovered in Washington. The oldest band found in this area was placed on a bat nine years ago and, discovered at Fourth Chute Cave near Eganville, is still alive.

HASTINGS IN ERIN

By LAVONIA STOCKELBACH

When the Vikings, the name given to the Danes and Norsemen of old, invaded the countries within reach of their boats, and it was a long reach, they immediately formed settlements that became places of trade and importance. They buried and destroyed the abbeys and monastic settlements that they found, and they reached Wicklow (Wyglo) in 800, it was but repetition of the old story.

They changed the name that had been given to the monastery by a disciple of St. Patrick to a word, the first half of which means bay, and the second half, beacon, for the town itself is situated on a bay, flanked by a great cliff where beacons could be lit to guide their ships.

Others of these Northmen went to France and we have the name Normandy from this source. These Normans in their turn attacked England when the battle of Hastings in 1066 and over a hundred years later, as Anglo-Normans, came to Ireland. Here we still see the ruins. In England also there were many ruins but they were tidied up.

The story of the capacity of the Norman Lords, both temporal and spiritual, and the helplessness of the native Irish is the keynote of history in Ireland. Century after century only once were the Irish able to unite under one rule and that was under the powerful Brian Boru who succeeded in fighting and winning the battle against the Danes just a few miles outside the Dublin they had founded. He was one of his sons were killed but the military power of the Norse was finished, though not their set. Wexford, Wicklow, Cork, Limerick are but a few of the places occupied by these adventurers from the north.

What they began the Anglo-Saxons continued. Sitting in the bright sunshine on the high hill, sketching the ruins of the castle built by the Norman Fitzgerald eight centuries ago looking over the Irish Sea on the left and on the right the golf course the only things that could refreshen the soul were the little wild flowers that grew in the crevices of stones.

There was the mighty ruin of the Black Castle, the hawthorne, the sea and the rolling hills. Then came the scenes that both the Danes and the Norsemen must had viewed. Only the timeless works of nature remain, though the golf course in the distance looked desirable.

Here all was peace for a few hours and the welcome wind from the sea made one forget the uglinges of the soiled humans in the town, the old women with dirty black shawls trailing along the sidewalk, the unwashed children, the unending sight of rags and tatters and the deplorable shiftlessness of the women to whom mending and sewing or any kind was unknown; the wild lads with their shaggy forelocks, who needed only a word from some self-seeking politician to stir them to rebellion against what, or for what, they would never be able to understand, and the sight of the many policemen who are a constant astonishment to anyone brought up in Canada.

A tall gaunt Irishman had climbed up and came to talk to me to find out what I was doing on top of the wild cliffs. He pointed out the military road in the distance that passed some of the many "troubles." He knew all those dates. All of the wits of Ireland were laid at the door of the English and just what the brother of our Robert Bruce of school book spider fame would say to his attempt to conquer the wild Irish, or what the Welsh across the Sea Sea would think to be so ignored, history will never say.

Only the granite domes of Wicklow could answer such silly questions as I was left to them, as the man poured forth his longing to get to America. The utter hopelessness of his desire giving to his voice that melancholy tone that comes naturally to their ancient tongue. The politicians at Dublin remain angrily about the constant emigration. Had the prime minister, the Taoiseach, remained in Canada longer he might have found the reason why.

So asking him to repeat the Lord's Prayer in Irish, a very good way to get the sawing of a foreign language (except perhaps at Tel Aviv) it was a relief to get away from their sharp features, and the eyes, though beautiful, that seemed an unheeding of the beauty around.

The same Sunday evening was spent with a young gentleman Master B— who had no intention of leaving Eire. He was to be a farmer. At 15 his mind was settled. Son of a widowed English woman, they were doing what so many English are doing, buying property, mansion-houses or farms in Ireland.

We talked cattle, sheep and farm implements. He knew and wanted to try practically all Massey Harris machines. He knew what proportion of "Canada hard" wheat he wanted to mix with the Irish.

He thrilled to the description of the prairies and Niagara fruit districts, explained just why more apples were not grown in this district. He wanted the co-operative system of Denmark explained in detail and he became more and more excited about the way they cared for their cows. He expressed great contempt for the Irish breeds in the immediate section of Ireland when the usual answer talk left us both stuttering he politely asked my permission to turn on his radio for the London nine o'clock news. A handsome forward looking lad. It would be pleasant to meet his counterpart in Huronia County.

The next day a car and chauffeur were to take me into the hinterland of Wicklow to view the famous ruins and scenery, that is the result of the watchfulness of the many police.

A few minutes was spent at the Dominican Convent, a teaching order, to bring greetings from a Dominican nun across the ocean. It was a quiet and peaceful spot in this sordid place; the chapel, and exquisite gem of Gothic art in one of its rare cheerful aspects—the magnificent concert hall—ready to be used by the school of this size, anywhere in America. It was not easy to leave the refined beauty of the nun who taught art, the Irish piety of the others, but time not permitted. What becomes of the gratuates? Do they also emigrate?

On visiting the nearby church on the day before, a very hospitable young priest had been awakened from her sleep at the altar steps. With many gayly wrigies she accompanied me around the church but seemed disturbed at each fleeting visit to what is called the "stations of the Cross." She finally gave up and did not try to settle herself at each one and was quite ready for a romp in the churchyard and quite unwilling to be left behind.

Glendalough—The Seven Churches, which seem a magic number for the three-mile valley. It was a monastic settlement founded by St. Kenin about 500, and for nearly 600 years was a seat of learning. Its ruins are those of a hundreds carried their learning throughout Europe. Greek was taught and taught well at a time when it was not popular on the continent. It was a place very suitable for study and reflection this lovely valley must have been the one. The surrounding hills are not so high as to give a feeling of imprisonment; they offer a shelter. One feel content, and even here the ruins do not give the usual painful feeling of melancholy and dejection.

These stone walls had served their purpose before they had passed away for in this truly sacred spot (from a scholar's point of view) is the light of learning and a feeble gleam through what we call the Dark Ages, a link between pagan lore and Christian belief.

It is easier to sketch than to describe these various remnants of abbeys and churches, really schools. Their majesty is departed. The learning that they saved remains, not in Ireland, throughout the world. No one listens to the bird chorus of May, the rooks, the starlings, the finches, cuckoos, larks, blue-tits, the wonderful song birds were distracted by the movement and music around them. One also wonders how the eagle can soar through the dreariness of rain and mist.

Tradition states that this St. Kevin the founder, when praying with outstretched arms and open hands, was noticed by a black bird who laid her eggs in one of the hands. So great was his love for birds that he did not have the heart to move and remained with hand outstretched until the eggs, or eggs had hatched. Not a very sensible bird, but one can well tell, that a few weeks ago it was reported over the radio that a bird had built her nest on the back of a sheep. That at least was cosily warm.

The graveyard is still used and one sees many of the familiar Irish names encountered here and at one end is another one of the round lookout towers, 103 feet high and 15 feet in diameter at the base and capped with a cone; all of stone, with the usual four window slits near the top, each facing a point of the compass and with an entrance ten feet from the ground so that the monks could gain access as was always the fear of an enemy, never a sense of freedom, but in the midst of war and tumult the numbers of students increased.

Unfortunately few details of these scholastic life have come down to us for six hundred years is a long period of time, but the Normans who conquered England finally conquered Glendalough.

Had Meal for Many, Fed European Child

Prince George, B.C. —(CP)— Preparing dinner for a child is something which many women do each day. But a lot of food and preparation was needed when six women of this community did just that recently.

They had a dinner for a convention and raised $45 from the proceeds. With the money they temporarily adopted a war-shocked child in Europe. Another money was put to use through the foster-parent plan of the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada.

To date some 2,500 children have been "adopted" by individuals and organizations in Canada under the Unitarian plan. For $45 a European child can be kept for two months in a home organized by the church's international committee. The home is a group providing good food, warmth, cleanliness, clothing and affection.

When children orphaned or abandoned through war have to stay in homes for more than three months, the additional costs met from the general fund of the Unitarian Service Committee in Canada.

ANGLICAN VICAR DIES

Bedford, England, March 11—(CP)— Rev. Robert Anderson Jardine, vicar who defied Church of England Bishops to officiate at the marriage of the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Simpson in 1937, died yesterday. He was 72.

He came to Britain last year from the United States, where he had lived for the last 12 years. Mr. Jardine travelled to France to marry the King, who had abdicated, to the woman for whom he gave up the throne.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILKIE

UNUSUAL MIGRATIONS

All migration seem wonderful to us, considering that birds are gone from home for several months yet manage to find their way back to the identical beam, bush, or tree where the eggs were hatched the previous summer. But some migrations are quite odd, while others are positively mysterious.

A few species of water birds surprise us in their ability to walk. Wood Ducks, which set differently from other ducks in their nesting in trees as much as a mile or more from water, frequently cover the distance between these two points on foot instead of flying. Ducks run almost better than they swim, and sometimes amuses us by seeming to run through the air. Actual migration by walking is, however, most unusual. And so we find it very strange that Ptarmigans of the far north, which often make long seasonal migration, are accustomed to do nearly all their travelling on foot.

How young Golden Plovers ever manage to join the older birds at their winter quarters has long been a subject of discussion for bird lovers. This species nest in the Arctic and migrates to the pampas of Argentina. The adults leave the north before the children are able to travel, fly south via Labrador, and down over the Atlantic Ocean from Nova Scotia to Guiana. Young plovers start from the breeding grounds weeks later, fly down over North America, across the Gulf of Mexico, through Central America, and obliquely through South America to join their parents. By this flyway the adult has made the trip north before the babies were born.

Since some details about the migration route of Arctic Terns have been gathered, we are more mystified than ever. These birds breed in the Arctic Circle. Pole Through banding it has been discovered that on leaving home they cross the North Atlantic. Afterwards they cross over the west coast of Africa. Here there is a fork: while some terns go down to the very tip of South Africa and then continue to their holiday resort in Antarctica others recross the Atlantic, fly down the eastern coast of South America, and on to Antarctica This course is absolutely unique.

Birds that nest only a few degrees from the North Pole and migrate to the most southerly point of the Terra' winter resort must travel at least 25,000 miles each year. No wonder we are intrigued.

Two young men, Rev. Laurie Price, right, a native of Campbellton, N.B., and Rev. Hope Smith of London Ont., have taken the pastorate of Grace Chapel.

They have had considerable experience on the evangelistic field, having travelled extensively in the United States and Canada as well as serving in a pastorate in Ontario.

During the early part of the war, Mr. Smith served in Canada's Merchant Marine, then studied at the Ontario Pentecostal Bible College, Toronto. Mr. Price is also a graduate of this college. He is president of the Young People's Conference of Eastern Ontario. Their ministry has been well received wherever they have gone, and a warm reception has been extended to them in Belleville.

WOMAN'S REALM

Mrs. Viola R. MacMillan who has been president of the Inspectors and Developers Association has been retained to the office in a group with which the public in general associates men. But the re-elected head of the association has the confidence of the men who know her and so have named her again for the important office.

Prospectors do a very valuable work for not only their own country but for the world. Canada has owed a very large share of her development and progress and of her ability to play no insignificant role in the nations in the past and in the present which for her seems even more difficult than the past, rich though this has been in discovery and development of gold and silver, the base metals and the chemicals which make it possible for a nation to become stable, powerful and influential in the fellowship of nations.

Mrs. MacMillan who as head of the association serves the country has proven herself a builder along national lines.

She is acquainted with the rugged life of her profession and in it has made a success, which is recognized by professional associates in the mining world.

Referring to her Ottawa Journal remarks that Mrs. MacMillan as a pleasant, persistent woman, who spoke of prospectors' troubles with personal knowledge of bacon, beans and bannock savored with keenness and hard travel, of picks and rocks and "shows" of grubstakes and cynicism and hard-to-convince ancient hunted polished desks . . .

"If thank's gold in them thar hills, podner, it's good gold nether found by man or woman."

UNGILDED ORGAN PIPES

From farmhouse eaves these winter days there hang intricately, irregular rows of icicles. Some are long and slimy; others short and fat. They cling like granulated tinsel from an unseen chain above. Occasionally one sees its grip and plunges protestingly into the crusty snow below, says Christian Science Monitor.

These icy tapers, short as their span may be, capture during the moments each morning of a new day all a few fleeting moments each morning of a new day all the glories of a golden sun. Under the spell of a winter sun those ungilded organ pipes become nature's crown jewels.

The length to which these stalactites grow depends much upon the amount of snow on the roof and how long they can curb his curiosity as to whether he can bring the little icicle to earth all in one piece. This takes skill of balance and the boy's ability to step away from the house lest at the precise moment. Once he has the icicle down he may serve many useful purposes. He can use it as a dagger for rent his friends into the snow. Or he might use it for a dueling sword against an unseen enemy. The short, stubby, frozen spire, for the boy, at least, is a flavorsome but nevertheless fascinating popsicle!

To the musically inclined the row of icicles that hang from the eaves of the shed makes an excellent outdoor xylophone. It takes a deft touch, of course, to bring forth the melodious notes from their icy prison. For just one controlled tap will bring an icicle crashing like a cymbal to the ground.

ANNUAL MIRACLE

Spring's miracle is about to reveal one of the wonders of nature when from far-off lands in the south will come the hosts of feathered creatures which left in the fall late summer or early autumn and now return to set up their spring and summer housekeeping in the north.

Man can weigh the stars and planets but he is not together sure of the reason that prompts these creatures to migrate at the time which fits in exactly with nature's purpose. He realizes that there is a sense of direction in the birds and knows that dogs and cats have shown that same gift that the fowls of the air possess—and he asks: what force or instinct can they find their way across unknown wastes and seas?

With what eagerness is the sight of the first swallow or robin anticipated? Mankind counts the sight of these harbingers and prophets of spring as one of the enjoyments of life for it means his old friends return with whom he feels a communion which is part of the life of nature.

THE PERFECT MAN

No man she married older grew	Not so the man she might have wed.
And changed a lot, as husbands do.	If he be living still, or dead,
A time went on she learned that he	Or rich or poor or thin or stout,
Had many faults she'd failed to see,	He's still a man to talk about.
She wished when they were in crowd	He kept the charm which once he had
She laughter, wasn't quite so loud	No faults has he to make her sad,
She left his clothing tossed about,	There are no wrinkles in his face,
And though his love she didn't doubt,	Time has not left on him a trace.
She'd ask him sadly now and then	He stays, when all is done and said,
Why can't you be like other men?"	The perfect man she might have wed.

CALL FOR THE WRECKING CREW

For years the stained-glass window which graced the altar of a downtown city church had been hidden from the sight of men. Its Biblical scenes were scarcely discernible. This was because a large building adjoined the property next to the church and shut out much light. At last the church acquired the property, tore down the building, and for the first time in years the sun shone through the stained-glass window. Then the worshippers realized as they had never realized before, the beauty of the window which for decades had been facing a brick wall.

There are periods in history when the light of common knowledge seems to be shut off from humanity for generations, and sometimes for centuries. Then there is a great awakening, the institutions and evil customs which have kept light from men's minds of men are demolished, and the light shines through.

Many of us dwell in darkness year after year because of some huge impediment which shuts out light from our minds and souls. Sometimes this impediment is hatred. Again it is ignorance. Many a life is so self-centered as overshadowed by fear and anxiety over matters wholly personal that the sunlight and goodness of unselfish living never gets a chance to shed its rays across the daily circumstances of life.

Many of us would do well to put into operation a firm policy of demolition.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ONE'S BEST FRIEND

People who can get along happily with themselves can get along with about everyone. A man is his own best friend. Life offers to us all an endless number of interests—so many that any one of us can only manage but a comparative few.

The idle, the unambitious, and the unearing, are the unhappy people in this world. Therese with only a small cabin to live in, which he built himself, at Wallden Pond, didn't make a business of loafing every day. He had made friends with himself, and so gathered about him scores of interests. Not a more or a sound occured without his notice. He encouraged by himself.

How quickly time goes by, when we are engaged in doing things that both interests and enriches us. It's when people have nothing to do, with no responsibility, that they grow restless and unhappy. We ought at all times, to endeavor to get on better terms with ourselves, at least to make ourselves be sought in the net of loneliness or temporary despair. Every day of our lives we should grow more companionable to ourselves.

Somerset Maugham bee commented upon the fact that Abraham Lincoln had few friends, and he attributes this to the fact that men seem to think they are too busy to bother with the cementing of friendship. Of course they have their many associates, but rarely genuine friends for friendship's sake—someone to be with, to talk to, and to inner-commune with. I think perhaps he is right. I have a godly list of acquaintances, but I am of the opinion that I could put my hand upon but a small handful who would go to the depths with me! Strange, isn't it?

This is one reason why we should early form intimate friendship with ourselves. We are bound to be alone a great deal during the time of life's span. Knowing ourselves better than anyone else, we should therefore be on the best of terms with ourselves. Emerson once said that the strongest man on earth was the man who stood most alone.

We can be so happy with our special interests, especially if they are concerned with the interests of others. That is one way by which we can become universal, though remaining individual.

Junk Yard Yields 50-Year Epic For London Film Library

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London — (CP) — There is a museum for almost everything in London — even for the ex-ception. At the National Film Library on Shaftesbury Avenue a half-century of film history has been faithfully preserved.

It includes reels of Charlie Trail Robbery "first shown in London in 1904; an early Tom Mix western, "The Stage-Coach Driver and the Girl," produced in 1912; some of Charlie Chaplin's first comedies and D. W. Griffith's "Birth of a Nation" (1914).

These and other old-time epics are now being shown at a West End movie theatre and lots of people are paying to see them—jerks, flickers and all.

The film library was founded in 1935, between 50 and 75 new films have been added by a panel of experts every year and filled for posterity.

But finding the early films is a harder job. Usually it is a case of tracking them down among private collectors, but occasionally an old movie turns up in more romantic circumstances.

Take "The Great Train Robbery," produced in the United States in 1903. It was the start of the American movie industry, the first important story film and the first of the westerns.

But a year the National Film Library sought it in vain. Then, in 1936, a school teacher named Carson found it at the bottom of a bin in a Glasgow junk store.

A few months later a young man found some old films in a trunk left to him his uncle. One, he said, was a record of Queen Victoria's funeral in 1901. Since the film would have been filled as such, only one of the librarians noticed that several women in the procession were wearing white. It then proved to be a souvenir of Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee in 1897 — an important find.

"We have picked up other old films on secondhand stalls in the Caledonian market," an official of the National Film Library said. "And many have been donated to us. Today we have about 5,000 films stored away in humidity controlled vaults."

Looking after the films is no easy job. One of the rules is that no original copy must be destroyed, so every film must reduce its life. Copies are made and these are available to bona fide students and members of the library for a small fee.

Margarine Sale Increases Imports of Fats and Oils

Washington — (CP) — Canada's new margarine industry has opened a fresh market for American fats and oils.

Virtually all of the oils in the Dominion margarine are at present imported, mainly from the United States.

With the lifting of a 62-year ban, production of margarine in Canada soared from 2,000,000 pounds in 1949 and rose rapidly to an average of 5,000,000 pounds a month for the March-September period, the latest period for which statistics are available.

This was at a rate of $1,000,000 pounds a year, requiring about 65,000,000 pounds of refined fats and oils.

The U.S. Agriculture Department, in a report on the new industry, noted that of the 5,686,000 pounds of various oils used in the Canadian plants from August 60.5 per cent was cottonseed oil and 23.1 per cent was soybean oil. The remaining 16.4 per cent was coconut, peanut, marine, palm and olive oil.

Except for a small amount of marine oil used by one manufacturer in Newfoundland, all of the raw materials were imported.

The department said the bulk of these imports was crude vegetable oils. Some of the margarine makers, particularly the smaller plants, buy some refined cottonseed oil and also hardened cottonseed or soybean oil. Some makers buy these supplies directly from U.S. producers and others from Canadian refineries.

Most of the techniques and formulas in Canadian plants have been taken from the United States. Thus, Canadian margarine is of the U.S. rather than the European type, which contains a large proportion of animal fats, nut and palm oil.

"Some of these formulas are used," said the department, "The United States can be expected to play a significant role in Canadian production.

However, it is still too early to arrive at a real measure of the effect on United States exports," the department's report said. "It is added, will depend on the Canadian oilseed production program.

Soybeans are one of the few sources of edible oils for margarine manufacture that can be grown in Canada. In 1949 Ontario Growers there have been encouraged to expand their reliance on imported oils.

A record crop of 2,000,000 bushels was estimated for 1949, compared with 1,900,000 in 1948 and a pre-war average of 270,000.

FRESH AIR FOLLOWING ANESTHESIA

A virus, obtained from the patient, is grown in the laboratory. The notion that fresh air in the form of a draft (there is no other way of getting it) will cause the patient to develop "post-operative pneumonia" cannot be supported by scientific evidence. Nobody has ever proved that fresh air ever hurt anyone.

It is curious to say the least, that in high class hospitals the ancient custom of depriving a drugged, senseless patient from contact with living, revivifying and stimulating air is still perpetuated. Is the incidence of pneumonia, following surgery in the open, near the battle field, where the air blows freely and where there are no windows to close, higher than in the stuffy, stale rooms of the hospital. The answer is no. It is reasonably relative or friend of a patient undergoing surgery, is completely the same case over the operation conduct when he demands fresh air, and plenty of it at all times for the victim.

Cold Water Burns

Editors Note: The letter which follows appeared in the Letters to the Editor department of the Toronto Globe and Mail. It is written by a physician and gives some of the causes, effects and solutions in his manner of treating burns and scalds.

Sirs:—For many years I have contemplated writing this letter in the hope of getting something worth while through the mists of the general public. I realize that I have come to the period of life where I am living on what we call borrowed time and probably what has spurred me a bit to get down to business are the many people losing their lives from burns, so let's go.

Surely the public must have been the origin of the idea which is so prevalent in this country, that you must not bring anything cold to a burn. Nothing could be more ridiculous.

If one stops to consider what the protective agent is we must admit it is heat and there is only one antidote to heat and that is cold.

There are innumerable cases of where a child sits in a pail of scalding water or pulls a boiling pot of water on himself, and friends frantically try to get hold of a doctor and an ambulance is called and the child is taken to or so.

Long before the call to a doctor has gone through the baby's flesh or frightful searing action has been caused. A child had been put under the cold water tap: the burning pain would have been stayed and the child's life saved.

If anyone doubts these statements, the first time he or she sustains a burnt finger say, put it in cold water and the pain will stop instantly, but you must keep it cold for an hour or more or else when they won't even get a blister.

I have had a few outstanding experiences which I feel sure the friends would be glad to verify if your paper cares to enquire about where a child was apparently fatally scalded and they are now either grown up or well on the way to that and they are unscarred.

One of these was the nine-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Conroy of 19 Java Street. Their baby had a kettle full of boiling water pour practically all over herself. I am a grown-up young woman today and I think she has one slight scar on one foot. I am positive if we had attempted to get her to a hospital, she would not have lived 24 hours.

Another case was an 11-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Mallory of 293 Third Avenue, who was pulled a pot of boiling tea down ed and who today is a husky 15-year-old and unscarred.

One more outstanding and unique case was where a mother left a pail of hot water, nurse asked what she should do if one of the children pulled over. Her 12-year-old girl was standing around and fortunately said, "Put it in the cold water" and three days later her father told her to go down and get the scrubbing. She childlike, opened the furnace door and received the scorching blast of flame and having a freshly starched dress on, she became a mass of flame. She burnt all her hair off. With marvellous effect she dashed under a tap that was in the basement and screamed lustily. We kept that child practically submerged in cold water for two hours and today she is a beautiful mother of a family of her own and quite unscarred.

I will raise a great howl from readers but such if you burn it or scald it burn, use cold water, snow or anything cold and keep it cold until the pain stops and see the result.

Stories from the Bible

Ruth

Editor's note: This is the third in a series of studies from the Old Testament. The text is condensed from selections by Houston Harte for the new book "Is Our Image." Illustration by Guy Rowe is also from the book.

Now there was a famine in the land. And a certain man went to sojourn in Moab, he Elimelech, and his wife Naomi, and his two sons Mahlon and Chilion. And they came into Moab, and continued there. And Naomi's husband died. And her two sons took wives of the women of Moab; the was Orpah, and the other Ruth: and they dwelled there about ten years. And Mahlon and Chilion died also; and the woman was left of ther two sons and her husband.

Then she arose to return unto the land of Judah. And Naomi said to her daughters in law, Go, return each to her mother's house. The Lord grant that ye may find rest, each in the house of her husband. Then she kissed them; and they lifted up their voice, and wept. And Orpah kissed her mother in law; but Ruth clave unto her. And she said, Behold, thy sister in law is gone back: return thou after thy sister in law. And Ruth said, Intreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee: for whether thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge: thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God: Where thou diest will I die, and there will I be buried: the Lord do so unto me, and more also, if ought but death part thee and me.

So they two went and came to Bethlehem in the beginning of barley harvest.

And Naomi had a kinsman of her husband's, a mighty man of wealth, and his name was Boaz. And Ruth the Moabitess said unto Naomi, Let me now go and glean ears of corn after the reapers. And she said, Go my daughter. And she went: and her hap was to light on the field belonging unto Boaz.

And Boaz came, and said to his servant that was set over the reapers, Whose damsel is this? And the servant answered, It is the Moabitish damsel that came back with Naomi out of Moab: and she said Boaz unto Ruth, Hearest thou not, my daughter? Go not to glean in another field, nor abide here fast by my maidens. So she gleaned in the field until even, and beat out that she had gleaned: and it was about an ephah of barley.

And she went into the city: and her mother in law said, Where hast thou gleaned today? And she said, with Boaz. And Naomi said, Blessed be he of the Lord, who hath not left off to his kindness to the living and to the dead.

Then Naomi said unto her, My daughter, shall I not seek rest for thee? And is not Boaz of our kindred, with whose maidens thou wast? Behold, he winnoweth barley tonight in the threshing floor. Wash thyself therefore, and anoint thee, and put thy raiment upon thee, and get thee down to the floor: but make not thyself known unto the man, until he shall have done eating and drinking.

And he went down unto the floor, and did according to all that her mother in law bade her.

And at midnight, the man turned and, behold, a woman lay at his feet. And he said, Who art thou? And she answered, I am Ruth thine handmaid: spread therefore thy skirt over thine handmaid; for thou art a near kinsman. And he said, Blessed be thou of the Lord, my daughter: for thou hast shewed more kindness in the latter end than at the beginning, inasmuch as thou followest not young men whether poor or rich. And now, my daughter, fear not: I will do to thee all that thou requirest; for all the city of my people doth know that thou art a virtuous woman.

And Boaz took Ruth, and she was his wife: and the Lord gave her conception, and she bare a son. And the woman said unto Naomi, Blessed be the Lord, which hath left thee this day without a kinsman, that his name may be famous in Israel. And he shall be unto thee a restorer of thy life, and a nourisher of thine old age: for thy daughter in law, which loveth thee, which is better to thee than seven sons, hath born him. And Naomi took the child, and laid it in her bosom, and became nurse unto it. And they called him Obed: he is the father of Jesse, the father of David.

FIFTH MONTREAL CAFE LOSES CITY LICENCE

Montreal, March 10 — (CP) — The Cafe Du Palais on downtown Notre Dame Street today became the fifth Montreal cafe to lose its city licence after a police drive against establishments said to be improperly kept under city morality bylaws.

Deputy police director Thomas Leggett, who told civic authorities in a letter that the morality squad had arrested 13 women in the cafe since Jan. 1, 1949, recommended revocation. The cafe is next door to the city's new court house.

G.E. CANCELS CONTRACT

New York, March 11 (AP)— General Electric notified its 100,000 United States employees yesterday that it is terminating its contract with the Independent United Electrical Workers Union April 1.

The U.E.W. was recently expelled from the Congress of Industrial Organizations on the grounds it is communist-dominated.

FOR GIRL CAMPERS

The Camp-Fire Girls, formed in the United States to encourage women unto the man, until he shall have done eating and drinking, of people for subversive action on behalf of the Cominform inside Yugoslavia. The Yugoslav public prosecutor stated at the trial that there are six "bases" in Albania where these people are being trained.

2. That the immediate tasks of the agents when they reach Yugoslavia appear to be to contact opponents of the regime and organize them into underground groups. Action in the form of sabotage or terrorism would come later on a given signal from Albania.

One of the defendants at the Skoplje trial, Ahmed Pero, told the court that he had no idea what tactics were to be employed against the Yugoslav authorities. His job was first to organize things. Arms and directions would come later.

Try Bulgarian Agents

A similar trial of Bulgarian agents is to take place at Nish.

Vlado Dedijer, the Yugoslav director of information, recently disclosed the smuggling of Cominform agents into Yugoslavia as "trivial incidents" and declared that his government was not taking them seriously.

On the other hand, Soviet officials have expressed confidence in private conversation with westerners that the conflict with Marshal Tito will end in their favor. One of them, dismissing the idea of an attack by the Red Army on Yugoslavia as "ridiculous," recently declared: "We are in no hurry. There is plenty of time — one year, two years . . . they will toe the line in the end."

The possibility of an armed attack against Yugoslavia later this year as the only means of ridding the Communist world of the "Titoist clique" is discounted also in Yugoslav circles here, although it is not excluded.

The Yugoslav view, as expressed by a senior official recently, appears to be that much depends on the attitude of the western powers. If they make it clear that an attack on Yugoslavia could not be isolated and would probably lead to a third world war, Russia would desist, since it is not thought here that she is ready for such a conflict.

The possibility of a surprise attack by Russia is strongly discounted here. Military observers consider that the five or six Soviet divisions now in Hungary and Rumania are not sufficient to do the job. The Germans, they say, found between 16 and 20 divisions none too many just to keep communications open in Yugoslavia, let alone subdue Marshal Tito's Partisan forces in the mountains.

Few Land Army Vets To Farm in Canada

London—(CP)—A few of the British girls who worked on the land during and after the war are taking outdoor jobs in Canada now that the Women's Land Army is being broken up.

A group of six W.L.A. veterans will sail in May to work in the Niagara fruit-canning industry. They will hoe and pick fruit in the summer, work in factories during the winter.

Their trip has been arranged by Ellen Cumber, secretary of the Society for the Overseas Settlement of British Women. Miss Cumber has just made a four-month survey in Canada of employment opportunities for British girls.

She said it is unlikely that many of the disbanded W.L.A. girls would be able to find jobs in Canada.

"Canada is not country for women to be on the land in large numbers," she said. "There are very few openings to which girls could go. This is partly because work is seasonal and more suitable for men."

Miss Cumber, who visited all provinces except Newfoundland said "scope exists also for girls setting up on their own as jobbing gardeners on Vancouver Island."

Apart from outdoor employment, she found plenty of good openings but said British girls wishing to go to Canada were finding quote "a very great deterrent" since the pound was devalued.

Yugoslavs Fear Reds to Start Sabotage Drive

By RONALD PRESTON

Belgrade — (Reuters) — Yugoslavs believe that the coming spring and summer may see the start of the third phase in the Cominform's campaign against Marshal Tito.

This phase, they think, will consist of active sabotage and acts of terrorism by subversive groups and bands formed by agents now believed to be trying to infiltrate into the country.

Evidence of the existence of such agents has been obtained by the recent capture of a number of persons who are alleged to have been smuggled in from Albania and Bulgaria to organize sabotage and terrorism.

Two facts, the Yugoslavs declare, emerged from the recent Albanian spy trial at Skoplje, in which five Albanian citizens and five Yugoslavs were found guilty of working for the Albanian secret service. It was alleged:

1. That the Albanian ministry of the interior is recruiting num-

is singing

Two weeks ago her face was haggard from worry—but today she smiles again and her heart sings a thankful song. For today her little girl lives . . . snatched back from the valley of the shadow by the skilled hands and sympathetic care of a Red Cross Outpost Hospital nurse.

Living in the midst of civilized comforts and safeguards, you may never see one of these Outpost Hospitals that the Red Cross has built to serve those who dwell far from any other medical help. But if your heart is warm, you'll want to help maintain them with your contribution to your Canadian Red Cross. Give generously . . . not only to support the Outpost Hospitals, but Red Cross Veterans' Services, the Free Blood Transfusion Service, the merciful work of Disaster Services and many other Red Cross activities. MADOC

Madoc — A very delightful evening was spent at the home of Mrs. P. H. Naylor on Monday when 31 members and friends of Trinity Church W. M. S. met for a "thimble tea".

The first part of the evening was spent in packing quilt blocks with the quilts being used on supply work or wherever the need was greatest.

Australian Pupils Taught Summer Play

Sydney, Australia—(CP)—Many Australian school children had a unique opportunity for organized play and constructive leisure activities during their long summer vacation which ended recently.

Play centres were organized in all six states by the Australian National Fitness Council. Planned holiday programs were supervised in both metropolitan areas and country towns by trained men and women.

Activities for the youngsters ranged from sports to reading circles, discussion groups and classes in such handicrafts as pottery, painting and basketry. Thousands of children were taken on sight-seeing expeditions or to beaches and swimming pools.

Aim of the play centres is to teach children to use their leisure time wisely by learning to enjoy sports and handicraft and gaining a preparation through co-operation for future citizenship.

MADOC
Miss May Addresses H&S on 'Development Of Music in Grades

Madoc — The Home and School Association of Madoc Public School held their March meeting in the school on Tuesday evening with a good attendance.

Mrs. Rupert presided and brought to the attention of the assembly that this is "Education Week", a Dominion wide program, sponsored by many organizations, which this year has the motto: "Education is Everybody's Business." In co-operation, Madoc Public School held Open House Wednesday afternoon when the class rooms were open to all who cared to visit the school.

Miss Loreen Connor, introduced the guest speaker of the evening Miss May, Supervisor of Music in Belleville schools. She chose as her subject "Development of Music Through the Grades." And to this end, what each grade should be taught as indicated by the Ontario Public School Curriculum. With Miss May were 22 pupils from Queen Alexandra and Queen Victoria Schools, and these pupils most ably demonstrated the points of the address as requested by the speaker.

It was an interesting point that music authorities claim every child can be taught to sing and that as just as the grade teacher concentrates on her pupil who has difficulty in spelling or kindred subjects so should the music teacher give her attention to the pupil to whom music is difficult.

The address throughout was very informative and interesting and Mrs. Stickwood expressed the appreciation of the members to Miss May and her pupils for their address.

To complete the musical program, the projector was used to show two films of world famous musicians. These were greatly enjoyed as the music was very well reproduced on the sound track and the films showed "close-up" shots revealing the wonderful display of fingers of the pianist and violinist.

Burping the Baby Is National Issue

London—(CP)—To burp or not to burp, baby?

That was the question of interest to mothers, posed recently by an article under the title in Lancet, leading Journal of British doctors.

After summing up the arguments for and against, Lancet concluded:

"If the psychologists are right who attribute aggression in later life to difficulties at the breast, then the question of burping is important in national and international affairs. A campaign to study it seems overdue."

The question has been going the rounds for a year. It began when a London woman doctor, Dr. Joan Tanner, had a baby of her own and wrote a letter about it.

Dr. Tanner made a study of the burping problem and concluded that wind was the cause of many difficulties with baby. She said the best burping technique was by "holding the baby up and patting or stroking firmly over the left lower ribs at the back and side."

She did not hold with the average mother who "thumps indiscriminately over kidneys, liver and lungs."

St. Patrick Fair Sponsored By Q.V. Home, Good Voted Outstanding Success

"Sure they sprinkled it with stardust

Just to make the shamrock grow."

And how! Everyone had been that sprinkling! Everywhere the eye turned the shamrock grew. Its vivid green trifurs had been back curtains of the class room doors; peeped from the posters on the walls, and ran in riotous garlands of shamrock bloom across the lintels and down the door sides, making of Queen Victoria School a perfect setting for the St. Patrick Fair held last evening under the auspices of the Home and School Association.

Directly facing the main entrance, was a washing well, set in a sea of Paddy green grass and shaded by an overhanging tree heavy with pink and white blooms. Here sat the nymph of the well, Mrs. Godwin, dispensing water in a shower of spray from a small silver coin within the reach of the pails of the fairies. At the close of the Fair, the 'wish' hearing the lucky number would receive a prize. Pretty, fairy-like ladies trees could be seen growing here and there about the main auditorium.

At the front of the auditorium was a stage and here, in the garb of the elves, after the thronging of the fairies, they did their pretty ways, but meanwhile, in front of the large, white backdrop, with its pink-cut-out St. Patrick hats, shamrock blooms, and golden harps, Mrs. Fraser Irish conducted between two immense shamrock leaves. At either side were two little Irish girls, alternately reciting the "Irish Washer-woman," and at a fair corner stood the fortune teller's table with its shamrock-bordered white cloth.

Tables Ladened

Opening off from the main auditorium and hall with its shamrock gated green-shuttered windows with flower-filled window-boxes, the tea-room rooms, despatched as to what might be found therein. A nicely gay scene, decked above the lintel of the door, each vying with the other in their St. Patrick decoration.

In the home-cooking room were two long tables, one on either side, each decorated with a snow-white table-cloth, with loops of green, and sprigged and spilled with barrels of shamrocks, and amidst the shamrocks dishes, replete with clay pipe, and tall hat, and little, fat, pink pigs. The home-cooking table was laden with all manner of delicious cakes, pies, tarts, shamrock cookies, cheese rolls, hermits, layer cakes iced in green with shredded cocoanut sprigged, white iced cakes of every green shamrocks, pink cakes, and tall, luscious chocolate cakes, piled mounds of chocolate icing. Here Mrs. Van Tassel, with her assistants, was kept busy wrapping and making change.

Plants For Sale

Across the room on a similarly decorated table were all kinds of tiny plants, and larger plants including white geraniums, lyies, cacti, foliages, little barrels-full of shamrock, each pot wrapped in green, bearing out the motif. Here was convened by Mrs. Blaker.

Around the room adorned by fancy work, and the 'white elephant' 'odd and ends', whose usefulness had ended in one home to become 'odds in another, ran a frieze of shamrocks interspersed with tall, black silk hats, while colored pictures done by children lined the walls beneath. Here on the fancy work table were lovely aprons, not seen anywhere else, dainty dollies, a beautifully, dressed doll, a large Peter Rabbit with pink ears, little aprons — Scotch edged in pink; a Mexican shopping bag, and a fine array of other numerous to mention. Convening this was Mrs. Martin with her assistants.

On the white elephant table, opposite Mrs. Martin, were towels and rangs of green, and intermingled with shamrock, were cups, saucers and saucers, relish dishes, pie dishes, vases, metronome, pots and pans, kettles, silverware, costume jewellery, necklaces, brooches, and pendants, picture frames, lids and games. Over this presided Mrs. Campbell with her assistants, doing a thriving business. The windows of this room were particularly well decked in loving, stimulated pots of gracefully trailing shamrock vines, and were exceptionally well carried out.

In another room, off the auditorium at the St. Patrick motive, was the book booth and the candy booth. Both of these did a brisk turnover. On the book table could be seen Hitler and Mussolini, Natural History of the Human Race, including their loves, their 'Sex Habits', Boccaccio, the latest mystery, and by itself, lay the latest book of the University of Toronto, aloof from the company of the shamrock vines. Convening these were Mrs. Riley and Mrs. Follwell, and their assistants, Mrs. Hickerson.

Besides these places of attraction, there was the miniature theatre, the popcorn stand, gaily decorated with shamrock leaves and convened by Mrs. Lennox Smith; the movies, which occupied two rooms upstairs were convened by Mrs. and Mrs. Tanner; the dancing, under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Purcell; the ever-attractive fish-pond, convened by Mr. and Mrs. Powell, and Mr. and Mrs. Doherty in the all-enticing fortune telling booth, where long lines of children waited, patiently; the check-room, where garments might be found and those not so young, might be left, either going to, or coming from, with mellow rolls, dripping hot-dogs, and bottles of 'coke', and the air, with anticipation written on their faces, and those returning, with the benign look of satisfaction on these delectable booths were maintained by Mr. and Mrs. Judge Mr. and Mrs. O'Neil and Mr. and Mrs. Colden.

A delightfully planned and executed St. Patrick's Fair, much credit is due to its gracious convener, Mrs. A. B. Hunt; to Miss Myrtle Peck, Mrs. Porter, and Mrs. Baldwin for the beauty and artistry of the large, effective backdrop; to Mrs. Bradford for the publicity afforded, and to each and all who assisted in making of the Fair such an outstanding success.

The holder of the lucky ticket for the pedigreed black cocker spaniel puppy, donated by Mr. Bradford, was won by Rodney Follwell.

Women's Institute

Marmora, W.I.

Marmora—The March meeting of Marmora Women's Institute was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. E. Hewitt.

The president, Mrs. E. Brady, occupied the chair and there was a good attendance of members. The roll call "Something Irish" being say or as a fact, a nickel pay, created a real diversion. The majority had an Irish joke but there were the few who paid the forfeit.

Included in a heavy business period was the request from headquarters, Toronto, for branch to furnish a history of the movement in Belleville and district, and correspondence suggesting that the Branch join the "Friendship Link". Mrs. Greenwood will be branch in England.

The district is inviting the director of the North Hastings institutes to assemble at her home this month for their conference.

A new life member will be made at the April meeting in honor of son of Mrs. I. B Nichol, who has been a valued member of the branch for many years. The branch is also hoping to furnish a cast for a one act play for future presentation.

"An Mystery of a Bride" was given by Mrs. H. P. Nayler in connection with the month's motto. "Let Us Meet Merry Together", Mrs. F. Sweet reported for the social committee and Mrs. W. D. Lavender gave a reading and Mrs. Wilson Rela and "Community Activities".

A "Pat" contest staged by Mrs. F. Grant was won by Mrs. H. P. Nayler.

Refreshments were served by the committee in charge. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mesdames A. H. Connor and R. E. Neal, and it is expected that Mrs. Clifford Clancy, district president will be present.

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

To many cooks, the interior of a roast beef is a dark, mysterious continent.

One of the first things a cook should understand, when roasting beef, is that the meat will be juicier, ways much, higher than the heat of the meat. For instance, if your oven temperature is 325 degrees, this temperature only penetrates the outer layer of beef.

When the inside temperature of the meat reaches 140 degrees, it is rare. At 160 degrees, it's medium, and at 175 degrees, well done. While no two people will ever agree on what a medium piece of roast beef looks like, a meat thermometer inserted in the roast will tell the story with complete impartiality.

The old practice of searing meat at a high temperature in order to seal in the juices has been proven completely wrong by all studies. A high initial temperature does sear the outside of the meat, but it doesn't save the juices, and does destroy vitamins. Roasting meat at a steady low temperature of 325 degrees saves as much as 25 per cent shrinkage over the old searing method.

Top sirloin is an excellent Sunday roast, with little waste in bone or fat. If it is very lean, ask your butcher to add a thin layer of fat when he ties it for roasting.

In thickening pan gravy you may use either cornstarch or flour. Cornstarch makes a smoother and more nearly transparent gravy. Neither flour nor cornstarch will cause your gravy to have a starchy taste if used sparingly and simmered 5 to 10 minutes.

Roast Top Sirloin of Beef.
6-8 Servings.

Order a 3 pound top sirloin roast. Have it wrapped with a thin layer of fat if it is very lean.

Preheat oven at 325 degrees for 20 minutes. Insert meat thermometer into centre of roast. Place meat on a wire rack in an uncovered roasting pan. Roast until meat thermometer registers rare, medium, or well done. If without a thermometer is used, allow 20 minutes per pound for rare, 25 minutes per pound for medium and 30 minutes per pound for well done.

Throw off all fat from pan after removing roast. Add 1 cup boiling water, 1 bouillon cube, 1-4 cup tomato juice and 1 tablespoon butter or margarine. Bring to a boil. Simmer 5 minutes. Strain. This is a thin pan gravy.

If a thick pan gravy is desired, make a paste of 2 tablespoon cornstarch diluted with 2 tablespoons cold water. Gradually add to simmering liquid in pan. Simmer 5-10 minutes. Strain through a fine wire strainer.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

At a supper party this week, conversation got round to a spirited discussion on the secret of financial success, with everybody putting in their two cents worth. If there's one subject on which everybody has formed a firm opinion — it's how to make a pile of money . . . Best story to come out, was told of the country newspaper editor who retired with a fortune. When asked the secret of his success, he replied: "I attribute my ability to earn $100,000 each year after 30 years in newspaper work, to diligent application to work, pursuing a policy of strict honesty, always practising rigorous rules of economy, and to the death of my uncle who left me $110,000.

Are you concerned about the amount of wind you put into your talk? Does the hole in the package need filling? Are you more modest than you need for the breakfast dishes. Here's the answer. Get your husband to punch holes in the metal top of an empty jam tin, fill the tin with some gray-green shakers. Then give the jar right on the sink, and it will save steps and soap . . . For softening the bath water, keep another jar at the bathtub.

Something new in party biscuits are thin wafer-like petals in pink, green and brown Looking like flower petals in a bowl, these pretty frilly morsels are a conversation-piece at a party. The pink ones are shrimp flavor, the green are onion and the brown are cheese. Delightful, they are called "pitt-o-puffs."

Plant Closure Heavy Loss to Workers, Business

Trenton (Special) —Shut-down of the Downs Coulter plant means a loss of close to $6,000 weekly in spending power in Trenton and district businessmen, it is reported.

Decision of the company heads in Britain to close the Trenton factory indefinitely came after workers had been inactive through a strike called by the United Textile Workers Union (AFL) 10 weeks ago. The union was seeking higher wages for workers and extra bargaining rights.

Lately the workers have been divided over the union's handling of the situation. Many of the employees with three and more years service with the textile company have asked to return to work. "It seems to be the younger employees without responsibilities who are contented to hold out," said a worker with a family and a new house to pay for.

One of the satisfied employees complained that the strike has cost him his new car and the $300 he had saved in the bank. He is only one of the workers anxious to take his place back at the plant.

Plant manager J. Uttley went to Toronto on Thursday to confer with company director William Downs who recently reached Canada after a study of textile markets in Australia.

Stirling Defeats Bradford 8-2 in Semi-Finals

Paced by their starry sharpshooter Roger Robson who banged home three goals and drew a pair of assists, the Stirling juvenile "C" team defeated Bradford by an 8-2 score in Stirling Arena last night to take a two-goal margin into the second game of the points-to-count series.

It was the first game of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association semi-finals with the second tilt scheduled for Bradford on Monday night. The winners meet the victor of the Fergus-South-Kempton series for the provincial Juvenile "C" title.

Five hundred roaring fans saw the smart Stirling team score four goals in the first period before Bradford became unbracked and rammed home one of their two counters. The best hockey of the night was played in the second period when the visitors got their second goal, while holding the homesters scoreless.

However, the Stirling kids roared back into the scoring picture in the third period and slung home three goals without a return.

The Robson, Wanamaker, McCrory line stood out for the winners with the former performing the hat-trick and McCrory getting two and two. Manns scored a pair with Donovan getting the remaining goal. Evans and Hanna scored for the visitors.

Sports Shorts From Britain

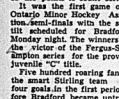
London March 11 — (CP) — Mrs. Thelma Medley, wife of Totterham Hotspur's outside left Les Medley, is in luck. She'll be able to visit her parents at Hamilton Ont., this summer.

Les has been invited by the Football Association to join the soccer squad which will tour Canada in May and June, and Thelma plans to make the trip with him.

The couple met while Medley was in an internment camp in Canada in 1942. They married two years later, came to England until the end of the war and then returned to Canada so that their child could be born there. Six months later they returned to England.

Young Stevie Medley now 2 1-2 will accompany his parents on the tour.



One notable who won't be going along is George Hurwick, England and Middlesbrough fullback. He has declined the F.A. invitation because of business commitments.

Big news from the cricket front: Yardley will captain Yorkshire again next summer.

Originally he had said that business would keep him out of big-time cricket this summer but he has obtained leave from his London firm to lead the county co-champions for one more season.

Yardley's continued availability will probably solve England's No. 1 cricket problem—who will lead the M.C.C. against the West Indies next summer and Australia next winter?

Is your watch up to the minute all the time? Perhaps it needs some slight repair or a minor adjustment here and there. Even a thorough cleaning may be the answer. Bring your watch in to us today!

Glen Ross Wins District, League Title Easily

Frankford—Glen Ross proved their supremacy in the Frankford District League this season by winning not only the league leadership, but by romping through the playoffs without too much difficulty. Glen Ross managers went will in the third period of Thursday night's game to hand Bethel-Zion Combines, last year's champions, a 9-5 shellacking. Glen Ross had won the first game of the best of three series 8-4. Russ Sills and Pete Ulmas paced the winners with three goals each, while Ted Ray had three for the Combines. Checking was hard, and in all, thirteen penalties were issued.

In the other contest, the Top Hatters and the Happy Gang fought point for point for all three games with the Top Hatters edging out four points. These two teams have always played on very even terms.

Canners Beat Wellington

Foxboro and Frankford Canadian Canners Limited journeyed to Wellington for an exhibition hockey game in aid of the 1950 March of Dimes Thursday night. The Combines took the measure of the Wellington Canners by a 10-4 count, with Sheffield, Martin and Thompson working nicely for the winners. In spite of the fine scoring exhibition put on by this classy Foxboro line, all are in agreement that the stars of the game were the hard-hitting fast-breaking defence pair of Lorne Rogers and Charlie Cooke. Time and again, these stalwarts broke up Wellington's rushing attacks. Word has been received that a Toronto Maple Leaf spotter was in the crowd, and both are expected to be signed for next season. Besides providing hilarious 60 minutes packed with thrills and spills, the game brought a sizeable contribution for the March of Dimes.

A return game will be played in Frankford Arena on Wednesday night, proceeds to go for the same fine work, the March of Dimes. Hockey fans are requested to make a special effort to see this battler. Even if you don't know a puck from a pingpong ball, come along the players don't the difference either. Let's all march with the March of Dimes!

PICTON

Dairy Inspector Addresses Rotary

Greater Use of Cheese by Canadians Would Solve Big Dairy Problem

The importance of the cheese industry to the Bay of Quinte area was highlighted at last week's meeting of the Picton Rotary club when county cheesemakers were guests of the club members. The meeting was addressed by J. M. Bain, dairy inspector for central and Western Ontario.

Mr. Bain said that despite this is a dairy country Canadians were among the smallest per capita eaters of cheese in the world. Canadians consumed an average of only 4 1-2 pounds of cheese annually, he said, if every Canadian used another two pounds of cheese there would be no cheese marketing problem in Canada, he said.

Canada Fortunate Country

The guest speaker referred to Canada as the most fortunate country in the world with large surpluses of food and contributing to the support of great herds of dairy cattle. He added up to the fact that Canadians were the best fed people in the world with a life expectancy of 67 years, in poorly nourished countries like India and China, life expectancy is but 36 years.

Dairy products in Canada contribute one of the most important sources of revenue. The 1949 production of 16 billion pounds of milk resulted in 350 million dollars for primary producers.

Cheese production had increased at a greater rate than the country's population, the exportable surplus commanding a premium price on the British market.

Mr. Bain referred to the 11-ton cheese shown at the Chicago World's Fair and in cities in the Old Country as being "good" advertising. In recent years there had not been enough advertising of the good virtues of cheese.

However, the recent development of packaging cheese was increasing sales in retail outlets. Cheese was good value by comparison with any other food, both as to nutritional importance and value per dollar.

Congratulates Makers

Mr. Bain congratulated cheese makers for the great improvement which has taken place in factories during recent years. Some of the finest plants in the country were in the Picton district, he said.

In closing Mr. Bain stressed the importance of keeping the purchasing power of the rural population at a high level. Only by doing so could the farmer buy the goods of retail products. The farmer also needed his purchasing power to pay the farm well equipped to produce quality product economically.

Cinderella Team Of Junior A Race Now in Discard

(By The Canadian Press)

Barrie Flyers, the "Cinderella" team of the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior "A" series the last two years, lost their magic touch last night.

Guelph's bustling Biltmores bobbed up with a second overtime period goal to down the Flyers 5-4 and out them from the dwindling list of Memorial Cup contenders. Victory gave the Bilts the best-of-five semi-final series 3-1 and sent them into the loop's finals against the powerpacked Windsor Spitfires.

The game was whisked for the sudden-death second overtime period had blown and just 28 seconds later Ron Schmelzer took a pass from Ron Plumb to rap home Guelph's fourth counter.

In the third game of the best-of-seven Senior A finals Toronto Marlboros took a less-dramatic win, a smashing 4-0 victory. It was their third straight over the Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen.

Kitchener-Waterloo had refused to take the ice for last night's game if the same referee who handled the second game—Red Farrell and Jack Mehlenbacher—were used. However, Bill Morrison and Doug Young were announced as officials and the game went as scheduled.

Went to Finals

In the 1948 and 1949 playoffs Barrie, most likely-appointed of the teams in the post-season parade, knocked off the favorites and in the finals again went all the way to the Dominion finals before bowing to a power-packed Port Arthur squad.

Herb Dickenson's first-period tally gave the Flatters a 1-0 lead and Don Bellringer increased it to 2-0 mid-way through the second. The never-say-die Flyers fought back and dead-locked it at 2-2 by the end of the middle frame. John Bobenic and Real Chevrefils were the marksmen.

Came the third period and the teams battled through 20 minutes of hard-fought scoreless hockey. But in the first 10-minute overtime period Red Cullen put Barrie ahead for the first time in the game. Don Oberholtzer tied it near the end of the frame.

Buchanan Hero of Tilt

Marlboros' Al Buchanan was the man to beat in the Barrie camp. The peppery winger scored twice for Don Primmer's boys. In the second game of the series he also notched a pair.

Marlboros entered the scoring in the first period—when the Toronto team clicked for three—and was followed by Danny Lewicki and Scotty Mair, Lewicki was playing his first senior game as a call up from the eliminated Junior 'A' Marlboros.

Buchanan closed the scoring in the second period.

The teams continue their feud tonight and Marlboros have a chance to end it all in four straight. The Club play at Waterloo.

Woman Killed As She Plunged From Moving Car

Buffalo, N.Y., March 11 (AP)—Mrs. Rose Marie Woods, 28, of Kincardine, Ont., died Friday of injuries suffered Thursday when she plunged from a moving automobile.

Detective Chief William T. Fitzgibbons said Mrs. Woods told hospital attendants before she died that "my boy friend threw me out of the car."

Fitzgibbons said he was holding Melvin W. Schmidt, 35, of Buffalo, pending discussion of the case with the district attorney. He quoted Schmidt as saying Mrs. Woods had been visiting him and that he met her last summer when he was in Kincardine on a fishing trip. He said Schmidt told him:

"She jumped out when I told her she would have to return to Canada because she had overstayed her entry permit."

Toronto Dancer Makes Success Of Former Hubby

By FAY USHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, March 11—(CP)—Melissa Hayden, trim young Toronto dancer who turned a hobby into a successful profession, is winning critical acclaim as a top-flight performer for the New York City ballet.

Miss Hayden has won commendation for her work in a number of ballets in the company's current season at the City Center but the critics really pulled out the stops after watching her in the New York premiere of Frederick Ashton's "Illuminations."

The hazel-eyed, dark-haired Miss Hayden symbolized Profane Love in "Illuminations." Ashton, choreographer for Britain's celebrated Sadler's Wells ballet, based his work on the life and poems of Arthur Rimbaud. Benjamin Britten, also British, wrote the music.

John Martin of the New York Times said the figure of Profane Love "in the magnificent performance of Melissa Hayden comes very close to dominating the piece."

The Herald Tribune's Walter Terry said she "gave a tremendous performance. . . . It was wild, pagan and free in charcter and Miss Hayden danced it for all it was worth."

Hobby Into Career

Details of her career were recounted by the 26-year-old dancer the other day.

"I took up ballet as a hobby at first and then decided to make a career of it," she said. "I haven't any hobbies now—I haven't time for them. But I'm happy in ballet."

Miss Hayden, whose real name is Mildred Herman, studied four years in Toronto with the Volkoff Ballet. She came to New York in 1945. She was a "Rockette" one of the dancers at Radio City Music Hall, for three months, then got into the Ballet Theatre.

Miss Hayden spent three years with the Ballet Theatre, and then turned to the Broadway Theatre and appeared successively in two musicals, "Allegro" and "Love Life."

'Tobacco Road' Back.

The Negro Drama Group this week gave Broadway a new version of "Tobacco Road," the play also of "Tobacco Road" the play that originally opened in 1933 and ran 3,182 consecutive performances. This third New York revival of the Jack Kirkland dramatization of Erskine Caldwell's novel now concerns a family of Negro share-croppers instead of the white family of the original.

The play is still extremely profane and licentious—but somehow it has lost some of its original impact. In the famous role of Jester, Powell Lindsay does everything the role demands of him — and does it well. Jester's wife is played by Evelyn Ellis, who also directed.

Mother Cries 'Enough' After Triplet Births

Jonesville, La., March 11 — (AP) — A baby a day for three consecutive days— that's the way the 36-year-old wife of a fisherman gave birth totriplets.

Watching the newcomers gurgle milk from their bottles today, Dr. N. G. Nasif, who delivered the babies during the three-day period said "I've never heard or read of such a case before."

(In Chicago, the American Medical Association said it has no record of any previous triple birth during a three-day period.)

The tired worn-looking mother, Lester Hardin, propped herself up on an elbow and smiled at her new son and two daughters.

"They are the last," she said "Ten children are enough." She has seven other children, all living.

Fast Plane Trip

Ottawa, March 11 (CP)— The Avro jetliner and the CF-100, streaked from Toronto's Malton airport to nearby Rockcliffe Friday in separate speed runs, the jetliner making the first intercity run in North America of a jet transport plane.

The liner made the trip in 36 minutes and five seconds, averaging 385 miles an hour which Avro officials claimed was 100 miles an hour faster than the fastest airline transport speed.

The twin-jet fighter, piloted by W. A. Waterton, a native of Camrose, Alta., made the trip in 28 minutes and 28 seconds averaging 536 miles an hour.

Officials said no attempt was made to fly either aircraft at the maximum speed.

Farm Forums

MELROSE

Melrose — On Monday night, Melrose Farm Forum met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Whitemore. Mrs. Whitemore presided over the meeting, the county representative of the Federation of Agriculture was a visitor.

The subject for the evening was "Labor and Farmers Have a Say on Foe?" After listening to the broadcast the evening was formed and interesting discussions took place, after which Mr. Tummon summarized the points brought out by various groups, and dealt fully with each question.

The demand for higher industrial wages was discussed and while it that it takes the help away from the farm, yet higher wages make better buying power for the city farmer.

As to who has more free time, it may be said the farmer has to be on the job seven days a week and he works from 8 to 10-hour week as long as cows are cown, the farmer has more security. Both they and labor want more security and should help each other to get these things.

The farmer feels that labor unions are in favor of the demand for guaranteed wages but they would like to see the farmers' prices also guaranteed. There should be closer coordination among the commodity group although the Federation of Agriculture eventually speaks for all these groups. As to marketing schemes, the farmer should buy and sell co-operatively. Regardless of hour markets, the farmer should have the cost of production and reasonable profit added.

The group accepted an invitation extended by Mr. Tummon, to attend a forum rally at Foxboro, when lunch and refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. Ed. Lazier.

Foxboro Farm Forum met on Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Lazier. Junction. The broadcast dealt with the topic "Labor and Farmers Have a Say on Foe?". Mr. Harry Coulter led the discussion.

The group doesn't feel that labor's demand for higher wages harms the farmer as the labor cost represents a very small percentage of the actual cost of machinery, etc.

Forum members think the industrial worker has more free time than the farmer as a farmer (who has little especially) is on call 24 hours a day.

Labor unions are not against the interests of agriculture. If labor does not receive a decent wage it cannot buy farm produce.

The group doesn't think that farmer's marketing schemes are working against the interests of the consumers.

The secretary read a letter from Mr. Frank E. Brown, M.P., for Hastings South acknowledging receipt of a reports of Mr. Hinchliffe and recommendation of the forum on Price Fixes and Prices and congratulating the Forum for their activity in such matters.

Two interesting contests were conducted by Mrs. Coulter, receiving leader for the series.

The hostess served refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed by all. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Gay on March 13.

The Sportman's Water Supply

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted sportsman, author and creator of Solunar Tables)

Last year The Wildlife Institute sponsored the publication of a book by that well-known writer and speaker, Martin K. Bovey. In the field of outdoor photography his name is right up there at the top of the list.

Bovey called his book The Sag's of the Waterfowl. While it is primarily about ducks, it actually deals with the management of duck habitat—water.

Using photographs, as only Bovey can take them, he gives the pictorial history of our waterfowl He shows us how our forefathers moved across an unspoiled continent, hacking, ripping and gouging, leaving spoilage in their wake.

Waste of timber, wast of soil, pollution of water—squandering the riches of their heritage—the story is not a pleasant one. Greed for the quick and easy dollar eclipsed all thought of consequences or of the generations to come.

Forests Denuded

So they killed our bison, plowed under our prairies, denuded our forests and changed pure streams to open sewers. There was plenty of fish and game, they thought—more than enough. Let's get ours now and let the other fellow worry about his.

No doubt our wildfowl could have survived the onslaught of the gun. Even the slaughter of the market hunters had but slight effect in diminishing the countless millions of birds.

But our fathers and their fathers before them were not content. More land was wanted, land on which to raise more crops. So they drained the marshes, the ponds, the potholes and the lakes. Corn and wheat sprouted where once had nested the mallard and the teal.

You know the story. Great areas of land now thirst for hundred million acres of water that is gone—water that kept the vital water tables at normal levels.

The outdoor sports are dependent on water. Arid country furnishes little if any sport for the rod or the gun. With the loss of breeding areas naturally came a shrinkage in our supply of wildfowl.

Fared With Great Task

Now we are faced with the tremendous task of reclamation. Drained marshes are being redeemed. Disposal plants are ridding our streams of pollution. We are learning—much to late—that our water supply, like our supply of fish and game, is inexhaustible.

We forgot, until we were reminded the hard way—that ours is a growing nation. Where formerly there were only a few scattered pumps, now the home is equipped with modern plumbing. Not only has our population grown—our per capita water consumption has increased in geometrical progression. Air conditioning systems and industry create an intolerable demand upon our inadequate reservoir systems.

Drought and rich normal rainfall has reduced New York City to a critical shortage of water shortage. Yet flowing by its side is one of the country's mightiest rivers, presently polluted beyond all hope of immediate use.

The United States is a young nation and improvidence is a characteristic of youth. Unwise drainage, pollution, denudation of our watersheds at first is making itself felt, but at still we waste more water than we use.

However, it looks as though we sportsmen are being given a breakwater supply. From here on there be are becoming aware of the absolute necessity to conserve our water supply. From here on the sportsman's water areas will increase. Anti-pollution programs are now the order of the day and our streams are showing the effects of these measures.

Stream Polluted

Within a mile from where this is being written flows a large river. Fifty years ago this river furnished excellent fishing. Twenty years ago pollution had reduced its fish life almost to zero.

Today, because of anti-pollution methods, backed by forceful legislation, the supply of fish is well on the way to being re-established. This is forever safe. Once more ducks find food in its coves and backwaters.

Of course, all this takes planning—that and intelligent watershed management—and money—plenty of money. The direct result will be the re-establishment of our water tables and our supply of potable water. The by-product is a substantial increase in usable water areas for the sportsmen of the nation.

"Moose" Kerns Signs Contract With Argonauts

TORONTO, March 11 (CP)—John (Moose) Kerns, first-string tackle with the professional Toronto Balls, for the last three seasons, Friday signed a contract as assistant coach with Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four football league.

The 26-year-old, 245 pound star will play as line coach when the Argos get under way this season. He played with the Balls until the all-America Football conference was merged with the national conference. Buffalo was then dropped.

Argo president Bob Morran said Kerns was recommended by coach Frank Clair and said his record suggests he'll be a useful addition to the Toronto squad.

A native of Ashtabula, Ohio, Kerns played football and basketball at both high school and university of North Carolina in 1942 when he was voted all-southern tackle that season.

Commenting Clair and Kerns Friday was Al Dekdebrun of Hamilton Wildcats, who is anxious to line up with Argos. The classy quarterback, a close friend of Clair and Kerns, said he was refused a release and was "getting a run-around from the people in Hamilton."

Dekdebrun said Denny Witkac, chairman of the Wildcats, has refused to give him his release. "They want to keep me on a book apparently . . ."

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

Syracuse, N.Y., March 11 — (AP) — The tragic death of Lavern Rosch after a fight in New York stirred up a lot of talk about requiring boxers to wear protective helmets. The Interstate Boxing Association of the United States has used these devices for two years and its coaches gathered here for the I.B.A. tournament agree they provide a "heck of a lot" of protection. "I told Eddie Eagan last night," says Eddie Latzo of Catholic University, "that the pros had better start using them right away." The new pad would definitely prevent cuts. "Most cuts are caused by butting heads together," said Roy Simmons of Syracuse. "But when they wear the guards properly, they bump with the padded part. We only had one cut in last year's tournament." It might be added that college boxers are stopped for even minor cuts. "There's just one addition to the rules," says Eddie Sulk. "The people who want boxing abolished when a boy is killed are the same ones who holler for blood when they go to a fight."

Just Grin and Beer It . . .

Manitoba Rink In Second Place Of Curling Match

Vancouver, March 11 — (CP) —After spending more than 30 years in the last five days, Billy McTavish of Winnipeg relaxed Friday night with second place in the Canadian curling championship all wrapped up for Manitoba.

The 32-year-old skip from the Elmwood Curling Club in Winnipeg, a hot pre-playoff favorite, tied down second place with a handy 13-8 victory over Cal Asmussen's Ontario foursome in an unprecedented play-off.

Barlow, Ontario defeated Alberta, also in on the three-day tie for second place — first in spiel history since it expanded to a national basis in 1937 — after regular play ended. That moved the Kitchener shotsmith into the playoff against Bill McKenzie and his partners, who had drawn a bye.

An Easterner was the unspring end put Manitoba well in front and, although Ontario once drew to within 7-6, Manitoba swept to a comparatively easy victory. The Ontario rink was obviously tired compared to the more youthful Manitobans.

Manitoba jumped into an 9-3 lead at the half-way mark, on the strength of four-enders and one and a single, and they didn't look back. The Ontario curlers pecked away with one- and two- rock ends but they couldn't catch the hot-foot Manitobans.

Clinches Championship

Tom Ramsay finally made the four inches, now famous in curling circles, for the championship in the eighth round Thursday, in Ramsay's second to last end. Ramsay had to sweep around up in a three-way tie for second place with Alberta and Manitoba and Ontario and Bill Rose of Sedgewick, Alta., when he missed a shot by five inches.

After dropping a heart-breaking 13-12 decision to Alberta in the first round Northern Ontario roared through their next seven games in startling style to nail down the championship tankard. They had their last game to Manitabo but the game meant nothing to them.

More than 2,000 people saw the event. The attendance record for Terminal Arena, site of the bonspiel, was broken twice on successive nights. Wednesday, there were 2,300 persons jammed into the 2,400-seating capacity rink and Thursday, the crowd topped 4,000.

Next year's bonspiel will be held in Halifax, probably from March 6 to 9, the same dates as this year. Nfld'ld Newfoundland a starter for the first time, there will be 12 draws, one team getting a bye each round.

McGill Redmen Defeat Queen's By 7-2 Score

Montreal, March 11 — (CP) — McGill University Redmen finished off their Senior Intercollegiate hockey season Friday night by defeating Queen's University 7-2 before a two period crowd here.

The victory was McGill's third in 12 starts and marked the 10th win for the Gaels in 14 games.

Queen's will meet the league champion University of Montreal tonight in the final game of the schedule.

Gene Robillard notched three goals giving McGill a big lead in the first two periods. Don Robertson scored the two Queen's goals within the first two minutes of the third period, but McGill retaliated with three more counters.

363-Exhibition Game Schedule Ready to Start

Tampa, Fla., March 11 — (AP) —Now is the time for the 1950 rookie crop to put up or shut up. The Major-League 363-game exhibition schedule opens today and will be over before long all around.

The new "phenoms" who can run like Citation and hit like Ruth must prove it under actual game conditions. For many, the end is in sight.

With only 10 or less days of practice, depending on local weather conditions, the boys must start playing games. Under baseball law they couldn't begin practice before March 6.

Two new managers will direct their clubs for the first time—Bucky Harris of Washington and Luke Sewell of Cincinnati. Each has a host of rookies to back aches with second-division clubs.

Canadiens Hope To Nail Down Playoff Berth

Montreal Canadiens hope to nail down a play-off berth in the National Hockey League this weekend.

Now in fourth place, 10 points ahead of Boston Bruins, the Habitants can make it a virtual certainty before Monday night when the Canucks play host to Boston and Sunday tackle the onrushing New York Rangers while Boston meets Toronto Maple Leafs.

All round, it's one of the heaviest weekend schedules this year with all six clubs seeing action twice as the season draws to a close. Rangers get a crack at Toronto and Chicago tonight. Detroit goes to Chicago Sunday in the sixth weekend game.

The Rangers, a hot club lately, with back-to-back shoot-past Toronto into second place. They're only two points behind the Leafs today and have a game in hand over Montreal. Detroit holds the league lead heading by nine points.

There's no doubt the Rangers will be trying for second spot because their figures to be a good place in the playoff picture with the first and third-place winners meeting in series A and the second and fourth place winners tangling in series B.

Detroit a rugged club, has been notorious for years as a killer of playoff hopes in the first round.

Montreal, although not so spectacular as the Rangers lately, also is a dangerous club, even without its ace goalie, Bill Durnan. Big Bill has been out of action for a week with a badly gashed head and the club reported Friday that he still was weak.

Gerry McNeil, goalies of Cincinnati Mohawks of the American Hockey League, is filling in capably for the Habs and he'll be between the pipes again tonight.

All of the clubs but two have eight games remaining in the 70-game schedule. Montreal and Chicago have nine each. The game in hand won't do Chicago much good however; the Hawks are bedded deep in last place, seven points behind Boston.

KITCHENER—CANADA

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Stirling—In this pretty South Hastings village where men are men, the kids are hockey players and the ladies are fans, there is an atmosphere of excitement as these wintry days.

Spring? Tush, tush. Nothing so trivial as the gal in the legendary flimsiness appears to bothering the stout residents of the community. Income taxes? More trivia. The atomic bomb? A mere pipsqueak compared to the sublimity of the moment dearest to the hearts of the loyal burghers of Stirling.

From Hizzoner Mayor — pardon — Reeve Harold Wells down to the hired help there is but one thing that rates importance. And that is hockey.

Not the swashbuckling near-shinny type that typified some of the big brother games played here but the brand that has carried a grand little game of moppets to the Ontario Minor Hockey Association Juvenile "C" semi-finals.

Geographically, so to speak, a mere speck on the map of Ontario, this village has, from an OMHA point of view swelled and expanded to large proportions. Right now wherever Juvenile "C" is mentioned, you hear the name of Stirling. For this village, or at least its name and hockey teams, are now strangers to the high brackets in minor hockey. A couple of years ago its midget "C" team went to the Ontario finals only to be eliminated by the starry Trenton Juvenile team in St. Catharines.

At the moment a heavier burden, if it can be called that, rests on the teen-age shoulders of these youthful Stirling stalwarts of the ice lanes. They form the only team in this immediate district that has survived growing pains and playdowns and are the lone aspirants for a provincial title in the environs of south Hastings.

They know how they are embattled in the throes of the semi-finals of the Ontario Juvenile "C" playdowns. Last night they battled the strong Bradford team, the results of which are published elsewhere. Should they win the round from the starry Western Ontario squad they will meet the winners of the Fergus - Guelph-Galt semi-finals series for the provincial title.

At did their sensational counterparts in 1948, the Stirling youngsters have risen to their present enviable position via the hard way. Only seven of last year's squad answered the call during this season when Coach Dr. Ralph Vandervoort and Manager D. Patterson tooted their hockey piccolos for the first practice. The Mason brothers and Desjardins, every front-line had been lured away by the Peterborough bright lights and Saskatchewan. Johnson, another star, had himself to Florida. Two other players were over juvenile age.

However, the Stirling master-minds went a-scouting and popped up with four prospects from Brantford. The work of moulding the team into an effective whole got underway. It was handicapped in early season by lack of ice. But the lads "stuck" together and by dint of strenuous practice, good coaching and fine supervision, formed a squad that, if it can so function in the semi-finals, is a distinct credit to its village, its county and itself.

The team record is an enviable one. Grouped with Marmora, Madoc and Tweed in Juvenile "C" at the beginning of the season, it tied the Marmora squad for the group leadership, then went on to win the play-off in a best-of-three series.

The tough playdown trail loomed ahead. Deseronto Juveniles provided the opposition in the first round and were left behind by a series score of 10-5. Next was the classy little Hastings crew but the Vandervoorians took them in their stride and left them defeated on the round by a 14-6 score. Opposition became heavier and the Stirling kids were extended to the limit, but they came through with a round victory of 14-12 over the strong Lakefield team. That victory gave them the title of Eastern Ontario Juvenile "C" champions.

The sturdy Stirlingites have piled up an enviable record thus far. Out of fifteen games played they have won 12 and lost but two. They have dented the opposition twice 88 times and have been scored against on 61 occasions.

The sharp-shooting sniper of the squad, who has accounted for 40 of the team's 88 goals is young Roger Robeson, son of Roscoe Robeson, M.L.A. and Mrs. Robson. His linemates John Mason and Doug Wanamaker have accounted for 30 goals between them besides a large number of assists.

If this starry Stirling bevy of beardless puckchasers win their way to the finals and if natural ice is not available, there is a strong possibility of Belleville fans seeing them in action in Memorial Arena.

But right now the red-hot fans of this village are concerned with the Bradford semi-final battles. They, like their ice-men, will take care of themselves. They're mighty proud of their gallant little team and well they might be. As far as "bridge-over-the-river" insofar as hockey is official titles are concerned, the youngsters and their supporters feel confident they will bring home the championship bacon to, as Don Vandervoort terms it, "Stirling, the hotbed of minor hockey in the Trent Valley". More power to them.

WIN FINAL GAME

London, March 11 — (CP) — Edmonton Mercurys Friday night drubbed Earls Court Rangers of the English league 6-2 in their final exhibition tune-up before the world hockey championships starting Monday.

The westerners appeared slow during the first two periods but suddenly broke out with a rash of goals in the third session, sinking six within four minutes.

HULL VOLANTS WIN

Ottawa, March 10 — (CP) — The fast-skating Hull Volants rolled to an impressive 6-3 decision over Ottawa's R.C.A.F. Flyers Thursday night to deadlock their Eastern Canada Senior Hockey League semi-finals at one game each.

Third game of the best-of-five will be played Monday. The airmen won the opening contest 6-4 in overtime.

Cincinnati Reds May be Surprise Team of Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

Cincinnati Reds stand a good chance to be the surprise club in the National League pennant race says Luke Sewell the Reds' freshman manager at Tampa, Fla.

The Reds finished in seventh place last year. Not many observers rate them much higher this year. But that doesn't stop Sewell from being enthusiastic about his team's prospects of climbing a notch or two.

"We're definitely going to be a better ball club than last year," Sewell predicted. "People might as well expect it.

"Our pitching will be sounder. And we're going to score more runs. We're a young club and young fellows like Lloyd Merriman, Ted Kluszewski, Grady Hatton, Red Stallcup and Herman Wehmeier are bound to improve even if only because of the experience they gained last year."

At Amherst, Mass., E. Howard of Toronto was the lone Canadian to survive the second round of the National Intercollegiate squash racquets tournament which opened here Friday. Five other Canadian University entrants won their opening matches but were knocked out in the second round.

Charlie Fusari, sharp-shooting welterweight contender from Irvington, N. J., handed young Jimmy Flood a terrific lacing Friday night as he won a unanimous 10-round decision over the game New York middleweight in New York's Madison Square Garden. Fusari was outweighed 158 to 151 3-4.

Rudy Pasco, Toronto featherweight, knocked out George La Falgio of New York at 1:06 of the fourth round in a scheduled six-round preliminary on the Flood-Fusari card. Pasco scaled 129½, La Falgio 123¾.

Cagy Fred Will outfoxed Ireland's John Joe Barry Friday night to win the featured mile race by eight yards in 4:35 in a track meet at the 369th Regiment Armory.

Hamilton Strand Cycles Friday night at Hamilton defeated Windsor Assumption College 54-45 to move into the second round of the Ontario Intermediate A basketball playdowns. They will meet the winners of the Toronto- Peterborough series.

Fishing co-operative Societies from across Canada Friday sought to form a National Federation of Fishermen's Co-operatives, to strengthen the co-operative fishing, processing and marketing industry and to promote the interests of the fishing industry.

A five man committee was appointed at London, Ont., to work with the Co-Operative Union of Canada in the organizing of the National Federation.

Junior hockey fans at Montreal are optimistic that Quebec province will win the Memorial Cup for the second successive year.

The Junior Amateur Hockey Association — only Junior A circuit in the province — produced Quebec's first Memorial Cup winner last spring when the young Montreal Royals overcame Brandon Wheat Kings in the final in the west. This year the finals swings to the east with the eastern winners as hosts.

Northern Electric Defeats CNR Diesels In Thriller To Extend District Finals

(By Geo. H. Carver)
(Sports Editor)

Jackie Wardaugh, fleet-footed winger of the Northern Electric hockey squad, and flashy forward of the now defunct Diesel-Electric Senior 'B' entry for this village, earned his spurs in Memorial Arena last night.

The blonde-haired speedster not only scored four goals for his team in their 8-5 victory over the CNR Diesels in the third game of the Belleville District Hockey League finals, but was also awarded the Whalen Trophy for being the most valuable player to his team in the district league.

Yup, Jackie paced his Northern not only to victory in a game that had about everything in the hockey Calendar. Despit advance puppage of the three men out onto the proverbial corporal's guard in attendance, and we might add here and now that those who stayed away missed one of the better hockey spectacles of the season.

Play Next Tuesday

And there will be a repetition of the high jinks and antics that characterized last night's game come Tuesday next. For last night's affair was not even the hardhead of spectators, plus the alleged experts in disagreement.

There was everything the average hockey fan could wish for Plenty of goals; rambunctious checking; plenty of penalties; hard heavy body checking, and a few fist fights thrown in for good measure.

But whatever the reason, we must go out on the limb and not so far at that, in saying that had the players on both teams amalgamated their hockey ability into a Senior 'B' squad, perhaps the Plantagenet - Ottawa - Peterborough Legion would not now be in the throes of the group competition.

Plenty of Speed

However to get back to the game. As we said before, it was a close, hard-fought tilt with plenty of speed and hard feelings.

On the nights play the Northerns had a definite edge. Their front lines and defence clicked and their goop proved much more effective than those of the Diesels.

In fact the only producing line the Diesels had was that of Timmy Williams, Roy Boyer and brother Vern. The rest were more or less stymied by the hard-checking defence of Northern. Timmy got himself the hat-trick with three goals, and Leo and brother Vern got the other two. Leo got two assists, with Roy Day and Barrett getting their own.

It was wide-open hockey all the way. Slap dash, yes, but a thrill-producer with lots of goals sparkling end-to-end rushes and no quarter given. Seventeen penalties were handed out by referees Bill Holway and Dick Fitzpatrick, one a misconduct to Vern Goyer.

Buzzed Hockey

It was rugged hockey at times with both sides using the body to good effect. Diesels opened the scoring early in the first period when Timmy Williams rammed the puck home on a surprise. Tripp, Junior Rockets goalie regarded for the purpose. But the lead was shortlived. Northerns raced back with three quick goals, Diesels retaliated as did Northern and the period ended 3-2 in Northern.

A stubborn-fought second period saw Northern ram home two goals to Diesels one, and the third period was a repetition of the second.

A dubious goal was scored in the third period, when Diesels were applying the pressure. Came a mixup in the Diesels' goal and referee Bill Holway awarded a goal to Northern on an alleged rule. Lefort, Diesels' goalie, disputed the decision but Barrett of Northern. There was a mixup in the Diesels goal and referee Holway awarded the tally to the planters.

Given Misconduct

Vern Goyer was given a Fitzpatrick shortly after the third period opened and did not return to the game.

Wardhaugh, Peter Jones, Mikvihill and MacDonald with Tripp, the Rocket's junior goalie, looked the best for Northern, with Leo Goyer, Tim Williams, Schreider, Nolan, Day and Lefort going well for the losers.

The game yas highlighted by the presentation of trophies to players. The Oldtimers Hockey Association represented by Bill Green and Henry Penn, presented the Boland Trophy and the Whalen Trophy to Jack Keyes, RCAF goalie, voted the outstanding goalkeeper of the District League, and Jackie Wardhaugh, named the most valuable player to his team during the district league schedule.

The presentation took place between the second and third periods. Taking part in the general presentation, President Eddie Schreider of the Belleville District Hockey League on behalf of his loop, presented miniatures of their trophies to Wardhaugh and Keyes.

The Teams

Diesels: Goal, LeFort; defence, Schreider, Nolan; centre, Leo Goyer; wings, Williams, V Goyer; subs, Hurst, D. Semark, Bastedo, Day.

Lou Boudreau Thinks Squad Will be Better

Tucson, Ariz., March 11 —(AP) —One sentence of massive Lou Boudreau today told how Cleveland Indians plan to play in 1950.

"My team, I'm on shoals to win," the manager-shortstop says. "That's the Tribe's policy for this year.

"There is no use setting your sights on second or third place, Boudreau went on, "It's all or nothing. We are out to win the pennant, and nothing less. We are convinced we can do it."

It's true that the Indians slipped from the world's championship in 1948 to third place in the American League last year.

It is also true that the same faces are back in the line-up this spring and the same players will be carrying the heavy burdens.

But Boudreau thinks the team differs mentally and physically from the squad that started the 1949 season.

None of the Tribe officials are worried about their aging infield. Mickey Vernon, Eddie Gordon, Boudreau and Ken Keltner average 32 years.

"Of course we've slowed up," the manager admits. "But it is not enough to be serious or to make the slightest difference . . . What we lack in speed we make up for in know-how."

Orillia, March 10 — (CP) — Two horses were found stayed to death and a third so emaciated it had to be destroyed on a farm near Rathburn, Wednesday. MOTION DEFEATED

Kingston, March 10 — (CP) — A motion to permit political clubs equal rights with other clubs on Queen's University campus was defeated by a vote of 50 to 34 at the annual open meeting of the Alma Mater Society. It was argued the clubs should be permitted to affiliate with off-campus organizations as religious clubs do.

South became the declarer at a contract of four hearts that was doubled by west. An opening spade lead from west would have messed up the contract with very little effort.

If dummy played a small spade, east would win with the queen. The ace of spades return would then make it tough for south. The ruff of the spade will use up one of his five trumps.

Thereafter west would have more trumps than south. This gives west a trump trick in the future. Two ruffs clubs will also be theirs. A spade, a trump, and two clubs defeat the contract.

However, this chance was lost when west first cashed his club ace and led his small club. This was taken by the east king and it was now too late for his side to stop four hearts.

Right here east could still hold declarer to ten tricks if he cashed spade ace. But he was looking for a way to defeat the bid. So, he returned club ten in the hope of squashing club queen.

South refused to play with the queen. West then found no need to waste a trump ten it and stuffed his lone diamond. After ruffing this trick, dummy cashed a trump round with heart ace.

Dummy returned heart queen that south overtook with the king. Three more trump rounds were cashed by south and west was stripped of all trumps. This left each hand with five cards.

You know the five cards left in south. Decide which five west and east should hold at this time. Then decide how declarer should take the remaining tricks. Can do.

Me and Pop were starting out to take a Saturday walk, and he said, William, I want you to bring me back a nice stake, and we'll have a nice stake for dinner. Ask the butcher to give you the nicest stake he's got, she said.

That would be a big mistake, he said. If he thinks I don't know anything about stakes he'll find me the tuffest number he's got in the place. The thing to do is put up a bluff that I'm an old stake expert from the prairies and then he'll have some respect for me and help me pick out a really tender one, he said, and he said, Well, as long as you bring home a nice stake.

And when we came to the market we went in and pop started to look at the stakes at the meat counter, being about 30 of them all spread out and the butcher said, Something in a stake today?

Yes, I'm looking them over, pop said. My wife asked me to stop in and select a good one for her. The poor woman doesn't know one side of a stake from the other, so I told her I'd help her out. Two or three of these dont look too bad, I'm making up my mind, he said, and the butcher said, Just point her out an' you can have her.

That 3rd one from the top on the 2nd row mite make good eating, pop said, and the butcher said, Do you want that one?

Well, I'm still deciding, pop said. This last one here has a good texture, but I'm not sure about its color, he said, and the butcher said, Excuse me, I'll go wait on that lady a while.

Oh, wait, dont go way, I've decided on a pound of calves liver. You cant go wrong on calves liver, he said, and the butcher said, That's okay with me, anything you say.

And he wayed a pound and rapped it up and sold it to pop, and pop took it home and serprised ma with it.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

SHOULD

Mr. Scott, at 23, the youngest member of the Legislature, advocated that wholesalers be required to print their terms of sale, including all discounts and concessions, so that everyone in the trade could take advantage of them. He asked the government to encourage the growth of co-operative purchasing agencies so that small business men could pool their purchasing power.

Labor Minister Daley said he did not agree that chain stores "undersell the efficiently-operated small businesses."

In addition small grocery stores, for instance, gave individual service" and "a little credit here and there when urgently needed."

"The small business man is doing a good job and will be in business for a long time," Mr. Daley said.

Mr. Hunt suggested that manufacturing firms should be offered lower prices for hydro power if they were close to the generating source. The power could be more cheaply supplied and would encourage decentralization of industry.

Can Help Themselves

There was a growing tendency to look to government for solution of all problems, he added, but "people can do more to help themselves than they have actually tried to do."

Mr. Baxter, while commending the Farm Products Marketing Act, said there was a danger that farmers would use collective bargaining provisions of the act to build a price structure so high that it would erect a "tariff wall" around Ontario.

He said the government through agricultural colleges and extension agencies, should guide the farmer to use the act's provisions wisely.

He repeated the demand by Liberal leader Walter Oliver for a provincial-municipal conference to definite the fields of authority of the two levels of government.

CANADA'S AGED

Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC-Macleod) indicated he was opposed to a contributory system. He would demed what would happen in a contributory system to those who could not contribute.

He proposed an amendment that would make it possible for the committee to study the possibility of paying a pension to incurables unable to earn their livelihood.

David Croll (L-Toronto Spadina) supported Mr. Hansell's amendment and said he wanted to see the Means Test removed. He favored a system that would provide a uniform pension for all at a fixed age. He suggested it be paid out of a Social-Security fund.

Depends on Arrangements

Mr. Martin said elimination of the Means Test depends "on arrangements to be worked out with the provinces and on the kind of system that is ultimately devised."

He said he realized that some would say the committee was moving more than a "delaying" action."

He added:

"I want to say most emphatically that this is not the case.

"We consider the next steps we take in developing a comprehensive program of Old-Age security to be of vital importance to the people of our country, and we want to be sure at our ground in detail when we take these steps.

"In this connection, I would like to say again that we must view this program as one in which we are associated in a close working partnership with the provinces.

"It is important, therefore, that we should seek the solution of this problem in joint consultation with the provinces since the jurisdiction for contributory Old-Age Insurance is clearly in their hands at the present time, and since the only way that financial responsibility can be properly apportioned is as a result of discussions and agreement with them.

He said that any improved Old-Age security plan suggested should be ready for consideration at the Dominion-Provincial conference this Fall.

Giving the House a lengthy list of platforms he said that Canada's total annual Pension Bill for 293,000 pensioners now is $135,000,000.

Wants More Action

His figures showed that a $20 a month pension at 70 for all persons without means would cost $243,000,000 in 1951 and would jump to $375,000,000 by 1971.

Mr. Fleming said that instead of plastering the Commons with obstacles, the government should initiate "less talk and more action."

The Progressive Conservatives long had wanted to see a contributory scheme brought into operation. But during the last decade "it is like drawing teeth to get some action from the government."

"It has been an, uphill battle in the face of the needs of the people—people who are not getting enough on which to live."

The proposed committee would be useful in assisting those people who deserve a better deal in their old age. The government would "handcuff" the committee to block recommendations which might run counter to government policy.

Mr. Knowles said he believed the C.C.F.'s plan for over-all Social-Security system on a national contributory basis could be operated only by the federal government.

The over-all system would include provisions for the aged and the sick, for those who are about to retire and for those who are unemployed.

Auntie May Fired as Dowdy Typist, Glamor Gets Due

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London—(CP)—"Auntie May", dowdy, elderly woman with a grim smile who appeared on a civil service recruiting poster as the typical over-40 typist, has been fired.

Civil service typists, young and old, resented her. Her place is to be taken by a drawing of a 30-year-old, described by a ministry of labor official as "not bad looking."

Typists were loud in their denunciations of the "Auntie May" poster.

"I think it is an insult," said Gladys Crosby, grey-haired stenographer at the British treasury. "Just because they do not want only young women, they don't have to make us look like hags."

But Mary Cartlidge, 13, who came to the treasury straight from school, disagreed. "I think she looks like my motherly person," Mary said.

"She looks too efficient by half" said Vivien Stack of the foreign office.

All agreed that civil service typists are not dowdy. Said one: "It may not look like fashion plates, but we have got dress sense."

The ministry of labor official gave this excuse for "Auntie May's" appearance:

"We felt that if she looked too glamorous the over-40s would not apply. If she looked, like an ordinary person they would say that looks something like my type and write in.

"Anybody, we've decided to sack Auntie May and substitute another middle-aged woman, a little more glamorous."

News that the dowdy old lady was being killed off was greeted with enthusiasm by Hilda Hart general secretary of the Woman Civil Servants Association.

"Obviously the ministry of labor had to withdraw th poster after all the criticism that has been levelled at it" she said. "I hope her successor will look a little more sensible and intelligent."

Commented The Daily Telegraph in an editorial:

"Members of the women's fighting services and nurses have in the past complained that official posters misrepresented them as glamor-girls.

"Women civil servants have the opposite grievance: an official advertisement had depicted a middle aged typist."

The Telegraph described the poster as "tactless."

Says Poultry Industry Outlook Reasonably Good

Niagara Falls, Ont., March 11 (CP)— The future for the poultry farmer looks reasonably good, C. F. Luckman, St. Williams' poultry and fruit farmer, told the Veteran's Land Act "operation good earth" conference here Friday.

He attributed his optimism to the government egg support program which, he said, will stabilize the industry for years to come.

He said that now is a good time for farmer-veterans to get into the poultry business "providing they can get in right away."

Mr. Luckman is secretary of the poultry industry committee of Ontario, chairman of the Canadian Poultry Council, and president of the Norfolk County Federation of Agriculture.

Egg Demand rises

Canadian consumption of eggs, Mr. Luckman said in 1949 600,000 cases in January of this year, compared to 480,000 a year ago. He doubted that the government would have to assume the responsibility for many eggs left in storage at the settling up date. As yet unannounced.

Leading of the fourth day of the ten-day conference, H. R. Hare, Ottawa, spoke on farm records. He told the supervisors that they must encourage the veterans to have a business office even if it is only the kitchen table, and to operate their farms on a business basis.

"Accounting doesn't create profits," he said, "but it does create visions and programs which lead to profitable enterprises being initiated, and the detection of leaks in the farm economy".

TRADESMEN WILL ASSIST

Fort Erie, March 10 (CP)— Building tradesmen of the district have banded together to erect a new house for Gar Hewson's family, made homeless two weeks ago when fire levelled their home with a loss of $6,0 Members of the family, including three young children, saved nothing but the clothes they wore.

Dude College

By Oren Arnold

Mr. Thomas U. Bailey awoke at dawn. To his astonishment he had slept soundly, and to his further astonishment he felt good. He sat on the edge of the bed, shivered, even though it was only September 4, then reached for his robe and walked out onto the broad verenda.

He leaned his hand against a big post and inhaled deeply. Next he patted what should have been his manly chest and said a long "ah-h-h-h" Then — and this would have been news in New York — Mr. Thomas U. Bailey actually smiled.

"Is good morning, Senor Bailey sir!"

A friendly Mexican said that, a cook in the ranch house in which he had come out to probe the new boss.

"Wonderful Fabian; Just look there!" Mr. Bailey pointed and said "ah-h-h-h" again.

"There" was a 90-mile expanse of that western entity known as room-enough. Specifically, it began here in New Mexico, but the mesas and valleys from a hazy western point that was Texas, across the line into Chihuahua, and on around into the bold blue-red west that was Arizona. It was all a magnificent palette of colors mostly in sunrise pastels now, broken only by the distant sleeping mountains and the more alert Spanish daggers growing nearer at hand. It was all a landscape to make any man say ah-h-h-h!

"You have estomach for the many wheat cake and sausage again this morning, eh? You have good digest flow."

"Fabian, my good man, I could eat a fried horse this morning! Indigestion? Pouff! Pot-bellied Mr. Thomas U. Bailey snapped his fingers in which he. "Why does a man stay in a city and ruin his health? Why didn't I buy a ranch 10 years ago, Fabian? Or 20 years ago? What if I did make a few more manufacturing alphas? No New York penthouse has this view or this altitude or this exhilarating dryness in the air."

"Fabian, I'm uprooting myself from the east. I'm going to invite Miss Ronnie out here at once—do her good—do her good ... that artificial baby-doll by bustle and—"

"See here Fabian I want coffee this morning too. I haven't had coffee in years. And have a horse saddled for me at once. I'm going to try that riding business again this morning and—well, get going Fabian, get going!"

"Si!" Fabian grinned and departed. "Si, senor Es muy bueno!"

It was indeed, very good, to see the rehowned capitalist Thos. U. Bailey acting like a human being again, he who had come west as a touchy invalid.

It was 2 a.m. before the telegraph company could locate Miss Ronica Bailey.

The telegram, phoned first to Cloudtop ranger station thence via the Lazy Y 4 and the Cross S ranches into Pueblo, New Mexico, got into New York City about noon. But Miss allilcy, her maid reported, was up at 11 and off to fly her new plane down to Camden to see a friend. Camden reported her on the way back home and suggested they try Andre Girardeau's apartment, because Monsieur Girardeau had flown with her.

Andre's man said they were to dine on the river boat Sparling off West Point, but the boat skipper reported by wireless, that Ronica and Andre had joined some hilarious friends who came by in a new super-speed thing not much bigger or sturdier than a canoe. By patient elimination, therefore, they finally found her at 2 a.m. in The Silver Slipper dancing.

"It's from Daddy," Ronica said glancing at the telegram. "I suppose I ought to read it. Let's sit a while, Andre."

They had a table in a booth 700-odd feet above Broadway and it was — come to discover it — really pleasant just to sit down a moment and be still. For even a play girl can know fatigue eventually Ronnie ignored Andre Girardeau while she read. All at once, then, Ronnie Bailey slumped.

"Well, it's come," she announced.

Andre lifted his eyebrows, expressive always.

"He's been writing about it for days. All hopped up. Said he was much better, and had actually bought the ranch, and that I could have a bigger time there than in the east, Andre—imagine that!"

"Droll!" said Andre, smiling.

"Now he says I go neither to Vassar nor any other girls' school here, but I go this fall to—imagine this—to Pueblo U!"

Andre gave his quizzical look again.

"It's where Deemy Alken went —did you know her, Andre? And Sue Travers and—oh a lot of kids. It's a little school in New Mexico, in a ranch village, but it's so full of easterners and Californians that they call it Dude College. Founded by some wealthy couple in 1930, Daddy says he's asking a professor, some Dr. York, to wire for my transfer credits at once. Seems I am to drink up scenery and dry air, and probably dry living as well."

"You—you'll go?" Andre pointed at her with his cigaret. Andre the dark-eyed and dark-mannered bachelor, called the season's Number One war refugee.

"Of course. I—you know daddy. He wears the Bailey pants. And, darn it, Andre, I just naturally love him!"

Because 11 a.m. to 2 a.m. is a long shift for continuous strenuous pleasure seeking, Ronnie asked now to be taken home. The taxi ride wasn't far, just a few blocks over, then up Park Avenue She didn't say much en route; she just sat cuddled next to handsome Andre, her ebony hair touching his shoulder, and her violet eyes half closed. The haunting, taunting, delicate scent of her still lingered when Andre rode away from the Bailey mansion alone.

Even though it was late, Andre Girardeau did not retire when he reached his apartment. Instead he went on a careful tour of inspection about the place.

He verified that the entry door was locked and that his specially made little metal disc even covered the keyhole. He saw that no one was in the living room, the bedroom, the nook, the three closets or the kitchen, and that the fire escape was clear and the window shades down. No servant stayed here after midnight unless by special orders, so he knew he was quite alone.

He went then to the medicine chest in the bathroom and momentarily surveyed the little array of bottles there. He took down one labeled "Blaine's Compound, for Muscular Ailments, and Bruises; External Use Only." He carried the bottle to his desk, opened it and dipped a pen in it and began to write on an ordinary penny postcard.

The message required 10 minutes, but the liquid left only a watery line that promptly dried and disappeared. With his fountain pen and real ink, then, he wrote right over the same card: "Dear old Marie:

Have just sent the two books under separate cover. Hope Clay likes them too. All well here. No news. Love to the fellows.

Affectionately Yours,
Charles."

He addressed the stamped side to a woman in Washington, D.C., took the Blaine's Compound back to his bathroom, then went outside again to mail his card in person; pleased that it read sufficiently inane.

Last move before dropping it in a slot, was to brush the card carefully with the moistened corner of his handkerchief, against the possibility—however, remote —of telltale fingerprints.

Three days after Ronica Bailey received the telegram from her dad, New York's best read newspaper columnist had this opening paragraph:

"The town's most oomphatic Somebody has left the town in a huff, maybe for good. She took off yesterday in her new golden monoplane, and by now she's probably at the controls of a saddle horse with a golden mane. The location, if you want to follow cooning Ronica, is Pueblo University in New Mexico, famed more for dudes than for football. We'll bet a week's salary Ronnie's the best-looking maverick that college ever corralled. And the heart news is that she too, too devastating gentleman from Europe was successful in his rapid wooing, hence will become a cattle baron too. Exact date of the wedding is yet a secret but—stand by for further announcement."

The columnist, shrewd fellow knew whereof he spoke. Pueblo U. had been more or less taken over by the dude ranch patrons in the past few years, wherefore some dozens of America's wealthiest and loveliest girls were registered there, but Ronica Bailey's coming was a distinct sensation. "Wheeuw!" was the definite if unscholarly reaction of the University's young men.

Monday at 9 o'clock saw Ronnie tap-tap-tapping down the arched colonnade of the administration building, walking fast as always, dressed in a simple, but costly, sweater and shirt outfit. The skirt was almost knee short, convenient as well as cute. Heads smiled at everybody, including those she didn't know, and practically everybody turned to watch her. She entered the registrar's office.

There she received instructions and report at once to her faculty adviser and counsellor, a Dr. Woodrow Wesley York, Ph. D. Ronnie heard his name with definite misgivings. He sounded formidable. He sounded like—like a frame-up her daddy had arranged. Daddy hadn't liked the reputation she acquired at college last year—so much publicity to her traveling and flying and general extra-curricular activity—so he had probably connived in advance with some crusty old gent to boss her here. She climbed school to room 300.

"I am Ronica Bailey," she told the bespectacled young clerk in Dr. York's outer office.

The clerk turned from a book and spoke first without looking up. "Please sit down ..." Bailey ... Bailey ... Oh yes, Miss Bailey, here is your record card. Now it is a pleasure to welcome you officially and I trust that—"

All at once he stopped. He had looked up and gotten a full bangon view of Ronica Bailey from New York.

He is not to be blamed. Many another man had experienced the arresting pleasure of discovering Ronnie Bailey, of coming directly in front of her violet eyes. Ronnie waited. Her ebony curls flowed down behind to strike white clad shoulders and sort of splash back upward, like a black cascade. The young man in horn

Scout News

On Monday, March 6th, the Scout Auxiliaries of Belleville and vicinity were granted the distinct privilege of being addressed by Mrs. A. E. Standing, Assistant Provincial Commissioner. The meeting was held in the auditorium of Queen Mary School and Mrs. Standing was introduced by Field Commissioner Art Jackson.

Mrs. Standing in her opening remarks reminded her audience that Scouting is not just a game but a mode of living and an attitude to living. Lady Auxiliaries are a part of a great national movement designed to help train boys and youths for the future and the lads of today are the citizens of tomorrow.

She advised Auxiliaries to have the progress for each meeting thoroughly prepared and strongly advised holding an executive meeting before each regular meeting. She counselled the mothers to follow through with the teaching given their sons by their Scoutmasters and not leave it all up to the leaders, who have charge of the Scouts or Cubs for only an hour or so each week. She urged that mothers themselves take an interest in the things that pertain to Scouting and in that way form a closer link between themselves and their boys.

Mrs. Standing spoke of ways and means of enlisting the interest of new members and told the Auxiliaries that it is not enough to have someone at the door to greet each person coming in but that someone should be at the door to say goodbye to each member and to invite her to come again. She mentioned different ways in which programs could be made more interesting but warned that a Scout Auxiliary should be for Scouting and should not seek to become a cultural club, and advised that something to do with Scouting should be on the agenda at each meeting.

At the conclusion of her remarks, Mrs. Standing gave an opportunity for those present to ask questions on Auxiliary work, and very graciously answered all questions asked her. Mrs. Townsend, president of the 5th Belleville Ladies' Auxiliary, then moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Standing which was heartily applauded by all present.

The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Cooke, president of 8th Belleville Ladies' Auxiliary and three 8th Belleville Cubs aided in the enjoyment of those present by rendering several selections.

A social half-hour brought the meeting to a close.

MacARTHUR'S SON MEETS JAPANESE ROYALTY

The first meeting of Arthur MacArthur, son of the Supreme Allied Commander in Japan, and Crown Prince Akihito, son of Emperor Hirohito, is seen here as the boys met at Meiji swimming stadium at Tokyo, during an all-Japan intercollegiate swimming meet. Young MacArthur tried to start a conversation but Crown Prince was sensitive about the language and begged off, explaining his English was not very good. Left to right are Arthur MacArthur, Crown Prince Akihito and his brother Masahito. The meeting was unplanned. Mr. Matsumoto, Harvard-trained Japanese parliamentary member from Hiroshima invited Arthur to the event and led him to the box where the Emperor's sons were watching the swimming events. — Central Press Canadian.

SUGGEST STALIN MAY BE WILLING TO MEET TRUMAN

Foreign Observers Refer To Malenkov's Words

Moscow, March 13 (Reuters)—Foreign observers here today suggested that Premier Minister Stalin might be willing to meet President Truman for "peace talks" in Europe.

They attached significance to a recent statement by politburo member Georghi Malenkov expressing Soviet readiness to take part in an "honest world peace parley."

They considered the statement would provide might in letter to meet Truman, and were of the opinion that such high level talks would not exclude British participation—on the line suggested by Winston Churchill in his pre-election statements.

The foreign observers' views on the possibility of a Stalin-Truman meeting were strengthened by editorial comment in the communist party newspaper Pravda accompanying a reprint of an article in the communist Daily Worker of London last Friday. This article, by film producer Ivor Montagu, was reported to refused entry to the United States by the state department, and the world peace committee, was in the form of an open letter to Dean Acheson, United States Secretary of State.

In it Montagu President Truman for refusing to meet Stalin anywhere but in Washington.

Commenting on this point, Pravda referred to Stalin's reply to questions put to him by correspondents sent him by newspaperman Roy Howard.

Stalin then said the Soviet Union would be prepared to declare war on the United States that neither government has any intention to resort to war and that he had no objection to meeting Truman for purposes of drafting a world peace pact.

Chamber Warns Steady Rise Of Govt. Spending, High Taxes May Mean Danger to Canada

Ottawa, Mar. 13 (CP). — The Ottawa Chamber of Commerce warned in a brief presented to the government today that the steady rise in a government spending and the maintenance of high tax rates may spell danger for Canada in the future.

The annual brief was presented to Finance Minister Abbott and Revenue Minister Harris by a delegation headed by E. C. Wood of Montreal, vice-chairman of the National Business Organization.

The brief asked specifically that:

1. The government take steps to reduce still more the burden of direct and indirect taxation.

2. That a Royal Commission be appointed to study government organization and administration.

Although paying tribute to the general stability of Canadian government fiscal policy, the brief her pointed out that nearly five years after the cessation of hostilities "personal and corporate tax rates remain at peaks that have no peacetime precedent."

Tax Laws 'Burdensome'

"The tax laws and occasionally their administration are inherently burdensome, and under changing circumstances could become insupportable. In present circumstances they are protecting a vast revenue which presents a constant temptation to embark on new and costly social experiments.

"It needs to be emphasized again and again that government itself is not a direct creator of wealth and that the real savings of individuals and businesses that initiate progress. To divert these savings through government channels to what may be desirable but not essential objectives can easily endanger the taxpayer who is beneficiary."

Serious observers of social and economic development, said the chamber, are constantly watching for evidence that the incentive to work and save in all sections of the community are maintained. They also were watching that expenditures were not impaired "by an over-reaching desire for social security which can become merely a will-o'-the-wisp."

Responsibility of Individual

"The C.C.C. recognizes the responsibility of the individual in a free society to exert every effort to solve his own economic problems and deplores the growing tendency to look to government for help in every difficulty. Approval of the principles of social welfare does not mean that it is the business of the state to provide those services which properly are the responsibility of the individual.

"With a corporate tax rate of 40 per cent and personal income tax rates that range up to 80 per cent the question is obvious whether the inducements to work and invest to save more and to accept added risks are really as strong as they used to be.

BELGIANS VOTE TO BRING LEOPOLD BACK FROM EXILE

Final Decision Up to Parliament

By ALFRED CHEVAL

Brussels, March 13 (AP)— Belgians voted by a narrow majority Sunday in favor of restoring King Leopold to the throne from which he has been barred for surrendering to the Germans in the Second World War.

But the slim margin of approval—57 percent — threatened to touch off a political crisis if pro-Leopoldists actually tried to bring the handsome monarch back from exile.

A key question was whether the Liberals would join the pro-Leopoldist Social Christians (Catholics) in asking Parliament to rescind its ban on the King's return from exile in Switzerland.

The referendum Sunday was only an advisory vote. Parliament still must decide if Leopold may come back. He said he would abdicate if he got less than 55 percent of the vote.

The final official vote was:

Yes (for King's return), 2,933,352.

No (against his return), 2,131,861.

There were 131,477 ballots declared invalid.

The interior ministry said the King had carried 21 of the country's 30 district and seven of its nine provinces.

The Liberals have said they would not accept the King again if he did not bring down the cabinet of the country's three parts — Flanders in the north, Brabant in the center and Wallonn in the south. Political observers were not sure, however, the Liberals would stand by this statement.

Strong in Flanders.

In Flanders, Leopold was strong, with a majority of 72.2 percent. In Brabant, where Brussels is located, his majority was 57.5 percent. In the French-speaking Wallon area, though he carried two of the four provinces in the district, his only 40.2 percent of the total vote.

Should Liberals and Social Christians join, the coalition could command the parliamentary majority necessary to vote the King back to his throne.

Any favorable vote by the King's favor were expected to run into fierce opposition from the 29-member Socialist bloc and the Communist party, which has promised a fight against Leopold.

The Minister of Interior, Albert de Vleeschouwer, a Social Christian, said he thought the majority party should ask parliament to bring the King back from his exile in Switzerland.

Should Leopold decide to abdicate, all princes would be eligible to unite in welcoming his 19-year-old son Prince Baudouin, as King of Belgium.

Leopold has been Belgium's political scapegoat since he surrendered to the Germans in 1940 and refused to return from his government-in-exile to London. He was interned by the Nazis in Germany.

Geneva — King Leopold maintained complete silence in his suburban home near here today while Belgium voted on the issue of the monarch's return to the throne.

Sitting in the large mansion behind barred iron gates, the exiled King gave no indication of his feelings about the 57-per-cent majority he received in yesterday's voting.

Aviation Experts Inquire into Crash Of Tudor Airliner

Crowded Charter Ship Ready To Land After Dublin Trip

Cardiff, March 13 — (AP)— Aviation experts today began an inquiry here into the latest disaster involving Britain's unlucky Tudor airliners — the crash of a crowded charter ship Sunday in which 80 died.

Directed personally by the Minister of Civil Aviation, Lord Pakenham, the experts will try to find out why the big passenger plane packed with jubilant Welsh football fans careened wildly into a field as it was landing on a flight from Dublin.

Of the 78 passengers and five crew members aboard only four survived. It was the world's worst commercial air tragedy and brought the toll of deaths in Tudor planes — Britain's first post-war four-motor commercial aircraft — to 144.

The chartered plane, biggest in active service in Britain, was preparing to land in sunny weather but heavy rain and high fog-level enthusiasts aboard had gone wild with joy a few hours earlier at Wales' 6-3 victory over Ireland in the United Kingdom championship soccer.

The big four-engined plane appeared to be coming down for the Llandow Airport near here for a normal landing when, without warning, it started to bank into a climb. It smashed to earth in a field after making a right turn and sideslipping.

The huge plane did not explode or burn.

Two of the three survivors, brothers-in-law, walked out of the wreckage unaided and virtually unscathed. They had been sitting side by side in the tail of the plane.

Five Women Aboard

The third survivor was critically hurt.

There were five women aboard, one the plane's stewardess. All were killed.

Many of the dead were coal miners, scheduled to return to the pits Sunday night. They had stayed over in Dublin after the game to get the money for the trip.

Horrified relatives and friends who had crowded the airport to await the plane's return ran wildly to the crash scene.

Choking back feelings of horror, they dragged the bodies from the wreckage and left them in the fields which had been the scene of the rescued showed flickering signs of life but died shortly afterward.

Though the Tudor was built to record the good load of 64 persons, officials said it could carry many more without overloading on a short flight such as that from Dublin to Cardiff.

Chief pilot for today's inquiry was Vice-Marshal Donald Bennett, wartime chief of Pathfinder which made Sunday's ill-fated flight and a leading supporter of the Tudor.

The Tudor line of planes was developed from the famous Lancaster bomber at a cost of £11,-000,000 ($44,800,000 before devaluation.)

In February, 1947, three defects were found in the Tudor during trials, in August a trial plane crashed, killing seven persons. That September the British Overseas Airways Corporation rejected the Tudor for passenger service.

Three Defects Found

An inquiry in 1948 vindicated the Tudor. Less than three weeks later a Tudor IV, the Star Tiger, disappeared off Bermuda with 31 people aboard. A year later the sister Tudor IV, the Star Ariel, disappeared on a flight to Bermuda with 20 persons aboard.

Until Sunday, commercial aviation's largest death toll in a single accident had been the 55 killed Nov. 2, 1949, when an American plane collided with a Bolivian-piloted fighter plane at Washington, D.C., and plunged into the Potomac River.

The King and Prime Minister Attlee sent messages of sympathy to grieving Wales, and Britain's greatest voice raised grief over the late of the sports fans aboard the plane.

The King told Lord Pakenham that "the Queen and I were shocked to learn of the disaster at Sigginstone. Will you please convey our deep sympathy to the relatives of all who have lost their lives?"

Attlee said: "Every thousand to hear of the terrible accident at Sigginstone and wish to express deepest sympathy to relatives."

MOTHER AND HER THREE CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH

Montreal, March 13—(CP)—A 34-year-old mother and her three children were burned to death early today as a sudden fire swept their two-storey St. Dominique Street home.

Dead are: Mrs. Alice Desrosiers and Jacques, 10, Pierre, 7, and Yvon, three. Also dead is Mrs. Desrosier's husband, Raymond, escaped death. He was at work.

The blaze broke out about 5 a.m. EST and was extinguished in 10 minutes. Only one stream of water was used.

Fire officials said a faulty oil furnace was to blame. No estimate of damage was immediately available.

Mr. Desrosiers' brother-in-law, Guy, living in an adjoining home attempted to enter the burning building but was driven back by the flames. He suffered minor burns.

Mrs. Desrosiers was found clutching her youngest son in her arms lying on a bed with the other two with her body. Sgt.-Det. Bob Lawton described it as a grim sight.

Jacques and Pierre were rushed to hospital but were pronounced dead on arrival.

Second Confidence Test
Liberals in British House May Refuse to Vote on Housing

London, Mar. 13 (AP). — Government whips in the House of Commons breathed a little easier tonight as unofficial reports circulated that nine Liberal members would refuse to vote, or vote with Labor on a new Conservative effort to unseat Premier Clement Attlee's government.

Labor's first confidence test, the Liberals voted with the Conservatives, but the government won by 14 votes.

Tonight's test, on the touchy issue of housing, will be followed by another Tuesday on government spending. If the government loses either of them, it is expected to resign, forcing a new election.

Both are amendments to the government's resolution approving the Attlee regime's new program as outlined in the Speech from the Throne that opened Parliament last Monday. The government has designated all such amendments as motions of no confidence. A government defeat would mean the cabinet's resignation and a new election.

Labor, with only a six-seat majority in the Commons, already has suffered one such vote of confidence. Last Thursday they beat back a Conservative motion of censure by a comfortable 14-vote majority.

Health Minister Aneurin Bevan will lead the government's fight on the housing amendment. Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, will be the government spokesman when spending is debated.

Labor has 315 seats in the House, the Conservatives and allied parties 297. Nine Liberals voted with the Conservatives on the steel issue. The remainder of the House consists of two Irish Nationalists, an Independent, and the Speaker.

MANY DISCOVERIES OF URANIUM MADE IN UNITED STATES

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

Washington, March 13 (AP)— The United States' supply of uranium for atom bombs may be far bigger than most people think.

Whispers and even announcements of new discoveries in recent months hint that enough of this power-packed element probably has been located in the U.S. to strengthen this country's hand considerably in international dickering.

Prediction in Colorado

The U.S. still may have to lean heavily on Canadian and Belgian uranium mines for some time. They have been the main supply sources right along. And talks are going on secretly with the Belgians about continuing the flow of uranium from the Belgian Congo.

The atomic energy commission says "a large number" of uranium finds were reported in the U.S. in the last year and a few may be worth working. As a matter of fact, there already is some production in Colorado.

But the biggest boost for hopes of stepping up the uranium output at home was announcement a few weeks ago from mining men at San Diego, Wyoming.

They said what is believed to be the largest deposit of uranium ore and rare earths in the world is where in the world has been found near shore in the Bear Lodge Mountains.

Geologists and engineers say the deposit is one of the few that lend itself to relatively cheap method of scooping ore out of an open pit. There was no indication when operation could begin.

There is also no evidence the A.E.C. is slackening efforts to line up additional foreign sources of uranium. There have been talks with representatives of Britain and Canada about sharing the responsibility of getting out uranium in some gold ores in South Africa.

Britain also, is in on discussions that began several weeks ago with a Belgian mission. Under the set-up, Britain and the United States made a deal with the Belgians to take the Congo uranium output.

U. S. State Department officials say this agreement, the exact terms of which have been kept secret, still is in force. The fact it is under discussion suggests that Belgium wants a revision, perhaps to give her a higher price for uranium and perhaps for other reasons.

Pheasant Swims In Niagara River With Ducks Report

Port Dalhousie, March 13 — (CP) — Constables William Wedd and Lee Raymond said today they saw a pheasant swimming in the Niagara River with a number of wild ducks last Friday.

Police said they had they spotted the bird first from a cruiser, then approached on foot.

"We watched the cock pheasant for some time. It was about the same as the ducks, hopping off a cake of ice into the water, swimming and buddling with the other ducks."

Thinks More Action and Less Talk Needed for Anglo-Canadian Trade

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

What is everybody's business is nobody's business.

W. G. Abel, Canadian advertising executive who has spent many years of his life promoting British industry, and who has just returned from Europe on a four-month's visit to Britain, fears that the old saying may be applied with considerable force to current efforts to expand Anglo-Canadian trade.

People on both sides of the ocean, he states, talk enthusiastically about expanded trade and the necessity for it, and many committees are being set up to take it. But he thinks something more is needed.

He thinks some British industries may be too defeatist regarding the possibilities of getting a permanent place in this market, and that perhaps Canadians need to be told more forcibly of their own self-interest in the matter.

He envisages the possibility of a reversal of the "Canada calling" campaign of the late '30s when Canadian goods were being pushed in Britain. It might go along the line:

"Have you buy a British product you help Britain to buy from you."

Mr. Abel emphasized that only a relatively small switch in the direction of Canadian imports would go far to create the dollars Britain requires.

Mr. Abel, who as Col Abel was director during the war of public relations of Canada overseas, gave the following as two of the reasons for hesitancy by British firms in coming here:

First, in many cases it is easier to sell similar lines with less profit in sterling, even if it doesn't earn dollars for Britain. Secondly, some firms fear that if they go into the North American market they will be driven out again by a jump in tariffs.

Perhaps the most experience of one British firm which does business here is typical of the rest. The firm is Tootal, Broadhurst, Lee Co., Ltd., textiles and men's haberdashery, which was the only British exhibitor at last year's Canadian Men's apparel fair in Toronto.

Their stand was among the busiest and Donald Macallum, general sales manager in Canada, commented:

"If you give good goods, the right price and good delivery, this market will love you. What we had to show had an excellent reception, backed up by orders.

"Those who prefer easier markets in other parts of the world are taking a short-term view. This is a market for long-term planning and can be tremendous. We hold it "priority No. 1."

Man Suffers Head Wounds From .22 Bullets

Kemptville, March 13—(CP)—One man suffered slight head injuries and another is being held by police following a "grudge" shooting in Oxford township near here Sunday night.

Injured was Edward McGovern, who was said to have been shot twice in the head by bullets from a .22 rifle. He was given medical treatment at hospital and allowed to return home.

Police said the shooting was the result of an "old grudge". They refused to name the victim of the second man, who was arrested after the shooting, pending a full mental examination.

Oakville, March 13 — (CP) — Nine children were treated in hospital and Donald Macallum, general sales manager in Canada, commented:

"If you give good goods, the right price and good delivery, this market will love you. What we had to show had an excellent reception, backed up by orders.

"Those who prefer easier markets in other parts of the world are taking a short-term view. This is a market for long-term planning and can be tremendous. We hold it"priority No. 1."

Windsor Police Bd. Orders Probe Of Allegations

Windsor, Ont., March 13 (CP)— The Windsor police commission today ordered a public enquiry "into allegations of corruption recently made against our police officers."

A statement ordering the enquiry to begin as soon as possible" follows several closed meetings of the three-man commission instigated after charges by Magistrate J. A. Hanrahan that Windsor police powers were abused. Deputy Asaef to operate "unhampered" by his major illegal liquor selling operations.

Assef was sentenced last week to the maximum of six months in jail on conviction of keeping liquor for sale. Court testimony was that Assef's alleged sales during a 90-day period prior to Dec. 31, 1949 produced $100,000 in sales with a profit on each of $1.

Bamangwato Tribe Will be Told Chief Won't be Home for Five Years

Serowe Bechuanaland, March 13—(AP)—British High Commissioner Sir Evelyn Baring is scheduled to tell the Bamangwato tribe today their chief won't be home for five years.

It's a question, though, who is going to hear his announcement.

The tribal chieftain-designate, Seretse Khama, touched off widespread controversy when he married a white English girl, Ruth Williams. The British government recently announced he would not be permitted to return to his capital here for five years.

Sir Evelyn called a tribal meeting for today to give tribal leaders official notification of the British action. A tribal spokesman said today the Bamangwato elders would boycott the session. They could not attend such a meeting, he said, in the absence of their chief, Seretse.

Government officials said the Kgotla would be held on schedule, despite the boycott.

In London Saturday Seretse collapsed while addressing a meeting of his supporters. A glass of water and a few minutes rest revived him. The meeting voted to petition the King against the government's action.

A Church Street resident who has made a pet of one of the furry furballs says he has fed for the first time since early winter on Sunday. It appeared to be sleek and in good condition.

ANOTHER MONDAY OF SNOW SHOVELLING

There "aint no such thing as a shovel-less Monday any more" griped a householder this morning. During the night a steady snow had fallen to the depth of two or three inches, bringing out city snow plows, private shovels and winter-weary tempers. Temperatures were moderate, however, and the prediction is a continuance of the comparative mild weather.

Executive Tenders Rockets Wind-up Banquet at Queen's Hotel; Awards Distributed

President Jack Yanover told the Junior Rockets at a season wind-up banquet in the Queen's Hotel last night that they would have to behave themselves in training. "Keep regular hours and listening to the coach and manager if they intended to go further in the season," he declared. "Some of you will be going to 'A' and you cannot be said and from there you have a chance to hit the professional ranks. "It is up to yourselves, but you can't expect to get any place without condition."

Executive member Mac Robb agreed with President Yanover and adding advice of his own to the young hockey players, who were present in force, he urged them always following a comparatively successful season in the second year of operating under the Belleville Hockey Association banner.

Honored as the "Player of Distinction" during the season the team was presented with a replica of the Calvert trophy by company representative Ken Murphy who made the presentation on behalf of Bill Calvert. Receiving the trophy young Semark was told that his name would be inscribed on the trophy now on display in a local merchants window.

Wins Windbreaker

Winner of the title of the most valuable player on the Rockets, captain Don Hogan was told that a windbreaker from the Chicago Black Hawk, Belleville Junior "A" team's sister club, Graham and Jud Semark were presented by the outstanding goal keeper in the Eastern Ontario O.H.A. "B" group with least number of goals scored against him Bob "Mayor" Tripp received a token of appreciation from president Jack Yanover.

Rockets' manager, Bill Cook, praised coach Dave Cowley for handling the team after Ken McNaught gave up the coaching job through pressure of business. In tendering words of thanks manager Cook hoped that coach Cowley would be back as the team's mentor next year.

Given Honorable Mention

Orliff Lloyd received honorable mention for his effort in managing the Bantam league. The genial "Boller" thanked his assistants, Don Barrett, Dan Cowley, Don Hogan and Clare Williamson who each coached a team in the youngsters' circuits.

In his absence Rockets' trainer Lum Carson, was tendered hearty vote of appreciation while Speedy St. Louis and his son Gordon Jr. Bantam on the team were thanked for helping out during the season.

"Tooie" Hubbard who managed the Midgets team gave a resume of his team's season and presented the trophy young Semark was told that his name would be inscribed on the trophy now on display in a local merchants window.

Child Burned To Death While Lying in Crib

Kingston, March 13 (CP) — Linda Hansen, 18-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hansen, was burned to death in her crib Sunday night in a fire that destroyed the Hansen farm home at Harrowsmith, 17 miles northwest of her.

An explosion that resulted when 16-year-old Dennis Hansen attempted to fill a gasoline lamp started the blaze, Dennis, left in charge with his 17-year-old sister, Joan, herded three younger children from the kitchen and and dashed back into rescue the baby.

Set by a wall oi ire, he attempted to break into her bedroom from an outside window but again was driven back by the flames. He received burns to his hands and hair and had both feet frozen.

Townspeople attempted to quell the blaze with snow.

The parents, at Kingston visiting Mrs. Hansen's mother in hospital, did not learn of the tragedy until they returned later in the evening.

FRACTURES SKULL IN FALL

Toronto, March 13 (CP)—Seriously injured in a fall on icy pavement at Malvern, Mrs. Harry Smart was reported in improved condition in Hospital Sunday night following a cerebral operation. She suffered a fractured skull in the accident and was brought by ambulance from the Nursing district town for treatment here.

'Sockless' George's War Training Proved Handy in Brush With Cobra

George (Sockless) Ponsford, internationally known competitive swimmer, one of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in World War II, who has disdained the use of protective apparel since he was a moppet, discovered recently that his bomb-throwing training acquired doing his army stretch, is a good thing to remember.

The other day, "Sockless" and his bride of a few months were on a hiking trip in the mountains near their South African home in Durban. According to a letter received here, George and his wife "were boulder-hopping up a stream when I saw ahead of me a three-foot yellow cobra on a rock. Fortunately I killed, hood, distended, all ready to strike."

Hits Snake.

"Sockless" and his one-lady platoon immediately deployed. From cover, George hurled a large rock with unerring aim. It hit the snake on the head, knocking it into the water. But a search did not reveal the "body". These cobras, George writes, are fast swimmers. "Well, Cobra, they couldn't have caught me if I had to 'take out'."

Mr. and Mrs. Ponsford planned to visit Canada for the regimental reunion this year, but have postponed the trip till 1954 in order to take in the Empire Games. "It will be only a little bit later, the only thing that would bring me back to Canada is the regiment. Otherwise there is far too much income tax and snow for me."

They are living in a private hotel at 15 Cadogan Drive, Durban North, Durban, South Africa.

"We pay 22 quid a month for full board, plus the usual complement of ants and cockroaches."

George is employed as a carpenter, getting three shillings, eighteence an hour for a 41-hour week. All wages here are called living if one shilling seven pence an hour tacked on. By taxi-driving pay is roughly eleven pounds a week."

Building trades in South Africa have a two-week holiday at Christmas time. To overcome wage deficit, tradesmen usually double up, put aside by the trades for the holiday. This amounts to 32 pounds "bonus" for the holiday.

Building Trade Uncertain

Ponsford states the building trade in South Africa, or at least Durban appears to have an excellent future. All permits have been abolished. Money is scarce and financial institutions appear hesitant to loan money for building purposes. Certain of living, baths, etc. are hard to procure. Labor has been reduced to 41 hours per week.

South Africans, "Sockless" writes, "drink liquor and beer or alcoholic beverages moderately, not like Canadians who drink to get drunk." The principal liquor is brandy which sells at nine shillings sixpence and beer sells at slings sixpence a bottle. Beer is eleven-pence a pint. A well known Canadian brand retails at two shillings the bottle. The majority of citizens consume two or three drinks between five and six o'clock (p.m. that is) and let it go at that.

Ponsford says he has 43 correspondents in Canada and gets around to writing them at least once a year.

Heater Fumes Nearly Take Life of Tailor

Rendered unconscious by the fumes from charcoal burners being used to keep out the zero-below weigh scales, J. G. Harrington, proprietor of Harrington's Tailor Shop, 29 Market Street, was taken to hospital on Saturday. He was placed under an oxygen tent and recovered consciousness three hours later.

Mr. Harrington's tailor shop is in part of the market weigh scale building which was in use here being effected to the weigh scales. Charcoal burners had been placed under the scales to thaw out the mechanism and fumes from the charcoal had seeped up through the floor.

Having previously been bothered by the fumes Mr. Harrington had opened the door and window but had closed them and was seated on a table near the stove when he was overcome. He was unconscious on the floor when a peace-by coarcred to enter the store and find him. Police were notified and he was rushed to hospital.

Today Mr. Harrington is none the worse for his experience with the exception of a black eye and a skinned forehead which he suffered when he fell to the floor.

But a few rats underneath the weigh scale building fared somewhat worse. Today it was reported a few dead rats had been discovered underneath the building —apparently killed by the charcoal fumes.

Red Cross Drive Will Receive Added Impetus

With unseasonable weather retarding the opening week canvass in the current Red Cross campaign, the drive for funds by the Belleville and district branch will receive increased impetus during the next few days, it was stated today by J. E. Shortt, local campaign manager.

Campaign objective for Belleville and the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward has been set at $13,000, this amount of money being necessary if the Red Cross is to carry on its peacetime activities.

First Collections

Although the returns for the districts covered last week showed satisfactory results in most cases, the amount of $1,977.95 received up to Saturday is a long way from the objective of $13,000. It is expected that better progress will be made this week. Official report on every hand there is good will and a desire to support the of the Canadian Red Cross.

Organization for the campaign in the city and district has been thorough and the results now are left with the public. Respondents are urged to give these volunteer workers a favorable reception and make their contribution as generous as possible. The public tide has receded in the time the wide service of the Red Cross.

The national objective of the Red Cross this year is $3,000,000. This money will be used in conducting veterans' services, maintaining Red Cross lodges and outpost hospitals, volunteer nursing services, blood transfusion services, outdoor recreation, swimming and water safety instruction, first aid, welfare and work of an emergency nature.

Eleven Firms Represented at District Meeting

Plant managers, superintendents, foremen and key men of industries of the Belleville district were at the Industrial Safety and Prevention Association held a dinner meeting at Napanee recently. Thirty-five members, representing 11 firms in the Bay of Quinte district attended.

Purpose of the meeting was A. J. Doddington, assistant general manager of the I.S.P.A. whose talk was entitled "Experience—What it is Worth". The speaker was introduced by W. J. Moffat and was thanked by W. Bell of the Gibbard Furniture Shops Ltd.

In his talk Mr. Doddington referred to the efficiency of the Ontario Compensation Act, the Compensation Board and several recent hospitals, but asked if it would not be more profitable if industry were able to brag about their ability to prevent accidents and their ability to do away with necessity for artificial arms, legs and eyes.

Urged to Use Goggles

In urging safety measures for workers, the speaker noted that employees have not yet learned to make proper use of protective devices. Injury records prove that goggles will protect the eyes, but this lesson had not been learned. Last year industrial workers lost 48 eyes.

During 1949 there were 179,894 accidents, including 311 fatalities reported to the Workmen's Compensation Board by industries in Ontario.

Whether industries of Napanee, Belleville, Deseronto, Picton, Trenton and surrounding areas are prepared to prevent accidents will depend entirely on the attitude taken by the plants and the value that is placed on human lives, time, dollars and cents.

MacLean Pleads Innocent in Death Of MacKinnon

Sydney, N. S., March 13 (CP) — Dan Jack MacLean pleaded innocent today to the murder of Joseph MacKinnon, 65-year-old Sydney registrar of voters.

The 63-year-old former mayor of this Cape Breton steel town boomed out his plea in a loud voice as he went on trial before Chief Justice J. L. Ilsley and Nova Scotia Supreme Court jury.

MacLean was re-elected for his fourth term as mayor just 13 days before the Dec. 18 slaying.

The Crown claims MacLean killed MacKinnon, a cripple, by deliberately running him down with a car in an alley.

Daniel Cochrane, 60-year-old Glace Bay baker, was chosen foreman of the all-male jury. The jury also included two steelworkers, a coal miner, an automotive leader, a garageman, a machinist, a book-store owner, two merchants, a blacksmith and a clerk.

Crown Prosecutor Donald Finlayson, prosecuting his first murder trial, has indicated he will call 40 witnesses in the trial which is expected to last at least three full days.

SPANISH STOWAWAYS WILL FACE CHARGES IN SPAIN

Vancouver, March 13 (CP) — Zonrique Montenegro and Angel Parra are en route to their homeland in Europe, they escorted from the Spanish Navy. Immigration officials said Sunday the youthful seamen, who arrived here as stowaways last July aboard a British ship, left Friday for New York, the first leg of the deportation journey.

ECONOMIC SURVEY IN NEWFOUNDLAND

St. John's, Nfld., March 13 (CP) — The first formal step in an economic survey of Newfoundland was taken at a special cabinet meeting during the weekend, Premier Smallwood and his ministers met with M. J. Madigan, of New York, representative of an organization headed by Nelson Rockfeller.

COURTESY IN COURTROOM

Toronto, March 13 — (CP) — Courtesy in the courtroom is most desirable, if only for the reason that conduct otherwise might not work to the advantage of a lawyer and his client, said Fred G. Mackay, Owen Sound barrister, at the Ontario sectional meeting of the Canadian Bar Association here Saturday night.

COMMON BOND NEEDED

Toronto, March 13 — (CP) — "There will be no real peace until a common bond unites all peoples everywhere," said J. Benjamin Schmoker, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. committee for friendly relations among foreign students, at a meeting here to launch the campaign for funds for the Y's World Service Committee.

Pastors Open Series of Services At Grace Chapel

"What hinders a revival is the child of God that has something in his life that is displeasing to God," stated Rev. Laurie Price on Sunday morning at Grace Chapel.

He went on to outline some of the things that stop a revival. First, was the spirit of indifference that has crept into so many churches today. "When we hear the minister preach we should take the word of God and apply it to our own hearts," he stated, "and not say that it was meant for some other person. Too often we say 'isn't it too bad Mr. So-and-so wasn't out to church this morning; the sermon was meant just for him.' The word of God is for all of us, as well as for the Hebrews and Romans.

When there is the spirit of selfishness. People are content to look after their own interests and not look after the things of God. But our hearts should be so filled with the spirit of God that we will love other people and welcome them in the name of the Lord.

Sit Back and Watch

"There is also the spirit of self-satisfaction that gets us into a rut," said Mr. Price. "We get satisfied with ourselves and sit back and watch others do the work. This spirit of ease lulls us into an easy" attitude and we make excuses that we can't be attending all the meetings and go out to visit like we used to do. But if we look to Jesus He will give us the strength and ambition to do our share and get out of our little groove.

"It is time that we showed people that God still moves. God is waiting for the altar to be relieved. He does not always move in the same way but He always uses our prayer life. We need to put our prayers into action after we pray and go after the unconverted. It is not an easy battle today to live for God. We do not war against flesh and blood but against the powers of darkness. Elijah had a man subject to like passions as we are, but he prayed and God sent down the fire that consumed the sacrifice on the rebuilt altar. This proved Elijah's God was the true God and not Baal who had not heard the cries of the priests of Baal. There is a fire that was poured out on the day of Pentecost were never taken back."

Evangelistic Message

Rev. Hope Smith preached a strong evangelistic message at the evening service. Taking his text from Jonah he told how that prophet had fled from the presence of the Lord when he was not willing to go to Ninevah as God had commanded him. "But you cannot hide from God," warned the preacher, "if God speaks to your heart and you do not obey then you will have no peace and joy and your pathway will lead downward. You always go down when you flee from God."

Rev. Mr. Smith, who is an accomplished musician, sang two solos, accompanying himself on the piano-accordian. Mrs. L. Price gave the evening prayer. There were large congregations in attendance to greet the new pastors.

Not Much Money Would be Saved By Suggestion

Ottawa, March 13 — (CP)—A Bell Telephone Company official said today he doesn't think much money would be saved by sending out bills every two months instead of the present once-a-month.

John Cleugh, Bell comptroller, made the statement during his ninth hour on the witness stand in the Board of Transport commissioners hearing of the company's application for a 20-per-cent average increase in Ontario and Quebec telephone rates.

Mr. Cleugh said that at one time bills had been sent out every six weeks, then quarterly and finally once a month. He expressed the opinion that the once-a-month system was the best.

Under questioning, Mr. Cleugh said Bell has 1,200,000 subscribers in the two central provinces.

Lovell Carroll counsel for Montreal, one of the cities opposing the application, suggested that if postage, envelopes and the cost of printing each bill comes to five cents, it would cost Bell $56,000 a month to send the bills out.

He then suggested that if the expenditure were made once every two months, there would be something of a saving.

A detailed examination of Mr. Cleugh on Bell accounting practices continued during the morning sitting, and Mr. Carroll was gently rebuked at one point by the Assistant Chief Commissioner, Hugh Wardrope.

Mr. Wardrope said the close questioning of Mr. Cleugh was a waste of time on occasions. He thought Montreal counsel was putting "the cart before the horse." Mr. Cleugh, even as complied witness, could be expected to know all the details of the company's operations.

Oil Tankers Ready for Sea

Sarnia, March 13 — (CP) — Eight Imperial oil tankers in winter quarters here were at full staff today. For the first time since navigation closed in December, 1942 officers and men were aboard the eight vessels and took their initial meal of the season on ships at anchor.

Steam is up on vessels as last minute pre-season details are looked after.

Winter refitting is practically completed. Installation of radar in five of the ships (and one at Port Dalhousie) has been completed at a cost of around $50,000. Tankers so equipped are the Imperial Cornwall, Imperial Simcoe, Imperial Windsor, Imperial London and Imperial Collingwood, tied up here, and the Imperial Kingston at Port Dalhousie.

The Imperial Sarnia, newest of the fleet, was also equipped when built a little over a year ago.

ANGLO-FRENCH FRIENDSHIP

Ties which bind Britain and France were proven strong as the President of the French Republic Vincent Auriol and his wife were the guests of Britain last week. London's crowds tendered a magnificent reception to the guests from France and to the great opportunity of a demonstration of kindliness towards the French people as it must have cheered both Briton and Frenchman in a way when there is concern over world relations.

The farewell as the President and Mme. Auriol drove through the streets of London indicated the abiding quality of the friendly relations of these two great peoples. Mr. Auriol spoke of the British and French as "two peoples, guardians of a great hope." These words express the attitude of the British and French peoples as the past has shown and the future will prove.

ABC'S OF TRAFFIC SAFETY

"The ABC's of Traffic Safety for young children will teach the younger children of the elementary schools of Ontario in a manner which cannot fail to impress the lessons they should learn for their safety in this motor age.

A booklet prepared and produced for the Ontario Department of Highways by Public Relations Services Limited has been sent out to the principals of schools. Copies will be distributed in the lower grades of the schools.

The Highways Minister, Hon. Thomas Louis Doucett stated in the legislature the other day that "we hope it will help protect youngsters by teaching them the basic rules of traffic safety and will also help to focus public attention on the importance of safe driving and walking habits."

The starting fact which must be realized by everyone as noted by the Minister as he referred to the increase in motor traffic volume. There has been progress, he indicated, in preventing an increase in child deaths and injuries proportionate to the postwar increase in traffic, yet traffic accidents are still killing more children than the worst disease of childhood.

There have been 1506 children of 14 years of age and under killed by traffic accidents in Ontario since the beginning of 1937. In that year, 126 children were killed and 4,399 were injured. Children alone in 1949 took 115 children a year, with 125 killed in 1949. Child fatalities make up approximately one-sixth of total traffic losses. The result of a study of this child accident problem shows that school prevention programs do help to prevent accidents among older children, but a big proportion, more than one-third, are children on foot who are killed in traffic, are less than nine years of age.

The problem of child toll in motor traffic remains a special problem, despite the strict enforcement of the laws, campaigning for safer driving, and protecting children by serious safety measures.

The booklet "The ABC's of Traffic Safety" illustrates the main causes of accidents to children and illustrates them individually. The safety lessons are put in rhymes so that the children may remember them. As the children are to color the illustrations it is natural to expect that the lessons taught will sink into the young minds and be remembered.

Saving these young lives at a time when the youngsters need every help and protection is one of the great tasks facing the authorities and the driving public.

Hon. Mr. Doucett pleads for a safety-conscious public for the best means of defence against the rising tide of traffic toll. He showed that last year with an estimated 2.8 million miles increase in amount of travel, there was an increase of 30 per cent in vehicles and drivers, and a 69 per cent increase in U. S. vehicle entries. Death losses were up three and a half per cent and non-fatal injuries increased 20 per cent.

The Minister pointed out to his fellow members of the legislature that they have many opportunities of influencing the public towards safer driving habits and he has no doubt they will use their opportunity to aid in this cause.

As for the "ABC's of Traffic Safety" for little children there can be no doubt that the booklet will have a powerful influence on the young children and aid greatly in prevention of death and injuries for the illustrations appeal to the eye and mind.

MEASLES

Each age has its troubles; of that there's no doubt.
To all, then springs something to worry about.
In childhood it's fever; in old age it's pain.
Not long, young or old, can we be care-free remain.
In cities it's rats and on farms
it is weasels.
Now Ellen Elizabeth's down
with the measles.

From crade to grave there is subject for fear;
Even innocent childhood the Lord doesn't spare.
Today, or perhaps a healthy boy jumps.
Tomorrow the doctor will say:
It's the mumps."
With blotches like those on surrealists' easels,
Now Ellen Elizabeth's down
with the measles.

We wonder why earache should children beset,
Yet earache is something they all seem to get.
Though fever's a danger sign
all mothers dread,
Every child spends a few weeks of childhood in bed.
Now Ellen Elizabeth nowhere is going
So long as one spot of the measles is showing.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

FIFTY MILLION FRENCHMEN CAN BE WRONG

Starting tonight, no French champagne will be sold at my night club in New York, and patrons who request same will be politely asked for domestic fizzwater —which is a lot easier on the pocketbook.

What gives?

The French Communists and Coca-Cola—that's what gives.

As you probably know, the French National Assembly recently passed a bill which, without naming the product, would prohibit the bottling and sale of Coca-Cola in France and its colonies. Two pressure groups were responsible for this measure — the wine interests which feared that the soft drink might cut into their profits, and an opportunity to take a crack at the United States.

Sulking lovers to a word, the Commie paper L'Humanite, unleashed a campaign against the "Americanization" of the country, loud-mouthing that the basic syrup is highly toxic and will turn La Belle France into a nation of "coca-holics." At the same time, the right-wing Parisfronting for the fizz merchants, began to blab about the dangers of saccharin and the usually sensible Le Monde warned that "the Trojan Horse of Fruit is at stake."

Before I go any further, let me get it into the record that I'm not a big Coke drinker and never have been since I left the Coca-Cola company, As far as I'm concerned, the beverage is strictly for children. My favorite product like Orange Crush 7-Up or Dr. Brown's Celery Tonic. Furthermore, under normal circumstances I wouldn't even be mad at the French who have lobbied to the only doing to Coca-Cola what our butter producers have been doing to the French cheese, I guess.

But the circumstances 'aren't ordinary, and the usually intelligent French must have blown their fuses when they decided to ban Coca-Cola. It's a made-to-order excuse for yelping "down with American imperialism"—the same sleazy slogan used by Commies everywhere to divert attention from the accomplishments of the Marshall Plan.

As I see it, this legislative lunacy is based on two arguments, one medical, the other economic. Let's consider them in that order.

The medical argument boils down to the contention that the syrup used in the manufacture of Coca Cola is derived from bug-juice and melted razorblades, and is liable to cause a variety of ailments ranging from pink-eye to rigor mortis. Well the best scientific brains in Jabberwocky is the statement made by James J. Farley, roving ambassador for the soft drink company:

"Coca-Cola wasn't injurious to the health of the American soldiers who liberated France from the Nazis so that the Communists deputies could be in session today."

As for the argument that the distribution of Coca-Cola would create unemployment and cut into profits—that, too, is a lot of bottletops. The set-up of the Coca Cola Export Corporation is such that the entire manufacture and sale would be carried out by French personnel, on French territory, and under French supervision. It is also called "exploitation" another way, it would be the beginning of a new French industry, as indeed it is already a big one, judging from the fact that more than 100,000,000 advertising per cent of all their income comes from the parent company in the United States.

From where I cogitate, it boils down to this: the French people should be denied a choice between Coke and vino only because the Communists are backed by the blind-brain Blighters, don't like the country Coca-Cola originated in.

Messieurs et Mesdames, two can play at boycott as well as you can. And I predict that the French champagne will be sold in my night club when the last bottle of wine against our home product is lifted.

Moreover, I'm hereby appealing to liquor stores, hotels, restaurants and other French proprietors all over the country to follow suit—and to wire or write me when they do. And if they'd like to explain the boycott to their customers, so much the merrier in fact reprints of this column —of course crediting this paper. I can remember, Messieurs et Mesdames, if that doesn't work we can get really tough and stop buying your French postcards.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TALK TO ME!

A friend called me by phone the other day and merely said: "Come on over and talk to me"; this home-body has been there a few minutes to reach, it was easy to say that I would be right over and so we were very soon in "good talk". Being a very intelligent man, and a deep thinker, I greatly honored, we were both refreshed in mind and spirit.

Increasingly with the cumulation of the years we like to talk to people, whom we love and honor, come to us and talk, when we are in a receptive mood it is also so heartening. I had one recently who came to me and we had a talk. It was a delight, for our interests were of a common sort and it was easier to write after he had gone.

During a spell of many years, there has not been a single letter at my office, a man whose great knowledge of men and books has always been an inspiration to me, I never mattered whether I was in my room or not. I could always dismiss what was at hand and give him my time. I have found that mattered "beyond the call of duty". But now that friend will call no more. He took his own life. He was a bibliophile and had many books with his imprint upon them. Such men, indeed, are often sent that he knew would interest me, and many were the days when he called again fame and fortune. I suspect, however, that he found me a good listener and loved to talk to him!

How lonely it is that we allow any sense of values to thin out, or possibly to disappear altogether. How strange it is that we let urge that comes to.us for something more and look to us for understanding, sympathetic talk. A heart-to-heart talk is the finest we ever be too busy for such!

I shall hope to visit with those I have left, for so long as I live, for the main reason that I like to talk to people — even though these people I shall never see or know! We are all akin, have some longings and hungers to a very great extent, friends another, but it is that my thoughts and memories are wrapped up in words and are sent out and wide, wending their way to someone to talk to!

Commutes Daily To See Bride

Ogdensburg, N.Y., March 13 — (AP)— James Roman is commuting daily between his restaurant in this northern New York City and his Grecian bride in Canada.

Roman and Miss Anna Hasapoglanal of Athens, Greece, were married in Montreal a year ago. The couple met the first time when Mrs. Ranos arrived in Saskatchewan city after crossing the Atlantic by plane.

County Judge John J. Living-ston said Roman said that he has appealed to representative Clarence E. Kilburn (Rep., N.Y.) and to the latter's immigration service approval for Mrs. Ramos to enter the United States.

Vice Rampart In Windsor Says U.S. Paper

Detroit, March 13 (CP)— The Detroit Free Press says today in the first of a series of articles on vice and gambling in Detroit and Windsor that the Canadian city "is wide open."

The paper says the three-article series is the result of a survey made by one of its staff writers. The first appears on page one under the title, "Vice is rampant in Windsor again."

"American money is being poured into Windsor from Detroit in a move to corrupt the police force, says. "Gambling and vice are rampant. There are race bookies, numbers and other gambling games, six-hours drinking spots and prostitution."

The papers says also that "this condition apparently was obtained with the Free Press exposé of gambling conditions in Detroit last fall."

HOW TO GET A JOB AND HOLD IT

Why are some men successful and others not?

There is of course a vast difference in people and in the equality of their personalities. Any person of reasonable might be given why some men go so quickly to the top and others never seem to get started. But in the careers of almost all successful men this circumstance seems to be present. That the successful are always those who are willing to do a bit more than the job requires.

The clock was set by the to the end of his life a poorly paid clerk. The chap who has his overalls off before the quitting whistle stops in overalls the whole of his career. But the young fellow who is so interested in his job that he is devoting very and small property of time to get the job better done, will get to the top with a swiftness which will leave the less energetic brethren blinking. An employer likes to pay out money to an employee who is personally loyal in very attitude and doesn't plug at his bit to improve himself and what he does.

Some men are never satisfied with their jobs. Others are never satisfied with the way they do their jobs. The latter get the big positions and the high salaries.

VIRUS PNEUMONIA IS DIFFERENT

A victim of pneumonia is usually pictured as a person with a high fever, gasping for breath, slightly blue in the face, and exhibiting great prostration. That picture is accurate enough in a severe case of lobar pneumonia, although cases of lesser severity produce lesser symptoms.

Virus pneumonia is pneumonia in its fullest sense but it differs in many respects from the bacteria-caused variety known either as lobar pneumonia or bronchopneumonia. The distinction between the latter two is that in lobar pneumonia, a whole section —or lobe—of the lung is affected while in bronchopneumonia the lungs are not involved. In bronchopneumonia, the process is 'patchy' and may involve several small sections of the bronchial tubes.

Virus pneumonia organisms do not follow the usual pattern — either as to symptoms or effects in the body. It is also called "atypical" pneumonia, meaning not typical.

Virus pneumonia usually follows a preliminary respiratory infection conforming to the "flu" type—if it develops at all. The initial "flu" symptoms may vary from those of a cold (the most common cold) accompanied by malaise, (indisposition — fatigue (lethargy — a feeling of general or well-being), to feverishness, pains in the head, sometimes muscles, headache, racking cough and prostration.

Virus pneumonia may be suspected when one has CRI from which he does not seem to recover. The "cold which hangs on" is another way of expressing it. (It is not to be confused with the

News of Trenton

Wounding Case Adjourned Until March 31

Trenton (Special) — A preliminary hearing was held in the Trenton police court, Friday afternoon in conjunction with the shot-gun wounding of William Lambert, Wooler Road.

Mr. Lambert was shot in the leg as a result of an argument last October 29th. Charged with causing bodily harm is John Blakely, 39 Cedar St. Trenton.

Dr. G. W. Telfer of Trenton, who attended Mr. Lamoert on the night of the incident, testified that he administered first aid to the injured man and then ordered him removed to the Belleville General Hospital. At the hospital it was found that Lambert suffered from a compound fracture of the left leg.

Constable Stenburg testified that when he arrived at 70 Cedar Street, he found Lambert, struggling to rise, on the front lawn. Several pools of blood were in evidence on the kitchen floor and an empty wine bottle was found on the kitchen table.

When called to the witness stand Mr. Lambert seemed unable to make any statement.

He did, however testify that he had been drinking heavily the night of Oct. 29th. When asked if he had trouble recalling events after he had been drinking wine Mr. Lambert answered, "Yes."

In view of the fact that Mr. Lambert was unable to testify further because of what appeared to be a severe case of nervousness, court was adjourned until 31st of March.

CHAMBER WARNS

'Dangers to Progress Real"

"These considerations do not preclude a genuine concern with such social security measures. But if a broad program of social security through high taxation means the deadening of the virtues of initiative, enterprise and thrift in the taxpayer and the recipient, we contend that the dangers to progress are very real indeed."

Turning to government expenditures and efficiency, the chamber urged the government to scrutinize expenditures carefully and to keep them within the ability of the country to pay.

"The tendency of governments to intrude more and more into areas best served by private interests, thereby increasing expenditures, leads only to destruction of the system of competitive enterprise..."

The brief also:

Equality of Taxation

1. Asked for elimination of the present practice of taxing a company's income and then taxing the same income again when it is received by the shareholders who together constitute the company.

2. Urged that all businesses of whatever kind, whether corporately, co-operatively, privately, publicly or governmentally owned, be equally taxed.

3. Urged revision of present taxation arrangements between the Dominion and the provinces at which empower the minister to require a corporation to distribute the income which in his opinion exceeds what is reasonably required for the operation of the business.

5. Recommended changes in the Dominion Succession Duties Act to achieve more equitable taxation of estates over $50,000. (A $48,000 estate now is free from federal succession duties; one of $60,000 pays not on the excess $10,000 but on the full $60,000).

Tomato Growers Will Receive 75 Cts. Ton Less

Hamilton, March 13 — (CP) — Growers will get 75 cents less ton for tomatoes this year and payment deadlines for their crop have been stepped up. Garnet McCandless secretary of the Canned Foods Association of Ontario, today revealed this news from Judge Harold Fuller, who presided at arbitration proceedings in Welland.

Processors are required to file "suitable financial security" with the Vegetable Growers' Marketing Board, or otherwise to buy tomatoes on a two-week basis.

Those processors who can file financial security must pay for 50 per cent of tomatoes delivered up to Sept. 15 on or before Oct. 1 and for the balance before Nov. 1.

Processors will pay $26.85 for No. 1 tomatoes, $20.70 for tomatoes. All tomatoes are on a graded basis except for processing tomatoes less than 30 acres under contract, and those in the category of W. Balanson, K.C., represented the processors' case, and Andrew D. Fulton, that of the growers.

Margarine Output Exceeds Butter During February

Ottawa, Mar. 13 (CP).—For the first month in history, the production of margarine outstripped the output of creamery butter.

It happened in February, when butter production in Canada is always at the lowest point for seasonal reasons. During that month, production of margarine totalled 8,646,000 pounds, compared with 8,436,000 pounds. creamery butter output of 8,434,-000 pounds.

This was the first time, Bureau of Statistics officials said, that margarine, a comparative newcomer to Canada, has gone ahead of butter. However, it probably won't happen again until next February.

Since it became legal, about a year ago, margarine output has climbed fairly steadily, although it has settled down in recent months to a comparatively standard level. In January it was 7,-998,000 pounds. In February last year it was 3,354,000 pounds.

Butter production, on the other hand, fluctuates widely, hitting a seasonal low in February and reaching a peak in June. In March last year, for example, it was 12,-166,000 pounds, compared with 9,-405,000 the previous month. By June it reached 41,136,000 pounds.

Dog Lost 9 Years Returns Home With Sore Nose

Coldwater, March 13 — (CP) — A sore nose brought a wandering dog home after an absence of nine years.

The dog, Bruce, owned by the Silk family of this area 13 miles east of Midland, was lost during a snowstorm while following John Silk on a trapline. He was then four years old.

A few days ago the dog turned up again at the Silk home. He had porcupine quills in his nose and apparently still remembered the best place to go for help.

POLICE BLOTTER

Theft of three cameras valued at approximately $100 each was reported Saturday evening by the VanDusen Bros. Ltd., store on Front Street.

The three cameras had been placed on display in a window at the right of the store entrance and were said to have disappeared some time between six and seven o'clock Saturday evening. Few persons were in the store at the time, it was stated.

Several minor motor accidents occurred in the city during the weekend, one of which saw a vehicle mount the curb in front of Alexander's grocery store on Station Street, smashing a telephone pole and doing small damage to the front of the store.

The westbound vehicle was driven by John White, 94 Wallbridge Road, with the owner Robert McFall, 202 Pine Street, riding as passenger. Neither of the two men in the car were injured, but the car was considerably damaged. The driver has been charged with careless driving.

Sorrowing Queue Of Welshmen Give Testimony

Llantwit Major, Wales, March 13 — (AP) — A sorrowing queue of Welshmen testified today at the inquest of 80 persons killed in the Avro-Tudor plane crash Sunday.

Bright lances of sunshine filtered into the concrete hut at Allandow airport, glinting on the grawn and haggard features of relatives of the dead.

Col. Harold Rees, deputy coroner of Least Glamorgan County, opened the proceedings shortly before noon by saying the air crash was similar to coal-mine disasters which occurred in Wales.

It has brought sorrow into hundreds of homes, he said, and the feeling of impotence is similar to that of Welsh women who have waited at pitheads when there was a fire in the mines.

"The disaster that occurred Sunday is a disastr unparalleled in recent times in South Wales and it is comparable only to the great colliery disasters of the past," he said.

"Many who died have survived the war on sea, on land and in the air and some of them knew the hardships of prisoner-of-war camps for many years.

"Our sense of grief must be made greater because at the time of the accident, all those people were returning to their homes after being bound on a festive occasion to Northern Ireland."

They had seen a Wales rugby team wallop Ireland in a United Kingdom championship match, 6-3.

Witnesses Wait Turns

Witnesses walked their turns sitting in weeping rows on folding chairs.

Possibly the most tragic evidence from the procession of relatives came from tall, dark teenaged Trevor John Masson.

Staring dully in front of him, his face a mask of sorrow, he forlmally identified the bodies of his parents, first his father John, 46-year-old foundry owner, then his mother, Beatrice, 46.

In all cases the procedure was brief. A widow or a brother was asked to pick up a Bible and then to testify that a body of a victim had been identified.

Most of the bodies still lay in two long rooms, one in an Llandow airport building and another at nearby Cowbridge. A few still were not identified.

At the edge of the airport, the wreckage of the plane still lay as it had fallen, a broken, tangled mass of silver colored debris.

The tail assembly protruded from the mass, rising higher than the cottages of the tiny village of Sligginton beside which the aircraft had fallen.

Investigators, among them specialists on motors and plane design, examined the wreckage.

Authorities were determined not to speculate on the technical causes of the crash until the inquiry is complete and official.

Chinese Reds Have Hit First Big Crisis

Hong Kong, March 13 (AP)— It appears the Chinese communists have hit their first big crisis. It is both political and military with an undercurrent of economics.

As might be expected it has boiled up from restless Kwangtung Province where Dr. Sun Yat-Sen started his revolution against the Anchus in 1911 and in the coprtatorial streets and alleys of Canton.

From the first Cantonese and Kwangtung villagers viewed the red hordes with distaste and suspicion. They do not like the northerners with their mustard yellow uniforms, minded with righteousnss, blind devotion to the red cause and their alien Pelping dialect.

Abetting this native hostility has been the bombing campaign and the blockade which has brought financial ruin to many a Cantonese.

The first hint that things were getting out of hand came in February when the reds began moving the "more dependable" troops of Gen. Lin Piao into Kwangtung and neighboring Fukien Province.

Then, when Nationalist bombers began hammering, Canton communists began evacuating government offices. That is funny business. Shanghai has been bombed much worse than Canton but no red politicians were evacuated.

It has gradually come out that a huge resistance movement is on throughout Kwangtung and that soldiers have been "disappearing."

Red troops without business there have been told to keep out of Canton. Troops stationed there have been ordered to stay in their bivouacs at night.

Today's reports from Canton said the whole red garrison has been evacuated, leaving the city in the hands of police and the communist public safety bureau.

LICENCES SUSPENDED

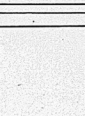
20,000 Cheer Pope on 11th Anniversary

Vatican City, March 13—(AP)— A throng of 20,000, including many Holy-year pilgrims, cheered Pope Pius today upon the celebration of the 11th anniversary of his coronation.

Pope Pius was elected Pope March 2, 1939. His coronation followed March 12. The anniversary was celebrated today—a day late —so that white vestments rather than the purple color of mourning prescribed for Sunday during Lent could be worn.

The basilica of St. Peter blazed with electric lights as the Pontiff descended in his private elevator from his apartment to the Chapel of the Pieta. Here the Pope put on a white vestment and his beehive-shaped tiara and mounted his portable throne.



Sixteen Cardinals, 40 Archbishops and Bishops and many other prelates of the church as well as members of the Pontifical Court were in the cortege that accompanied the Pontiff to the altar of the chair.

At the altar of the chair, so called because it contains what is believed to be St. Peter's chair, the Pope descended from his throne and prayed briefly. Together with Benedetti, Alois Cardinal Masella, the first Cardinal he created, the Pontiff then recited the Confiteor. The Pope then ascended a throne at the side of the altar and Cardinal Masella began the recitation of the Pontifical Mass.

Fashion Flashes

THE WHATEVER-NEXT department has to take notice of a group of hats, helmet-like affairs that completely cover the head and both ears, one side a little longer and more pointed than the other. The hats are made of shaggy straw in blonde tones, and closely resemble breakfast cereals. In some instances, it looks as though a bowl of cereal had been dumped over the wearer's head for the effect, strangely enough, isn't bad!

THE DISTINGUISHING mark of many of the new blouses is the sleeve. Flounced sleeves flare out below the embroidered yoke of a sheer nylon blouse. The extended yoke is worked in a deep embroidered chevron of scallops. The flounce is deep and very flared

Mrs. A. Davidson Addresses Albert College Guild

The regular meeting of the Albert College Women's Guild was held in the ladies parlor of Bridge Street Church on Friday, last with the president, Mrs. Northcott, presiding.

The devotional period was in charge of Miss Brown, who chose as her subject, "Doorways to Devotion." Her text was "Be ye kind one to another," and she said that we are always aware of it, lies in the kindness we have not done.

Miss Meredith Holgate delighted the audience with a piano solo Chopin's "Fantastice Impromptu."

Miss Helen Sulman introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. Ann Davidson.

Mrs. Davidson's topic was, "Our Job Ahead." In opening her address, Mrs. Davidson spoke of the great changes that have come into life in the last 25 years. "Transportation by aeroplanes has made the world much smaller. Vast material resources are being opened up in Canada. Medicine has made great strides. On the other hand, coal strikes, steamship strikes, railway strikes, can paralyze the industry of the country. The threat of war, the menace of the hydrogen and atom bombs hangs over it. We live always under a sense of insecurity." True Values Crowded Out

In the family life, the pressure of business is often so great that there is no time for family worship. The importance of material things crowd out the true values of life, love, kindness and truth. Children grow up with a feeling of insecurity. Much of the training which they formally received in their homes, is now left to schools and churches. Thus the problems of education are now much greater than they were formerly.

There must be leadership for young people. There will be leadership, but of what kind? Will it be the kind that will lead young people upward to a wise understanding of life, or will it be the kind that breeds intolerance, ruthlessness and mob psychology? questioned the speaker.

"Leadership is the quality which enables a man to exert sufficient spiritual pressure on other men; to make them follow him. Jesus was a great leader of men, and He taught the simple truths of life—Love, unselfishness, kindness and personal sacrifice. The world needs these qualities now as never before. Will we, as Christians, accept the challenge and give of our time and resources to try and lead the world to a greater trust in God?"

Mrs. Davidson's address was much enjoyed. The vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. W. J. Morrison.

Mrs. Lee Reidel sang very beautifully, "A Little Bit of Heaven", and "Danny Boy". Mrs. Duff accompanied her on the piano. Tea was served by the ladies of the social committee and the members enjoyed a pleasant social hour together.

French Fashion Makers Sharply Split on Question

Paris, March 13 (AP)—French fashion makers are sharply split on the question whether women should conceal their calves this spring.

Half of them have designed short-skirted models that flatten the bust and hips and often abolish the waistline.

The other half offer creations that make the most of the feminine contour, emphasizing the bust and hips, minimizing the waist and generally indulging in such femininities as fussy sleeves and revealing necklines.

There are, of course, the designers who effect a compromise by showing a mixture of both.

The leader in the figure-flattering group is Jacques Fath, who creates for the "bright young things" in French circles as well as for the mass market in the United States and Canada.

This spring he goes in for severe looking styles that put the accent on a straight-line narrow silhouette. It is made mannish by the use of high, collarless sterling collars, bow ties, satin stocks complete with pearl stickpins and striped shirts.

His skirts are extremely short and tapered, with pencil slim lines whose hips tend to bulge. The jackets worn with them are waistless middy blouse or windbreaker style.

Favors Simple Styles

Christian Dior also favors these extremely short skirt styles, but he makes them more feminine with extra-low-cut sweaters, lowered or adding to their severity with stiff collars and bow ties.

Molyneux, on the other hand, shows full-skirted dresses with a well-indented waistline but he indulges in a few straight dresses with long Chinese style tunics that reach below the waist.

On the other side of the picture are such designers as Marcel Rochas, Balenciaga, Robert Piguet and Chiaparelli.

They play up the feminine figure, making it shapely with swelling, full skirts. When they use slim skirts they are usually coupled with jackets that are shaped or belted to fit the waist in such a way as to give a rounded look to the hips.

Even the hair styles shown by the two groups are different. Most of the models wearing the feminine looking clothes had long hair worn upswept in a chignon on the nape of the neck. Those wearing the straight-lined styles had their hair cropped or short-bobbed.

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

Any Southerner will rise in righteous angers if you say sweet potatoes are sissy food. Sweet potatoes, garnished with anything from maple syrup to marshmallows are a staple diet in both hot and cold climates.

Discovered by Columbus on his fourth voyage to the West Indies, sweet potato cultivation soon spread to the rest of the world and became especially popular in the Far East. In Japan sweet potatoes are the third most important food crop.

They range in color from white to yellow, brown, red and even purple. Americans prefer those with a deep golden color, mistakenly called yams.

Buy no more sweet potatoes than you need unless you have a cool dark place to store them. If possible, choose potatoes of uniform size so that you can estimate the number of portions you need. If they are irregular in size, count on 2 to 3 portions to the pound for most sweet potato dishes.

Although sweet potatoes are used to make potato chips, candy, pies and cakes, their main usefulness is as a vegetable with meat or poultry.

Mashed Sweet Potatoes With Pecans. Serves 4

Boil 4 medium to large golden sweet potatoes. If they are irregular in size, boil enough to make approximately 3 cups when mashed.

After they have been cooked, remove skins and any black spots. Force potatoes through ricer or food mill.

Add 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1-8 teaspoon mace, 1-4 teaspoon salt and 1-3 cup hot milk or light cream. Add 1-2 cup pecans coarsely chopped.

Beat mashed sweet potatoes thoroughly or place in mixing machine for 2 minutes to make fluffy. Place mixture in a greased baking dish. Smooth top with spatula. Sprinkle lightly with cinnamon.

Place in a moderate oven 375 degrees, for 20 to 25 minutes or until heated through.

Place marshmallow halves on sweet potatoes. Return baking dish to oven for a few minutes or long enough for marshmallows to brown slightly.

1-2 cup almond slivers or 1-2 cup black walnuts may be used in place of pecans.

Kinette Club Holds Social Evening

"KUM DOUBLE CLUB"

Halloway The Kum Double Group of Halloway United Church met at the home of Don and Olive Rose on Monday evening last with a good attendance. The meeting was in charge of Coleman and Verna Townsend, and for the opening all joined in the singing of favorite hymns. Earl Snider read the Scripture lesson, taken from Psalm 100-1-8

The president, Ed. Emerson, then took charge of the business. Doug. Hough invited the group to her home for the next meeting. It was decided as each birthday came that each put on the plate the birthday money, for collection. The collection was then gathered.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

FASHION NOTES

TRIM LITTLE HATS massed with trimming are liked by many important designers. Burnt straw braid makes a small hat with rolled edge and a high crown that is banded almost to the top with wide green velvet. Hat is trimmed with leafy twigs and woodsy brown stems with green leaves, centred by a realistic velvet peach on which a tiny yellow bee is perched.

Baby-Sitting Beats Studies at College

New York —(CP)—As preparation for parenthood, don't take a college course. Just do some baby-sitting.

That was the advice of Mrs. Sidonie Gruenberg, former director of the Child Study Association of America, in a lecture to a group of women here.

Young parents, said Mrs. Gruenberg, can learn more through baby-sitting than in "all the college courses on child care and family life combined."

Today's college courses cover "everything from cooking to mechanics and gardening," but many of them are "boring and irrelevant."

In days of large families, a young woman who get married had learned something about rearing children from her sisters, brothers or cousins who had families.

"Nowdays, Mrs. Grunberg continued, "we are not only have the smaller family unit, but parents who themselves come from small families. Consequently they haven't the know-how of their relatives to guide them."

There was more knowledge of child-care today than ever before, but the practical experience was lacking.

Woman Combines Ink With Stage Makeup

New York,—(CP)—Do printer's ink and greasepaint mix Ask Madeline Kaufman; she should know.

Attractive, brunette Miss Kaufman, with her brother Henry runs a printing business. She also plays—this is the 10th consecutive season—the title role in "Veronica's Veil," a passion presented annually at Union City, N.J.

It takes a bit of planning, she admits, to arrange her business schedule to allow for the necessary rehearsals and performing during the six weeks of the passion play season. But with four weekly performances confined to Saturdays and Sundays, it's not too difficult.

Week days find her in her printing-shop office in downtown Manhattan, dealing lilies an expert with problems involving pizas, stewards, and the like. On weekends she exchanges her simple working garb for the velvet and gold-metallic costume of Veronica and proceeds to "forget all about business—the role demands it."

Printing is something she grew into naturally. Her family has run the business for 50 years and she was "brought up on printer's ink."

She plays Veronica because: "I love dramatics and I'm impressed with the beautiful message the play carries."

This is Madeline's 12th year in the passion play which, with a cast of 250 under the direction of Rev. Benjamin Wirtz, is in its 36th consecutive season. After two years in a minor part she tried out for the title role and has held it ever since.

Besides dramatic ability, the role requires that the actress playing it be unmarried.

Tasty Deserts

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa — (CP) — Any experienced housewife will vouch for the fact that there's more to this business of meal preparation than can be found in the average cook book.

Trying new recipes can be fun, provided the cook knows the well-tried ones and then carefully follows directions. She must also keep an eye on menu balance.

For instance before picking a rich dinner dessert she should make sure that the main course is not equally heavy. Otherwise upset stomachs may result.

In "Desserts You'll Like," home economists of the consumer section, Dominion department of agriculture, have assembled several recipes for light tasty deserts.

Cream Fluff — Ingredients: one-third cup sugar; one-third cup flour; one-eighth teaspoon salt; one-half cup cold milk; 1 1-2 cups hot milk; two egg yolks; one teaspoon butter; one teaspoon vanilla; two egg whites; three tablespoons sugar.

Mix sugar, flour and salt. Combine thoroughly with cold milk. Stir in hot milk and cook in top of double-boiler, stirring constantly until thickened.

Beat egg yolks, combine with a little of the hot mixture and add to mixture in double-boiler. Cook three minutes and remove from heat. Add butter and vanilla. Make a meringue of the egg whites and the three tablespoons of sugar and fold into the cream mixture. Yield: six servings.

Quick Carmel Custard — Ingredients: four eggs; one-third cup white sugar; one-quarter teaspoon salt; three cups milk; one-half teaspoon vanilla; two-thirds cup light brown sugar.

Beat eggs until light. Add white sugar and salt, blending well. Scald milk and add slowly to egg mixture. Add vanilla. Beat custard mixture until well blended. Sift brown sugar and place in the bottom of a large greased baking-dish or six greased individual moulds, packing it down well. Pour custard over top.

Place the baking-dish in a pan of hot water and oven-poach in a moderate oven (350 degree Fahrenheit) until custard is firm and a silver knife inserted in the centre comes out clean (about 50 minutes). Chill. Yield: six servings.

Heavy desserts are ideal for luncheon or any other time where the main course may be a salad or some light dish.

Steamed Graham Pudding — Ingredients: one-quarter cup shortening; one-half cup molasses; one egg; 1 1-2 cups sifted graham or whole wheat flour; one-half teaspoon soda; one teaspoon salt; one-half cup milk; one cup seeded raisins, dates or figs (cut into pieces).

Melt shortening, add molasses and well-beaten egg. Mix and sift flour, soda and salt and add, alternately with the milk, to first mixture. Add raisins. Fill greased moulds two-thirds full, cover tightly with waxed paper and steam for two hours. If using a pressure saucepan allow two cups water for, steaming and steam for 30 minutes without indicator, then at cook position (15 pounds) for 20 minutes Yield: six servings.

Hostess All Serene

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE hostess with a dinner dress like this one, into which she can slip in a jiffy, should be forever indebted. . . no transparencies to be required; no formfit to demand firm corseting . . . and believe it or not, a zipper which can't jam, to fasten it. The fabric is black lastex, in a ribbed or breast pocket trim white Schiffli lace. Self buttons and bell, the former to the belline, where the zipper takes over. If it pinches up fabric of the teagown or slip beneath, give the clasp a half-turn and release the caught fabric, as easy as that.

Can't leave the subject alone without saying that hostess fashion or not, this department would feel perfectly dressed in it wherever long dinner dresses are worn, short of the most formal.

Fashion Flashes

NO MATTER what is your favorite fruit, chances are that it will be represented in the new Spring hat trimming. Everything from oranges to crab apples, and all very realistic, seems to be the thing this year rather than feather or flower trims.

THE KEYNOTE of the new fashions, above is quickly impressed by the prevalence of black. Black woolknit is used for a sleeveless sweater dress, the armholes tapered towards the neck, hitter effect, and edged with ribbon.

UNDERFOOT it's red, this color emerging as the strong contender for Spring shoes, especially for general day wear. Perforated designs stud the shoe and describe a wheel effect on the toe.

LUXURY fabrics stand out in the Spring cost parade, for both toppers and full-length coats. Fine wool fleeces—some combined with angora or rabbit's hair—and beautiful cashmeres and camel-hairs, both alone and in combination with other fibres, are used for lovely coats that are soft and drape well.

ALL READY for the warm weather are charming little hat and play dresses that will bear very sensible price-tags. A slim sheath buttonfront sunback dress is of black waffle pique, and over it, making a pretty afternoon outfit, is a bloused, flare-skirted redingote in printed voile.

wouldn't be so 'missed' as if you were attending the party and not bringing a gift.

Tipping department store doorman

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:
Should the doorman of a department store ever be tipped?
B. E. B.

It is proper to tip him, if you wish to, if he has made an effort to find you a taxicab or done any other special service for you. But if he just opens the door of a taxicab that is waiting, it is not necessary to tip him.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Luncheon soups, clear or thick served in cups

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:
I know that when I serve consomme at a luncheon party I give at home, I should serve it in bouillon cups, but suppose that I want to serve a thick soup, pea soup for example, or clam chowder, for the first course at luncheon when I plan to serve a very light main course . . . then must I serve this thick soup in soup plates?
Sallie M.

No. At luncheon, cups should be used, whether the soup served is a clear soup or a thick soup.

"Arty" letter-paper

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:
Recently I have noticed in stationery departments and stores, boxes of double-sheet letter-paper with the first sheet narrower than the second sheet. Is this one of the latest fads?
Frances T.

No . . . I see no point to this . . . and often it looks "too, too arty"!

Minimum or abbreviations on engraved invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:
On engraved wedding invitations what abbreviations are allowable other than "Mr." and "Mrs."?
Viola M.

"R.s.v.p." is an allowable abbreviation. And today there is a growing tendency to use the abbreviation "Jr", after the bridegroom's name, the joint of view being that this is the form usually used by the bridegroom, instead of "junior".

Dress of guests at christening

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:
How should the godparents and the guests dress at a christening?
Godmother-to-be

They would wear exactly what they would wear for Sunday church.

Wedding anniversary gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:
Please, your advice on this question. I received an invitation to a twenty-fifth wedding anniversary party, but will not be able to attend. Is it necessary for me to send a gift whether or not I attend? The couple who are having the anniversary are friends of mine. My opinion is that if I do not attend the party, it is not necessary for me to send a gift. But what is the really proper thing?
Reader

The only "really proper thing" is to send a gift if you wish to, and not to send a gift if you don't particularly wish to. However, is it true that since you are not accepting the invitation a gift

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Too-persistent Suitor

Dear Miss Fairfax:
Three years ago I met a fellow who is a friend of my cousin's. He never paid any special attention to me at the time, but ever since last summer he has been asking me out on dates. He is 27, and I am almost 19 and in college.

I have gone out with him a couple of times but I don't care for him. He keeps writing me, asking for dates, and I keep answering with excuses in the most gracious way I know. The excuses do no good, however, for he keeps on asking me out.

Would you please tell me how I could tell him that I don't care to see him? I have asked advice of my friends and relatives but each has a different idea. Some say not to answer his letters, but this doesn't seem the polite thing to do.
P. B. L.

Dear P.B.L.:
I agree with you that it isn't usually very polite to ignore a person's letters. But sometimes, as in this case, it seems the only thing left to do. Unless, of course, the excuses you have been giving are the kind that would seem to leave the way open for another invitation. Perhaps your responses to this young man's invitations have been so polite that he doesn't get the point.

If you feel you have to answer him the next time he writes you asking for a date, decline in firmly and so finally that he will cease writing. Just say that you are extremely busy with your college work and that you have no time to accept any invitations, or something like that.

Is she trying to brush him off?

Dear Miss Fairfax:
I have been going steady with a girl for over three months. We see each other once or twice a week. She does not live with her parents but does live close to them.

Several times now she has broken a date with me, saying she has to visit her parents, and last Saturday morning she called me and told me our date, saying they would like to see her for the weekend. I don't like her breaking dates, especially for such reasons as she gives. If it were at all important, I wouldn't say a word.

What do you think I should do?
P. F.

Dear P. F.:
Don't you think it's a little high-handed of you to dismiss as unimportant the fact that this girl's parents want to have her with them? Or is it just that you think she is using this as an excuse for breaking dates with you?

It is only natural that if, for whatever reason, she does not live with her parents, she would want to be with them whenever they specially want her to be, and I don't think you have any grievance in such a case. On the other hand, if you think she's merely stalling, that's another matter.

The quickest way to find out whether she has a legitimate excuse or not is to make a date with another girl when she has broken one with you. If she does not care, then she's just been trying to brush you off.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Enhance fingernail loveliness

Fashion places a definite emphasis now upon the selection of nail polish shades to harmonize with frock and make-up colors. Beauticians add their say to that edict; they claim that it is equally important to shape the nails perfectly for the best possible contour of the hands. The expert manicurist is especially trained to do the right nail modeling for each individual patron. The typist will have her nails fairly short. The glamor girl, who has a life of leisure, may have hers as long as her little heart desires.

There are four definite types of nails—the slender, tapering one; the average, oval nail; the square design; the broad, clubbed nail, the flat fingernail. Each is long.

The first type is found on the thin, fragile hand and the tapering lines of the fingers are carried out in the nail shaping. These fingertips possess a flair for the dramatic, should carry a dark shade of polish.

The average oval nail is the ideal one. The eave should be filled to follow the same curve as the cuticle at the base of the nail to create a pleasing balance of lines. It is suggested by one who is qualified to know that it is a nice idea to leave cave and half moon untinted.

Square nails present a problem, and it would be well for the girl who has them to become familiar with the best manner of treating them. They belong to strong, heavy hands with well-rounded fingertips, are inclined to be fairly flat, instead of lifted, as happens with the oval type.

File the edges to a point, then round off the point. Be careful not to file far down at the sides. This will interfere with the idea of making the nails look narrower. It is a mistake. The cuticle there will thicken, break and form hangnails.

To reduce the appearance of width you can leave a tiny white portion on either side; apply polish fairly lavishly, letting it extend over the rest of the area.

What is known as the clubbed nail is broader than it is long. When filing, let the eave extend as far as possible beyond the flesh. A light polish is preferable to a medium or dark one, as it will not call attention to the nails which, unquestionably, are no beauty bargain.

No matter what type you have, remember that there is more to their care than laying on the ruby veneer. Apply a cream every night, friction it in to stimulate the blood streams in the underlying flesh. Upon these streams your pretty nails live and have their being.

Biggest Budget Presented in Saskatchewan

(By The Canadian Press)

The biggest budget in Saskatchewan's history and record estimate, of expenditures for Manitoba highlighted proceedings in various Canadian Legislatures Wednesday.

At Regina provincial Treasurer Fines' budget estimated expenditures at $53,020,000, which is around $6,000,000 higher than last year. Mr. Fines budgeted for a surplus of $33,150 and said he hoped to show a surplus for the fiscal year now ending.

He announced replacement of the two percent education tax by a three percent levy for education and hospitalization. This new tax is estimated to yield $9,600,000 in the first year with continued exemption on food, meals, drugs and prescriptions, soaps, second-hand goods, animal feeds and chemical sprays.

The Manitoba estimates totalled $39,153,947 or $2,690,675 higher than last year. Premier D. L. Campbell, told the legislature at Winnipeg that the Manitoba Coalition government never has followed a "deliberate" policy of under-estimating revenues and over-estimating expenditures to provide a surplus.

At Standstill

At Edmonton Earl Ansley (SC-Leduc), former education minister, told the Alberta legislature "we are at a complete standstill" in putting Social Credit into effect. Another Social Credit member, William Tomyn, said "we now have fallen prey to party dissension and allowed ourselves standing to creep into our movement." The criticism of the government from its own benches came during budget debate, and arose from removal of A.V. Bourque (SC-Lac Ste. Anne) from the government benches to the opposition side of the House.

The Ontario legislature was occupied with discussion on second reading of the new Provincial Labor Code.

The Quebec legislative assembly adopted supplementary estimates totalling $7,989,000 with the government agreeing to opposition leader George Mazier's representation that subsequent amounts may be discussed during budget debate.

At Fredericton opposition members opened their attack on government fiscal policies in Throne-Speech debate with H. J. Flemming (PC-Carleton) criticizing increase in the New Brunswick debt.

The Prince Edward Island legislature was on government bills and reports of the travel bureau, the temperance commission, the RCMP and various government departments were tabled.

Spastic Patients Learn To Develop Muscular Control

By ROBERT PHILLIPS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Windsor, Ont., March 11—(CP)—Four-year-old Betty-Lou is trying hard.

Although normal little girls can usually walk at two, Betty-Lou at that age had not even learned the rudiments of crawling. She is a spastic, a victim of cerebral palsy.

Betty-Lou and 50 other little girls and boys are learning all about walking, talking—for usually speech organs of spastic patients are impaired—and how to play and do things with their hands through the guiding direction of seven qualified "teachers" at Windor's Curative Workshop.

The project, the first of its kind opened in Canada by the Canadian Red Cross, has been in operation here for 14 years. It is financed by the Windsor branch of the Red Cross and is operated by four occupational therapists and three physio-therapists under the direction of Phyllis Carleton, formerly of Toronto.

Betty-Lou's life story is not unique—it is, as a matter of fact, quite typical of the handicaps of spastic sufferers. But progress back to a nearly normal condition is a fair example of the work being done here three days a week.

Spastics suffer the aftermath of cerebral palsy, poliomyelitis and other childhood spinal and muscular injuries. Usually they have poor muscular control and are unable to crawl, stand or walk, to talk and to do most of the things which make little girls and boys so active in their early years.

A Busy Centre

Childhood curative aid is only one type of rehabilitation treatment at the workshop. The 13,725 treatments given the 338 patients during 1949 included the average weekly treatment of 32 children as well as aid for numerous adult sufferers of similar maladies and accident victims of all ages sent to the workshop by workmen's compensation boards, the department of Veterans' Affairs and private doctors. All patients arrive with a doctor's prescription for physio or occupational therapy.

Ages of curative workshop patients range from six weeks to more than 60 years. There is no price tage on the treatments, all of which are supplied through financing by the Red Cross. Those able to pay may contribute to the annual fund drive conducted through Windsor's Community Chest.

When Betty-Lou first arrived at the clinic two years ago she could not talk at all her tired little limbs would not support her body even to sit up. Today the spastic who also have four other normal children—she would be a permanent cripple.

Now she is able to say most words and sentences that any child of four can, although, say the therapists, she still has trouble with her 'Th'. She now is able to walk with the support of steel and leather braces and walk in a walking machine.

Workshop officials hope soon she may be able to start school lessons, in addition to the muscular direction she now gets.

Betty-Lou's difficult day begins at 9 a.m. when a workshop station-wagon picks her up at her home. For three hours she follows a rigid timetable—with only brief rest periods—and at the while under careful and watchful direction of experts who know just how to handle children.

30-Minute Periods

During the routine she has three 30-minute periods each of directed physio-therapy play with creative toys designed to direct weak muscles in the daily tasks of buttoning, zipping zippers, lacing shoes and tying bows with blocks and learning with the aid of equipment how to stand, crawl and then walk. She also has daily speech lessons.

Foot patterns painted on the floor guide her wayward feet in the proper direction for walking; steel braces hold her tired legs upright and walking aids aid the rest of her body to follow.

Soon she may be just like any other little girl, workshop officials say.

Windsor is proud of its curative workshop. Although it was the first in Canada, it now is not the only one in the field. Most large Canadian cities have similar projects—but only one other at Brantford, Ont., is still operated exclusively by Red Cross.

During 1949 the curative centre here provided for monthly average of 150 persons. Fifty received just physio-therapy—guided manipulation of muscles and 35 occupational therapy—the skill of using muscles to a directed purpose. The remainder were booked for the combination treatment. All of Windsor's 125 medical men support the centre and most of them have recommended patients for treatment.

For the few who are still bedridden at home or in hospital workshop facilities and skilled staff are taken to them.

Weston Votes 3 to 1 Against Amalgamation

Toronto, March. 13—(CP)—At least one of Toronto's 12 suburbs has no sympathy with the city's growing pains.

The northwest suburb of Weston (population 7,219) slapped the city's wrist Saturday by voting almost 3 to 1 against amalgamation.

The plebiscite, certain to cause perturbation at Toronto's city hall, threw pepper into a pot that has stewed briskly for more than a year.

The city extended a coaxing hand to her suburbs—which included considerable farmland—in an effort to obtain more building sites for house-hungry citizens.

The Weston vote, which rejected the idea of amalgamation by a vote of 1,334 to 409 now will go before the Ontario Municipal Board where the town can argue its case. In many respects it is the case of other suburbs.

One Weston resident pointed out that Toronto city hall is 12 miles distant from Weston. He and other citizens fear the loss of the home-town spirit and of adequate representation in a larger unit.

Not Counted On

This opposition of the suburbs is one angle that the city's municipal planners may not have counted on. Periodically Toronto's fatuller citizens have been confronted in their newspapers with glowing maps of the City-Of-The-Near-Future as drafted by her planning commission.

Some of these drafts have swooped out to include centres 15 or more miles from downtown Toronto, evoking indignant cries from farmers in the path. They see themselves facing city taxes on acres of farmlands.

Amalgamation would boost Toronto's 700,000 population to more than 1,000,000.

The biggest suburb, York township (population 92,848) has decided to talk over amalgamation with the city.

One angle pops up in Weston's proposed application before the municipal board. The board is an arm of the Ontario government—and Premier Frost has told the suburbs they must amalgamate before Jan. 1, 1951, in order to become eligible for the Dominion-provincial low-cost housing schemes.

Composing Room Employees Given Wage Boost

Vancouver, March 13 (CP)—A wage dispute between two Vancouver newspapers, the Vancouver Sun and the News Herald, and Local 226 of the International Typographical Union (A.F.L.) has been settled.

The agreement, reached Saturday, provides for a 13-cent-an-hour wage boost for 175 composing room employees of the two newspapers, it also provides for ten days' annual holidays; for employees with one year's service and 15 days for employees with 15 years' service, and pay for five statutory holidays each year.

The I.T.U. members—130 at the Vancouver Sun and 45 at the News Herald—were to have taken a strike vote Saturday however the vote was cancelled when the publishers submitted the new settlement offer, subsequently accepted by the men.

The present day rate is $1.87 an hour while the night rate is $1.77.

Canadian Travels Interest Busy Wife of Belgian Envoy

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa—(CP)—The interview with the Vicomtesse du Parc never did get around to that stereotyped question—how the wife of the Belgian ambassador liked Canada. It wasn't necessary.

The Vicomtesse is such a friendly warm-hearted person that it can be taken for granted she always gets a kick out of meeting people and living in a new country.

Also there's the fact that since coming to Canada the diplomat envoy and his wife have travelled by far west as Prince Rupert, B.C. far east as the Gaspe Peninsula.

Said the Vicomtesse, a twinkle in her eye: "I don't think we have done too badly for our first year here."

Boat trips along the coast from Prince Rupert and along the St. Lawrence shores are what she remembers with particular delight. In the near future she hopes to complete the trans-Canada tour travelling throughout the Maritime provinces.

The Vicomtesse was asked about Belgium, how big a part the women there play in the public life of their country. Public-spirited women of Canada should take heart from her words. Even before they had the vote, Belgian women were elected to parliament.

"We have women in the senate and many women in parliament," said the Vicomtesse.

Women have been elected to the Belgian parliament for some years past although last year was the first time they were allowed to vote in a national election.

Stayed With Husband

Keeping up with the day-to-day needs at home isn't an easy thing when you have been away as long as the Vicomtesse has. Except for visits, she has seen little of Belgium during the last 10 years, choosing instead to travel with her husband wherever his missions have taken him.

But she knows a great deal about what Belgium is doing in the family welfare and health field. Her voice fills with quiet pride when she talks about the social work development in her country.

This summer she plans a trip to Belgium where she will visit her 24-year-old son, Joseph, who looks after the family estate at Ottawa Harlin, a chateau built about 35 miles southeast of Brussels.

The couple's other child, a 13-year-old daughter, Claude, attends school at Congregation de Notre Dame in Ottawa.

The many social obligations, looking after her daughter and managing the family residence in Ottawa's Sandy Hill district, leave this diplomat's wife little time to indulge in hobbies.

But occasionally she turns to her tapestry—several pieces of her work now cover chairs at the Belgian embassy.

Most often though, when she has a few spare moments, she knits garments for Claude and Joseph are the favored items.

"It's taking a lot of knitting for Joseph," she said, smiling. "He's tall you know—over six feet."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

There has been much controversy along the hockey rialto, over the goal awarded by Referee Bill Molway to Northern Electric in the Diesels - Electric game Friday night. "Junior" Barrett, it is alleged was shoved into Goalkeeper Letort's crease by young Master Woodman, M'sieu Letort objected to the taking over of his domain by Barrett and proceeded to enforce his objection. The puck was in the corner when Referee Molway called play and awarded Northern the goal.

Paragraph "C", Rule 61 of the CAHA book of words reads, quote "If a player of the attacking team has been deliberately pushed into or is deliberately held in the goal crease by an opponent AND THE PUCK SHOULD ENTER THE GOAL WHILE THE PLAYER SO PUSHED OR BEING HELD IS STILL WITHIN THE GOAL CREASE, a goal shall be allowed."

Since the puck did not enter the goal during Barrett's alleged enforced stay in the crease, it would seem that Referee Molway was slightly in error.

It's too bad the faithful passed up the game as it was a rip-roaring no-holds-barred insule from the start. The checking was heavy and tempers threatened to flare periodically from the beginning of hostilities. It was a wide open free-scoring game with both teams definitely out to win, regardless. Clare Willimson returned to the hockey wars, and young Mr. Tripp, Rockets goalie did a good job between the pipes for the Northern crew. Art. Plumley was a spectator and proved an ardent Northern rooter. He expects to be back in harness for the game tomorrow night.

Perhaps this District Hockey League resurrected finals series is a bit anti-climactic. Perhaps the fans have satiated their hockey appetites for the season. The senior "B" juniors and oldsters have come and gone, mostly gone and it could be the abdominal regions of Mr. and Mrs. John Fan have been filled to overflowing. In any event the crowd Friday night was disappointing, to say the least. Those who stayed away missed a bang-up display of hockey that proved the Belleville Diesel-Electrics have plenty of hockey left in their systems. However, the troops go back at it tomorrow night and it is hoped a large crowd will be on hand to see the fendists battle in the fourth game of the series.

Tonight may be trail's end for the doughty Nylons of Mike Rodden's hockey ballwick. They have their backs to the wall so-close they are half counterment, and the Georgetown battalion heads of puck and stick must needs pull all their hockey rabbits out of the hat tonight if they are to continue in the Senior "B" finals. The saucy Ellis - led Legionnaires of Peterborough tacked a decisive defeat on the Prides of the Jock Hardy Arena last Friday night to the tune of 8-1. And therein, perhaps, lies the story. The teams knew that the scales were well-balanced and nothing but a victory on "Terrible" Ice would entice either one way or the other. Legion poured out all its power against the starry Nylons and came through bandsomely. From here it looks like fordhim as the doughty Nylons have two strikes on them prior to tonight's battle through the fact they will be playing on the smaller Peterborough ice surface.

They've gathered to their promotorial bosoms two of Montreal's outstanding boxfighters for the original bout in Bob Maisel, 160 pounder Maverpal city champion and John Dutrisac, a golden gloves titleholder. There is of course the main bout between Ken Lozelle, Ottawa, who holds a decision over Toronto's Alan McFater dubbed by some wargrish Queen City sports scribes as "McFair", and Joey Peters, of the Diamond A. C. Toronto, one of Vic Bagnato's prides and Joy.

In what is said to be a grudge baitle, A/C Dick St. Louis Trenton RCAF beakbuster meets Gunner Mellhorpe, of the Picton School of Artillery. The gunner lost a close decision to the airman in Kingston a short time ago but feels he can reverse the score come Wednesday. Nine other smart bouts round out an attractive card, one that should bring the boxing faithful to the spot in droves.

3 NHL Leaders Win Over Weekend to Clarify Standing of Top Squads

By Harry Eccles
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The National Hockey League, driving towards the schedule close had its standing clarified considerably during the weekend when the three top teams all went undefeated. Detroit and Montreal each won two, and Toronto had a victory and a tie.

New York clings to the fourth and last play-off position but their two losses cost them a chance to make mathematically certain of a Stanley Cup berth. At that they're 11 points ahead of Boston with only six games left.

Montreal Canadiens looked most impressive. They shut out Boston Bruins 5-0 Saturday, then walloped New York 5-1 Sunday. Detroit Red Wings walloped Chicago Black Hawks 8-2 Saturday and 4-2 Sunday. Toronto blanked New York 4-0 Saturday on veteran goalie Walter (Turk) Broda's ninth shut-out, but at Boston Sunday Leafs were held to a 2-2 deadlock by the Bruins.

Detroit now leads with 80 points, Toronto has 70, Montreal 67 and New York 65.

Young Gerry McNeil, playing his fourth game in the Canadien goal since Bill Durnan was injured, turned in a masterful game in the Montreal shut-out over Boston Saturday. Maurice Richard scored his 35th and 36th goals, while Elmer Lach, Calumet Mackay and Billy Reay getting the others. A fight between Richard and Fern Flaman cost each a major and 10-minute misconduct.

Broda Put On Show

Another great goal-tending performance was that of Broda. The 35-year-old veteran from Brandon never before got above eight saves and then was during his second year in N.H.L. in 1937-38.

Goal-getters were Bill Ezinicki, Bill Barilko, Sid Smith and Ted Kennedy.

Wings had no trouble in the other Saturday night game as a crowd of 13,451 at Detroit saw the league-leaders raise their goal total to 201 for the season. Gerry Couture, Joe Carveth, Red Kelly, Gordon Howe and Sid Abel were the sharp-shooters with Jim Conacher spoiling a shut-out for Harry Lumley.

On Sunday the Canadiens finally clinched a play-off berth beyond all mathematical doubt by walloping the weakened Rangers before a Madison Square Garden crowd of 14,125. Pentti Lund got the Rangers' only goal in the first period as Montreal were two men short. Canadiens roared back in the second frame to score four straight, honors going to Dussault, MacKay, with two, and Mosdell, and Dussault got his second in the finale.

Bruins Come From Behind

At Boston Sunday Bruins came from behind to gain the deadlock with Maple Leafs. Max Bentley, the fleet little centre, scored the first Toronto goal while Fern Flaman was serving a tripping penalty, and Gardner made it 2-0 in the second period. The last marker was only a minute old, when Bill Quackenbush beat Broda on a low 50-foot smash and 42 seconds later Ed Kryzanowski got the tying counter on a low shot from a bad angle.

Red Wings now are only one game away from clinching the league championship. At Chicago Sunday Gerry Couture scored twice, Steve Black and Abel getting the others. Roy Conacher scored the first Hawk goal in the third period followed by Bob Goldham's counter.

Sammy Snead Wins Another Golf Tourney

Miami Beach, Fla., March 13—(AP)— Sammy Snead golfer of the year in 1949, won the $10,000 Miami Beach Open Sunday with a final round of 71, one under par, to wind up with 71-66-65-71 —273 for the 72 holes.

He was 15 under par for the four day tournament and three strokes in front of Lawson Little, who finished with a 68 for 276.

It was Snead's fourth major tournament victory of the year and added $2,000 to his winnings to give him $10,158 of the golfing gold.

E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, 1949 Canadian open champion, closed with a 71 for a total of 280 to take third money.

Vic Teal Offered Coaching Job At Waterloo

Waterloo, Ont., March 13 (CP) —Vic Teal of St. Catharines has been offered the position of coach of Waterloo's Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" entry, it was announced here.

Entering a Junior "A" team in the 1950-51 season, Waterloo hockey officials chose Teal following consideration of 20 applications. Teal, associated with the Boston Bruins organization for some time, is the supervisor of an outstandingly successful Stanley Cup Catharines minor hockey organization.

Waterloo is also affiliated with the National Hockey League Bruins and plans to build a whole farm system of hockey teams in the Waterloo area from peewee right through to the Junior "A" level.

Hornets, Flyers Fight it Out To Last Game

(By the Canadian Press)

Pittsburgh Hornets and St. Louis Flyers apparently are going to fight it out right down the wire for the last playoff position in the American Hockey League's western division.

The Flyers are currently one point behind the third-place Hornets and both squads have three games left to play. St. Louis holds a pair of weekend encounters logged to the lowly Hershey Bears 4-2 Saturday but besting New Haven Ramblers 4-3 Sunday. The Hornets dropped their only weekend contest to Buffalo Bisons 2-1. Providence Reds clinched a playoff berth Sunday downing Springfield Indians 2-1 after dropping an 8-5 decision to Cleveland Barons Saturday.

Indianapolis Capitals also entered the charmed circle with a 7-2 triumph over the Barons Sunday. They were swamped 10-3 by Springfield the previous night.

As things stand now, Buffalo, Providence, Cleveland and Indianapolis are definitely in the post-season race for the silverware with Springfield virtually assured of another spot. They lead the eastern division Providence-place New Haven Ramblers by six points and have one game left to play. The Ramblers, on the other hand, have three contests remaining but must win all of them even to tie Springfield.

Ridley College won its fourth straight little big four swimming division championship in a swimming meet at Toronto Saturday. The St. Catharines team nosed out Trinity College of Port Hope, Upper Canada College of Toronto and St. Andrew's College were also entered.

GOOD CITIZENSHIP is a lot of little things

NOTE THE EXITS IN CASE OF FIRE

The primitive urge for self-preservation has caused many a tragedy. Perhaps the greatest cause of panic is the cry of "Fire". When you are in a theatre or other public building, make a mental note of the nearest exit. If an emergency arises, walk, do not run, to that door. Sound, sensible thinking and acting during the early moments of a crisis will do much to avert loss of life. Any act for the common good is surely proof of "Good Citizenship".

His message sent to Brig. D. R. Agnew, Commandant at R. M. C., read:

"To you as Commandant and to your fine body of cadets, I extend hearty congratulations on their appearance and turnout at the parades Saturday and Sunday, and also on the hockey win over West Point in a hard-fought game which was in accordance with the best traditions of good sportsmanship which have always existed between the U. S. Military Academy and the Royal Military College.

"Arrangements left nothing to be desired and the entire visit will do much to strengthen the strong ties which exist between the colleges and the countries they serve."

Kingston Cadets Beat U.S. Army Cadets by 6-4

Kingston, March 13 — (CP) — Canada won an international hockey match Saturday night, but the 6-4 score was really of secondary importance.

The big achievement of the event was the sportsmanlike conduct of the cadets from Canada's Royal Military College and the United States' Royal Military Academy, West Point.

Keeping right to the gentlemanly traditions of the annual contest, the hard-hitting cadets played 60 minutes of clean, fast hockey without a sign of a high stick or a trip. And like the 18 earlier games between the colleges, the summary at the end of the game read: penalties — none.

Among the 1,700 spectators crowding Kingston's Jock Harty Arena to watch the contest were Cadet Minister Brooke Claxton and Laurence Steinhardt, U. S. Ambassador. They had identical seats in the penalty box and were cooing for the same team. Neither cared to place a wager on the outcome.

"We're not betting," said Mr. Steinhardt. "It wouldn't be critical."

The annual contest, inaugurated in 1923, is played alternately between the two colleges and serves as a common meeting ground for the cadets of the two countries. The U. S. cadets arrived Friday by plane. They compared notes, drill and countries and marched smartly together across the college campus to watch Mr. Claxton preside at ceremony-stone presentations for a modern barrack block and administrative wing designed to meet a planned increase to 400 in R. M. C. enrollment.

In laying the corner-stone, Mr. Claxton said Canada seeks not war but peace in her military schools.

Following the game, the ramrod stiffness of the Canadian station was relaxed as the grey and blue uniforms of the two countries mingled with formal gowns at a dance in the R.M.C. gym.

The cadets danced far into the night, but were up bright and early for a sharp ceremonial church parade in which West Point men marched with the Canadians.

As for the hockey game, Canadian scorers were W. R. Scott of Hamilton; J. M. Scott of Fort William; G. Sullivan of Montreal; Bill. Hough, Sudbury; and Dave Hargraft, Toronto.

West Point marksmen were—Charlie Boyle, Middletown, Pa.; Mob Morrison, Lebanon, Tenn.; Roger Lind, Park Rapids, Minn.; and Bob Blaik of West Point, who is more renowned for his skill with football than a hockey stick. Blaik is quarterback of the Army pigskin squad.

HIS LOSS HURTS RANGERS - By Alan Mayer

Hottest Rookie In Chicago Camp Is Carrasquel

Pasadena, Calif., March 13 — (AP) — The hottest rookie in the Chicago White Sox camp is a young man from Venezuela named Alfonso Carrasquel and he might be the man, after all these years, to beat Luke Appling out of his job at shortstop.

That's a tall order. If seems that for most of the 19 years that Ol' Luke has been with the club, each spring has produced at least one youngster reckoned as a threat for Appling's position.

None has been able to dislodge the veteran from what has become a lifetime position, but it is worthy of note that some of the oldest observers with the club have already gone overboard for the tall lad with the large hands from South America.

Appling, as he has done with most of the previous aspirants for his job, has tutored Carrasquel this spring and has labelled him as an excellent prospect.

As for scrutinizing the shortstop role in his 20th year with the Sox, however, Appling isn't. He'll be in there for all his ancient legs and aching bones will carry. There was nothing wrong with him last year when he batted .301 and drove in 58 runs. He holds the major league record for having played 2,100 games at short, and Luke isn't the type to quit anything until he's ready.

But this Carrasquel, whom everyone calls Chico, could hasten Luke into the green pastures of ease, and there are some who think he will.

If he does, he'll qualify as a candidate for rookie-of-the-year honors and it will only be his second in organized baseball in this country.

Last year after starting the season with Montreal Royals, he was sent to Fort Worth of the Texas League, where he batted .315, was the second best fielding shortstop in the league, knocked in 69 runs and scored 63 runs himself.

LINDSAY WINS

Lindsay, Ont., March 13 (CP) (CP)—Lindsay Kinsmen won the first game of their best-of-five junior "C" playoff series in the Ontario Hockey Association Saturday with a 7-2 verdict over Port Hope.

Bob Lewis paced the winners with three goals. Orlin Crawford sank two and Dawson Kimble and John Burns got the others. Ken Medhurst and Bill Heson scored for Port Hope.

Mal Whitfield Sets Record For 600-Yard Run

Hamilton, March 13 (CP) Mal Whitfield, a United States air force speedster, flashed around the 600-yard course to a Canadian record at the Star running of the Highlanders invitation track meet here Saturday.

The Bay City, Tex., veteran, holder of the Olympic 800-metre title, cut a half-second off the old one - minute and 13 second mark, in breaking the tape just a fraction of a second ahead of the University of Western Ontario's Bob McFarlane.

In addition to the Whitfield's record performance, four Hamilton armory records fell before the onslaught of Canadian and United States track stars.

The Western University relay team, sparked by Don and Bob McFarlane, clicked for a record when they captured the Lt.-Col. Fred Wigle trophy in the one-mile university relay event. The western flimsy came in ahead of McGill University of Montreal and McMaster of Hamilton in a time of minutes 33.6 seconds compared to the old mark of three minutes, 37.5.

Mildred Grosse of the Toronto Malvernettes, a Toronto entry, established a record in the 60 yard dash for girls 17 years old and younger. The diminutive track star recorded a time of 7.5 seconds. Another Toronto speedster, J. Ross, carrying the colors of the Toronto Sports College, eclipsed the old mark for the 800-yard run for boys 18 and under. He broke the tape in two minutes and two seconds.

The industrial relay race brought another sensational performance. An International Harvester team set the pace ahead of a home-town Westinghouse entry to break the old mark of one minute and 46.3 seconds.

The only double winner in the day's proceedings was bespectacled Ira Kaslan of New York University. The veteran runner romped home first in the 60-yard dash and the 300-yard dash, open. He also took part in the 300-yard invitation which was run off just 10 minutes after the open event. The strain proved too great and he dropped out.

Another United States entry, the Seton Hall relay team, captured the one-mile invitation relay. Featuring their ace performer Al Stanfield, the Hall runners finished first ahead of New York University.

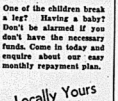
The crowd gave Marlene a big hand for her solid performance in the free skating and booed the judges for not awarding the Canadian girl higher marks.

The University of Michigan turned back the Western University of Western Ontario hockey team 5-4 in an exhibition game Saturday night at Ann Arbor Mich.

Centre Earl Keyes was the big gun for Michigan with three goals, while freshman star Art Gabor paced the Mustangs with a pair of counters.



Outscoring St. Catharines Stars 20-4 in a brilliant third-quarter display the Toronto Canoemen took a decisive 49-32 decision Saturday night at Toronto in the opening game of the Ontario Basketball Association juvenile 'A' series.

The return tilt in the total-point series will be played next Saturday at Windsor.

COBL Elects Nesbitt, Kingston 1950 President

Five teams and possibly seven will comprise the roster of the Central Ontario Baseball League the coming season. Definite entries are Batawa, Brockville, Napanee, Picton and Kingston. Smith's Falls a probable entry who will make a definite decision this week. There is also a strong possibility that a Belleville team will be entered.

At a special meeting held in the Kingston City Council Chambers on Sunday, Bob Nesbitt, Kingston, was elected president for the coming season, succeeding Don Thomas, Belleville, prexy for the past two years. "Vip" Radley, Kingston, was named secretary treasurer succeeding Jack Devine, Belleville, who was elected vice-president.

Belleville was not represented at the meeting but during the past 24 hours there has been a strong movement afoot to organize and enter a team from this city in the COBL.

A trophy will be presented to the league to be awarded the player voted the most valuable to his team during the season.

The league's balls, taken down in their entirety last season were left on the ground. This year it will be allowed as many imports as they desire.

The Kingston team, it was learned, will be given the full co-operation of the Kingston Ponies, Border Baseball League entry. The team will be given full use and privileges of the McGaffin Stadium.

Keith Weese, Centreville, sensational minor league hurler of last season, will try out with the Kingston Ponies this year, it was learned.

The next meeting of the COBL executive was set for Sunday, April 2nd

Sunday about Georgeous Gussie Moran's black tennis shorts which she wore Friday while winning Egypt's ladies double championship at Cairo.

She didn't wear them Sunday when she won in the Egyptian ladies doubles but a hopeful 6,000 fans turned out just in case. It was the first full house the tournament drew. She didn't wear them Saturday either, when she annexed the singles crown.

"Gussie probably wore black shorts to show she is human after because she hasn't met any nice men here. Wherever she wears she's georgeous."

World-Champion Czechoslovakian Team Absent

London, March 13 — (CP) — The World Amateur Hockey Tournament opened today—without the world-champion Czechoslovakian team.

The Czech government decided at the last minute not to send a squad to defend the title. The decision announced in Prague puzzled officials here.

After a mix-up concerning British visas for two newspaper men who were to accompany the team — cleared up late Saturday by the Foreign Office which telegraphed Prague that the visas were available — it was reported that the Czech team would leave Prague today.

Then, as far as it could be learned, the communist government decided not to permit the team to leave. Some observers said the decision to the repeated step taken by Ede Kiraly, Hungarian figure skater, to "jump" in London. They said it might be feared that the Czech hockey team would do a similar action, as several have in the past.

Czechoslovakia had been grouped with Britain, France and Norway in the preliminary pool and non-appearance merely reduces the group to three — the top two teams in each group will advance to the final pool later this week.

Belgium's entry — Edmonton Mercurys — is grouped with Switzerland and Belgium. The favored Mercurys play their first game tomorrow against Switzerland in Harringay.

TO GIVE DECISION TONIGHT

Montreal, March 13 (CP) — President Azarie Choquet of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association announced today that he would give a decision on suspended hockey players Tommy Manastersky and Eddie Bush tonight.

The players were suspended last week following a stick swinging fracas in the opening game of a best-of-seven Quebec Senior Hockey League series between Montreal Royals and Sherbrooke Saints. The game was played at Sherbrooke.

At a special meeting called Sunday a few minutes before the second game of the playoff series, Manastersky of Royals and Bush of Sherbrooke told the Q.A.H.A. president that the referees had elaborated on the incident which was only a minor scuffle.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The delights of a squeeze in bridge may be anticipated far in advance. In some deals, however, this play may spring up out of nowhere. As in the case of this deal:

NORTH
	♠K 9 5 3
	♥A Q 4
	♣J 5
WEST	EAST
♠10 7 6 4 2	♠A Q 8
♥8 7 5 3 2	♥None
♦7	♦J 10 6 4 2
♣A 2	♣K 10 9 6 4

South was in a contract of four hearts that west doubled. An opening spade lead would have defeated the bid. But west and east first took two tricks with top clubs and muffed their chance.

East returned club ten to start trick three and declarer was then able to take 11 tricks. This meant the fulfillment of the four heart doubled contract with an overtrick for good measure.

South ducked the club ten. West shed his singleton diamond. Dummy ruffed small. Heart ace cashed a trump round. Heart queen was led and south overtook with king of trumps.

Three more south trumps were cashed and west hearts melted away. By this time south had left the club queen, spade jack, and his three diamonds. Dummy kept four diamonds and spade king.

East put forth his best efforts to keep declarer from taking all the remaining tricks. For this purpose he clung to spade ace and four of his diamonds. These were the suits he must try to guard.

And right there a squeeze developed when south led the club queen. Dummy shifted the spade king and the east hand was up against it for a discard. Shall he give up a diamond or spade ace?

If east gives up the spade ace declarer has the rest. His south jack is then good for a trick on which dummy shuffs a small diamond. The last three tricks are then solid with three top diamonds.

Instead of spade ace should east shed a diamond? There is not any relief in that direction. South simply cashes diamond king and then lets dummy take the last three tricks with diamonds.

The pressure in a squeeze is terrific.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 11 — (AP)

Like most major industries, the movies are faced with the problem of retirement of workers.

What happens to a worker when his years of usefulness are over? That question is becoming more and more important on the social scene. Movie stars offer a unique and interesting sidelight to this problem.

Only one studio, M. G. M., has a full scale plan for taking care of its stars in their old age. However, such a favored few of its stars come under the retirement program.

Most other stars are not so fortunate. Rarely do actors stay at one studio more than 10 years and thus come into a position where the studio might possibly feel responsible for their future.

Must Save

Stars are largely responsible for their own destinies. They earn large salaries for a peak of five years on the average. They have to save what they can from income taxes and expenses. After that, they're on their own. Often there is only one direction they can go—down.

It is not easy for anyone to shed back over the financial plight of movie stars. But to the stars themselves, decline from fame is a real problem, not only moneywise, but psychologically as well. Imagine if you were Universal's acclaimed and then suddenly not wanted.

Let me cite some examples in our time:

What Now?

Star "A" was a wartime sensation. Due to bad parts and the fragile nature of his talents, he fell from favor as fast as he climbed. His box office value was nil and he was dropped by his studio. He has done a few quickies and some vaudeville. But what does he do now?

Star "B" was a beauty queen for more than a decade. Her well exposed body made up for her lack of acting ability. But now she's in her late 30s and younger lovelies have taken her place. What does she do now?

Star "C" was the symbol of the romantic hero. He's still a good actor but he's old enough to be the grandfather of the new romantic stars he was playing opposite. What does he do now?

So far Hollywood has not found the answers.

Ontario Reports Highest Toll Of Fatalities

(By The Canadian Press)

Ontario again reported the highest toll of weekend fatalities in Eastern Canada.

A Canadian Press survey today showed that seven persons lost their lives in Ontario from various causes of the total of 11 reported for the six eastern provinces. Nova Scotia reported three deaths and Quebec one. There was none in New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland.

Suicides claimed two Ontario people while an 18-month old baby perished in a house fire. Traffic accident and a mine accident were responsible for the other deaths.

The wife and eldest child of Arthur Sutton, 48, were held as material witnesses after Mr. Sutton was shot and killed as the aftermath of what police describe as a bitter family quarrel at their farm home 40 miles south of Montreal.

Earl, 16, and Mrs. Sutton, 43, were taken into custody following the shooting of Mr. Sutton. Police said that Earl Sutton shot his father with a .22 calibre rifle after threatening to shoot his mother in the legs.

Takes Own Life

At Sudbury V. F. Campbell, 37, a mine workers, took his own life by exploding a dynamite detonator cap and a stick of dynamite. Fred W. Riggs, 53, shot himself to death.

Harold MacDonald, 56, a Florence, N. S. colliery worker, died from injuries received when he was pinned by a rock fall in a coal mine.

Everett Best, 33, of Nictaux Falls, N. S., and Ward Cox, 29, of Brooklyn, N. S., were killed when their motor truck bounced off a culvert and rolled into a ditch.

Child Burned

Lynda Hansen, 18 months, was burned to death in a house fire near Kingston. An oil lamp exploded and members of the family were unable to save the child.

Dr. James A. Cummins, 86, of Bond Head, Ont., was struck and killed by a car, the driver of which failed to five-year-old Judith Ann Skinner of Watford.

Prison Paper Attacks Radio Crime Programs

Wethersfield, Conn., March 13 (AP) — The Monday Record, published by a group of inmates at the Connecticut State Prison here and circulated "outside," has taken up the cudgels against radio "crime" programs.

In an article entitled "13,000 Murders a Month" a writer-inmate says:

"I object! I vehemently object! I get glassy-eyed with anger and I feel like striking out when practically every time I think how the crime prevention industry operates its debasing crime schools."

The writer said he had listened to 50 radio "crime" programs in two weeks, one of which "gave details on how to snatch 75 G's worth of diamonds," while another "showed how to case a bank for a 50-G stickup."

Prince Bernhard Ends Three-Day Visit to Ottawa

Ottawa, March 13 — (CP) — Prince Bernhard of The Netherlands today ended his three-day visit to Canada's capital secure in the knowledge that he had helped to strengthen the close ties already binding his country and the Dominion.

Behind him, the prince left hundreds of new admirers — in high places and low — won by his engaging personality, and his frank and willing manner in which he discussed problems relating to the two countries.

Dressed in green red and silver Dekota transport aircraft to Quebec City, Prince Bernhard and his party are scheduled to spend the remainder of the day in a round of functions in that provincial capital before leaving tomorrow for the United States.

Sunday morning he attended the regular service at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, where his wife, now Queen Juliana, worshipped while living here during the war years. The couple's third daughter Margriet was christened in St. Andrew's in 1943.

Gives Close Inspection

A crack pilot himself, the prince clambered into the cockpit of Canada's most modern weapon, giving it a close inspection as he did this country's first jet transport, also giving its first formal demonstration.

The prince, like others watching the demonstration of the jet fighter, was amazed at the plane's performance despite the fact that test pilot Bill Waterton opened it up to only 60 per cent of the total power.

Waterton flew the plane at 575 miles an hour without ever going outside the circumference of the field at the R.C.A.F.'s Rockcliffe air station; sent it straight up in the air in a ravage display of power; and took off and landed using only 1,000 feet of runway.

Following the demonstration the prince went to the home of former Prime Minister Mackenzie King to have lunch with the Grand Cross of The Netherlands Lion — Holland's highest civilian award. Mr. King was Prime Minister when Canada soldiers liberated The Netherlands in the Second World War.

Husband Had Boils

"Thick Poultice of MECCA Brought Out Pus and Cores"

Completely Healed No Sign of a Scar

Mrs. J. L. B., Toronto, writes: "I want to tell you what Mecca means in our home. Three years ago my husband had about twenty Boils on his back, also a very bad infection on his leg above the knee. I completely healed him with Mecca Ointment. Their applications of Mecca brought out the core and pus, then I applied thinly to heal. Mecca relieved pain and congestion and healed completely, without the sign of a scar. My home is never without it, because I use it on all infections, bruises, burns, etc."

Mecca Ointment is sold by all druggists—35c 50c (Tube) 70c and $1.40.

Millions of Reds Led to Polls By Premier Stalin

Moscow, March 13 — (AP) — Prime Minister Joseph Stalin led millions of Russians to the polls Sunday to cast ballots for a single slate of candidates for the Soviet Union's parliament.

The Russians voted at polling booths stretching almost halfway round the world — from Bering Strait to the mouth of the Danube. Up for election were 671 nominees for the council of the Union, the Upper House of the supreme Soviet, and 631 members of the council of Nationalities.

All were unopposed. To vote against any candidate, the voter would draw a line through the name of the tallot.

Stalin, himself was a candidate, from the Stalin district of Moscow, for the council of the Union.

Members of the supreme Soviet are elected for four-year terms. Regarding the election as a vote of confidence, the government announced nearly 100 per cent of those eligible would cast ballots.

Announcement of the complete vote was expected to come in about a week.

In the 1946 elections 99.7 per cent of the registered voters, or 101,450,936, cast ballots. A larger vote was expected this year.

Moscow wore a holiday air Sunday for the election with red flags festooning the city.

The voting followed campaigns during which the politburo members claimed the Soviet Union is following a policy of peace. Stalin was the only member of the politburo who did not speak.

Foreigners Invited

Moscow had expected the premier to speak Saturday night at the Bolshoi Theatre but he did not. Foreigners were election eves. However an opera was presented at the theatre this year and the premier did not appear.

SOVIET ENVOY IS SILENT ON SPY CASE

Alexander Pahyushkin, Russia ambassador to the U. S., manages a smile for newsmen who surrounded him after he conferred with Dean Acheson, Secretary of State, in Washington, D. C., in connection with the case of Valentin Gubitchev, Soviet engineer convicted with Judith Coplon on espionage conspiracy charges in New York. Said envoy Panyushkin: "Unfortunately I have nothing to tell you about today's conversation with the secretary of state." Gubitchev was sentenced to 15 years in prison, but the sentence was suspended when Gubitchev accepted U. S. government's offer to release him from prison term on condition that he return to Russia. — Central Press Canadian.

Sander Crosses Another Hurdle In His Fight

Manchester, N.H., March 13 — (AP)—Dr. Hermann N. Sander had crossed another hurdle today in his fight to return to his country doctor practice.

The New Hampshire Medical Society refused Sunday to take disciplinary action against the young physician and left any such action to the Hillsborough County Medical Society.

A spokesman also reported that the State Society did not plan to make any recommendations to the state board of registration in medicine, which alone has the right to revoke or suspend a medical licence.

The board planned to meet today to set a date for a formal hearing for the 41-year-old doctor acquitted last week of murder in the death of Mrs. Abbie Borroto, a cancer patient.

The prosecution had claimed that Mrs. Borroto died from air injections administered by Dr. Sander. The defence said Mrs. Borroto was already dead when the doctor shot the air into her veins.

While it did not wholly close the door upon such action, the State Medical Society said disciplinary action "is the province of the County Medical Society concerned."

It could have recommended disciplinary action to the county society, but refrained from doing so. Such action might have been censure, suspension or even expulsion from membership.

The State Society condemned mercy killing, or euthanasia, in strong terms.

Dude College

By Oren Arnold

"Is Dr. York in now?" she asked, courteously.

"I am Dr. York," croaked the young man, basso profundo.

For a moment they just stared in mutual surprise. Then after all once Dr. York arose, remembering his manners. Then whatever reased him even more, however, because she was already sitting and he could only plop back down. He turned a bit crimson.

He just knew she was a student. Blew his nest, glanced fearsomely at Ronica again and said innately, "Why, yes, yes indeed! All at once Ronnie laughed out loud.

"I'm so sorry!" she quickly apologized. "I didn't mean to be rude."

He smiled then. Moreover, his smile was genuine, human. He didn't look like a Dr. Woodrow Wesley York. He looked more like somebody's big brother who has been working too hard in an office. Ronnie told herself. Suddenly she liked him, and with characteristic impulsiveness she spoke.

"Do you know how to dance?" she asked brightly.

"Do I—I beg pardon?" his mouth remained open.

"You surprise me, Dr. York. I expected a crusty old professor. You are a professor, aren't you? Chemistry or something?"

"I—archaeology! And as for surprising one, Miss Bailey, you, sh, do right well yourself. I like your frankness, I mean. Your, sh, natural verve and ebullience. It is an added pleasure to discover one of your striking personality. You have the capacity for leadership, I'll wager."

"Tell me some things," she leaned a shapely elbow on his desk. "Will it be all right if I keep my monoplane here? I do so love to fly!"

"Oh, by all means, Miss Bailey. Pueblo University has no foolish disciplinary restraints, so long as its students stay within reason. Freedom of action is a concomitant of freedom in thought with hold, and youth must have free rein."

Ronnie sat back, smiling happily at him. Oddly, she suddenly took careful note of Wesley York as a man. He was big. Not as tall as—well as Andre Girardeau, for instance. Despite his initial embarrassment here, he had an open friendly manner. His tailor was too bookish, but his blush had been that of a boy. She couldn't imagine Andre Girardeau ever blushing!

She had liked Andre, even though she knew so little about him from the day of his arrival in Manhattan society he had paid her ardent court. But now, with 3,000 miles between them—

She brought her thoughts back to the formal conference here. And when it was over half an hour later she drove straight to her new ranch home. College classes wouldn't start until tomorrow so she had a day in which to explore. She had her mechanic warm up her golden monoplane.

"Landing fields are scarce out here, Miss Ronica," the mechanic warned.

"Righto. I'll stick in a 'chute, just in case. It's gorgeous country."

It was truly gorgeous. It was even more so from the air. She leveled off rather low to study the thorny cactus growths and the old rocky contours of the map slipping under her.

For one thing, there wasn't a town nor a house nor any living object as far as she could see, except for the New college town and the ranch homes in that particular canyon. She was whirring due south, and she flew steadily for at least half an hour, more and more awed by the vastness of this uninhabited cactus land.

When she had made a great curve, leaped over some low mountains and headed back north again, she suddenly saw five dots crawling on the ground. Binoculars showed them to be men walking, although there was no sign or road or trail.

With a curiosity typical of her, Ronnie cut her motor and slid down the air to get a close look at them—and that was a mistake. When her plane was still slightly along easily not 100 yards from the men, they produced guns and began to shoot!

Ronica was speechless. Wind fingers reached to grip her face, because one bullet had come so dangerously close as to break her front view window and scatter glass in her lap.

The man across the table from Andre was scowling.

"A fool you make of yourself," he was saying. "and fortunate for you is the change in plan."

"What do you mean!" Andre asked.

"I got your card. That much was all right the information. But why you would have been called here anyway. An—what is it you call yourself? Andre Girardeau, hah!"

Andre's lips tightened. He hadn't come to Washington to be insulted, and yet he was helpless here.

"After all, Herr Girardeau, if you will, you are to do exactly as you are told. That I explain what I mean? No.' I speak not for myself, you know that. Now at home you were always a soft mark for the women, and here in Mexico you make a name for yourself with the first pretty woman you contact. Do you fancy that is approved?"

"Listen, I—"

"No. You listen. You. Now, you have been given work high for let your attraction for women rule you. Herr—uh—Girardeau, before I explain further, I am interpicturing you and writing about you and—"

Andre interrupted. "I was not making a fool of myself. I took you the way to get at the father was through the girl. It is he who owns the new bomb site, remember."

"Ah, the bomb site!"

"Exactly! Already I have seen every inch of the big factory here and soon I could be intimate with the man himself. Even if I married the girl, it would be good cover."

"If you marry you will never live to be a good husband for long—remember that! But enough there is work ahead. You go at once to Pueblo, New Mexico."

"But that's where the girl is!" Andre looked squarely at the other man, a squat, pompadoured one of middle age.

"Right. And the father. And the new bomb sight. What better opportunity than a barren desert, to do bombing tests? Eh! We are not asleep, Herr Girardeau. You can go ahead and follow up your heart interest impersonally. But not too far, mind you. If you are not shrewd—" The man shrugged. "Do you need any money?"

"I have five amid wealth."

"Right. Here is a wallet with $20,000 in it. There is no lack of money if the goal is attained, just as there is no question—yet you—of your loyalty, but—"

Andre nodded frowning his impatience. He detested this man who was his superior here. "What am I to do now?"

"Here is a map." They spread a picture of North America and the short man began measuring with a pencil. "You can see that, by good fortune, Pueblo, New Mexico, is at a strategic advantage. The principal border towns such as Brownsville and El Paso Texas, Nogales and Tia Juana, are in virtual barricade. But where the international line runs through the open desert land — there, 64 in Pueblo, and there is the university too, where the Bailey girl goes. There also you go."

"All right."

"See, it is just this far to Tampico, and here is Guaymas on the Mexican west coast, and Masatlan."

"I see."

"That's all, now. You go direct to Pueblo, contact our operative there and get further orders. Here is a ring set with a chrysocolla stone. Wear it for identification. And the other operative there will be feigning a sprained ankle ad walking with one crutch."

"A crutch," echoed Andre, nodding.

"Right. Your ingenuity will then arrange a meeting."

When the conference was ended and Andre had attended to his banking errands he reserved a place on the next air transport west. There was time before the take off to telephone New York and have his luggage forwarded.

The air trip was interesting until nightfall, and then because there was no stimulating passengers with whom he might converse, he retired early. Dawn found him in Hachita, New Mexico, waiting for the little sidetrack train that would take him to the quaint village of Pueblo and its "Dude College." By 1 p.m. he was on the college campus itself.

From the moment he got to Pueblo he was alert for the man walking with a crutch. Of course chance might dictate more than one man on a crutch, but the ring would pave the way toward identification, Andre knew. He was in no great hurry.

He even thought of hiring or purchasing a car to drive out to the—what had Ronica said—Rocking R Ranch, and seeing Ronica herself. But he had been reprimanded for putting personal tastes first; so, better he form his business contact first. Ronnie probably would be on the campus anyway.

He liked the general look of things. Pueblo University surprised him. It was a veritable oasis, as was the whole town. The clerk in the expensive if small hotel here informed him that the town and its cluster of ranches entirely depended on the stream that watered this region year round. An eccentric but wealthy cattleman and his wife had endowed the university originally, and unexpected dude patronage had built it into a luxury school.

Andre like the beautiful Spanish architecture of its five buildings. The landscaping was superlative, and he walked down an avenue of trees toward the administration building.

He was admiring the nude statue of an Indian maiden in a fountain under the building's main arch, when a long whispering sedan drew up. At the same moment a bespectacled man stepped out of the building, carrying three books and a brief case, but Andre turned idly to look at the—"Mmmmmm!" Andre murmured appreciately, to himself.

Through the sedan window he saw the face of a girl, Spanish or Mexican, of extraordinary coloring. He could see that she was small, and reasonably young, but so very sure of herself as to be a trifle haughty. He liked the way her straight hair swept low and backward to frame her face. The bespectacled man had stepped toward her, and now he dropped his books. He was at her sedan door even before her chauffeur.

"Hello, Dr. York," she greeted him, and her voice was almost lyric.

"How are you, Senorita Montoya? May I help you into the building?"

She laughed gaily then and made a joke about her toot, but Andre's chin dropped. He barely regained his poise in time to keep from staring at her as she hobbled past him on one crutch.

$20,000 BARN FIRE

Brantford, Mar. 13 (CP)—Loss estimated at $20,000 was caused today when a fire destroyed a duck barn containing 176 bales of tobacco on the farm of John Stein two miles south of nearby Mount Pleasant. Two thirds of the loss was covered by insurance.

A brisk wind fanned the flames beyond control by the time the Brantford fire department arrived.

The Stein family was having breakfast when neighbors notified them that the barn was on fire.

Also destroyed in the blaze was a weed spraying machine.

Predicts Project Would Carry In Both Houses

Washington, Mar. 13 (AP)—Representative Clarence Kilburn (Rep. N.Y.) today predicted that legislation to authorize the St. Lawrence seaway and power project would be approved if it were put to a vote of the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives.

"There is no question," Kilburn said in a statement, "that sentiment throughout the country is rapidly growing for this great project."

Kilburn said should the project pass Congress it would be "extremely important" for New York State to undertake the power development.

He has introduced St. Lawrence legislation that includes the latter feature.

The dual project, he said, would reduce the transportation costs, strengthen national defence, provide employment for thousands, and produce the cheapest electric power in the world.

Low Cloud of Gas Explodes, Burns Two

Martinez, Calif., Mar. 13 (AP). —A freak explosion of a cloud of low-hanging gas killed Mrs. Ursula Adams of Alameda, Calif., and severely burned two men on Sunday.

The blast occurred over the highway along the east shore of San Francisco Bay at nearby Oleum. Police said the gas apparently escaped from an overhead pipe carrying waste from an oil refinery to a dump.

Nat. Planes Blast Red Invaders

By SPENCER MOOSA

Taipei, Formosa, March 13 — (AP)— Nationalist bombers today developed communist invasion forces on the mainland as a new cabinet prepared to begin functioning on Formosa.

Main target was a potential invasion force of 100 communist troops of Chusan Island. Nationalist blockade base 190 miles southeast of Shanghai. Air headquarters claimed a third of the Red fleet was wiped out, along with food stored at Ningpo, 75 miles south of Shanghai and a warehouse at Ninghai, 55 miles from there.

Other planes flew over Shanghai, Hangchow and Nanking dropping copies of President Chiang Kai-Shek's message of March 1 pledging recovery of the mainland.

Two tasks face the cabinet. First members must take the field in withstanding a possible communist invasion of Formosa which their mainland enemies have promised for this year. Second they must keep the economy of Formosa on an even keel.

All quarters rule out the possibility of a communist invasion of Formosa immediately unless the Russians supply the Reds with planes. Many are convinced an unpleasant surprise in this direction is in store and some think it will be catastrophic when it comes.

GUAY IS FOUND GUILTY OF 'DIABOLICAL' CRIME

Car Fumes Cause Death of Trenton Man

Victim of carbon monoxide gas poisoning, Raymond Rose, 26, Trenton, is dead, and a young woman, Miss Helen Yateman, 22, of R.R. 7, Trenton, is in serious condition in Belleville General Hospital.

The couple were found in their parked auto shortly before eight o'clock this morning. The car was said to have been parked on the No. 4 R.D. road north of the R.C.A.F. gate.

Discovery of the parked car with the two occupants slumped in the seat was made by Mr. Kendry, of the Israeli Construction Company as he was going to work. He notified police. Rose was dead and the Yateman girl was unconscious and was rushed to hospital at Belleville by ambulance.

Police said the couple had stopped on the sideroad and had apparently left their motor running. Later the exhaust pipe was blocked with snow. The father of the dead man, Fred Rose is stated to have said the exhaust of the car had been leaking.

Dr. A. E. McQuade and Dr. D. E. Campbell were called to the scene, the latter attending Miss Yateman at hospital. Miss Yateman's condition remained serious.

It is not expected that an inquest will be held.

NIXON OPPOSES CIVIL MARRIAGE PLAN FOR ONTARIO

Toronto, March 14 (CP)—Harry Nixon of Brant, former Liberal Premier of Ontario, still remembers his church wedding of 27 years ago as "pretty impressive." In the legislature Monday he described the proposal to allow civil marriages in Ontario as "a radical suggestion."

Mr. Nixon and W. J. Grummett (CCF-Cochrane South) were the only members to oppose the new marriage act which would permit judges and magistrates to perform marriages. E. B. Jolliffe, the provincial CCF opposition leader, was in favor of the measure.

W. H. Temple (CCF-Toronto High Park) suggested the bill should include provisions for pre-marriage blood tests.

Following adjournment of the marriage act debate H. L. Waters (CCF-Toronto Bracondale) resumed Throne Speech debate, calling on the government to give municipalities a lead in slum clearance. The Throne-Speech debate will be continued today by M. Phillips (PC-Grey North).

Mr. Nixon moved an amendment to express disapproval in civil marriage, and Speaker M. C. Davies withheld decision on validity of the amendment.

Clergy apparently are in favor civil marriages, said Mr. Nixon. "However, I have never seen an individual who objected to having a prayer said and a blessing asked at his marriage."

Few Want Civil Marriages

Few people would want civil marriages, he said, and it was "scarcely necessary to pass such dangerous legislation for so few." There was a tendency to "ape the United States" where civil marriages were accepted "very casually."

Hard Coal to Cost 85c to $1 Ton More

Toronto, March 14 — (CP) — Hard coal will cost Toronto consumers 85 cents to $1 a ton more by the end of this week, the secretary of the Toronto Coal Exchange predicted today.

E. R. Lockyer said soft coal costs would rise 25-30 cents. He blamed the price increases on new wage agreements signed recently in the United States.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, March 14 (CP)—Synopsis: With spring officially only one week off, there is little sign of a break in the winter weather which has gripped Ontario for several weeks. Temperatures during the night fell far below zero in Northern Ontario. Moosonee was the coldest spot at 30 below. Armstrong and White River were 29 and 28 below respectively. Other overnight readings—temperatures were mostly 5 to 15 above.

Snow falling over most western Ontario this morning will move southeastward and affect the remainder of the province later today and tonight. Wednesday will be clear and cold in Northern Ontario and cloudy with snowflurries in southern regions.

BARTER SYSTEM MAY BE ANSWER TO TRADE ISSUE

Mayhew Speaks As Private Member

Ottawa, March 14—(CP)—Fisheries Minister Mayhew indicated in the Commons Monday he believes at least a partial solution to Canada's trade problems may be found through barter deals with non-dollar countries.

Stressing that he was speaking as a private member and not as a cabinet minister, Mr. Mayhew suggested that a national export-import corporation be established to barter mixed Canadian merchandise for mixed imports from non-dollar countries.

It was clear, he said during continued debate on the Speech from the Throne, that a solution to Canada's trading problems could not be found "either by attaching ourselves to the dollar or the sterling — currency areas." The problem was one of an exchange of commodities rather than a financial problem.

Canada's export position was unique. Generally, she has developed sufficient balances with overseas countries to pay for her dollar deficit with the United States. The problem was the same, but it had changed in character in recent years.

Overseas markets still continued for certain raw materials, such as wheat, flour, tobacco, fish, cheese, pulp and paper, and for manufactured goods, such as automotive, textiles, rubber, machinery and chemicals.

Could Produce Surpluses

In primary commodities, overseas restrictions would produce export surpluse for this country while in the manufacturing field the market restrictions would show themselves in unemployment. The United was the kind ways of disposing of export surpluses to non-dollar areas and finding acceptable imports for them.

Pass Counterfeit Bills in Bancroft, Two are Arrested

Tip Received From Garage Service Station Operator

Bancroft (Special)—Acting on a complaint received Monday morning four men travelling by car had been in Bancroft village on counterfeit bills, Saturday counterfeit bills, Sergeant S. W. Palmateer of the provincial police detachment Bancroft, radioed by police to be on the lookout for cars, men, and at eleven ten a.m. one of the men was identified and a warrant issued for his arrest.

The hot tip was the result of Mr. Gerald Davey, of Bancroft, who owns and operates a garage service station, having written the license number of the car on a ten dollar bill which one of the men presented him for gasoline purchase.

Two men were apprehended at Forest Hill late Monday afternoon, Kenneth Barker of Indian Road, Toronto, and John Bowers.

Sergeant S. W. Palmateer and provincial constable Ray Hutchings, left Monday evening for Forest Hill to pick up the accused and bring them to Bancroft for trial.

The other business people of Bancroft known so far to have received counterfeit bills are Mise Bros., who operate a drug store and Mr. C. A. Eddy, a druggist.

Seek Toronto Link

Toronto — Police said today they are seeking the Toronto link in a rapidly-expanding counterfeit $10 bill ring because they think this city is the central distributing centre.

Two youths arrested Monday in the basement of a house in the city were found to have three of the bogus bills with them. The pair were held by police at Bancroft, Ont., where three bills were passed Saturday night.

John Bowers, 21, and Kenneth Barker, 20, were caught when police spotted their automobile, the licence number of which had been given by a Bancroft service station operator who had accepted one of the bills.

Police, who believe the bills may be printed here, said the youths denied knowledge of their source.

DEMONSTRATORS ARRESTED AFTER CLASH WITH POLICE

Try to Prevent Officer From Entering Plant

Hannover, Germany, March 14 —(AP)—Twenty Communist demonstrators were arrested today after an hour-long clash between police and a crowd of nearly 1,000 sympathizers.

The melee started when the crowd, including youth members and several women, gathered to prevent a British officer from entering the plant of the outlawed Communist newspaper Volkstimme.

The officer had a court order to inspect the newspaper's printing plant because four of its editors were convicted of endangering the security of the occupation forces.

The Communists gathered in front of the printing plant shortly after a British high court sentenced two of the paper's eight editors to prison terms of a year and a half each, banned the publishing stories endangering security of the western allies.

Two of the editors had been acquitted and four will be retried at a later date. The British officer went to the plant with a court order, including plans to demand the property.

When the officer, Col. Walter Witham, found the crowd had blocked all entrances to the building he called police and also to force his way through. About 50 police answered the summons but were unable to break through. Then arrived with truncheons and pistols.

The police managed finally to force the crowd away from the building with their elbows and fists. Eyewitnesses said they did not use their weapons.

The Communist and its editors had been accused by British authorities of publishing appeals to Germans to rise up against the dismantling of German war plants.

Jury Deliberates Only 17 Minutes To Reach Verdict

Judge Sevigny Sentences Accused to Hang June 23

By WILLIAM STEWART
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Quebec, March 14 — (CP) — J. Albert Guay today was sentenced to be hanged June 23 for the murder of his wife, a slaying which the Crown described as a "diabolical" crime because the 32-year-old jeweler caused an air disaster which killed 22 others.

A criminal action jury brought in a verdict of "guilty" after deliberating 17 minutes.

The case was handed to the jury at 1.10 p.m., EST, by Chief Judge Albert Sevigny who wept as he finished his charge. The verdict was returned at 1.27 p.m.

Guay took the verdict stoically with head hung. He murmured "no" when the judge asked him if he had anything to say before sentence was pronounced.

Best Jury

The judge told the jury it was the best and most diligent he had seen in 22 years on the bench. He praised the 12 French-speaking talesmen for "a good verdict."

He was so filled with emotion when pronouncing sentence Judge Sevigny told Guay that for "hatred of his wife" and passion for Marie-Ange Robitaille he had perpetrated a diabolical, infamous crime" which had failed.

Marie-Ange Robitaille

Marie-Ange Robitaille is the 26-year-old Quebec waitress with whom Guay had an affair. The Crown alleged that her love was one of the motives for the slaying of Mrs. Guay. The Crown contended the other motive was the proceeds of a $10,000 insurance policy Guay had taken out on the life of Mrs. Guay shortly before she embarked on the fatal flight.

Had Questioned Witnesses

The verdict was announced by the 33-year-old jury foreman, Paul Pelletier, a forestry engineer. During the trial he had risen on many occasions to question witnesses himself.

Throughout the trial, which began Feb. 22, the Crown sought to weave a skein of evidence linking Guay with the purchase of dynamite, the construction of a time-bomb and the placing of the bomb aboard a Canadian Pacific airliner.

Witnesses said the bomb had exploded a few minutes after the airliner left the airport at nearby Ancienne Lorette, carrying 23 passengers and crew members to death.

Doukhobor Lawlessness in B.C. Termed 'Civil Insurrection'

(By The Canadian Press)

The British Columbia Legislature was told Monday by Attorney-General Gordon B. Wismer Monday that Doukhobor lawlessness in the Kootenays is a form of civil insurrection.

He said the Federal government was responsible for bringing the Doukhobors to Canada and should help in solution of the problem. After several visits to Ottawa the Provincial authorities had appointed Col. F. J. Meade, retired Assistant Commissioner of the R. C. M. P., to confer with John Shirass, then Commissioner of Provincial Police, on a plan which drawn up a plan which must be approved by Ottawa.

The Alberta Legislature head Premier Manning declared that when the Dominion-Provincial tax agreement expires, Alberta may ask the Federal Government to return the tax fields unless the province "gets considerably more in return."

Mr. Manning said that Alberta expects to get $16,087,000 during 1950-51 from rental of the income tax, corporation tax and succession duties fields to the federal government.

Give Second Reading

The Saskatchewan Legislature gave second reading to a bill Monday to permit the jury service ing women to serve on juries on a voluntary basis.

The Ontario Legislature debated second reading of the bill Monday to amend the act to give judges and magistrates the power to perform civil marriages.

The Quebec Legislature today gave third reading to seven bills, departmental estimates due today and the budget to be brought down Thursday by Treasurer Gagnon. About half of the legislature's business for the year has already been adopted.

The Prince Edward Island Legislature saw tabling of a report showing operation by a Government-owned vessel to promote trade with Newfoundland last year brought $500,000 worth of new business to Merchants Ltd., Charlottetown.

The P. E. I. budget will be introduced at a night sitting in Charlottetown tonight.

Premier Smallwood told the Newfoundland Legislature that the government will ask the Federal Board of Transport Commissioners for a more comprehensive and conclusive" judgment regarding freight rates. This method replaces a proposed appeal to the Federal government.

FOREIGN MINISTER CZECHOSLOVAKIA HAS RESIGNED

Prague, March 14 — (CP) — Foreign Minister Vlado Clementis of Czechoslovakia has resigned. Deputy Premier Viliam Siroky has been named as his successor.

The official announcement today gave no reason for the resignation of Clementis, a communist journalist and lawyer who succeeded the late Jan Masaryk as Foreign Minister in March, 1948.

The resignation came as the heels of reports that a wholesale purge is imminent in the ranks of the Czech communist party on charges of Titoism. It gave rise to speculation that Clementis would be brought to trial on charges that he had not been faithful to the brand of communism demanded by Russia as opposed to the "independent" communism of Premier Tito of Yugoslavia.)

The official Czech news agency said that Clementis' resignation had been accepted by President Klement Gottwald on the recommendation of Premier Antonin Zapotocky. Gottwald was Premier two years ago when he appointed Clementis.

An official communique said that Clementis had personally handed Zapotocky his resignation and the Premier had recommended that President Klement Gottwald accept it.

The communique said that the Premier at the same time recommended to the President that Clementis be put in charge of the Foreign ministry and that the President had accepted this recommendation.

Forest Experts Throw Cold Water On Reports of Wolf Attacks on Persons

Timagami, March 14 (CP) — Two forestry experts today came up with a douse of cold water on recent stories of attacks by wolves on two different persons.

They said the stories could be proved, and thereby bolstered the long contention that wolves will not attack humans.

Acting on a suggestion of Jim Curran, editor of the Sault Ste. Marie Star, that "any man who says he was ate by a wolf is a liar," they looked considerably shaken for a time. One report in the latest dition just after he had recovered. Somehow the story started that he had been attacked by wolves.

The other report was discounted by Charles Bibby, chief game overseer of the Sudbury district. The story that a woman, weighing only 100 pounds, had fought off wolf attacks with a sleigh on which she had been hauling groceries.

Bibby said "it's a thousand-to-one that the animals were dogs." He pointed out that wolves rarely occurred in darkness, making it impossible to identify the animals, and that if a determined wolf actually attacked a woman of light weight the results would be pretty serious.

Tracks of brush wolves in the Sudbury district can't be distinguished from dog tracks, said Bibby, and there are plenty of them in the district.

Bibby declared flatly: "there hasn't been an authenticated case yet where wolves have attacked a human."

Andy Tyson, Sudbury district trapper who has collected bounty on 125 wolves in the last 10 years, supported the statement. "Wolves won't attack anybody," he said. "They are more frightened of man than rabbits are."

Leopard Escapes From Auckland Zoo

Auckland, N.Z., March 14 — (Reuters) — Troops and police armed with rifles today hunted for a half grown leopard from the Auckland zoo.

Visitors were hurriedly cleared from the zoo and the gates locked. A search among trees in the grounds showed no trace of the leopard. The authorities thought it might have travelled some distance from the zoo.

The animal was brought with its mate from Singapore only a few days ago. It was last seen safely locked in its enclosure, and zoo officials cannot explain how it got out.

Operations were suspended until this morning, and it was expected the ship would be under the loading facilities will soon be charge.

Preliminary examination disclosed little damage to the ship, and no apparent damage to her cargo.

Inquest Jury Holds Wife, Son Responsible

St. Chrysostome, Que., March 14 — (CP) — A six-man coroner's jury Monday night took only five minutes to find the wife and 19-year-old son of Arthur Sutton criminally responsible for the 48-year-old farmer's death Saturday night.

The stocky Covey Hill, Que., resident died at his home less than a mile from the New Edest of his three children allegedly shot him in the thigh with a 30-30 rifleafter following a family quarrel. Covey Hill is about 40 miles south of Montreal.

Meanwhile, Detective Sgt. Pierre Lavoie, head of the Provincial Police Homicide Squad in Montreal, said that a charge of murder would be placed on Lael against 16-year-old Earl Sutton when he is arraigned in court at Valleyfield, Que., later today.

Mrs. Sutton, he said, either will be charged with murder or conspiracy to incite murder.

Fourteen-year-old Gordon Sutton testified at the inquest that his father came home from a trip to Montreal Saturday and he started an argument with his mother.

The youth then related how Earl went to his parents' room armed with a rifle and told his father he "would shoot him in the legs" if he didn't leave his mother alone.

Books are Called Serious Menace

As Cold Carriers

London, March 14—(AP)—The magazine Medical Press today whipped out a new culprit as a carrier of the common cold—books.

"Next to the pocket handkerchief," it said, "the book which we happen to be reading during the early stages of a cold is probably the most heavily-infected object in our environment.

"The book, in fact, deserves to be regarded as much more of a menace, for whereas our handkerchiefs in the course of laundering are usually boiled, any process of disinfection applied to a book will usually end in its destruction."

Rotary Club Inducts Eight New Members

Eight new members were officially inducted into the Rotary Club at the weekly luncheon held in the Hotel Quinte Monday noon.

The new members are: Harold Parker (Federal Government Administration); Carl Crosby (Insurance); Reg. Cash (religion); Andy Shea (Railroad Transportation and Administration); Geo. Lanning (Leather Goods Manufacturing); Dr. H. Ellis (Medicine and Surgery); K. H. Ketcheson (Federal Government Administration) and Dick Cowan (Newspaper Publishing).

Inducting official was club president Fred Deacon, who personally congratulated the incoming members. He outlined the objects of Rotary; fellowship, high ethical standards in business or professions; and furtherance of international understanding and goodwill. Rotary, he pointed out is making a vital contribution to aspects of life both from a Canadian and international viewpoint. Evidence of this is seen in the fact that since July 1941 154 new clubs have sprung into being in 29 countries of the world.

Some may be despairing of the work done by the United Nations, but, he said, history reveals that good work done by major world organizations is not done overnight, two or three generations.

He stressed the importance of attendance to the new members. "The Belleville Club," he said, "is slowly climbing the ladder of clubs with respect to attendance. The life of any organization to Rotary depends on attendance."

Primary ballots for the election of the club's board of directors were completed by members at luncheon. The second ballot will be taken at next week's meetings.

It was announced that the Easter Seal Campaign sponsored by the club for the crippled children's work is now under way. Seals will be in the mail by Friday of this week.

Institute for Blind Offers Sightless Economics, Cultural And Social Rehabilitation

Field secretary P. E. Timmins told the weekly meeting of the Kinsmen Club last night that the Canadian National Institute for the Blind offered the sightless economic, cultural and social rehabilitation.

Of the 17,000 blind people in Canada 115 reside in the county of Hastings, while a total of 380 live in the six counties supervised by Mr. Timmins. Veterans returning from the last war numbered 140 compared with 160 soldiers who lost their vision in the First Great War. There are, however, some Hong Kong casualties who may still lose their eyesight as the result of malnutrition and medical diseases. These are in the doubtful category with some losing and others gaining as they battle for recovery.

Clarifies Meaning

Mr. Timmins clarified the meaning of Rehabilitation stating that standards needed for pensions allowances. Ending of 10 per cent vision in Canada entitles a victim to $40 monthly and the services of the Institute for the Blind. In the case of a blind man not fully trained for the high cost of living the Institute subsidizes him for the balance.

Of the total number of blind jobs have been found for 1700 while the Institute is encouraged by the government to give rehabilitation to the 380 sightless members of the armed forces. Mr. Timmins pointed out that the Institute was a public undertaking or organization functioning to help the blind help themselves and making blindness more endurable.

Two Summer Camps

Under the social program the Institute provides two summer camps capable of accommodating 75 each Mr. Timmins told the Kinsmen. Blind from all parts of Ontario visit the camp each year and the sightless group is gaining popularity each new term. Indoor activities at the camp promotes bowling and the sightless compete with unusual skill in golfing and swimming.

It is the work of the Institute to build the sightless into the blind utilizing all the modern facilities at their disposal. Before the sightless is read is one of the first steps. If an older person has lost his vision in summer or in the event a younger victim loses his sight in winter, a complaint and cannot record the sensation of touch, the Institute maintains a talking book service supplied free of charge. Mr. Timmins pointed out that the talking book devices distributed throughout the six counties in this district five of which are located in homes in Belleville. There are 1,000 talking book machines supplied by required said Mr. Timmins thanking the local clubs for having already distributed several in answer to an Institute appeal.

The Institute loans out radios licensed by the Department of Transport without charge, while the aged sightless who find it difficult to learn all the combinations of Braille are taught a new system named after a Dr. Moon of England and not so complicated. Of course the system known as Moon does not afford the scope in words that Braille provides.

Understanding Problem

Saying that sympathetic understanding was the foremost problem of blindness, Mr. Timmins revealed that days had passed when great numbers of blind beggars roamed the streets of our towns and cities. Each victim receives his pensions and there is no need for him to go begging. However, there is the odd one who has the wanderlust but the police know them and endeavor to discourage the practice.

The speaker was introduced by Kin Bert Vanover and Kin Ross Bailey tendered the vote of thanks.

Mrs. Phyllis Swan who made such a hit with the listeners of the recent Kinsmen Concert broadcast was at the keyboard of the solovox rendering several beautiful selections. The diminutive entertainer explained before her renditions that although unaccustomed to the piano converted the instrument to give out piano-organ tones. Kin Jack Sherwood introduced Mrs. Swan to the meeting.

Before business of the club was dealt with classification services were heard from Kin George Bursey and Kin Bob Best.

Headed For Success

A report from the Bermuda trip draw showed that the effort was headed for success. The committee in charge of the mammoth auction indicated that to date 62 articles had been received from manufacturers in all parts of Canada. Each article has an average value of $10 and will go on the block when the date is set for the holding of the auction, legal member of the club announced that the new charter was almost ready for the incorporation of the organization to be known as the "Kinsmen Club of Belleville Incorporated."

All profits from the sale of tickets go to the community swimming pool reported to be the big project.

The Kinsmen were shown a new catalogue printed for club members information as to where to,obtain Kinsmen effects. . .

Ken Murray Davis announced that during the month of May the local club would go all out in a drive to raise the remainder of the $50,000 needed to build the swimming pool. Recently a contractor sized up the location and his figures on construction are expected to be at hand in the near future.

Nine Men Face Gambling Charges

Charged with keeping a common gaming house and a common betting house, nine operators of pin ball machines in the city will appear in city police court on March 24th, it was reported by police today.

Charges against the nine local men were laid by members of the Anti-Gambling Squad from Toronto who were in the city yesterday afternoon.

It is understood that all the charges involve the operation of pin ball machines in local places of business where the customer was "paid off" in cash by the proprietor for accumulated free games.

Members of the anti-gambling squad are under the direction of the Ontario Provincial Police in Toronto and visit Ontario centres where gambling is suspected.

Woodcutters Scarce

Nice Cosy Camp, Fair Pay and Good Food No Inducement to Workers

Want a job cutting hardwood? It pays you four dollars the cord and "board" in your cosy camp in the heart of a 750-acre tract of timberland near Roslin.

Eugene Tracey, "camp man" of the tract—and another 350 acres in the northern part of the county—looked at the standing dollars the other day and bemoaned the fact that woodcutters are becoming stern believers in the "spare that tree" expression.

Tracey cut 200 cords of hardwood from his Roslin tract this winter. "And there is plenty left," he said, "besides varieties of soft woods."

Market in the city is good. He sold 28 cords here last Saturday at $15 and $18 dollars the cord. Woodyards here furnish lucrative outlets for his timber product.

"But there isn't much in it, even at these prices," he says, "after you pay the hired help, feed them and take into consideration, haulage, gasoline and oil expenses."

His chief trouble, however, is lack of labor. It appears that not many want to take on the job, even at the wages paid.

He has a comfortable cabin built in the centre of his large Roslin tract, and woodcutters in the northern stand, which he uses mainly for hunting purposes.

Recently he hired three men to cut timber in the 750-acre lot. He saw them comfortably ensconced in the camp with plenty of food and left.

Eleven days later he visited the camp to see how matters were progressing. The boys apparently had taken a winter holiday. Only three cords of wood were in the pile and the lads were snug as bugs in a rug in the warm comfort of the camp.

The Mayor Defends Course of Action In Barlow Property By-Law

Discussion regarding the Barlow property at the corner of Bridge and Victoria Streets, which council proposes to purchase for park purposes, was resumed at the Monday interchange of words at city council Monday evening when Mayor H. J. Allis was accused of being prejudiced in the matter.

Alderman Duffy charged that the mayor had used "obstruction" tactics in refusing official to the purchase of the property. He said the mayor had advised the Municipal Board that the Parks Board did not recommend purchase of the property with result that this body had held up approval of the purchase by-law.

Was Within Rights

The mayor replied that any ratepayer had the right to communicate with the Municipal Board and in any event he, as Mayor, had been perfectly within his rights in advising the Board of the controversy. "It is my duty to serve the taxpayer money," he said.

The discussion regarding the Barlow property came when Alderman Duffy introduced a motion asking that the Municipal Board be advised that the Parks Board had been misinformed as to the desirability of the Barlow property. Now that they were aware of the correct information they no longer opposed the purchase.

Alderman Thomas said it was "high-handed" on the part of Mayor Allis to forward the information regarding the Barlow property to the Municipal Board.

Alderman Duffy took exception to the Mayor's remark regarding saving the city money. He retorted that Mayor Allis last year as chairman of the Industrial Committee had saved the city land taxes for all the members. This, after Mayor Allis had criticized the Industrial Commission for expense accounts.

"You are not as interested in saving the taxpayers' money as I am," he said.

Mayor Allis re-iterated that he had every right to communicate with the Municipal Board and told Alderman Duffy that his personal attacks were completely unjustified. The Mayor agreed that when the Parks Board made its new report on the Barlow property, the information would be passed on to the Municipal Board.

15-Ton Limit

In view of the state of repair of the city weigh scales, council voted that a limit of 15 tons be placed for all loads passing over the scales. Alderman Butler said new scales were recommended.

Under a motion, Alderman Duffy asked if the committee making recommendations for highways department for re-routing of provincial highways through the city were aware that such action might mean a loss of business for certain businesses. He also asked if the Pinnacle and Bridge Street intersection had been considered as the principal debussing centre for city buses.

A routine by-laws regarding parking on certain streets were passed as well as the by-law regarding daylight saving time.

Council in Stormy Session Refuses To Ratify Board of Education Request For $293,000 Debenture Issue for School

Delay of possibly 12 months in the construction of the proposed new 12-room public school in the east end of the city was seen today by members of the local Board of Education following refusal of city council to ratify a debenture issue of $293,000 to cover the cost of construction.

At one of the stormiest council sessions seen in some months, council last night at their regular meeting voted not to accede to the request of the board for a debenture issue to provide funds for the school's construction.

Council claimed that the amount asked was unnecessarily high as the second lowest tender had been accepted by the board. The board last week announced acceptance of the St. Lawrence Contracting Company had been accepted at $293,641, the amount $23,641 higher than the lowest bid submitted by the H. J. McDonald Construction Company at Picton.

Question Debated

The question of the debenture issue was debated by members of council for well over an hour much to the interest of an audience which packed the city hall council chambers. It was the first time in years that such a spirited crowd had attended a council meeting.

As representative of the Department of Education, public school inspector L. A. Kells, opened the discussion on the matter of the debenture issue, when he stated: "I am satisfied that the Department had given final approval for legislation to grant requests for the new public school for a maximum amount of $293,000, this to include architect's fees, furniture and equipment, providing financing can be arranged. The department noted that awarding of the contract for the new school was the responsibility of the Board of Education.

Cautionary Words Claim

Mr. Kells warned that the words of the telegram from the department concerning financing not be misconstrued. They were cautionary words addressed for the information and guidance of the Board of Education as the contract must be proceeded with only if the Municipal Board is satisfied with the financial position of the city.

He said the same intent in similar words appeared in the final approval for the Prince Charles School in May 1949.

Mr. Kells said that the proposed school in Belleville was only one of many for which the Ontario Department of Education has had to give its attention during the past few months and was one of many under consideration for construction. The department is prepared to give its approval to the amount of $22,000 per class room with an allowance of $30,000 for an assembly room.

On this basis the public school supporters in Belleville could have expected to pay $336,000 for the school building and approval of the department would have been given up to that amount.

Tentative Approval Given

He noted that the Ontario Municipal Board had given tentative approval for an expenditure of $300,000. The tenders were received only one of the seven qualifying was above that figure. "Therefore," Mr. Kells said "the had no hesitation in recommending the amount of $293,190 requested by the Board for the approval of the department.

While he had been concerned with the great difference between the lowest tender and the one accepted in view of previous information he had been prepared to accept the architect's statement, that the building could not be built according to specification at the tender submitted by the lowest bidder. His problem was not to judge between contractors but to ensure the construction of a satisfactory accommodation within a reasonable time.

Meeting Interested

Alderman Duffy introduced the motion for council to accede to the request of the Board of Education for the debenture issue covering the $293,190 capital cost of the proposed school.

Alderman Haig, as chairman of finance, was quick to oppose the motion, stating that the matter simply resolves itself into a decision as to whether or not public bodies in the city of Belleville are going to recognize the time honored exemplary else is equal."

But Alderman Haig said in his opinion the Board of Education were violating this principle in awarding the contract to the second lowest tender at an immediate increase in cost of $23,600, and with debenture costs to a total of between $35,000 and $40,000.

He said this was particularly true because of the city's present financial circumstances and the 60 mill tax rate.

Refers to Rising Cost

The speaker referred to the rising cost of education in the city. In 1944—total expenditures for public schools amounted to $119,397 while in 1949 this had increased to $205,355, or an increase of 72 per cent. The estimated expenditure in 1950 was $250,794. During the 1944-1949 period public school attendance had increased only 11.3 per cent, the final result being that the average cost per pupil had risen 56.2 per cent.

"Yet in spite of this," he said, "the Board are asking us to approve an unnecessary capital expenditure of $23,600."

Alderman Haig questioned the contention of the Board of Education that a letter of intent regarding the tenders received. He said that similar tenders had been called requiring a sealed price according to detailed specifications. A qualified architect was employed to draw the specifications, to supervise construction and to see that the specifications were complied with.

In addition a deposit was required in the form of a marked cheque to at least five per cent of the tender. This had been complied with. The tender required the successful bidder to file a bond to guarantee the completion of the contract. At the same time the contractor will permit the board to hold back 15 per cent of monies due the contractor as the construction progresses.

No Interest in Either Firm

The speaker said he had no interest, in either of the firms concerned in the contract but he was vitally concerned in the principle that public tenders under any circumstances similar to these should be awarded to the lowest tender. Any other policy would completely vitiate the ethics of public calls for tender and would prejudice the confidence of contractors in future calls for tenders.

"It has been said that the architect advised the Board that if the lowest tenderer received the contract he would refuse to be responsible for supervision of the work," continued Alderman Haig.

"If this was the case why did he send a telegram to the low tenderer prior to the award suggesting an error in the figures? Why did the architect not take this stand when the tenders were originally opened. Why was the contract awarded to the second lowest tender then?"

Fee Involved Substantial

The speaker said the architect concerned was a very professionally competent and of the highest personal integrity. The fee involved was very substantial. "I can hardly conceive of him admitting his inability to supervise the work, or requesting his release in the event of the tender being awarded to one contractor rather than another."

In conclusion the alderman said he was vitally concerned about requesting the Municipal Board to permit the city to raise $23,600 more money than the circumstances justified.

He admitted the urgent necessity of the school and did not question the integrity of members of the Board of Education but he advised that the Board of Council was charged with the raising of the money by way of taxation for public purposes and its responsibility was to see that no more is required than necessary.

Other Opposition

Alderman Liddle also opposed issuing of debentures as requested by the Board of Education. He said that last October he had supported the Council recommendation petitioning the Municipal Board to permit the issuing of the issue of debentures for the new school.

"But I was amazed when I learned that the contract had been awarded at a substantial more price was $23,600 higher than the lowest bidder," he said. "He did not consider good business nor in the best interests of the ratepayers.

The alderman felt that the statement by the architect that he would not act if the contract was awarded to the lowest tenderer, may have swayed the Board of Education in their decision to accept the second lowest tender.

Takes Exception to Statement

He took exception to a statement said to have been made by certain board members that council by holding up the debenture issue, were "trying to hold up construction of the school. He said he would like to see the Board re-open the matter and with both council and the Board working together to have the much-needed school erected this year.

In reply to Alderman Haig's statement regarding the increased cost of education, Alderman Hyde asked what commodity has not increased greatly in price. He said as a good purpose would be accomplished in holding up the debentures. Such a move could only embarrass the Board and delay construction of the school.

He felt that the Board could still proceed with the construction of the school. "They are responsible to the people and are just as considerate of the taxpayer as council," he said.

He referred to the "thousands" of dollars which had been spent at the collegiate remedying constructional mistakes and said he did not want this to again occur.

Needless Lawsuits Claim

Needless lawsuits with the public utilities had delayed construction of Parkwood Heights sewer with result that contractors ran into bad weather and exceeded their time limit, Bert Deacon said. He said they were facing a court action involving a $31,000 claim.

This council should support the Board to the limit. The school is needed," he said.

Alderman Butler did not feel council was running into any antagonism with the Board. He said tribute to the integrity of Board members and said they may have received imprudent advice in the procedure of the Board, if council turned down the debentures, would be to go to the people," he said.

"The Board was amply protected in its contract and should have accepted the lowest tender," he said. "I cannot vote to spend money I don't have."

Alderman Deacon agreed with the speaker that the Board of Education should not be in the lawsuit business. The new school was needed promptly.

Members of the Board have the greatest confidence in council and of the citizens, but he said he must disagree with their decision in awarding the school contract.

He had only two months' municipal experience but he had yet to see where economy started with respect to city expenditure. He referred to the increased tax rate and debentures already issued and stated there is a limit to the amount which could be spent.

I would like the school board (and this may be asking them to swallow their pride) to again go into the matter and decide among themselves whether they had been wise to ask the ratepayers to raise an additional sum of $23,600. The fact is the lowest tender would produce the building for $219,000."

May Have Influenced Board

The speaker said the Board should not have taken too seriously the alleged statement of the architect that he would not be responsible for supervision if the lowest tender was accepted. And if this statement had in all probability influenced the Board in their decision.

He suggested that new tenders for the construction of the school be called. It was unfair to the ratepayers to let a contract for $23,600 more than necessary. To ask that the Board consider all angles and not forget the ratepayer."

"What would council do if the motion is defeated asking lauing of the debentures?" asked Alderman Duffy.

"If the motion is not approved I do not propose to do anything" replied Alderman Haig, "except ask the Board to reconsider. The next step is up to the Board. Our responsibility is to the municipal board; the Board is responsible to the Department of Education."

Alderman Is Satisfied

"That still does not answer my question," returned Alderman Duffy. "I say that council has no right to supersede any direction which the school board gives. Unless we do something we are merely holding up construction of the school."

"The school board is just as conscientious as are members of this council—and they are accountable to the people."

Alderman Duffy went on to say that the council meeting was not being held the whole story. He pointed out that the lowest tenderer had admitted a mistake of $14,000 in his figures.

"There is no way we can make a contractor tie up to his contract," went on the alderman. "An example is the MacDonald Ave. sewer and in this case we had the most competent supervisor. There is always the possibility that accepting the lowest tender is not good business. In refusing the Board of Education council is merely undertaking obstructionist.

Disagreement Registered

Alderman Butler disagreed with the previous speaker. "Why," he asked, "do regulations say council must by-law approving of debentures, and why do they say the matter must be submitted to the people if asked by the board?" He suggested there would be a delay of at least a month if the matter were placed to a vote of the ratepayers.

"Regulations very frequently imply something very different from what the layman takes from them," replied Alderman Duffy. "Council is being asked to approve of debentures only because the Board has no power to borrow money."

Alderman Tice asked if council turned down the request of the Board could they go to the Municipal Board.

Could Force Issue

In reply R. A. Pringle, city solicitor, said he believed the Board could force the issue of debentures. If it went to a vote of the people the ratepayers would probably vote if they were in favor of constructing a new school.

Alderman Tice objected to the discussion taking place at Thursday night's committee of the whole meeting becoming public property. "This is a council meeting." "If we are going to have a committee meeting let's have a committee meeting if not let us have a reporter present and get it all down."

Alderman Duffy reiterated that council was not accomplishing anything by using obstructionist tactics. He said both sides of the story should be presented to council.

Alderman Argue said it was unfair to say that the Board and council were not desirous of keeping the tax rate down. He noted that much had been said at the committee meeting which had not been said in open council. "Everything here tonight has been creating around the bush," he said.

Mayor is Heard

Mayor H. J. Allin said that as chief magistrate he was obliged to hold the tax rate to the lowest possible figure.

"What about the contractor who was out $14,000 on his figure and what were the reasons of the architect who said he would resign for supervision?" asked Alderman Duffy. "The public does not know these facts."

Alderman Lattimer asked "If the $14,000 mentioned by the previous speaker be not misprinted. He said the contractor had stated he would build the school at the price of his tender.

In order both sides of the question be heard, chairman of the Board of Education, Enos David, was permitted to address council. Mr. David said the Board were concerned with the city tax rate but felt they had acted in the best interests of the city. No statement had been made to the public because the Board had no desire to draw the matter out unnecessarily. The Board had the facts which resulted in their decision, he said.

Reasons for Award

They had awarded the contract to the second lowest bidder for the following reasons: The Board had advised the building could not be constructed according to specification at the lowest tender. The contractor had agreed to continue on the job if it went to go forward on an unstable basis—Belief of the Board that awarding the contract under these conditions would be prejudicial to satisfactory business relationships; and 4.—Because of recent court decisions involving the lowest tenderer has influenced the Board's decision.

"The Board did not have confidence in the lowest tenderer, but in the end product which could not the contract price," Mr. David said.

Home Owners Heard

Dennis Swan, chairman of the Parkwood Heights Homeowners' Association, said at a meeting of the ion of his Association that there could be no practical reason for turning down the board requests. The only purpose would be stalling off the construction of necessary building," he said.

Alderman Argue on behalf of the Board request was tabled. Defeated 5-3. Approving of the motion were Alderman Argue, Duffy, Hyde, Thomas and Deacon. Opposed were Aldermen Allin and Aldermen Allen, Armstrong, Clarke, Dawson, Haig, Lattimer and Liddle.

WORST AIRLINER TRAGEDY

The tragedy which befell the Tudor airliner carrying the Manchester football championship game in Dublin has shocked the world. It was the worst commercial airplane catastrophe on record. Shortly before the passengers had been in the large crowds which witnessed the championship match in Dublin and in a short time were to be numbered to their doom as suddenly the airliner roared into the air, climb and turning and sideslipping fell to earth carrying all but three of those aboard to their death.

That the occupants of the plane were in the most joyful mood after the Welsh victory in football and were near their destination added to the sense of tragedy.

A thorough inquiry will be instituted to learn why the plane should turn and crash.

The tragedy has shocked the people of the British Isles and other parts of the world and called forth the sympathy of people everywhere.

NEARING WINTER'S END

This winter is not yet over. Yesterday it was snowing a good old fashion, prompting the thought that if the entire winter had brought snow as steadily as the past week or more has done, there could well have been a great amount of snow to disappear in the next few weeks. But this winter do not set that manner — they come in a pattern no one can predict, even for a short space ahead.

But the early winter was mild and brought plenty of rain in place of snow so that reservoirs of the Hydro Commission in the southern parts were helped to a large amount of water which helped the Commission to eke out its water reserves to the satisfaction of the people.

One week from today is the first full day of spring, actually the season opens at 11.46 p.m., next Monday, a little earlier than usual.

There have been years when the snow and ice have nearly disappeared from the roads and when dust has been flying on St. Patrick's Day which is Thursday. With yesterday's blanket of snow on top of what remained of the old of snow which fell last week, the sun will, it would seem, have to blaze in full spring glory to make the snow disappear by late Monday, which, however, seems unlikely from this time.

On the land the snow blanket is regarded as not only a good omen but something which is as much as or more than could be asked. Nature has been kindly with the protection she has given the roots and from the snow will flow down into the soil moisture which will stand the fields in good stead and help the maple syrup harvest, the usual spring work and the harvests in the year.

Winter's almost infinite variety of weather has been evident during the past three months more so than in other winters which followed a more definite trend.

SARDINES IN OIL

We are willing to wager that there is not one shopper in this country who can honestly say that she has been short-fished in purchasing a can of sardines. Now and again when opening canned foods of various types one may find that the can is not completely full, that one has perhaps paid for a little more food than has been received in exchange. But we've yet to find this true of any can of sardines, or yet to hear of anyone else who found a can of sardines to be anything but fully packed to a bursting state.

The alleged reason for this high value for money spent in buying sardines is not without interest. Apparently the oil in which sardines are packed costs the processor more than the fish themselves. And therefore a shortage of fish and a tin necessitates a greater amount of oil to fill the can, in turn lessens profit per tin goes to the processor.

Occasionally the operation of economics gives the consumer a break, sardines being an example. An extension of the use of oil in packing other foods, rather than the watery substance often used, could lead to further consumer advantage in this respect. Doubtless this plan would, however, lack appeal to the processor. — Brockville Recorder and Times.

WAITING

She waited for a wealthy man;
A handsome man and tall.
Her thoughts to solid comfort ran;
A big house, not too small.
When lads ambitious came to woo
She frore them with a glance,
Believing in a year or two
She'd have a better chance.

On young men starting out in life
With solid disdain she frowned.
She hoped to be a rich man's wife
In silk and satin gowned.

To face the future unafraid
She thought a risk too great.
For one who had his fortune made
It wiser seemed to wait.

Now, many years have come and gone
And hope has slipped away.
The wives of men she frowned upon
Are wearing silk today.
She's learned to fear the future's wrong,
For she is waiting still.
The rich man never came along
What's worse, he never will.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

LOOKING BACKWARDS

20 YEARS AGO

Stirling and Campbellford played a tie game at the arena here on Tuesday, March 11th and last night, two days later, the teams met again here and in an overtime period Campbellford won by one goal and thus became champions of the Trent Valley League. The winning goal was scored by Buster Whitton. For both games special trains were run from both Campbellford and Stirling and a crowd of over 3000 fans witnessed the game. The attendance at the Tuesday night game was about the same. Stirling was not belittled in defeat; they battled against a better team and the goal that beat them was not a fluke, it was well earned; Stirling's crack goalie, Morton, just could not stop it. Since the inception of the Trent Valley Hockey League Stirling has held a position, year after year, for competition and by Campbellford winning the championship this year, one title will be put into the league and will make competition keener. The games played here by these teams drew the largest attendance of fans at any hockey match ever held here. The excitement was at high pitch from the rise and fall of the game to the finish. Both clubs got their money's worth of thrills.

The following composed the teams at the game last night: Stirling: Goal, Morton; defence, J. Ackers and Ingram; centre, Davis; wings, Boyd and Wallace; subs.- H. Ackers, Fraser and Hicks. Campbellford: Goal, Irwin; defence, McArthur and Cowell, centre, Whitton, wings, Hoskins and McKee; subs.- McPherson, Brant and Blue. Referee, Joe Smith, Kingston. The referee at the former game was Frank Bellringer, Kingston.

The Belleville Killies Band played in Greenock, Scotland, on March 1st, and was highly commended by the press in that city.

The average Belleville fan is in favor of having the rinks be properly done and in return to pay a decent wage. A proposition which the City Council will handle with care is that relating to the amalgamation of certain civic offices. It is proposed that the duties of City Engineer, Assessor, Building Inspector and the Manager of the Waterworks be performed by one man and that he be paid a gross yearly salary of $1,000.00. With all due respect to the gentlemen who were afflicted with this more or less brilliant idea, it is rank nonsense to expect the duties of the four offices to be properly performed by any one man—much less to expect them to be performed for $1,000.00 per year. Unless the council is prepared to see civic work botched and bungled, it should not expect men to perform impossible tasks.

Amazing Proposal Being Worked on By Soviet Union

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

They tell us we shouldn't look a gift-horse in the mouth but that axiom certainly doesn't apply to horse swapping.

Moscow said it is working on an amazing proposal. United States officials are keeping mum. Reston, Washington correspondent of the New York Times, believes Russia is making a new effort to arrange a deal with the U. S. to divide the world into spheres of influence.

Under this two-world arrangement, which influence in the satellite states would be minimized or eliminated? Western powers would adopt a hands off policy for the whole communist world, including China and Yugoslavia, and do most of their business with the satellites through Moscow.

Red revolution has been emphasizing "that the worlds of capitalism and communism can live in peace and competition basis."

But Russia's horse-swapping on an unprecedented scale. We get a better idea of just how big a deal it is when we check up on how much of the world has been brought under Soviet domination.

Russia, plus its satellites and China, comprise roughly one third of the globe's population, and about one-fourth of its land area. Some of the territory Russia is in process of trying to digest, and China is included in the satellites.

Glad to Ease Off

Looking the Russian horse in the mouth, it's clear that what Moscow has over-run about all it conveniently at this time. The Russians would be glad to see the world settle down a bit, while they consolidate their gains and get organized for another offensive in due course.

The assertion that "the worlds of capitalism and communism can live in peace on a non-intervention basis" is pure poppycock in theory. Naturally it would work if there were "non-intervention." Unfortunately non-intervention is a direct contradiction of a cardinal principle of communism. Now less than Lenin laid it down that communism and capitalism could not live in peace but must and that capitalism must be destroyed.

Still, while we have to look the horse in the mouth, the ultimate isn't without hope. State Secretary Dean Acheson indicated that the other day in his advice "to patient diplomacy" to win the cold war by containment. By this he meant an all-out effort, short of shooting, to halt Russian expansion. Secretary Acheson also said added:

"When we have reached unity and determination on the part of the free nations — when we have eliminated the fear and the weakness — we will be able to evolve working agreements with the Russians."

Stay of Execution Saves Negro At 11th Hour

Columbus, O., March 14 (AP) — A convicted slayer sat jubilant in his Ohio Penitentiary death cell today and drew a dramatic 11th hour reprieve saved him from the electric chair Friday night.

Governor Frank J. Lausche granted Theodore R. McClure, 23 a Cleveland Negro, a 60-day stay of execution at 7:30 p. m., only 30 minutes before McClure's scheduled electrocution.

The Governor's move came only a few hours after he had refused to intervene in McClure's behalf.

McClure owes his lease on life to a group composed of a doctor, a detective, an author and a public relations counsel who calculates "the court of last resort."

The group is patriotic unofficial, unpaid and voluntary. It investigates suspected miscarriages of justice.

Its members are Dr. Le Moyne Snyder, former medico - legal advisor to the Michigan State Police and author of a murder-detective text; Dorothy Kilgallen, New York private detective, and Harry Steeger, publisher of many murder-mystery novels, and Harry Steeger, publisher of Argosy magazine.

Dr. Snyder said his group had found "after only a preliminary investigation after McClure made his appeal to the "court." But, he declined:

"There are several things which I don't look right about."

McClure — convicted of killing Mrs. Ruth Hoffman in a suburban grocery holdup, had eaten his "last meal" before the reprieve came.

WARNING TO SUCKERS NIBBLING AT THE BAIT

Almost in immediate succession today came three letters from readers in widely separated communities asking for my opinion of the Cook and Bull, the New Day and the Kayo clinics in their respective communities. How naive it goes without saying that these clinic fathers from one's home is the best, and the farther away it is the better. Back home if the doctor wants a $10 eosinophile count or a $20 bile analysis you resent it and brand the doctor a robber for including the charge in his bill. That is back home. When you journey afar to the "clinic" you regard such trifles as evidence of the thorough way you are being treated. Have at it, my friends, at your trouble and you pay four or five times what the same service or better would cost you back home and cheerfully. After all, you will have something to talk about for many years, something that should help stem laymen and doctors alike with your importance.

I shall answer the three queries in detail. Can't take time to do so. Could do if there were only a few to answer. Letters by answer daily. Can't answer 'em all retail. Taking this means of answering a great many such queries wholesale. I did mail a brief reply to one of the readers who inclosed self-addressed envelope, and this is what I said:

A doctor worthy of confidence practises under his own name.

I have to be the worst judgment—try to think of any outstanding, distinguished, honored, leading or popular physician who does not practise under his own name.

Originally, up to our own times, a clinic was an institution where patients were studied and treated in the presence of medical students; it was for teaching the art of medicine.

Only in the past thirty years has the term come to have a different meaning—and I believe the attitude of the American Medical Association under the direction of Dr. Morris Fishbein is to blame for it. Today a clinic is generally just a group of men who pay pool the overhead and the gross, putting up what they think is a more impostant front and availing themselves of the free advertising that publicity-seeking gets under the name of the Sequdunk Clinic—advertising a doctor of whom he couldn't get sick on his own name. As a "clinic" racketeer he gets out of the limits of advertising and retain membership in the medical society; as an honest practitioner you'd be expelled from the medical society the time if you behaved like that.

The "clinic" evil, together with the proprietary evil, is largely accountable for the high cost of medical service in this country today.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Two young ladies in my hearing were debating the old theme.

"Why won't you go?"

"Because I have nobody to go with."

"Go with Bill!"

"I don't like Bill."

"Well, for Pete's sake, what has that got to do with it? We're not asking you to marry Bill! All I suggest is you go with Bill to a dance."

"I don't care for Bill."

"Look: you've got to go out with somebody, in order to meet a man you like! Don't you see? That's precisely why girls are going out tonight with somebody they don't give a hoot for, in order to meet, if possible, somebody they do like. How are you ever going to meet the type of man you do like, if you sit at home all the time . . . ?"

A long silence.

"Okay! What do you say?"

"I don't care for Bill. I'd rather not."

"You'll be sorry. Someday."

"Maybe I will be. The way I feel is: this that the man I want would not want me if he found me with a man like Bill!"

"That's simply silly!"

"I don't think so."

So I closed my eyes, and quietly slipped out of the room, and laid myself for her.

"Dear little girl, here's wishing you a man worthy of you; may he find you by hunting for you; may he prize you for your beauty and the beauty that survives in this world despite all the common sense. Dear little girl, God bless!"

And the two of them got off the car without me ever seeing them.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TELL IT!

I am of the opinion that most people keep the larger part of themselves to themselves. They don't share enough with others. Nothing is truer than the more we give away of what we know and are, the more we get in return.

Invariably, when suggesting the reading of a book that I have enjoyed that has been instrumental in me with a suggestion of one that I am glad I have not read.

In this column I have mentioned hundreds of books that have inspired me and I am happy to learn others have enjoyed them as well. One reader, who is a toll-bridge man in Pennsylvania, wrote me that he had formed a library of 400 books from my suggestions. That gave me a double thrill! What a fine and also a fine passage in a book that I am reading. I always mark it so that I may have the pleasure of reading it to someone else.

I like the idea of saying good things about people. When I hear something fine about a friend, or a stranger, I like to tell it. If more good news were distributed, this would be a much happier world. One way to lose friends is to start saying bad things about them. To gain more friends, all we have to do is to tell all the good things about everyone we know.

I owe to others more than I can ever repay for what they have told me about writers that I had never read or heard about. Hundreds of inspirations. Here is the evidence. It is so easy to spread good ideas. The world would be made richer and healthier because of the gift, by all the people of new and valuable discoveries, made possible by the long and patient research of scientists like medical experts. Many of these faithful public servants die poor materially, but rich in happiness.

One of the blessings of government by democracy is that we can always write to our representative in power and tell him the way we feel about any problem before him. He is the servant and is usually guided by those whom he represents. So, if you don't like the way things are handled, tell it to him.

GENIUS JOINS WITH PIETY

As we read the lives of the great we find many of them were interested at times by what appears to be their tremendous pride, their temperament, and often their immorality. It has come to be almost axiomatic that genius and moral instability go together.

Johann Sebastian Bach stands out as one of the great exceptions to this rule. He was a moral, home-loving man, devoutly religious, who spent his whole life employing his gifts to the glory of God.

He occupies in music the place which Shakespeare occupies in literature. Everything basic and important in musical form, with the exception of opera, was touched by Bach and glorified. But his first interest was in religious music. Few men in all history have consecrated their lives as completely as Bach consecrated his to the service of Almighty God. His piety matched his musical genius; the zeal with which he worked and studied was but a reflection of his deep enthusiasm for the things of Christian faith.

It is marvelous to encounter a good man in any field, and when that good man happens at the same time to be a genius, the coincidence is astonishing. Bach was the exponent of Blanshard, a London lawyer, marked recognition of Vancouver Island as British first colonial possession on the Pacific Coast of North America.

The appointment of Blanshard, a London lawyer, marked recognition of Vancouver Island as British first colonial possession on the Pacific Coast of North America.

Committee Will Attempt To Bring Union, Management Together for New Agreement

Trenton (Special) — Councillors Ross Burtt and Chas. Allore were appointed by council to confer with the management of the Downs-Coulter Co. Ltd., in an attempt to bring the company and the union together to discuss possible means of conciliation. This was decided last night at a meeting of the council held in the municipal offices.

A delegation of striking workers of the Downs-Coulter plant, headed by Val Bjaranson director of the United Textile Workers of America and George Beckett, local organizer, paid a surprise visit to the council meeting. Mr. Bjaranson said that he thought the council was directly concerned and deeply involved in the dispute and that they should do all they could to clear up the situation.

"This strike", said Mr. Bjaranson, "is going to affect every business man in Trenton, and I feel that it is the duty of the council to take part and try to bring about immediate settlement."

Voted to Return to Work

In explaining the present situation Mr. Bjaranson said, "We presented a very generous proposal to the company last Wednesday night and we have received no reply. We voted to go back to work under the final agreement proposed by the company which included a 5-cents-an-hour increase and to have our disagreements submitted to arbitration, but the company refuses to do anything in regard to settlement. That is why we want council to bring the company and the union together."

Mayor Couch stated that he was willing to help in any way that he could to settle the dispute. "I have tried to keep out of it as much as I could," said Mr. Couch .. "However, I have made no attempt to break the strike and I am sure that no one feels worse than I do about the whole situation.

Asks Retraction

Replying to statement made by Mr. Beckett that the Downs-Coulter workers have suffered considerably in the last two years and that they have been treated like cattle, Mr. Couch said, "I demand that you retract that statement. There is no company in Trenton who treat their workers like cattle. If it wasn't for the payrolls of the different industries in Trenton, we would be in worse shape than we are now."

Commenting on the reported shut-down of the plant for an indefinite period, Mr. Bjaranson said that he had contacted the unemployment insurance office and they had informed him that as far as they were concerned the situation remains the same, until they receive notice of a shut-down direct from the company. They added, however, that the unemployment books had been mailed out to the workers.

Mr. Couch said that in his opinion the opportunity to negotiate with the company had passed. He claimed that the company had missed out on spring orders and also their autumn orders. "Although the company cannot open too soon to suit me," he said, "it is my opinion that the plant will remain closed for a long time."

Reads Letter

Mr. Couch read a letter that the council received from the Deputy Minister of Labor which was as follows:

"My minister has asked me to acknowledge your letter of Jan. 31st., 1950, and enclosure.

"I should like to point out to you that at the outset of the dispute involving Downs-Coulter, this department sent a conciliation officer to Trenton to meet with the parties and to endeavor to settle the matter. As a result of the action taken by the union it was impossible for the department to carry on conciliation proceedings further.

You may be assured that if both parties to this dispute request our assistance in the future that we shall endeavor to comply.

Yours very truly
J. B. Metzler
Deputy Minister of Labor

Councillor Burtt said that he would do everything within his power to effect a settlement and that he and Mr. Allore would contact Mr. Utley as soon as possible.

VON Granted $500 Increase

Trenton (Special) — Council decided last night to grant the Victorian Order of Nurses an increase of $500 per annum. This would bring the entire amount of the grant made by the council to the V. O. N. up to $2000.

In the year 1949, 4,287 visits were made by the V. O. N. to the houses of the sick and needy. Of this amount 2,147 of them were free.

In addition to bringing skilled nursing services into Trenton homes, the V. O. N. operated a Well Baby Clinic and co-operated with the Minister of Health in Toxoiding Clinics and Chest Clinics.

The V. O. N. was congratulated on its splendid work during the past years. It was stated by Mr. S. Mowbray who represented the V. O. N. at the council meeting last night, that no remuneration is received from these visits to the sick.

Firemen to Get Holidays

Firemen were granted 15 days holidays each, plus 7 days statutory holiday pay.

During the summer an extra man will be hired to take the place of each man as he leaves on his vacation.

New Truck for Town

Council decided last night to buy a new 5 ton truck costing $4,080, from the Trenton Motor Sales, to be used in the town of Trenton Public Works Dept.

A smaller truck costing $773 plus trade-in will be purchased from the same place.

Will Repair Batawa Road

A motion was passed at the Trenton council meeting to repair the Trenton-Batawa road as soon as possible.

Mayor Couch told councillors he had received numerous complaints about the deplorable condition of the road. Mr. Couch said "We should not waste one hour in getting the road repaired. I know of a preparation called rock-dust which can be purchased for 60 cents a ton delivered. This can be used to fill up the holes in the road as a temporary measure until a permanent surface can be applied."

Library Grant Boosted

Council passed a resolution last night giving the Trenton Library $800 more on their municipal grant. Their grant has formerly been $4,000. It is felt that the extra $800 can be put to good use purchasing new books.

Heat and light	7½%	300.00
Insurance	2½%	100.00

MARATHON DEBATE

The longest recorded sitting of the British House of Commons was 41½ hours on Feb. 7, 1881.

VICTOR UNHAPPY, VANQUISHED SMILES

All of diplomatic London, including Their Majesties the King and Queen and Princess Elizabeth, were on hand to attend the dinner given at the French embassy in honor of President and Mrs. Vincent Auriol of France. Prime Minister and Mrs. Clement Attlee (top photo) seemed rather glum on their arrival, though Mr. Attlee's Labor party won the recent election, if only by a narrow margin. On the other hand, war-time Prime Minister Winston Churchill, shown with Mrs. Churchill on their arrival at the embassy, who was defeated in the recent election, was smiling and seemingly pleased with himself as he waved to crowds lining the walk outside the embassy. — Central Press Canadian.

Car Fragments Are Introduced In MacLean Case

Sydney, N.S., March 14 (CP)— A chemist's report said today the alcoholic content of Joseph Mackinnon's stomach indicated an "advanced state of intoxication" the day the 63-year-old registrar of voters was run down by a car in a dark alley. Dan Jack MacLean, former Mayor of Sydney, is on trial for his murder.

The report, prepared by Dr. E. G. Young, Dalhousie University biochemist, was introduced at the trial of the 58-year-old former mayor. Dr. Young was not present at the trial.

The report was introduced at the second day of MacLean's trial in a packed court room before Chief Justice J. L. Ilsey and a Nova Scotia Supreme Court Jury.

MacLean was re-elected for his fourth term as mayor of this Cape Breton Island industrial city just 12 days before Mackinnon's body was found lying in an alley in the south-end of the city.

After the election, a spoke of the voting was demanded by the defeated candidate. MacLean resigned as mayor shortly after he was arrested.

Numerous exhibits were filed as the trial went into its second day. They included fragments of the car—a bloodstained windshield wiper and pieces of upholstery—with which MacLean is alleged to have run down his long time friend.

PAYING HIGH PRICES

Toronto, March 14 — (CP) — United States buyers are reported paying top-notch prices for dairy cattle in at least two Ontario counties.

The Ontario Agricultural Department says in its weekly crop report that export sales are active in Lincoln county, with good-grade cows selling at from $200 to $250. Cows from the listed herds are reported bringing "exceptionally good" prices in Hastings county.

CRACK OPEN SAFE AND GET $2,000

Hamilton, March 14 — (CP)— Using heavy sledge hammers and an iron bar, safe crackers barged open a strong box Monday night in the yard office of the Gillies-Guy Coal Company, and escaped with a sum of money that may amount to $2,000.

After forcing the front door leading to the office they turned the safe over on its side and used a crowbar to open it.

GETS GOOD ADVICE

After I was married, my grandmother said, "Everyone's giving you lots of advice, but you may not have told you how to keep a man's shirt looking white. All that is needed is a swish of Reckitt's Blue in the rinse—and that goes for all white clothes. Reckitt's Blue prevents clothes turning yellow—gives a snowy white wash every time without using anything that may damage fabric." Trust Granny to give me advice worth remembering.

Tells of Decline Of Czechoslovakia Under Communism

Redeerville—An interesting meeting of Redneerville Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Green, Mrs. Allan Weese, presiding. Mrs. Donald Spencer secretary treasurer, read a large amount of correspondence and the business arising from this was dealt with. The W.I. is grateful to Mrs. Cole of Toronto, a former member, for a donation of five dollars.

Mrs. Kenneth Green, citizenship convener then took over the meeting and introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Rev. Vaclavik of Stirling who came to Canada in 1937 from Czechoslovakia.

Mr. Vaclavik said it was amazing what a person could do if his mind and heart were in the job. He had come to Canada not able to speak any English and by hard work had graduated from the University of Saskatchewan and became an ordained minister of the United Church.

Czechoslovakia is very little more than a quarter as large as Ontario and has a population of 16,000,000 people. One fifth of the country is not suitable for agriculture as there are large numbers of factories which have to depend on international trade in order to carry on. The shoe industry alone had 200 factories Mr. Vaclavik told about having a pair of shoes in Montreal which had been made in his country. He paid $6.75 for the shoes. On a visit home he took the shoes and had them rated in the factory where they had been made and found that the Czech manufacturer had received for them was $2.30 delivered in Montreal.

Film School Buildings

Czechoslovakia has had a very high standard of culture and education. Nearly every village had a very good public library with each village the finest building was nearly always the school, next the church and third finest was always a gymnasium. All children from about three years up to twenty-six were members of the gymnasium. As well as learning games and sports of all kinds, strict discipline was taught. It was a terrible disgrace for a boy or girl to be expelled from gymnasium classes. No Czech boy or girl would ever smoke a cigarette publicly and there was very little drinking even though whiskey is made at Czechoslovakia from grain. Mr. Vaclavik had never bought whiskey at home but he bought Czech brandy in Montreal once before boarding ship as he had been told it would ward off sea-sickness but it did not have the desired results.

The Czech people have always had to work hard and for long hours to sustain a high standard of living but nevertheless had not have as high a standard as Canada. International trade had always been a problem because the government had to depend on British, Dutch or German merchant ships to get their products to markets in other countries. Before the Second World War, there were as many as thirty political parties in Czechoslovakia.

War came, Hitler's troops moved in and took over and for the years of war the people lived through a regime of horror under the Gestapo. At the end of the war the people were ready to try anything different and they saw a ray of hope in Russia which was very near then. Russia made great promises but Mr. Vaclavik stressed the fact that communists speak like angels and act like devils.

Forced to Leave Land

The large co-operatives of which the Czechs were justly proud were all taken over by the communists and their own men put in as heads. Thus all efficiency was taken away by the communists. The small farmers were all being forced off their land, some of which had been in their families for years. Those who were still hanging on were not allowed to make any improvements and supplies had had to make huge returns of produce to the government. It would just be a matter of time until they, too, were squeezed out. A farmer had to apply to the government to kill a pig and then must give, not sell, the government half of it. At the time of Stalin's birthday every person in Czechoslovakia had to give him a present. What they should give was decided by the communists!

Mr. Vaclavik was for eight years a minister in the Church of All Nations in Toronto where there were 37 nationalities and as much good to be found in all of them. He mentioned how sorry he was for the Japanese and Germans in Toronto for there was no law in the Church of All Nations all were brothers—sharing each other's griefs and troubles of all kinds. Mr. Vaclavik said that the women in institutes and church groups could be a great power for world peace by being tolerant and not prejudiced. He pleaded for kindness and understanding of the immigrants who are coming to Canada.

Many Well Educated

Many of these people are highly educated and have a lot to give to Canada if they have the chance. He mentioned one man who is a doctor and is a St. Catharines hospital and who is now rated as one of the best child specialists in Canada. Another man who was a famous lawyer in Prague and whose wife, also a university graduate, is now employed nights in Toronto

Very fitting for education week that the entertainment was provided by the pupils under the direction of members of the teaching staff.

The advantage of "Visual Aid" in teaching was explained and demonstrated by principal C. L. Frederick, by means of a film and lesson to a class.

Grade VII choir favored with the selection that won for them first prize at the Rotary Music Festival in Kingston. Delightful solos were given by the following pupils:- Graham Beeby; Helen Gill; Suzanne Cavers; Jackie Calnan; Jimmie Phillips, and Carol Croll, each gave instrumental numbers. A short skit by pupils from Grade V and a humorous radio program presented by the pupils of grade VII were much enjoyed, as was also a fine selection by eight boys from the Bellville public school band under direction of Mrs. Cooper. The pupils and staff were thanked for their splendid entertainment by Mrs. T. N. Franklin; Mrs. Hopkins also added words of appreciation.

Following the close of the meeting, a social half hour was enjoyed. Refreshments were served by the social committee under convenership of Mrs. N. Simmons.

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

To save money cook with moist, instead of dry heat.

Dry heat—roasting and broiling—can only be used with tender expensive cuts of meat and young poultry. Moist heat—boiling and braising—is needed to cook all the tougher cuts from a sirloin's tongue to its tail.

It so happens that many of the cheaper and tougher cuts have their individual homey flavour which people want at any price. The army of eaters who are used to broiled corned beef and cabbage or braised shin of beef will not be bothered with such trifles as broiled filet mignon even though the latter costs $2.00 a pound.

Roast slip of beef, an expensive meat always, are cooked with dry heat. The ends of the ribs, called short ribs, are long grained and require moist heat. But they have a particularly succulent beef flavor and stand on their own right as fine simple eating.

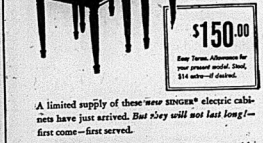
Short ribs of beef should be first browned and then cooked with moist heat under a tight lid. You needn't use a lot of moisture—one cup of water, stock or tomato juice is enough. You must be patient when browning short ribs to make sure they are actually browned and have not merely lost their red color. Unless the browning is done thoroughly, it will be washed away with the moisture in the pan.

Boiled Short Ribs of Beef
Serves 4

Order 2 pound short ribs of beef cut into 3 inch squares. Wipe with damp cloth. Dip pieces of meat into 1-2 cup flour combined with 1 teaspoon salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper.

Melt 2 tablespoons fat in a heavy saucepan fitted with a tight lid, or in a Dutch oven. Brown meat slowly on all sides. Remove meat from pan. Wipe pan dry.

Add to pan 2 tablespoons fat, 1-2 cup finely chopped onion, 1-2 teaspoon finely chopped garlic. Simmer slowly until onion turns yellow.



Return meat to pan. Add 1 can consomme or 1 cup of hot water and 1 bouillion cube, 2 tablespoons catsup, 1 stalk of celery, 1 bay leaf, 4 whole cloves and a little peppercorns.

Cover pan with tight lid. Cook over low flame until meat is tender, about 2 hours. If liquid evaporates, replace with water.

After 1 1-2 hours' cooking, add to the pan 8 medium size peeled carrots and 6 medium size potatoes cut in half. Cook until meat and vegetables are tender. Skim fat off gravy. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Strain gravy over meat in serving platter.

"IT'S A DELIGHTFUL PLACE TO SHOP"

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She's hurting her family—can they do anything?

Hard as it is to accept, the fact remains that, as a general rule, it is absolutely useless for any member of a family to try to influence any other member. It may seem illogical, but it is true nevertheless, that no outsider has far more chance of succeeding in making a person see reason than a brother, sister, parent or other relative. For there is something in human beings that makes them turn stubborn and balk when any one in their immediate family takes issue with their behavior.

This is why I am sorry to say, that I do not believe there is anything whatever the family of a girl can do whose distracted sister writes me as follows:

"My sister, who is 23, was at one time a very attractive girl. She was graduated recently with a very hard-working and well-mannered fellow, but she left him because his work didn't permit him to take her out much.

"Now she has met another fellow quite different from the first one and is deeply in love with him. He is husky and able to work, but won't. He is just lazy.

"She has a night job and gets through work at one o'clock. He meets her after work, takes her for a ride and she doesn't get home till 6 or 7 o'clock in the morning. She has changed so much; has got terribly thin, and doesn't even pay any attention to her clothes any more. She has just her herself go over this fellow."

The man says frankly that he doesn't want to marry, "not yet anyway". There is also a second girl in the picture, whom he says he has to see because he owes her a large sum of money. Each of the two girls with whom he is going knows about the other, "but neither of them cares," the sister adds.

The family has remonstrated with the girl and has also talked to the young man, without result. The situation goes on unchanged. In the meantime, the girl who writes me declares that the problem is "killing my mother. If you would write," she says, "maybe may sister will realize how wrong she is. Would you kindly let us know what to do."

As I have already suggested, I am afraid there is absolutely nothing the family can do but wait until the girl comes to her senses. Unfortunately, that is not likely to happen until the man with whom she is infatuated walks off and leaves her, or does something else which disillusions her.

Something like this, I am quite sure, is going to occur sooner or later. When it does, I hope the family will have the wisdom and the self-control to refrain from reproaching the girl with any "I told you so." That kind of talk never accomplishes any good, but on the contrary is very apt to lead to more trouble of one sort or another.

106 YEARS OLD

Sutton, March 13 — (CP) — Mrs. Elizabeth Alexander of nearby Brown Hill is 106 today. She has 25 grandchildren, 40 great-grandchildren and 25 great-great-grandchildren. She received well-wishers Sunday and proudly displayed a message of congratulation from the Ontario government.

Popular Sweet Twosome

By ALICE ALDEN

THE SUN back dress with its own cardigan sweater dyed to match is a major resort fashion. It should have wide acceptance this summer, judging from its popularity at Florida and western June in January spots. Photographed aboard ship en route to Bermuda is this charming outfit designed by Bonnie Cashin. Celanese crepe is used for the sweater-slip dress which has a turned-up contour collar on a bullet-like buttoned neckline, and an adjustable waistband that ties over an inverted pleat. Buttons from neck to hem. Hand-loomed nubby knit is used for the sweater which matches it in warm beige with a mauve cast.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Bridal shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My brother-in-law is getting married soon. I am wondering if it would be proper for me (his sister-in-law) to give a bridal shower for his bride-to-be. She and I are approximately the same age.

The only answer to this is that it is not considered in good taste or good form for a member of the bride's or the groom's family to give a bridal shower. This is the delightful responsibility of friends—not family, not relatives by marriage.

Middle-age bride-to-be should be . . . given fine shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me if it is proper for friends to give a shower for a middle-age single woman who is to be married next month? Also is this proper in the case of a widow or divorcee who is to re-marry?

M. and N.

Yes, it's proper for friends to give a bridal shower for the middle-age single woman who is to be married. Indeed I think it is even more important, in the spirit of fairness, to give her a bridal shower, for she has probably contributed gifts to so many bridal showers that she should be reaping some reward for her generosity over the years!

And I sincerely hope that the brides she has "gifted" will rally 'round to give her particularly nice and thoughtful presents for her new home.

A bridal shower may properly be given too for a widow or divorcee re-marrying . . . but these aren't customary and aren't so important, because doubtless they were given showers before their first marriages. It is really not considered necessary to give presents before a second marriage, either shower presents or wedding presents.

"Remembrance Gift"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The bookkeeper where I am employed is going to have a baby, and is leaving soon. There are only three or four of us employed in this shop, and we are close friends. I should like to give this girl a "remembrance gift", something not very expensive because I am not sure whether I alone will give the gift or whether the other girl will contribute toward it also. Employment has not been very steady here lately, and so I may have to give the gift alone. Please suggest gifts for one alone to give, or ones from more than one.

Flora M.

You or you with the others might give her some kind of frame to contain the picture of the baby when the new arrives—the type of frame depending on the amount you have to spend. Or a sheer percale or cotton pillow case—an embroidered one, if the budget permits.

Or, for herself, a set of containers for her dresser-drawer—one for stockings, one for handkerchiefs, one for gloves, one for lingerie, and so forth. Or a purse for daytime wear, initialled if possible. Or a box or two of attractive note-cards and envelopes. Or a writing portfolio, stamped with her name. Or a small folding mirror, one side magnifying. Or a box of cosmetic accessories, her favorite brand and fragrance. A pen and pencil set, or either, for an especially convenient pencil for her purse.

"The bride cuts the cake!"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When there is a bride's table with seated service, at a wedding reception, when does the bride cut the cake?

Bride's Mother

The bride cuts the cake just before the service of the ice cream—the cake is cut in the kitchen, as dessert. There is, of course, a good deal of ceremony about this cutting-of-the-cake—the bridegroom stands beside the bride, and the bride cuts the first slice and shares it with the bridegroom as the symbol of sharing everything throughout life. Their parents and friends gather round to watch the cake-cutting ceremony—and usually all join joyously and festively in singing "The Bride Cuts the Cake!" (At military or naval wedding the bride cuts the cake with her husband's sword.)

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Men want a girl to look "natural"

It seems that the male of the species is fed up with make-up that hits you in the eye. Not, that the older gents—they have always grumbled and growled about it—but the young fellows of college age. Your reporter listened in on a conversation that was more than enlightening.

Sketched by Kay Francis Scott

The first need is to find a powder that is flattering.

"A pretty girl is a grand institution," said one guy. "When I take a girl out I want her to be attractive in appearance. I do not want one whose get up makes her conspicuous. In fact, I like to have my girl friend at the party look like a lady. You haven't heard that word for years, have you? Well, it is coming back. We're against over-bleached hair, blobs of rouge on the cheeks, eye make-up and vivid lipstick. We want 'em more natural looking."

New offerings at cosmetic counters include tinted-toned powders, rouge of the faintest rose-blush pink, lipsticks of the natural tint that enhance the un-made-up look. Even these have to be used subtly and skillfully if results are to glorify. You're supposed to let your skin show. Why calamine a good skin? Why conceal it with too much artifice? Touch it up where it needs touching, then stop. Stay your hand. Place a strong mirror in a strong light, and watch your cosmetic steps.

The first needs to find a powder that is flattering. So don't buy, sight unseen. If you will patronize a make-up bar—there is one in practically every large department store in large cities—you will find open containers from which to make a selection. You will also have the advice of an attendant who knows all the tricks. She may suggest a powder that is slightly darker than your complexion; it will give quality and delicacy to the epidermal covering.

Rouge should not carry definite tinge lines; that is a fatal error. The cheeks should bear a soft, rosy flush like that created by Nature. Avoid a round application. Start under the eye, go upward and outward—one dash of color over the eyelids is effective—then on the cheek, back to starting point. This is pretty much of a triangular pattern.

When adding the lipstick do not let the pigment extend over the natural outline. No matter how smart you may be, it is not likely that you can successfully alter the design of your lips. Big remodelling jobs are definitely old stuff. Even those stage and movie stars who started the fad are using restraint.

Don't try to repair your make-up. Take it all off with a cleansing cream or oil and start over again. Unless you make that method a practice you will force dust into your pores and your skin will look patchy.

Elegant For Evening

Champagne taffeta gown.

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

FINE materials beautifully handled, with original touches are always a good theme for the fine evening dress. Such dresses have of a minimum of trim, relying for effect on fabric and line. This sheath of a dress is of champagne colored taffeta. It has a high round neckline and the shoulders are just barely covered. Criss-crossed drapery under the bust terminates in a puffed, bustle-like flaring panel in back, lined in black taffeta. The front of the dress is flat, draped gently up to the back bustle. Black taffeta gloves complete the costume.

Fashion Flashes

VASTLY DIFFERENT from last year's crop is the new topper. Creamy yellow fleece makes a topper with surplice line to the waist. Buttons and buttonholes are slanted on the bodice and straight below the belt, which is a wide, brushed affair of brown patent leather. Buttons are brown patent leather, too.

A NICE THOUGHT for 'tween-seasons wear is expressed in a soft, sleeveless, shirt-waist frock in red, white and blue tie silk with navy blue velvet touches. The dark blue binds the armholes and forms a casual collar. Dress closes with rhinestone-edged dark blue enamel stud buttons. Belt is of the velvet leather backed.

Girl Guide Activities

The Girl Guide Local Association has planned a "Spring Tea" to be held at the home of Mrs. J. H. Forrester in May. There will be a sale of homecooking, candies and novelties. These novelties are made by the Guides and Scouts. An item of interest will be a display of articles, made and donated by the Brownies of the city, to the Grenfell Mission in Labrador.

Plans are well under way for the Girl Guide Cookie Day which will be held early next month. The city has been divided into districts and each district will be looked after by the Guides and Brownies. So when a Guide or Brownie knocks on your door on that day, we hope you will receive them well and support them in this their effort to add to their funds.

Guiders Club

This is a new venture for the Brownie and Guide leaders in the city. A Guiders Club is made up of all leaders and its main purpose is to acquaint each leader with the progress the other companies and packs are making as well as to pass along any new games or ideas for the meetings. The Club will meet on the last Thursday of each month starting April 27th at 8.00 p. m. The officers elected were: president, District Captain, Mrs. H. Amos, and secretary-treasurer, acting captain, Dorothy Stewart.

5th Bellevillle Brownie Pack

The Brownies of the 6th Pack have had a busy and interesting month. The Golden Hand and Golden Bar Brownies have been working hard at semaphore, both practising sending and receiving words and letters and also deciphering written messages which Brown Owl brings and writing back messages to Brown Owl.

The Brownies who are working for their Golden Bar, have been learning how to darn. Another day they had a talk about "health", about how important it is to eat the right food and to keep teeth and hands and feet clean.

A special treat was a visit from Mrs. McCluskie, of St. John Ambulance to teach first aid and how to use ties for bandage for a gragal knee if out of doors and have nothing else to use.

The Pack attended the Scouts and Guides own service on Sunday recently and some of the Brownies were able to go to the girls' service on the World Day of Prayer. In February the Thinking Day Program was held, making a chain of friendship with countries all round the world.

Owing to the basement at King George School being painted, Mr. Hackett has kindly permitted the meetings to be held in the assembly hall, because he knows Brownies are careful little people. Corners of bands have been used and instead of games, exercises like Jolly Tars, and walking on a straight line. On 'Thinking Day' a game from India, called "Who is it?" taught speed in noticing things.

5th Bellevillle Brownies

The confusion of starting a new Pack is now almost over and each six now know their Fairy Ring songs and their promise, law and motto. With such a large Pack it is certainly very interesting to watch the "Fairy Rings" well done.

The Brownies know the song "Where O Where is Suzie" very well and really enjoy singing this at the last meeting. Learning of the song "We are Brownies", buzz started.

Along with these two songs, two other games have been learned.

With such a large pack Brown Owl looks to her sixers for a good deal of help and the "Imps" —Sixer-Pat Moreau, Peggy Roseberry, Margaret Loveless, Noreen O'Sullivan, Myra Roseberry, Bernedette Rose, and Catherine Cowan, are certainly to be commended, their attendance has been perfect for the first month and their work shows they are real Brownies. However, as the new Tweenies come along it will be interesting to watch the competition.

Company 2 Guides

One Sunday recently, the Girl Guides of Company 2, attended the Guide and Scout Own at St. Thomas Parish Hall. At their regular meeting Thursday evening February 23rd, a Mothers' Night was held. Commissioner Watson enrolled Ann Keegan in the Company. Lieut. Mary Jordan called on P. L. Carolyn Little to escort Mrs. R. J. McLuskie, Superintendent of the St. John Ambulance Brigade to the front of the horseshoe and on behalf of the Company the Lieutenant presented Mrs. McLuskie with a cheque for their campaign, thanking her for the use of the St. John rooms for the Guide meetings, and for the course in first aid they are giving the Company. Each patrol chose a country and gave a talk on Guide work in the various parts of the world. Three questions were then asked and answered:

1. What is Girl Guiding and of what does it consist? Ans. Girl Guides are a Sisterhood—older and younger sisters. The officers and older Guides are referred to as Guiders and are there to help and guide the younger girls. Guiding consists of Brownies 8-11 years of age, Guides 11-16, and Senior Guides or Rangers over 16.

2. Is education not good enough?

Ans. While education is vastly improved of late years, yet it cannot entirely prepare a girl for her future life. More formation of character is needed which is found by the environment outside the school. Guiding gives much practical training, and helps a girl to be self-reliant.

3. Why is there such an organization?

Ans. To give practical and the character forming training to the girls. Character includes self-reliance, cheerfulness, considerations of others, and duty, patriotism, and religion. Practical training is given in handicraft and other work, physical training and knowledge of first aid, care of children, home duties, and camp life.

District Captain Amos led the Guides in a folk dance and at campfire told a story of the Life of Lord Baden-Powell.

This was followed by a singsong of Guide songs around-an imitation campfire which had been placed in the centre of the Guide homeroom. The Guides served refreshments to their mothers at the close of the meeting.

On Friday afternoon at the Girls' World Day of Prayer Service held in Christ Church, Acting Lieut. Ann Britena, and Company Leader, Barbara McLuskie, each read a litany.

Company 3 Girl Guides

As the youngest company in the city, few people are aware of No. 3 Company's existence which since the East Hill hall of the original Company 7, but has been separate for a number years. The meeting place is still the Lecture room at the Armories and the time 6:30 to 8:00 each and every Monday night. There are 18 girls at present in the company, and room for a few more. Any girl over ten and a half, interested in Guiding, is welcome to attend meetings. There is a full program of both indoor and outdoor activities.

The Guides learn first aid, health, sewing, cooking, signalling, the history of the Guide movement and what it means to belong to such an international organization. Outdoors they learn to use their signalling and cooking, over a camp fire, on the company and patrol hikes, to recognize the trees, birds and flowers in their own district in the summer there is a camp, under canvas for the older Guides, who must know how to pitch their own tents.

Plans are under way for a parents' night in the near future, when it is hoped to show the parents and friends of the Guides something of the work done in the regular meetings. Thanks are again extended to Scout Master Eric Smith of Troop 3 for coming and instructing the Guides on their First Class Maps and Compasses.

Bell to Install 313,000 Phones In Next 3 Years

Ottawa, March 14—(CP)—Bell Telephone Company of Canada expects to install 313,000 new phones in Ontario and Quebec during the next three years.

Arnold J. Groleau, general facilities superintendent, told the board of transport commissioners Monday that this year alone the company will put in 125,000 phones.

An engineer with Bell since 1926, Mr. Groleau testified as the board continued to hear the company's application for a rate boost averaging about 20 per cent.

At the end of last year, there had been 88,117 persons waiting for phones in the two central provinces served by Bell. That compared with 70,070 on the waiting list in April, 1946, the lowest number since the war, and 102,282 in January, 1947, the highest in the company's history.

Under questioning by Bell lawyer Fred Pickup, of Toronto, Mr. Groleau said that in 1951 the company hopes to put in 100,000 new phones and 90,000 in 1952.

"Instead of those waiting for new telephone service, there was a large backlog of subscribers waiting for a higher grade of service, such as a change from a two-party line to an individual line. At the end of 1949, Mr. Groleau said, there were 76,415 persons waiting for this regrading.

He emphasized that as far as possible Bell fills all requests on a first-come-first-serve basis.

Provides Future at Reasonable Cost

Mr. Groleau's testimony, schedules to resume today, is aimed at providing a picture of general requirements on which Bell's $141,000,000 construction program for the next three years is based. The company says it is asking higher rates to maintain financial stability while borrowing money to carry out this program.

He said the company is planning continuously on the basis of studies reflecting probable demand for phones and service.

"In normal circumstances, this continuous planning of construction work insures that plant additions and replacements are made in an orderly and economical manner, that new facilities are available when required, and that new technological developments are introduced at the proper time.

"However, the abnormal conditions arising out of the war have made it very difficult to achieve these objectives, particularly in regard to the provision of sufficient new facilities to meet the demand. Since 1942 the company has been unable to meet all requests for service."

During the 11-year period between 1939 and 1949 the number of phones had been more than doubled.

Increase 30 Per Cent

Since the end of the war the number of phones had increased more than 50 per cent, from 3,090,113 to about 1,650,000.

Under questioning by Lovell Carroll, Montreal Counsel, John Clough, Bell comptroller, said the advertising in telephone directories particularly the yellow pages, provides Bell with almost $3,000,000 profit a year. All directories for Ontario and Quebec are printed in Montreal by a private company.

Last year, expenses in printing and distributing the directories were $2,985,000 as against $5,772,000 in revenue.

Monday marked the first questioning by lawyers of other cities than Montreal which are opposing the rate increase.

W. MacKay, representing Sir Thomas Galt and Guelph, briefly examined Mr. Clough and said he failed to understand why the company had not taken advantage of permission before the war to increase the rates of many municipalities where the number of phones had placed them in higher categories.

All Veterans Can Have Use Of Hospitals

Ottawa, March 14 (CP) —Canada today prepared to throw open the doors of her veterans department hospitals to all the veterans of her three armed forces.

Veterans Minister Gregg, announcing the broadened scope for D. V. A. hospitalization warned, however, that there is little available bed-space at present and that veterans would be expected to pay for their care.

At present the department hospitals, scattered across the country from Halifax to Victoria and including 12 major hospitals, are open only to pensioners, recipients of war veterans allowances or burnt-out pensions, and veterans "in need". Exclusive service in a war theatre who can't provide treatment for themselves.

"The prime responsibility of the hospitals maintained by DVA is to treat those who have pensionable disabilities," said Mr. Gregg. "Such veterans will continue to have an absolute priority in rights to beds in the hospitals. Treatment under the new regulations will be given to paying veterans patients, only to the extent that beds are not required for entitled veteran."

Now at Peak

With the patient-load in DVA hospitals now at its annual peak of between 9,000 and 10,000 said Mr. Gregg, the number of beds available for paying patients in the immediate future—"will not be great." No assurance was being given that accommodation will be available for all who apply.

Asked by Howard Green (PC, Vancouver-Quadra) if the scheme would cover men of the merchant navy, Mr. Gregg answered with a terse "no."

The new regulations, to become operative April 1, provide for acceptance of veterans who have a "prepaid health insurance plan" such as Blue Cross or if they have the means to pay for the hospitalization.

Rates to be charged under the scheme by paying veterans was being worked out.

Traffic Deaths In Ontario 830 in 1949

Toronto, March 14 — (CP) — Traffic deaths and injuries last year in Ontario showed a substantial increase over 1948, a highways department report issued Friday night said. Last year 830 persons were killed, compared with 740 in 1948 and 17,469 were injured, an increase of 2,500. Property damage reported totalled $9,531,659.

Tribesmen Snub Meeting Called By Commissioner

Serowe, Bechuanaland, March 14 (Reuters) — Bamangwato tribesmen Monday completely ignored a meeting called by the British high commissioner and told the British administration they would pay no further taxes without the authority of their chief, Seretse Khama.

A British government official said High Commissioner Sir Evelyn Baring, who had called the tribal meeting (Kgotla) to explain why Britain banned Seretse from his African kingdom for five years, had cancelled the meeting when the tribesmen failed to attend.

Sir Evelyn told a press conference that Seretse would be allowed to be with his wife Ruth (Ruth) when their child is born "unless the consideration of the law and order dictates otherwise."

Seretse, 29-year-old former law student, married a London typist, Ruth Williams, in September, 1948, while studying in Britain and later took her with him to Africa.

His marriage to a white woman at first caused dissension within his 100,000-strong Bamangwato tribe but a meeting of the headmen last June accepted him as chieftain with Ruth his queen.

Invited to London

Early this year Seretse was invited to London to discuss the situation. After a series of meetings with British officials he was informed that the British government could not recognize him as chief and that he would have to remain outside his tribal reserve for five years.

Ruth remained behind in Serowe when her husband flew to London last month. She is expecting a baby next June or July.

Sir Evelyn said at a press conference that British policy toward the Bamangwato was unchanged. The presence in the territory of Seretse or his uncle Tsekedi-Sama, former regent who went into exile, would be a danger to peace and good order, but he felt the presence of Seretse at the present moment would be the lesser danger.

He felt the government had to stop the development of what might have become "one of the worst dynastic feuds ever seen," Sir Evelyn added.

PICTON

Fire Destroys Part of Roof On Residence

Picton — Part of the roof on the home of C. A. Maus, East Main Street, was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. Prompt action on the part of Picton firemen saved the 135-year-old residence from destruction. The outbreak occurred in the roof over a section used by Mr. Maus as a workshop, and was believed due to over-heated pipes. There was considerable damage due to water.

Mrs. Maus who was confined to bed, was carried to the home of a neighbor, L. B. Calnan.

Early Sunday morning firemen were called to the Guild restaurant which was filled with smoke. Constable Percy Hicks kicked in a glass door to gain entrance. Firemen found no fire. The chimney dampor on the cook stove, burning soft coal, had been closed tightly, and smoke had seeped from the stove into the building. Damage was confined to that done by smoke.

600-Year-Old Elm Tree Falls Prey to Flames

Picton — The remains of Picton's famous old elm tree fell prey to flame yesterday. For an estimated 600 years this giant was a landmark on East Main Street. Last summer one of the limbs fell on a parked car and since the tree's decay was considered dangerous they were removed. Left standing was a fifty-foot high trunk, 26 1-2 feet in circumference around the bole and 26 feet at shoulder height. For years it had been hollow.

Set Afire

Yesterday, town workmen piled in 20 tires and poured a drum of oil into the huge cavity. Flames shot fifty feet into the air and slowly but surely, the heart of the historic elm, once the largest east of the rockies turned out.

By late day, the blackened stump had been eaten away and tumbled into the street. As the roots are cut away and traces of the elm disappear, citizens may wonder why the name elm street at that spot. Originally it was built to circle the giant tree which for six centuries withstood wind and weather only to fall prey to man's act.

Handcuffed Killer Of Texas Sheriff Hunted in Hills

Marfa, Tex., March 14 (AP)—The hunt for the killer of a Texas sheriff today had all the elements of a wild west thriller — a handcuffed fugitive afoot in a rugged mountain chain, pursued by an armed posse on horseback.

The shooting early Sunday of Sheriff O. W. (Blackie) Morrow, 43, on a lonely mountain road flipped back the pages of time to the days of the old west.

Texas Ranger Gully Cowsert rode into Marfa Monday night and said a mounted posse had tracked the unidentified killer of Morrow 15 miles through rugged mountains, but lost his trail near the Mexican border.

Riders patrolled the Rio Grande through the night to prevent the killer from slipping into Mexico — if he hasn't done so.

Morrow was shot and left dying early Sunday on a lonely road. The sheriff managed to get into his car and drive a mile before he died.

The husky, six-foot sheriff apparently had stopped to make an arrest. His pistol and handcuffs were missing, so he might have been shot with his own gun.

Officers said they had let the hunted was handcuffed from the way his hands dug into the ground where he fell among rocks and cactus.

WALLBRIDGE

John Hogg Honored On 90th Birthday

Wallbridge — A pleasant afternoon was spent last Wednesday at the home of Mr. John Hogg, Wallbridge when a number of neighbors, invited by Mrs. J. Smith, assembled to honor him on the occasion of his 90th birthday.

Among the many who called to talk over old times was Mr. Wesley Ketcheson, a friend of Mr. Hogg's for the past 60 years. After chatting over the past, and the many changes which have taken place during the intervening years from horses to cars, and especially the advanced farming methods, a delicious luncheon was served by Mrs. Smith with a beautiful birthday cake holding the centre of attraction on the tastefully arranged tea table.

Mr. Hogg was the recipient of many cards, and lovely gifts, including a beautiful potted plant from his daughter, and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. I. Hendrick. During the presentation of the gifts, the old favorite, "Happy Birthday to You" was sung, and kind wishes extended for many more days such as that.

Mr. Hogg passes his time among his flowers during the warm summer days, and has tulips coming in the spring. He is fond of reading the daily paper, and is interested in many activies.

INTRUDERS SMASH EGGS

Hamilton, March 13 — (CP) — Persons who broke into the home of Israel Palkin while the family was away Saturday night raseacked the house and smashed about three dozen eggs over the kitchen and cellar floors. The intruders, believed to be juveniles, apparently stole nothing.

Where valiant hearts find a bit of heaven and "home"

Once, he had a home. Its rooms rang cheerily to his footsteps, echoed his laughter. Then war came, and he went away.
Now he is back. But for this crippled, ailing hero of the war, still confined to hospital, there may never again be the joy of "going home". Yet he's not downhearted . . . no! For in the Red Cross Veteran's Lodge at his hospital . . . in bright, "homey" rooms contrasting so cheerfully with the bare white of the wards . . . he enjoys many happy hours with loved ones and visitors.
Think of the heaven this means to the men we all promised to remember! Give generously, to maintain these Red Cross Veterans' Lodges and other Veterans' Services . . . to support, as well, the Red Cross Disaster Services, the Outpost Hospitals, the Free Blood Transfusion Service—and many other Red Cross activities that serve the unfortunate, the stricken and the homeless.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Tonight the fourth game of the finals series between Northern Electric and the Canadian National Railways Diesels is being played in Memorial Arena. To date the Diesels have won 2 against one for the Electrics. Tonight the Diesels can end the matter by defeating the planters and by the same token the Electrics can prolong their anti-climactic hockey by administering a defeat to the Trainmen.

* * *

The third game played last Friday was a boisterous affair, wide open with some heavy checking thrown in for good measure. It was no pansy-waist hockey tete-a-tete between the squads and tonight's affair promises to be a lusty bout. The attendance Friday was disappointing to say the least and as was mentioned in this column before, perhaps John Public has had his seasonal appetite satisfied. However, tonight's tilt will be another breezy bout between the teams and it is hoped a fair crowd will be out to cheer the squads.

* * *

Bill "Squeak" Reason and A. Casterton, Kingston referees will be on hand to do the arbiting. Both are recognized as impartial officials and there should be no complaints from teams or fans on this score. There were some complaints registered about the officiating of last Friday night's game, but that was more or less to be expected since it appears that was more or less to be expected since it appears but that was more or less to be expected since it appears to be a habit when local officials are appointed to handle games between city or district teams.

* * *

News from the underground has it that there is a strong possibility Belleville will enter a team in the Central Ontario Baseball League. Word was received that Brockville, Napanee, Picton, Kingston, Batawa and possibly Smiths Falls will comprise the loop, a sudden additional shower certain baulks men of the city was noted. Efforts are now being made to make a Belleville entry a reality, (fence or no fence in the Exhibition Grounds) and while the hour is late, a miracle might happen that will send the Kiwanis team into the senior loop. It is reported that the Kiwanis Club has no further interest in the sponsorship of a junior baseball team, but it is also being said that some of the men folks that the franchise is being taken over by some sports-minded individuals of the city.

* * *

So, if the senior team idea flops and the junior franchise dies by the wayside, there'll be little to do in baseball circles except softball and swimming. Softball, we understand, was at first mooted as being productive of a league which would affiliate with the Ontario Amateur Softball Association in an effort to bring the game back to its former high status here. That, it appears does not appeal to the local muskhall lovers—muscle-bound.

* * *

The Commercial Softball League operated twelve or more teams here last year, and had a more or less successful season in every way, including financially. The standard of play was good, especially when the weaker teams were eliminated and the battle resolved itself into a survival of the fittest. Northern Electric and Meaden's Knotholers played an exciting series in the finals with both teams using players that were of Intermediate "A" calibre.

The games drew good crowds to the Stewart Warner Alemite Field. But softball, like any other sport of modern times, cannot be supported by good wishes and cheers. Sports equipment, like meat and coffee, does not grow on trees. It takes as much money to operate a team in sport these days, as it did entire four-squad loops a few years ago. Officials do not work for the love of the sport any more, Gatekeepers, and others must have their emoluments. And they won't accept payment in good wishes, or appearance.

The silver collection idea of raising funds for any sports event is a thing of the past. Sports have changed. Costs have risen. In fact nearly everything connecting with sport in this city has changed, except the influx of the coin of the realm into the "containers" passed by optimistic collectors at these league-after-your-game games. A large number of fans tossed the equivalent of an admission charge into the "hat". Others, took a sudden interest in some clouds that floated by overhead, when the "hat" came along. And there were plenty of them. Yet others suddenly went color-blind and heaved in a large copper, no doubt thinking it was a quarter. Yeah?

Human nature is a funny thing. Some of these people—and they are known as will take the family jalopy, load it with pals and drive to Kingston or Toronto to see a baseball game, paying full tell at the turnstiles, and yet in their hometown will walk a few blocks, heave a copper or a nickel in the hat, and scream their heads off at a "lousy" game.

* * *

At Exhibition Park, the "knothole gang" was also in evidence. Some went through the fence, some over it and some apparently went there in the morning and hid until game time. Proof of this is seen in the fact that out of 700 estimated attendance at a baseball game last summer, only 400 paid admission were evident. As we said before baseball or any other sport subsists entirely on the reception afforded by the sports-loving public. Business men or others, who are willing to put sufficient cash on the line to give the citizenry good clean wholesome sport, are deserving of a better fate. The city has been dubbed, especially of late, as one of the poorest sporting centres in this part of Ontario." It is not the fact that its sports-minded men are afraid to invest money in sport sponsorship. It is the reception given them by the public and public bodies. Belleville likes a winning team, like any other community. There are men here who will procure what they think will be a winning baseball aggregation, if they can get the support of the public and certain civic organizations. And until that time comes, the city, as far as sport goes, outside of hockey, will sink farther and farther into the doldrums.

The city took over the Stewart Warner Alemite Field last year, or at least, it was transferred to them by that company in exchange for certain parcel of land. What 1950 plans are for the field, no one seems to know. There has been agitation for an enclosed baseball park in the Exhibition Grounds. Little headway is being made along these lines. And it seems to us, the answer to the question, "Will Belleville have baseball and softball this summer?" is simply this: enclosed baseball and softball parks. And until there is some guarantee of these, Belleville baseball and softball interests, major ones, that is, will sit pat.

"DON'T CRY, JOE"

Exit, the Nomads. The starry team that swept through twenty-three games with only a tie marked against them, finally met their Waterloo at the hands of the powerful Peterborough Legion, 1949 Senior "B" champions. The Legionnaires lacked a 6-2 defeat on the Kingston crew in Peterborough last night, winning the group title by four games to two. It was a sensational series with both squads evenly matched until the final two games when the class of the winners finally told. Leafton now meets the potent Markham team in the first round of the OHA senior "B" playdowns.

Red Wings Seem Sure to Capture 3 Scoring Titles

Montreal, March 14 (CP) — Detroit Red Wings seem to be a sure bet to capture the National Hockey League scoring title this season.

The league-leading Wings have three players holding the three top positions on the scoring ladder with only seven games remaining in their 70-game schedule.

League statistics released today show that Detroit winger Ted Lindsay holds a six-point lead in the race with 69 points made up of 23 goals and 46 assists. Teammate Sid Abel follows in the runner-up spot with 34 goals and 29 assists while another Detroit, Gordie Howe is solidly footed on the ladder with 60 points, scoring 29 markers and 31 assists.

The chief threat to Detroit's big three comes from Boston's Paul Ronty and unpredictable Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Montreal Canadiens, who lead the six-team circuit in the individual goal scoring race. The shifty Montrealer and Ronty trail Howe by four points. Richard on the strength of 34 goals and 20 assists and Ronty with 23 goals and 33 assists.

Doug Bentley and Metro Prystai of Chicago Black Hawks are tied for fifth place with 49 points each. Another Black Hawk, Roy Conacher is sixth with 48.

Exinickl Leads Parade

Wild Bill Exinickl of Toronto Maple Leafs leads the penalty parade with four minutes spent in the cooler in 61 contests.

Montreal's Bill Durnan continues to lead the netminders in the Vezina trophy race. Durnan, who has been sidelined during his team's last five games with a head injury, was replaced by young Gerry McNeil called up from the Cincinnati farm team in the American Hockey League. McNeil has allowed only five goals in five games while Durnan has been charged with an average of 2.24 goals in 585 games. Together they average 2.14 goals per game. The Detroit combination of Harry Lumley and Terry Sawchuk hold down the runner-up spot with a 2.21 goal average.

Turk Broda of Toronto holds a commanding lead in the shutout department with nine and a few years two more than Montreal's Durnan.

Detroit continue to set the pace in the league standing with a 10-point lead. The Wings have chalked up 34 victories, 188 defeats, and 12 draws for 80 points. The second-place Toronto Leafs have 29 wins, 23 losses and 12 stalemates for 70 points. Canadiens follow in third-place with 67 points and New York Rangers are fourth with 65. Boston are next with 54 and Chicago Black Hawks are in the cellar with 45 completely out of playoff contention.

Flying Dutchmen Back in Fight With 3-2 Victory

By The Canadian Press)

Victories just don't come any tighter or mean more than Kitchener — Waterloo Flying Dutchmen's 3-2 victory over Toronto's Marlboros last night.

Trailing the powerful Toronto aggregation 3-0 in the best-of-seven series for the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" championship and down 1-0 after two periods of gruelling, wide-open play, Punch Scherer's charges roared back with fire in their eyes and rapped home three third-frame goals to grab the hairbreadth margin.

The Toronto club played with three juniors in the line-up. Danny Lewicki and Larry Regan of the eliminated Junior "A" Marlboros started the game and then in the first period Duke goaltender Pat Boesser suffered a dislocated shoulder during a goal-mouth scramble. Junior goaltender Don Lockhart was called on to fill the breach.

The smooth Marlboros played it to the hilt in the opening stanza and were rewarded with the only marker, Chuck Blair doing the honors.

The second period produced no scoring and oddly enough the bitter rivals played it without penalties.

Ted Grasser started the Kitchener - Waterloo stretch drive at 3.20 of the third and Billy Flick followed to give the homesters a short-lived 2-1 lead. Regan evened it up. A long shot by Mickey Roth bounced the clubs right into the fifth game. The shot caromed off Lockhart's pads into the corner of the net.

Marlboros have another chance to end it all Wednesday night when the finalists continue their battle at Waterloo.

The Juniors also return to the scene this Wednesday when Windsor travel to Guelph for the opening game of the Junior "A" best-of-seven final series. The Spitfires are favorites to cop the crown but Guelph are rated as a tough team.

$25,000 JEWEL ROBBERY

New York, March 14 — (AP)— Alfred H. Trombly, a jewel merchant who conducts his business from his Brooklyn apartment, told police Friday night that two armed robbers stole $25,000 worth of diamond rings and gold watches from him. He said two men came to his apartment.

He's giving each customer a blue card—the Chelsea color. If the pensioners in the cards are good for a free feed.

Harry says: "I reckon it would cost me $800 but it would be worth it to see Chelsea win."

Chelsea meets Arsenal, rival London club, in the cup semi-final here March 18 and victory here would put Roger Herson into the final at Wembley against either Everton or Liverpool.

Chelsea has never won the cup.

The Canadian Family owes much to . . . Ukraine

A Tribute from Calvert to Canadians of Ukrainian Descent

CANADA OWES MUCH of its strength, vitality and the rich quality of its democracy to the blending of racial and cultural heritages from many lands.

No one appreciates more the true significance of the words freedom and democracy than those who have suffered oppression.

Although Ukrainians have felt the heel of the oppressor for six hundred years they have never lost their love of freedom. The first Ukrainians came to Canada in 1892 and were followed by a steady stream of these hardy and resourceful people until today there are over 300,000 in Canada.

Comprising Ruthenians and Galicians, they are enthusiastic choristers and embroidery experts. The younger generation is producing writers, doctors, lawyers, teachers and legislators contributing much to the progress of the great Canadian Family.

ROBBED OF LIFE'S SAVINGS

Vancouver, March 14 — (CP) —Beaten and robbed of his life's savings, John Timofy, a 74-year-old gardener, today was as far from retirement as when he began work in Canada 23 years ago. "I have nothing left," he said, "it seems hopeless."

A man who didn't trust banks to hold his money, Timofy was robbed of $3,742 in large bills from his hip pocket.

A silent, "six-foot-three" bandit robbed the aged man of three $1,000 notes, seven $100 notes, two $20 notes and $2.

Police earlier identified the gardener as John T. Murphy.

Question of When Amatuer Sports Becomes Professional Raised in the Legislature

Toronto, March 14 (CP) — A question that has baffled sports authorities for many years was discussed in the Ontario legislature Monday when an amendment to the Athletic Control Act came up for second reading.

The subject was brought up by Robert Thornberry, C.C.F. member for Hamilton Centre, who noted the amendment contained no provision for taxing athletic events which are "supposedly amateur but actually professional."

The sports Mr. Thornberry referred to were boxing, hockey and football—in which he said the dividing line between amateurism and professionalism is so thin it barely exists.

In the case of sport, the province imposes a 30 per cent amusement tax on admission price of professional promotions but amateurs are exempted.

Premier Leslie Frost admitted it was difficult to say where amateur sport ended and professionalism began. The decision as to which are amateur and which are professional is made by the treasury department, the premier said. He promised that the interpretations were out of date and might be revised.

George Dudley, veteran secretary of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, when interviewed over the telephone by The Canadian Press, said he would "need some time to study the situation before making a statement for the amateur hockey body."

Should Broaden Basis

"I don't know how big football is now, but operate with men avowedly professional in their ranks and not be regarded as professional," Premier Frost said.

He agreed with Mr. Thornberry that if there was going to be a hospital amusements tax—the 20 per cent tax goes to the hospital aid fund—to apply to professional sport, perhaps the first step in levying the tax should be broadened.

H. L. Walters, C.C.F. member for Toronto Bracondale, said there were "two kinds of athletes—"kids in school, who are amateurs, and the others, who are professional."

The amendment, to which the legislature gave second reading, also permits the Ontario Athletic Commissioner to impound the purse of a wrestling or boxing bout where it is suspected there may have been a breach of the act. At present an order to impound must come from the attorney general.

Ronny Lacelle, starry Ottawa fighter, who holds a decision over Toronto Al. MacPhee, will be seen in the main bout of the Trenton R.C.A.F. boxing card in the sport's home for the weekend night. Lacelles meets Joey Peters, sensational young Toronto fighter in a five round battle that headlines an attractive card of seven fights. The show has attracted the cream of the fighters from Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton, and Ted Nowak, Kitchener.

New Mechanical Gadget Calls Balls and Strikes

Vero Beach, Fla., March 14 — (AP) — Branch Rickey, president of the Brooklyn Baseball Club, has come up with a new mechanical gadget to call balls and strikes.

The machine, which was to have its initial test here today is called a "cross-eyed electronic umpire" and is alleged to "see" em closer than any normally endowed arbiter."

It was developed after nearly a year of research and experiments by the General Electric Company at Syracuse, N.Y.

Rickey explained that the device is not intended to take an eye-to replace manual umpiring in actual games. It is he said, designed for training and experimental use.

The "electronic umpire" is a system of lenses, mirrors, electric eyes and other electronic equipment which lights a lamp when a ball is pitched through the "strike" zone. The lamp won't light if the pitch is a ball.

All the parts are concealed in two main pieces of equipment — a thin metal box about four feet long, 21 inches wide and 11½ inches deep, upon which home plate is located. A cabinet containing "the velocity-recording and strike and ball-counting" equipment can be located anywhere up to 25 feet from the plate.

The equipment can be adjusted to the height of any player.

Car Dept. Leads In CNR Finals, Beat Yardmen 4-1

The Car Department went one up in the Canadian National Railways Interdepartment Hockey League finals by defeating the Yardmen by a score of 4-1 at the Memorial Arena last night. The Carmen now lead the best-of-five finals by two games to one with one game tied.

The Yard crew had much the best of the play in the first period and were finally rewarded when "Shod" Ethier banged in Carson's pass to take the lead. The Car Dept. evened the count in the second when Ray Nolan scored on a breakaway while his team was short handed. The third period was all Car Dept. and Duval finally broke the deadlock unassisted and this was followed by Roy Nolan's second goal of the night with Lockyer assisting. Red Culkin ended the scoring in the final minute by scoring on Nolan's pass.

Ray Nolan with two goals and one assist led the Car Dept. attack while Culkin, Lockyer, Taylor and Sharpe also played starring roles. Ethier, Duval, Roy Nolan and Rogers looked the best for the Yard.

The lineups — Car Department: Foote; Taylor, Pope, Lockyer, Culkin, Pope, Ray Nolan, Lapercelle, Mattis, Shortis, Storms and Sharpe. Yardmen: Boyle, Hall, Rogers, Nolan, Hull, Ronsky, Carson, Ethier, Amo, Little, Pope, and Bob Nolan.

Referees: J. Knott and V. Rowbotham.

Junior Five-Pin Bowling Tourney Is Announced

(By the Canadian Press)

The Canadian Junior five-pin bowling championships will be held in Toronto April 8 to 15, it was announced Monday.

The championships, sanctioned by the Canadian Bowling Association, will be bowled in two sections—one for boys and one for girls. Trophies will be awarded the winner and runner-up of both sections.

Entries have been received so far from Ottawa, Peterborough, Hamilton and Toronto. The tournament is under the auspices of the East-York Bowling Association.

Officials said the dates were chosen to coincide with school holidays during the Easter season.

Eight division winners will compete in today's final play in the Cola elimination curling bonspiel at the Granite Club in Toronto.

Held annually for curlers who have participated in the game for seven years or less. 150 rinks were entered in this year's competition for two trophies, the Harvey Sims trophy and the Albert E. Duke consolation award.

Division winners: Oscar Bigelow, Brockville; J. B. Crich, Lansdown; Don Gilmour, Orillia; Dr. J. E. Trelford, Toronto; L. Langton, Oshawa; G. Thomason, Bramton; Dr. C. T. Mason, Hamilton, and Ted Nowak, Kitchener.

President Azarie Choquet of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association said Monday night at Montreal that Montreal Maroons, Shawinsky and Eddie Bush have been suspended for three games as a result of a stick-swinging fracas at Sherbrooke, Que., last week.

Manastersky of the Montreal Royals and Bush of the Sherbrooke Saints were given matching misconduct penalties for their part in the battle in the opening game of a best-of-seven Quebec Senior Hockey League semi-final playoff.

At London, Ont., Herman A. Kompass, 82, who has been prominent in district lawn bowling and baseball circles, died at his home Monday night. He was among those who laid the groundwork for Ontario lawn bowling championships. He was also one of the organizers of a London entry in the old Michigan-Ontario Professional Baseball League.

Edgar Laprade, centre and sparkling star of the New York Rangers, will return to the National Hockey League wars Wednesday night against Boston Bruins, the club announced Monday. Laprade has missed eight of the Rangers last nine games due to leg injuries and a groin injury.

At Philadelphia, Jersey Joe Walcott, the 36-year-old, Camden, N.J., heavyweight who never seems to get old, Monday night knocked out Baltimore's Johnny Shkor in 1:34 of the first round. Walcott weighed 197, Shkor 216 for the scheduled 10 rounder.

At Vero Beach, Fla., Branch Rickey, Dodger president, Monday expressed grave concern over the condition of Pee Wee Reese.

Rickey is disturbed over what he believes to be a recurrence of the groin injury to the ace outfielder which handicapped Furillo late in the 1949 season and in the world series.

Montreal, March 14 — (CP) — Whether National Hockey League players should stick strictly to training routine during the long schedule is a matter on which coaches seem to lack a little unanimity.

Bax (Montreal Star) O'Meara labels as a "startling assertion" the statement of Lester Patrick of New York Rangers that he is "not averse to a glass of beer now and then" as a break in the training during a hard schedule."

Bax says Lester has spoken well of the idea of getting his players together for a good dinner, "a few dippers of suds with a good song thing clear to wind up the evening."

That was an old Ranger method, reminisces the writer, "and in the far-off days of the hilarious American and the Rangers of the Cook-Boucher era they often gathered centrest as a good spot in which to indulge these fancies."

But, says Bax, few coaches today go in for such diversions. "They don't want their players to smoke, or even become coffee addicts. They are known how Dick Irvin regards such capers. Jack Adams frowns on any deviation from the normal routine. Ecodes Hap Day.

Heavy Smokey

"Lester himself confesses that he has always been a heavy smoker going for 30 or 40 cigarets a day ever since he was a youngster. Considering that he played hockey till he was 42 and is a fine, wyestanding figure of a man, very sound of wind and limb even at 66, maybe the cigarette haven't such a baneful effect as we suppose. In all probability he never inhaled.

"Dick Irvin won't allow anyone to smoke in the Canuck dressing room, has a positive hatred of excess poundage. He can tell if a player has put on a pound by merely looking at him. Connie Smythe is also an anti-fat advocate as he showed in driving fashion in his recent crusade to slim the Leafs."

Sports Roundup

(By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.)

Ithaca, N. Y., March 14 — (AP) Saba Haqchaty Pasha, an Egyptian lawyer, has donated a tennis trophy for competition among the big oil companies operating in the Middle East. It will be like a Davis Cup of the Persian Gulf area — but a darn sight tougher to pronounce. The Cornell University basketball followers are still burning over the Lehigh handed the Wildcats by the National Collegiate athletic association tournament selectors. But at least the Wildcats are still among the National tournament; they'll try for a berth in the semi-finals when they play City College of New York Thursday night.

Pop Goes the Weasel

Lefty James, Cornell football coach, is a great admirer of Pop Zarner (who used to coach the great Jim Thorpe). Lefty take Pop the No. 1 coach of all time because "he could get results with things that made them change the rules — he did more than anyone else to change football." . . . Lefty also puts A. A. Stagg, Fielding Yost and Bob Zuppke among the "great" coaches, but he doesn't include Knute Rockne — "Rockne was a great organizer, not an originator," he explains . . . and he should know. Lefty adds Ralph Jones, the Wideo" team to the triumvirate which brought out the modern or "Bears" style of T-formation play . . . "But Rockne was the greatest of them all," James concludes.

Cornell's record during the recent Eastern College boxing tournament at Syracuse didn't belong to anyone. It belonged himself open to a right cross . . . like Gilbert, Penn State athletic director, was the victim. He encountered a "prospect" who had visited the State campus, and while they were exchanging greetings, the guy who was sponsoring a similar visit to Syracuse came along, wearing a suspicious look . . . "And all I was doing was talking about the weather," chuckled Ike. "I was telling the boy: 'Look at that deep snow outside. We don't have any of that down at Penn State'."

Hull Volants Cinderella Team Of Playoffs

Ottawa, March 14 — (CP) — Hull Volants, the "Cinderella team" of the Eastern Canada Senior Hockey League playoffs, outplayed and out-skated Ottawa's R.C.A.F. Flyers by an 8-5 victory Monday night to move within a single game of a final berth in the league playoffs.

The victory gave Volants a 2-1 lead in games in the best-of-five semi-final series with the fourth game scheduled here Wednesday night.

Tail-end club through most of the regular league schedule, Volants last night continued to show the same brand of fast, aggressive hockey that swept them through the quarter-final round against Ottawa Army. They held a 3-1 lead at the end of the first period and doubled their lead to 6-2 in the second.

Charlie Bilodeau was the main cog in the Hull victory, driving home three goals and assisting on two others. Roger Leger, Marcel Legris, Jean Gutscheneuter, Smiley Meronek and Georges Potvin added singles.

George Scott paced the Airmen with a brace of goals. Also in Billy Hewitt, Ted Hibbard and Roy Forbes scored one each.

Canada's Chances To Win Crown Appear Bright

London, March 14 — (CP) — Britain, Sweden and Switzerland drew first blood in the world hockey tournament which opened here Monday. But there appears to be little to choose between Canada's chances of copping the crown which the Czechs refused to defend.

Jimmy Graham, coach of Edmonton Mercurys, shook his greying head, saying, "I haven't seen anything yet to stop us."

In Monday's opening games Britain blanked France 9-0; Sweden outplayed the United States 8-3; and Switzerland rolled up a basketball score against Belgium, 24-3.

With the Czechs out of the tournament as a result of a last-minute decision at cabinet level in the Communist - dominated country, the hosts appear to have the best chance to put up a fight against Arvid Fevrell and the championship. They trimmed a travel-weary, but still remarkably-unimpressive, United States squad with considerable ease in a rough game.

Plays Switzerland

The Mercurys skate into action tonight against the Swiss at Harringay. Although favored Canada ran away with the game Monday, it should be a different story against Canada.

Despite the shutout Britain pulled on a sluggish French team. Trailrbirds figure the winners won't stack up too well against topflight opposition.

The tournament's first three games were disappointing at the turnstiles, drawing an estimated total of 1,000—about one-half the capacity of the three rinks being used.

The Merks will go into tonight's game against the Swiss full of confidence that they can win back the honours last held for the Dominion by Ottawa Flyers in the 1948 olympics. Other games today pit France gainst Norway at Streatham Castle, in Southfolk, which was completed in the 13th century.

Les Douglas Scoring Leader American Loop

New York, March 14 — (CP) — Les Douglas of Cleveland Barons is all set to don the American Hockey League's individual scoring crown.

With the race in its final week, Douglas today had 98 points, or a lead of eight over Jackie Hamilton, Ab Demarco of Buffalo. Douglas, whose team already has slowed away the western division title rang up 31 goals and 67 assists.

Demarco, whose 90 points helped Buffalo capture the eastern division honors, scored 37 goals and had 53 assists.

While Douglas had the most assists, teammate Roy Kelly was high in goals with 46.

Doug Gagnon of Cincinnati, after another week without a penalty, still led the league in that department with 161 minutes.

Cincinnati Reds Different Team Says Manager

Tampa, Fla., March 14 — (AP) —This is a different Cincinnati training camp. The old guard is gone. No Bucky Walters. No Johnny Vander Meer. The last remnants of the 1940 championship have vanished.

Luke Sewell is the manager in this Cincinnati new deal. It's the same Luke who won a mess-around title for the St. Louis Browns out of the wilderness to their first and only pennant in 1944.

"We'll win more games than we did last year," Sewell said to-day with conviction. He knows why. A 1949 details because he served as coach under manager Walters.

For the second straight spring, Ewell Blackwell is the big question mark. Virtually useless last summer after a serious kidney operation, "Blacky" pitched on some 30 pounds during the winter. The gangling righthander with the baffling sidearm motion now weighs more than 200. Last spring he was a "ghost" at 185. . . .

"Blacky looks too good to be true," said Sewell. "I'm quite optimistic about him."

NATURE UNSPOILED

YOURS TO PROTECT

The RED-WING is the common blackbird of the marshes and swamps. The striking red and black of the male are unmistakable, but the female is less spectacular in colouring. In the spring their chief food consists of caterpillars, and they deserve protection.

COLORED TELEVISION IS LATEST INVENTION

Dr. Willard Geer, of Hollywood, Cal., is seen holding a replica (100 times enlarged) of the heart of the color television tube he invented. Already patent on the tube has been purchased by a motion picture corporation, which, according to its president, is appropriating more than $500,000 for further research work. Dr. Geer, a member of the faculty of the University of Southern California, said the invention consists of a single tube with three electron beams directed on a specially-formed phosphor-bearing screen.—(Central Press Canadian.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 14 — (AP) — Edmond O'Brien, who is getting to be Hollywood's No. 1 cops-and-robbers man, wants to get away from crime.

The actor has done a dozen pictures recently and all but two have been on crime themes. Sometimes he's the robber and sometimes he's the cop, as in his present film, "Prowl Car."

O'Brien can't figure out why he got typed in the roles. But he added that they haven't done much with his relations with the law. But he tells of being stopped for a traffic ticket on his way to work one day.

"I'll let you go if you'll tell me how you did those flying scenes in 'Fighter Squadron,'" said the cop, mentioning one of O'Brien's non-crime pictures.

Notes 'N' Stuff

Shelly Winters emphasizes that she has no wedding plans. Reports that she was engaged to Actor Richard Beymer at Beckers were "unfortunate" she told me. The extent of their "romance" was posing for a magazine layout and being out to dinner with others in the Winchester Inn company during the Tuscon locations.

Dennis Day, who waited six years for a good movie role, is acting in a "B" picture. "It's pretty hard to do pictures and two air shows, too," he says.

Dana Andrews works days in "Where the Sidewalk Ends" and nights on the "Mr. District Attorney" radio show. The latter is being partly remade because the treatment was considered too grim for present audiences.

Cassatle Review

"The Outriders" (M.G.M.) is a crackerjack western. There is seldom a dull moment in this action-filled frontier drama. It also contains some of the best scenery displayed in recent months on the screen. The story is rather complex, but is made convincing by Joel McCrea, Arlene Dahl, Barry Sullivan and Jane Whitmore.

Irish News Letter:
Newlyweds Given Preferential Treatment in House Allotment

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Dublin, March 14 — (CP) — Newlyweds are getting a break from Dublin's city fathers.

They'll have preferential treatment in the allotment of 200 houses at suburban Ballyfermot.

Applicants for the new homes must furnish proof that they were married between January 1, 1945, and December, 1949. Weekly rents will range in price from the tenants' wages, between 12s. 6d. ($1.50) and £1. 8s. 6d. ($4.01).

Housing is still severe in the Republic of Ireland's capital, but an improved rate of building is helping to ease the situation.

More than 1,400 dwellings were completed last year, compared to 500 in 1948. At the year-end, 2,998 houses were under construction, compared with 2,442 a year before.

More Work Needed

"Our only real hope of reducing Irish emigration lies in providing more openings in industry," Daniel Morrissey, minister for industry and commerce, said at a Dublin dinner recently.

The country's proportion of working population engaged in industry was, perhaps, the lowest in Europe — less than 20 per cent, compared with 40 per cent in The Netherlands and 33 per cent in France.

It had been calculated that so far as the Irish market alone was concerned, the volume of manufactured and processed goods which could have been made and sold in Ireland in the year ended in 1948, would have kept 45,000 Irish workers employed.

That Irish industrial products could find markets abroad was proved by the £2,000,000 ($5,200,000) increase in exports in 1948 as compared with 1947. The government was giving "very active attention" to developing the export of manufactured goods.

Morrisey aired his often-repeated suggestion that Ireland has an ideal country for foreign capital to invest in industry. Labor and power were cheap and "risks of military, political, social or economic upheavals do not exist."

Foreign Money

Tom Holden of Waterford dipped his spoon into his breakfast egg. He climbed about metal.

He fished out a sixpence.

Even more puzzling — it was an English sixpence.

RUSSIAN GIRL FREED

Frankfurt, March 14 — (AP) — U. S. high commission officials said Friday that a Russian girl arrested as a possible Soviet courier agent has been freed for lack of evidence. The girl is Regina Kravchenko, 22. The army defined a confusion agent as a person who purposely acts suspiciously to divert attention from real spies.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Ribbiter

There seems to be a bridge god. Every so often he helps bridge players who are unable to help themselves. Now and then he hands them gifts in the form of pushes by their expert opponents.

A couple of bigshots were east-west partners against a pair of lambs when this deal came up:

NORTH
♠ A K 8 4 2
♥ Q 6 3
♦ K 9 5
♣ 7 5

WEST
♠ 9 6
♥ 8 7 5 4 2
♦ Q 8
♣ A J 3 2

EAST
♠ None
♥ A K J 9
♦ 7 5 2
♣ K Q 10 8 6 4

SOUTH
♠ Q J 10 7 5 3
♥ 10
♦ A J 10 9 6 3
♣ None

The bidding went like this:

East	South	West	North
1 C	1 S	2 C	3 S
4 S	Pass	Pass	Pass
5 C	5 S	6 H	6 S
7 C	Pass	Pass	7 S
Dbl	Pass	Pass	Pass

West and east knew they were overbidding at the level of six or higher, but they were willing to take a gamble if south could make a slam, And the small slam in spades was there.

At one time the spade bidders were willing to stop at game. But the bold players kept pushing and pushing. When they got south into a bid of seven it seemed time to double for some gravy.

East felt that at least one of his big cards would take a trick. West had voluntarily entered the bidding and thus promised something. At no time had south bid the diamond suit. The double looked safe.

But after getting south into a grand slam the opponents made him a present of it. West decided to start out with an opening lead of a club. This gave declarer the only opportunity he needed.

With no club, south ruffed trick one. After three trump rounds and two top diamonds, north ruffed a diamond. Dummy hearts were shed on south diamonds and dummy ruffed the south lone heart.

The laps of the bridge gods are sometimes soft.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was reeding his paper and ma was reeding here, saying. According to Lola Lollard's column, the average Hollywood romance ends either in divorce or an auto wheel accident. Isn't that gass-Williams?? she said.

I dont seem to mind it, pop said, By the way, speeking of Hollywood stars and law suits, how did that What's-her-name make out? he said, and ma said, Don't be so indefinite, what star do you mean?

Oh you know, the long haired glammer gal that sued the Galaxy Studios for breech of contract, pop said. She accused them of slowly starving her to death to keep her from losing her box office figure, he said,, and ma said, Goodness, but I still dont know which star you're talking about.

What's-her-name, she's got red hair and freckles, and a sort of a squeare face, pop said, and ma said, There's nuthing very glamerous about that discription for land sakes.

She's glammerous all rite, pop said, Her face is always on the cover of the fan magazines. You know, What's-her-name, he said, and ma said, Now Mr. William What's-her-name meens absalutely nuthing to me, so please stop saying it. Can't you name a picture she's been in? she said.

Why yes, she was the star of Silent Devotion, pop said, and ma said, But that was all about the famous English sheep. dog.

That's the gal, pop said. She was in court with her lawyer, claiming the studio kept her on a starvation diet of bare soup bones after contracting to give her 5 pounds of meat and 2 boxes of dog biskitts a day. It seems, according to the studio, that her box office appeal gets fat, he said, and ma said, Oh hush and keep quiet, -I mite of known it was only one of your crazy ideas. But which one mite of but she hardly ever does.

BARTER

This job might be done by a national export-import corporation. It could be made up of a large group of manufacturers and wholesalers and the government to provide both the management and the finance to operate bilaterial deals and to overcome the lack of facilities facing any single corporation.

First operations should be with countries that now take few Canadian goods. The Canadian export-import corporation could include capital equipment as well as foodstuffs or raw materials.

Mr. Mayhew said that the National Export-Import Board might be used experimentally as an additional means of meeting the "surplus-unemployment" problem.

Will Not Remove Difficulties

"If the subject is not approached in some such way, there is danger that the various boards handling surpluses will operate independently in a give-away basis and that the various local unemployment problems will also be cracked by public works or other means that will alleviate, but not remove the basic difficulty."

J. A. Charlton (PC—Brant-Wentworth), another of the speakers in the debate, said Agricultural Executive Minister had supplied farm policies. There was too much reliance on the assistance received by the European recovery program of the United States. Large amounts were spent in Canada for Canadian products. He wondered what would happen when no more funds were available after March, 1952.

He urged establishment of a cheese processing and packaging plant in the Grand Kingsford-Chandler help boost sales of Canadian Cheddar cheese.

Mr. Charlton said the government should reward Canada's farmers for the low wartime prices for their products. They should now be assured of stabilized markets. In referring to Mr. Gardiner he said the Agriculture Minister was a "smart politician with a capital P."

Term Unparliamentary

Speaker Rom Macdonald said he felt the term was unparliamentary and did not think Mr. Charlton should use it while Mr. Gardiner was absent from the chamber.

Mr. Charlton said he thought he was paying Mr. Gardiner a compliment, but would withdraw the reference if Mr. Speaker thought it was unparliamentary.

Mr. Charlton referred to a speech by Mr. Gardiner he said he would have to advise farmers to buy, where they could sell—in Canada. That was a strange statement from the member of a government committed to freer trade. It must have made odd reading for Mr. Gardiner's supporters in Saskatchewan.

As a result of the lower prices in the new contracts with the United Kingdom, farm income would decrease between $200,000,000 and $250,000,000 this year.

He said Mr. Gardiner had stated there were only little surpluses of butter, cheese and honey. He overlooked surpluses of white beans, apples and the like.

Canada Generous Claim

J. H. Harrison (L—Meadow Lake) said no country had been as generous to the U.K. as had Canada. He felt the U.K. could make a little effort to face her problems realistically.

It was all very well for the Progressive Conservative party to suggest a Commonwealth trade conference, but Canada then would face the problem of what to do with the sterling that she would have to accept for Commonwealth sales.

Angus MacInnis (CCF—Vancouver East) said unemployment in British Columbia has reached proportions of a major emergency. About 15 per cent of the province's labor force was unemployed.

He called on the government to start immediately on unemployment projects that would relieve unemployment.

John Decore (L—Vegreville) said Canada had no room for "calamity howlers". It seemed almost that some wished for a depression so they could say "I told you so" if there was danger that such talk might, in fact, produce an economic recession.

He urged establishment of a royal commission to decide the route of a trans-Canada highway. Waste Highway Allowances

Hay Thomas (SC—Wetaskiwin) suggested that the government pay higher allowances to burnout veterans of the First World War and said family allowances, now payable until a child is 15, should be continued as long as a child remains in school.

Tom Goode (L—Burnaby-Richmond) suggested that Canada take the lead in bringing Russia and the great powers together to work out a peaceful settlement of current world problems.

David Gourd (L—Chapleau) called for reserved assistance to the gold mining industry, the construction of roads in undeveloped area, extension of experimental farm operations and the construction of refrigerated warehouses for farm produce.

J. G. Gour (L—Russell) said farmers were pleased with the government's price support program, but felt the cost of the things they had to buy were too high. He suggested if prices were lower industries could sell more both at home and abroad.

NIXON OPPOSES

Not even Speaker Davis, in charge of the debate, could have grinned with his "beautiful Welsh voice" could explain the waste of a civil marriage ceremony impressive, said Mr. Nixon.

Commissioners and judges were not so enthusiastic about the additional duties to be imposed on them. Provincial secretary Welsh remarked that there is a tendency to prevent them from accepting a "tip," although the $10 fee must be remitted to the provincial treasurer.

Mr. Grummett said civil marriage threatened "the breaking-down" of family life. Marriage in a church had the status of a covenant" and few marriages solemnized in church went "on the rocks."

He said members should "think very seriously before we destroy something in our home life we may regret."

Mr. Jolliffe said civil marriage was the right of the majority who could not conscientiously take part in a religious ceremony. He was also the right of the clergy to refuse to marry persons to whom the ceremony was a "sham."

Defended Separation

The C.C.F. leader defended separation of church and state and opposed "any measure which will tend to make clergymen the mere functionaries of the state."

He suggested however, that the three-day waiting period between issuance of the licence and the wedding might be lengthened.

Premier Frost agreed on the value of the religious ceremony, but said there was a "residue" of people who had no religious principles and who would have no regard for the sanctity of the wedding ceremony. It would make the clergy "rather stupid" to oblige them to marry these persons. Under present law marriages in Ontario, whether inside or outside a church, must be performed by ministers.

Mr. Temple, in advocating premarriage blood tests, said similar measures already had been introduced in four provinces—Prince Edward Island, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

If the same percentages held true in Ontario as in these other provinces, approximately 1,000 of the persons who were married in Ontario last year had syphilis.

LABOR GOVT.

Tonight's test comes in a Conservative motion saying, the Commons "deplores the failure of the Chancellor of the Exchequer to enforce his own instructions to government departments not to overspend so extensively their estimates for the current year."

Crisp to Answer

Sir Stafford Cripps, Britain's austere budget chief, has promised to answer the Tory accusation in the debate preceding the voting, despite the fact he has a bad cold.

Several government departments are asking for extra appropriations amounting to £147,-402,355 ($480,074,331).

The vote on housing Monday following a bitter debate in which Conservatives hacked away at Health Minister Aneurin Bevan, who has charge of the housing program. They claimed the program had been a flop and declared that the buildings been put into the hands of private enterprise more homes would have gone up.

Bevan retorted that the Conservatives wanted to put housing in the hands of speculators who would build only luxury dwellings.

Bevan may come up for more lambasting in today's debate, when the ministry is asking for nearly two-thirds of the announced extra appropriations request to run the national health service.

'Chibougamau Hat' Newest Style for Men in North Quebec

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Chibougamau, Que., March 14—This remote area in north central Quebec is the last place for a new style to hit the fancy here—the "Chibougamau Hat."

The hope is that the fad doesn't spread and at this writing there seems little chance of that. If all men dolled up in a Chibougamau hat, the girls would die laughing at them.

The hat currently is the favorite head-gear of the Twin Ore Bodies and Cree Indians who live near the mining shanties of Chibougamau and is a cross between a street car conductor's headgear and a college mortar-board.

Just how the fashion reached here is hard to say but H. E. (Tiny) Corbett, mining engineer and bush pilot, has a theory. He tells how one day's load of things landed in Chibougamau got the lucky foot and when the bundles landed in Hartford, Conn., and work started there 15 years as a transconductor on the first section of lichky again. Then he came back to Chibougamau, in the new mining north central Quebec and some 250 miles northeast of Rouyn, Que.

It is wild country with little trace of civilization and a man who came into this land with a street car conductor's hat on could figure on creating quite a stir. He said.

Quite a Thing For Indians

In any event street car conductor's hats, or their likeness, became quite a thing for the Indians. They had their squaws make them out of blue serge or black felt and eventually competition grew up among the wearers.

Who has the best hat? Well, it's all in the way you look at things but the best hat among these primitive people seems to be that with the widest crown. So over the years the general contour of the street car conductor's hat has remained 'but the top—landing surface" if you would call it that —has grown to tremendous proportions.

These hats must be practical, of course. In a land where winter temperatures reach 50-odd degrees below zero, ear flaps are a necessity, the squaws build these in. Then there is the head band and a peak to shade the eyes. The only "imitation" is the flat top is the amount of cloth available. A piece of a circle of willow rod can be found to make it stand out still or a wire-mesh up to 14 inches or so.

Brighteners

Melbourne—When his truck caught fire on the highway, the driver put it a rush call to the fire department of two nearby towns to bring fire extinguishers. The firemen put out the blaze but discovered the goods their truck was hauling.

They found a load of 400 fire extinguishers.

Vincennes, Ind. — Fred Sutherland, 74, Monday was agested for the 13th time for intoxication.

"What do you think about the 13th?" asked Mayor William E. Bets.

"It's unlucky," answered Sutherland.

"I'll say it is—$10 and costs."

RICO COPPER

Authorized Capital 3,000,000 Shares—No Par Value

RICO COPPER MINES LIMITED, incorporated under the laws of the Province of British Columbia, has taken over 10 of the 14 claims comprising the claims of the famous "Lucky Four" Group, which created a sensation upon its discovery in 1915, owing to the reported size and values of the copper-gold deposits. Following this discovery, the property was acquired by Foley, Welsh & Stewart, one of the leading railway construction firms of that period. Since that time many prominent mining engineers and copper authorities visited the property and repeated efforts were made by some of the big operators to acquire control, but these efforts were consummated with the Foley, Welsh & Stewart interests.

It was not until 33 years after its discovery, upon the death of the heads of the noted firm and dissolution of the partnership, that Rico Copper Mines Limited secured the holdings from the executors. Seven years, by boring and sinking, Rico has expanded its holdings until the company now owns and controls over 6,000 acres, located along the mineralized contact zone for over 21,000 feet.

Confirming former reports, Henry L. Hill, M.E., examining the property for Rico on September, 1945, sampled three sections of one of the heavily mineralized zones on the property, which occurs at an elevation of 6,200 feet and is exposed for a length of several hundred feet, rising almost vertically over 200 feet, with a width of 40 to 60 feet at the base. Mr. Hill confined his sampling to the richest ore body, averaging 50 feet wide, and obtained the following values:

Ore Zone	Oz. Gold	Oz. Silver	% Copper	Value
A	0.07	2.14	8.61	$79.74
B	0.04	5.55	11.00	41.12
C	0.06	17.50	17.00	69.44
Average	0.11	8.33	12.05	$52.10

Value of the precious metals and copper shown separately were: gold, $3.85; silver, $6.08; copper, $42.17 per ton, a total of $52.10.

The location of Rico Copper Mine is unique. It lies high on the flanks of the Mt. Cheam Range, 80 miles east of Vancouver, British Columbia, and in the heart of a district noted for its agricultural products, its lumber output and its commercial fishing. It is situated next door to large manufacturing and transportation enterprises. The ports of Vancouver and New Westminster are only a few miles distant, and the Canadian National Railways line of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways runs the foot of the mountain range on the opposite side of the valley of the Fraser River and the Trans-Canada Highway parallel the railway lines.

Rico Copper Mines has an authorized capitalization of 3,000,000 shares, No Par Value. 1,250,000 shares have been placed in escrow with the Province Trust Company Limited by appointment of Brokers of the Province of British Columbia and the Securities Commission of the Province of Ontario. 1,735,000 shares have been sold under agreement to net the company $1,735,00 operating capital.

MARMORA

W.E. Edwards, Zone Forester, Gives Talk On Reforestation

Marmora — Reforestation and Farm Wood Lots was the subject of a convincing talk given to the Marmora District Chamber of Commerce at their dinner meeting at the Royal Hotel on Thursday by W. E. Edwards, zone forester for the conservation of Lennox-Addington, Frontenac and Hastings, resident at Napanee.

Unfortunately there was a small attendance to hear the speaker's enlightening remarks.

Introduced by Reeve C. H. Bushard of Deloro, Mr. Edwards declared that the increased interest being shown in conservation in general was a healthy sign. He then launched into problems affecting forest management, indicating that there was need of each township to co-operate within the district and not a certain number as at present.

While Pine, Slow Growth

He stressed the great value to the country of planned cutting, using the white pine as an illustration.

The growth of the white pine is slow for the first fifty years but in the next twenty its volume is increased five times.

Everybody can help by learning about the planting, cutting and taking care of wood, he said.

Another problem is that of pasturing. It is hard to find a wood lot in some districts that is not pastured and the periodical fires to some extent to the welfare of the trees.

The speaker instanced the care given to forests he had seen in Europe during the course of the war.

The final problem touched upon was that of land use. Some land used for pasture was not good for such because of shallow soil. Trees could be planted with advantage there, although he admitted it would be hard to do so in a dry season. A reforestation estimate had been that 5,000,000 acres should be planted with trees again.

C. of C. Could Aid

In conclusion he intimated that there were four ways in which the Chamber of Commerce could be serviceable in the matter of reforestation. First, the members could show a personal interest; secondly, they could use their influence for the education of free protected areas; thirdly, they could link up with an educational program; and lastly, stand for the Trees Conservation Act.

The speaker then showed a series of colored slides, some featuring the reforestation that had been carried out in Hastings county.

He was heartily thanked for his talk on motion of the secretary, Ralph E. Neal. President Alex Fraser who was in the chair, welcomed the gathering prior to the meeting breaking up and wound up with a keen discussion on industrial development.

Dude College

By Oren Arnold

For a long moment Ronica Bailey concentrated on the hole in her cabin window.

It was a bullet hole, unmistakably. Anyway, she had seen the sudden little spurts of flame from the men's guns. Five guns fired at her by five men she had found walking across the rocky cactus studded desert.

"What ev-er!" she murmured that to herself, subconsciously handling her controls to lift the powerful monoplane out of range.

Once more she looked downward. The five men had stopped shooting but they had begun to run like so many excited insects. She studied the landscape carefully, with glasses, and without. Nowhere was there house, road, windmill, any human sign save those five men.

She fumbled in a side pocket of her cabin and pulled out her own expensive pearl-handled pistol, gift from her dad. She could shoot it and shoot accurately, too, for she had a target range in her basement at home. On the other hand—

"That's foolish," she told herself now. "Whyever should I fight back at them?"

She reholstered the gun and accelerated her motor into a smooth powerful crescendo that lifted her skyward. As she levelled off, she made a big curve and streaked like a pigeon-racer for home. The ship responded to her slightest touch, moved with astonishing speed and ease; that was why she loved it.

But the wind still fingering at her through the bullet hole served to heighten her indignation too.

Who would dare shoot at a Bailey? Or, for that matter, who would dare shoot at any airplane in the United States of America? This country, wasn't at war! This country clung to freedom, and nobody tried, or otherwise had a right to shoot at a pleasure plane.

It did not occur to Ronica to be offended because the five men had shot at a girl. She didn't think of herself as a girl, she thought of herself as a citizen, an individual. And —the more she thought the angrier she became.

In no time at all the earth-carpet rolled under her to reveal a new pattern including the little town of Pueblo and its college, and eight miles to one side she could spot her father's new ranch. She shifted her direction, still mourning, gunned her ship downward, and edged off just enough to land easily on the broad mesa her father had caused to be marked as a private landing field. Her mechanic sensed trouble and before she touched earth and he came running.

"What happened, Miss Ronica? he demanded.

"The ship's fine, Barton. But—where's daddy?"

"In his pony's hammock. He's still saddle sore."

She went to him and told him what had occurred. Mr. Bailey refused to be excited.

"Probably strikers, and you scared off their game," he suggested. "Why don't you get a book and relax, daughter? Or study up your—"

"Oh, daddy, I can keep up with my studies at night !You wouldn't even care if—if Indians tried to scalp me! Would you, now?"

"I'd feel sorry for the Indians. Well—where are—?"

"I'm driving to Pueblo."

"Better report it to the sheriff," he called "just in case."

There wasn't any sheriff in Pueblo, she found. Not even a deputy. But there was a constable and a branch office at the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service. The constable sent her to the latter place, where she met Inspector Sheridan Starr.

"No doubt about it, Miss Bailey," Officer Starr, said earnestly, "they were aliens slipping in from Mexico. Now from your description of the country I think I can get right out there and—"

"I couldn't see any sign of a road," she declared.

"No. But I can drive to The Tanks, where we keep a few saddle horses. Faithful old Mexican in charge. Then I can ride horseback and maybe pick up the men's trail. Thanks again. I'll shove right off."

He started to his car, and when he had settled behind the steering wheel Ronica Bailey was beside him.

"Hey," he began, surprised, "you can't go along. What I meant was—"

"Hush," she smiled at him."I wouldn't miss it."

They argued briefly, and the man lost. Men always lost arguments with Ronica Bailey. The big officer, duly married and a father of two little boys was distinctly ill at ease with a college girl until Ronnie just out-talked him.

"Lordy, Miss!" Mr. Starr said, eventually. "I didn't know dude girls come like you, You—fact is, you remind me a lot of my wife. She's got spunk too. But see here: you have to mind me when we get to the horses."

"Oh, of course, Mr. Starr."

The ride out was almost an hour, and Ronnie had ample chance to get acquainted with the fine officer, a man who really knew it. Sheridan Starr was a big-shouldered, big-hatted type of officer who has known long service on the Border and he seemed to be familiar with every nook and cranny of this southwestern arid land. He told Ronnie a lot about her college. His conversation was rich in the lives of the region, spiced with adventure and interest, quite foreign to her New York background.

At The Tanks he strapped a rifle and holster on his saddle, filled his pistol cartridge belt, and again bade Ronnie goodby.

"If I'm not back by nightfall," said he "you take the car and go home, then send a man back to help me."

He hadn't ridden out of sight until Ronnie had a second horse under saddle—she wheedled the old Mexican man there—and was trailing Officer Starr. She realized he would never tolerate her close to him now, for here at hand was the country where she had been shot at by the five aliens. She marveled that he expected to make an arrest alone, wherefore she had to—simply had to—follow him and see whatever was to be seen. She lost just out of sight.

"Daddy will skin me for this," she told herself, and admitted that he ought to .

She pulled up when she saw Starr dismount behind mesquite brush, then creep to a ridge to peer over from a prone position. His rifle remained on his horse, but all at once she saw him unholster a pistol. She knew he had spotted the five men!

He circled briefly, then went out of sight. Ronnie crept up to the ridge herself. She saw nothing at-first, and she just lay there nursing a sense of excitement and guilt, wondering what her faculty adviser, Dr. Woodrow Wesley York, would have advised her to do. Poor Wesley York; he could be human, she'd bet, if given a chance. She would have to see that he—

"Allo!"

From somewhere off came that shout. Starr's voice.

"Allo! Manos arriba! Los federales aqui!"

He was yelling orders, and instantly she heard the answer—a shot!

"Oh!" gasped Ronnie Bailey, moving to where she could see the five aliens. "Oh! I don't even have a —"

She stared speelbound now. The shooting had increased. Officer Starr was just one man against five, and all around her New Mexico loomed broad and bare and ominous.

"Whe-e-euw!"

Andre Girardeau breathed that, then turned slowly down the arched corridor leading from the Pueblo U. administration building to the library. He went only a few feet before he halted, though felt that, for personal as well as professional reasons, he simply must have another and better look at the Mexican girl.

The bespectacled man was at her left, helping her to walk. With her right arm she handled her one crutch clumsily.

Andre decided her act was none too convincing. But he also decided that any sort of act was unimportant; what really impressed him was the appearance of this girl.

"Un-a-m-o-s!" Andre gave murmured tribute again, already sensing the pleasure when he should meet this girl.

He saw her perfection of teeth, lips almost too carmine, he noted the way her hair clung to her head in ringlets, swept low and backward.

He saw, too, that her initial touch of hautiness had faded when the bespectacled man came to escort her from her car; patently then, this lady responded to masculine attention. Without being sure, at least more than modest ally, he slipped on down the archways and out of her sight.

He walked along the shaded avenue toward his hotel. An irrigation canal there made a rippling rivulet, beautiful in reflecting the trees as well as giving them life. At a lovely rustic bridge he paused a moment to study his image in the quieter pool. He smiled at himself; he Andre Girardeau, should be able to enjoy this assignment, with a beautiful senorita and with Ronica Bailey both as protagonists in his little drama. He wasn't bad looking; not at all.

He adjusted his tie, whitled a little softly, meditativiely, and walked on. He reasoned next that he would have to set himself up in some dude ranch nearby to give outward excuse for his presence in and around Pueclo. The idea was distasteful, but he supposed he would have to ride a horse some in the western way, and no doubt listen to tall tales of Indian massacres and such. However, when he should form his contact with the Mexican girl boredom ought surely to vanish.

"It'g this goes smoothly I can net a quarter million or better and then skip out," he reminded himself. "With that much I can probably take my choice—ha! Maybe—maybe Mexico City itself wouldn't be so bad. As safe there as anywhere."

INVENTORS CLAIM TURBO-GAS JET TO BE SUPER-CAR

Engineers from all over the world gathered in England to see a demonstration by the Rover Car Co. of their new turbo gas jet car, called the "Whizzer." The car has no gears and runs on kerosene, and the company claims it will be cheaper and more powerful than any car now made. Mr. Wilkes (left), engineer, and Mr. Bell, (right), the designer of the car, stand by the side of the car which they claim has fewer things to go wrong with it or break than any existing car, no water to freeze, no vibration and almost complete silence, remarkable acceleration and very little oil needed for lubrication. The engine is four feet long and 18 inches wide, and 20 inches high and develops 100 horse-power. — Central Press Canadian.

Permanent Price-Support For Farm and Fish Products Planned by Government

Ottawa, March 15 (CP)—Further laws were taken by the government today to make price-support action for farm and fish products a permanent feature of the Canadian economy.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner placed on the Commons order paper notice that the government plans to perpetuate its $200,000,000 fund set aside to keep farm prices buoyant.

At the same time, Fisheries Minister Mayhew announced that he will introduce a bill to take the $25,000,000 Fisheries Price-Support Act out of the realm of Orders-in-Council and place it into the realm of Acts which can only be wiped out by parliamentary action.

Introduced by March 21

Both measures will be brought into the House before the current fiscal year ends March 31.

Thus, farm and fisheries price-support will be removed from the category of emergency legislation created as a wartime necessity. Both acts were passed in 1944. However, farm support was unnecessary until 1946 when world markets began to contract and some Canadian products, such as potatoes and apples, became hard-pressed for export outlets.

Since their adoption, the Acts have been renewed from year to year; fisheries price-support by order-in-council and farm support by parliamentary approval.

Revolving Fund

The Farm Price-Support Act incorporates a revolving fund—always maintained at $200,000,000. Money spent on farm support is taken from the fund and at the end of the fiscal year charged to the federal treasury which then reimburses the fund to keep it at the $200,000,000 level.

So far about $10,000,000 has been written off as losses since last under farm support and another $500,000 under the Fisheries Act.

Currently, the government is supporting the prices of eggs, cheese, bacon, butter and is being asked to grant price security to meat-coast potatoes and west coast apples.

A change in the support price of butter — now at 58 cents — is expected to be announced within the next few weeks.

MONETARY CRASH

Edmonton (CP) — Money rained on an Edmonton street on the other day. An automobile jumped a big curb, smashed a parking meter and continued down the street. Police salvaged $1.44 which was picked from the street by a vow of citizen.

Sick Young Lamb Travels by Plane Across Continent

Lethbridge, March 15 — (CP) —A Trans-Canada Air Lines plane took off Monday with a three-week-old lamb bound for eastern Canada and special medical treatment for a paralysis disease, rare among animals. It was th first time in the history of T.C.A. that a lamb was a passenger on one of its flights out of Lethbridge.

The lamb, from a farm in the Magrath district 20 miles south of here, flew to Guelph for treatment at the Dominion Experimental Station in Lethbridge. It was sent to the Ontario Veterinary College at Guelph.

A substantial part of a herd on the Magrath farm apparently is afflicted with the paralysis. Dominion animal husbandrymen are seeking a cure before the disease spreads.

Several officials of the experimental station said the paralysis is believed due to a feeding problem.

Guleph (CP)— Treatment began today on a three-week-old lamb flown from Lethbridge, Alta., for diagnosis of a rare type of paralysis."The lamb is part of a large flock affected with the disease.

Ontario Veterinary College officials said the disease is believed the result of copper deficiency in the animal's diet. They said the treatment is in the experimental stage but an alteration of the lamb's diet may bring about a cure.

O.V.C. officials and Dominion Animal Husbandrymen are working together to find a cure before the disease spreads.

HOUSE REJECTS ESTABLISHMENT OF DEFENCE COM.

Drew, Claxton Clash On Defence Matters

Ottawa, March 15 (CP)— The Commons, after witnessing a noisy, heated verbal battle between George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, and defence Minister Claxton, Tuesday night voted against establishment of a defence committee.

By a vote of 106 to 51, members rejected a Progressive Conservative motion calling for establishment of a committee to examine Canada's defence establishment and expenditures. But the vote, on the Drew Progressive Conservative, C.C.F. and Social Credit parties line-up in opposition against the government, came as an anti-climax.

The fireworks started after Mr. Claxton challenged a charge by Mr. Drew that the Defence Minister had deliberately attempted to mislead the House on defence matters.

Angry interjections were tossed back and forth across the floor while Speaker Ross Macdonald shouted for order. At the height of the disturbance, Trade Minister Howe reached over and extended a hand to keep the defence minister in his seat.

Mr. Drew said Mr. Claxton had misled Canadians by saying during a recent western tour that Canada soon would have the highest proportion of jet planes in the world.

Jumping to his feet, Mr. Claxton shouted he had said no such thing. He challenged Mr. Drew to produce the "exact report."

Dramatic Story of History's Worst Air Disaster Told by Two Survivors

St. Atan, Wales, March 15 — (AP)— The tense dramatic story of the worst trans-air disaster was told in simple words today by two of the three survivors.

The two, able to walk away from the crash of the Tudor V airliner which killed 80 persons Sunday, said the accident came so suddenly they still were bracing themselves for the shock after it was all over.

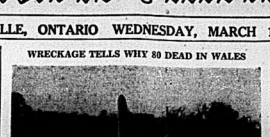
The other passengers "never knew what happened," one said.

They were interviewed today at the RAF station hospital here, where the third survivor still is on the danger list.

The two who were able to walk were Capt. Eric Moss, 36-year-old school teacher, and his brother-in-law, Harold Rogers, 33. Both are former RAF men.

"We were coming in for a normal landing and the air hostess told us to prepare to land," Anthony said. "We were sitting in the tail of the machine and we had gone there because we thought we would get a better view. All the passengers were quiet, strapped to their seats and there had been no singing or anything of that sort because they were listening to the radio.

"Some of them were picking out landmarks and were very happy to think they were arriving home safely.



"Everything was going along very smoothly when suddenly the plane took a steep upward climb, and a former colleague of the RAF I instinctively felt something was wrong and I braced myself against the seat.

"There was no warning. I saw earth and metal flying all around and I waited for a further crash, but I found we had already come to earth.

"I was deathly silence and then I heard my brother-in-law crawling towards me. He was bleeding from the head. We assisted each other out of the plane and saw the villagers coming toward us.

"We cried for help and were then taken to a farm.

"All the other passengers were hurled into the fore part of the plane and were all piled together but we did not hear a sound.

WRECKAGE TELLS WHY 80 DEAD IN WALES

This is the twisted wreckage of the British airliner which plunged into a low hill near Cardiff, Wales, reportedly killing 80 of the 83 persons on board, in the worst air disaster in history. The plane, carrying 78 passengers and a crew of five, had been chartered to carry sport fans from an international rugby match in Belfast, back to Llandough, Wales, across the bay from Cardiff. The plane, made by the Avro Aircraft Co., is built to carry 72 passengers on short flights. — Centraj Press Canadian.

2 Men Arrested, Cheque-Making Machines Seized

Stayner, March 15 (CP) — A tip from a suspicious grocer led to the arrest Tuesday of two men and seizure of machines for making out cheques.

Frank Greeley, 35, and Kenneth Johnston, 45, were charged with forgery and held in custody at nearby Barrie. A bag in the men's car contained two machines for making out cheques, blank cheque-books from eight cities, a date-stamping gadget and four telephone books, police said.

It also contained more than $25,000 in cheques already made out, stamped and signed for numerous Southern Ontario business firms, police said. Most were for $35 or $45.

The grocer, Walter Clemence, said he was suspicious when a man —identified by police as Greeley — asked him to cash a $20 cheque.

The cheque-books in the bag, police said, are for banks in Guelph, Galt, Kingston, Cornwall, Montreal, Barrie, Brockville and Belleville.

CAN'T STOP CURLING

Toronto, March 15. (CP)— A court today declared valid a will by which a married Hamilton salesman left a $16,000 secret estate to a former Edmonton nurse who died of a heart ailment following a knockout punch. Police said Kinard told them he struck her because he saw him struggling with a schoolmate.

quest to the former nurse was contested by the widow, Mrs. Anne Jane Reynolds, 62, and the daughters.

Mrs. Reynolds told the court she had "no suspicion" her late husband maintained a separate Toronto home from 1931 to 1940. She said it was not until after his death that his family found out about Miss MacDonald.

"I was always a happily married woman," Mrs. Reynolds testified. "I waited on him hand and foot. I saw no evidence of any change in our family relationship."

Miss MacDonald, a registered nurse and graduate of Edmonton General Hospital, testified that her parents' home in 1911 to come to Toronto and "live a part of every weekend with Reynolds."

Books are Called Serious Menace As Cold Carriers

London, March 15 —(AP)—The magazine Medical Press Tuesday whipped out a new culprit as a carrier of the common cold—books.

"Next to the pocket handkerchief," it said, "the book which we happen to be reading during the early stages of a cold is probably the most heavily-infected object in our environment.

"The book, in fact, deserves to be regarded as much more of a menace, for whereas our handkerchiefs in the course of laundering are usually boiled, any process or disinfection applied to a book will usually end in its destruction."

FORMER MAYOR TELLS OF DRINKING WITH BEST FRIEND

MacLean Takes Stand In His Own Defence

Sydney, N.S., March 15 — (CP) — Dan Jack MacLean told today of a five-hour drinking spree with Joseph MacKinnon, the man he is accused of murdering, and testified he can't remember what happened the night MacKinnon was killed.

MacLean, 58, and ruddy-faced, took the stand in his own defence in his trial on a murder charge. He pleaded innocent to murdering MacKinnon.

The former mayor told of drinking beer with MacKinnon, the city's registrar of voters, then driving o his summer home with its bottles of wine and brandy where the two men drank and talked and sang Gaelic.

"He fell asleep," he said. The next thing he remembers is being awakened at home by his wife who told him the police wanted him.

MacLean is accused of running down the 63-year-old cripple with his car in the early hours Dec. 18. Once MacLean broke down as he told of the last-day friendship with MacKinnon.

"It struck me pretty hard to think I'd be charged with the murder of the best friend I had in this world," he said.

MacLean was the only witness called by defence counsel Ross MacKinnon. The Halifax barrister and crown prosecutor Donald Finlayson will sum up the case this afternoon. It is expected to reach the Supreme Nova Scotia supreme court jury tomorrow.

Witnesses Heard Screams

Before MacLean took the stand, witnesses told of hearing screams and "Don't, don't" and seeing a car move back and forth towards a body lying in the alley in the south-end of Sydney. MacKinnon died shortly after his body was found in the alley.

Fifteen-year-old Jackie MacEachern, baby-sitting at a house near the alley, told of hearing a sound like the screaming of a cat.

He saw a man's feet lying beneath a car. As the car moved, the man's feet turned, the man rose and fell with the movement of the car.

Mrs. Matilda MacAskill, whose house adjoins the alley, told the jury of hearing a woman say, "Oh Jack, don't Jack," from the alley outside the bedroom window. She saw a man's head just in front of the car lights.

Saw Body in Alley

John McVicar, 15, in the MacAskill house at the time, said he saw a body lying in the alley. He saw the car back up. The body, he said, but he did not se it pass over it.

He memorized the licence number — 24-24 — and saw the car back out into the street. (Police have testified that licence was registered to MacLean.

Ronald Woodill, 17, testified he heard a man in the alley say to him "Help me, someone. Why did this have to happen to me?"

Seretse Khama Stays Until Babe Born Then Must Leave With Wife, Child

London, March 13 (AP)—Prime Minister Attlee took cognizance today of the stork and modified the ban-by-ministerial order of making Seretse Khama and his white bride, exiles from their African tribal kingdom.

Attlee said the tribal king might live in Britain "for the present" if the baby born to the couple is a boy.

But both Attlee and Patrick Gordon-Walker, a minister for commonwealth relations, stressed the government's five-year banishment order would be invoked after Seretse's wife had her baby. Then all three of them will be called on to leave.

The government, with its historically parliamentary majority of six seats, found itself in a tough spot. A storm of political, press and public criticism of the action burst loose. One or two non-white commonwealth countries expressed concern at a decision which they thought amounted to British acceptance of the color bar.

Finally Seretse's own people the Bamangwato tribe, turned to Britain by boycotting meetings called by Sir Evelyn Baring, British High Commissioner in South Africa.

Serowe, Bechuanaland, (Reuters)—The Bamangwato tribe—protesting against the British government's decision to exile its chief—designate, Seretse Khama, for five years—today started its "non-cooperation" policy.

They refuse' to distribute a government statement.

The tribe already had decided to pay no more taxes.

Today the district commissioner's office prepared mimeographed copies of the statement in parliament by Patrick Gordon-Walker, Secretary for Commonwealth Relations, on the banishing of Seretse. The official wanted them to be handed around to the tribesmen, but the headmen refused to accept them.

Sir Evelyn Baring, the British High Commissioner, had intended to read the statement " at a Kgotla (tribal council) Monday

Federal Steel Controls End March 31 -- Howe

Future Position Thought Satisfactory Says Minister

Ottawa, March 15 — (CP) — Trade Minister Howe today announced that federal steel controls will come to an end March 31.

Mr. Howe said in a statement that steel controller D. A. Jones will resign his post and return to private industry.

Termination of steel controls results from the trade department estimate that the world shortage in steel which became critical in 1946 now is at an end.

"The steel situation now is substantially improved," Mr. Howe said, "and while work stoppages in the United States are having a temporary adverse effect on the Canadian steel situation, the future position is considered satisfactory."

Compliments Director

Mr. Howe complimented Mr. Jones piloting of Canadian industry through a difficult period, "during which he displayed both capacity and ingenuity."

"It is largely through his efforts that the Canadian steel situation has been brought to a position where it no longer requires government control," Mr. Howe said.

Mr. Jones a native of Hamilton was on loan to the government by the Steel Company of Canada. He became deputy steel controller in February, 1949, and steel controller two months later.

The steel controller's office in the trade department will be disbanded, Steel officials and other superintending staff will be re-leased. Clerks and stenographers will be absorbed by other branches of the service.

Schoolboy Walking On Road Shoulder Fatally Injured

Kitchener, March 15 (CP) — Robert Woolfitt, 15, Lane, 7, of R.R. 1, Preston, was fatally injured today when struck by an automobile on the highway near here.

The boy was walking along the shoulder of the two-lane highway en route to school when hit.

The driver, Lawrence Bauman, of Percy Knowles of Galt, was proceeding towards Kitchener when the boy walking facing traffic, Waterloo County Provincial Police said.

DRUNK DRIVING PENALTIES WILL BE DOUBLED

Toronto, March 15 (CP)—Penalties for drunken driving in Ontario will be stiffened under an amendment to the Ontario Highway Traffic Act introduced Tuesday in the legislature.

The present act provides that a person convicted of driving while intoxicated may have his vehicle impounded and his licence suspended for three months for the first offence, six for the second and 12 for the third.

These suspension periods will be doubled under the amendment if the offence results in an accident in which anyone is injured or property damage.

Attorney-General Leslie MacKinnon Phillips (PC-Grey North) said the Provincial-Municipal contributory hospital care plan, free to indigent patients.

Indigent patients are responsibility of either or both the three levels of government should pay the contributions of these persons to non-profit contributory hospital plans such as the Blue Cross, Mr. Phillips said.

Maple syrup producers of the district, realizing that the annual sugar-bush "chore" say the stage is set for what should be a good run this year. Prices are expected to remain at the same level as last year. A Peterborough producer is already taking orders at $4.00 per gallon and 60 cents a pound for sugar.

Says Construction Of School Need Not Be Delayed

Action of city council Monday evening in refusing the request of the local board of education for issuance debentures to the amount of $293,190, need not seriously delay the construction of the proposed new school in the east end of the city.

That was the opinion expressed today by Mayor H. J. Allin who said there should be no necessity for delay in the construction of the building.

"In my opinion there need not be a delay of more than a week," he told Mr. Allin. "If the board of education sees fit to accept the lowest tender, I feel certain that council would be unanimous in their approval of debentures. I would even, operate to the extent of calling a special meeting of council."

Council turned down the request of the board of education for debentures on the grounds that the lowest tender had not been accepted by the board. The lowest tender was $23,641 below the tender accepted by the board.

Chicken Dinner Much Enjoyed By Kiwanians

It was sumptuous, it was delicious.

In these words can be summed up the feelings of the members of the Kiwanis Club and their wives, who spoke of the chicken dinner, so delightfully served by the members of the Ladies Aid of Massasauga United Church at Tobe's County Gardens on Tuesday night. Mrs. William Bateman, president of the association with Mrs. Morley Davies in charge of arrangements and during the evening the thanks of the club was ably expressed by Fred Thornbury to the ladies, who made the evening so enjoyable.

Roast chicken, cooked to a turn was served in abundance, and it was garnished with all the trimmings, including mashed potatoes and all kinds of salads and condition, relishes, homemade rolls, pie and cheese.

Everyone, including the whole 160 present, did ample justice to the good things provided. The program, that was announced by Taylor Franklin with Ted Schwab as Master of Ceremonies, was devoid of lengthy speeches, which usually bearly anticipate from the assembly. Harold Carruthers acted as song leader with Mrs. Ralph Biggs at the piano. Taylor Franklin gave a piano solo, Mark Vanzant sang a solo, Mrs. Ralph Biggs gave a trombone solo while Lorraine Mantle and Carolyn Fisher delighted with solos as also did Harold Carruthers, Leo B. Riggs (Master) and Mrs. Schwab at the piano solo. Hearty encores were given to each number.

The Kiwanis group, that has been so successful in raising money for the club by way of the "singing commercial" is now in form and gave three of their numbers dedicated to Rae Roblin, Ray Grant and Dr. Reg. Anderson, which literally pounded down the house. Mrs. Ron Keele was the winner of the door prize donated by Ken Schulman. The remainder of the evening was spent in bridge and euchre parties reported an excellent social evening.

Members Express Deep Concern Regarding Delay

Following council refusal Monday evening to give consent to the issuing of debentures for $293,190, members of the local Board of Education have expressed deep concern regarding the delay in proceeding with the public school proposed to be constructed in the east end of the city.

This was stated today by Enos David, chairman of the board, who stated they were greatly concerned regarding the inconvenience and sardsnip occasioned by temporary measures resulting from lack of classroom accommodation. He assured, however, that everything in the power of the Board was being done to minimize these hardships until such times as the new school was built.

Mr. David said, however, "that the Board do respect the motive, which prompted council to turn down the request for debentures. He wanted it known that the Board was exploring every reasonable possibility of reaching agreement and arrangements acceptable to the public school ratepayers and in the best interests of the community as a whole.

The chairman said that no developments in the matter were expected for the next few days, but assured that the public would be kept fully informed. The next regular meeting of the Board is scheduled for Friday evening of this week when in all probability the matter will be discussed.

Mr. David said he would not be attending the meeting as he was leaving the city this afternoon to attend the funeral of a relative in Cochrane.

Office TV Will Increase That Uneasy Feeling

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

Does the office inter-com or telephone give you an uneasy feeling that the boss is always right beside you? Or do you feel a little nervous when he makes a tour of office or plant?

Well, prepare to be more uneasy and more nervous. Partly soon he can come at you without warning, not only with biting or booming voice, but with gestures and grimaces—all at the flick of a switch. Worse than that, he can be looking over your shoulder without you even knowing it.

The answer is, of course, television. For that little package of all kinds of entertainment has only started to unveil its wonders.

There can be television hook-ups that would put the boss right on your desk or, if he didn't want to go to that personal shout, in a central screen by which he can speak to a group; this especially for large offices and plants, or those in another centre than head office.

Or there can be the reverse, where you look down the line without himself being seen and see just what's happening in any department on the premises.

Branch factory groups, salesmen, the various cities, or stockholders throughout the country can be gathered together, with all hands both seeing and hearing all that goes on. It might replace conventions to a degree or bring in those unable to attend the central get-together. Demonstrations can be given to scattered dealers.

The possibilities are virtually limitless and by no means visionary. Some of these things are being offered for sale in the United States right now. But perhaps you will prefer to play with the H-bomb.

This Flying Saucer Story Just 'Gag'

Greensboro, N.C., March 15—(AP) — Radio announcer Bob Jones Tuesday said he had just seen a flying saucer land in the street adjacent to the radio station. He told his audience that he had picked up a molten object on the street which apparently had been ejected from the flying saucer.

He estimated that more than 1,200 people had come to the street to see the hole and examine the small object he had picked up. He also estimated that radio station received 1,000 calls during his two-hour broadcast.

After the program, the announcer labelled the stunt "strictly a gag."

He said the hole in the street had been there for two weeks and was made by workmen fixing a water line. The object that he told his audience had come from the saucer was part of a desk.

'Sure and It's Plenty Rough' Says Irish Singer Seeing First Hockey Game

Few people in Memorial Arena recognized the tall handsome young Irishman with the blue of Killarney in his eyes and a touch of County Limerick in his brown wavy hair, as he watched the hockey game last night.

He was Thomas O'Brien, outstanding young Irish tenor, a star of radio, screen and television who is appearing in concert at St. Michael's Academy, Thursday evening.

He stood wide-eyed at times as the teams sped up and down the ice, For it was the first hockey game he has seen.

"Sure and it's plenty rough it can be," he smiled afterwards. "It reminds me of the Irish game of hurling, in which the players use sticks somewhat similar to those used in hockey."

It wasn't long before he was "rooting", "I picked the right team t least," he said. "I had to because I was with Mr. Al Meagher." He greatly enjoyed the game, and it would appear that hocky has won itself another fan.

Born in Limerick County, 27 years ago, Mr. O'Brien studied under the famous John McCormick. He has also studied under famous voice teachers in New York and Italy. It is his second trip to Canada where he has appeared in concert in Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa. He has appeared in the major cities in the eastern United States and at present is on a Canadian tour.

The young tenor has been acclaimed by music critics as one of the most promising young singers to be heard in a decade. He has the reputation of being one of the finest interpreters of Irish music and his programs include the early classics, operatic arias and some of the more beautiful Irish melodies such as "Danny Boy", "Mother Machree," "Macushla" and many others.

SERETSE KHAMA

but the headmen boycotted the meeting.

When A. Sillery, the resident commissioner, went to the Kgotla ground, normally a hive of activity, to say goodbye to tribal leaders today, he found nobody there.

A nearby mud hut where the tribe's "inner council" meets was locked. Sillery was told the headmen had gone home.

The tribal regency of Tshekedi Khama, Seretse's uncle, ended yesterday. Tshekedi now rests with the district commissioner.

Seretse's white wife, former London typist Ruth Williams, is following all radio news closely for some indication of her husband's return. He has been told he can be with her when their child is born this summer.

The British government maintains that it had to exclude Seretse from Bechuanaland to prevent "one of the most dynastic feuds ever seen." The tribe had been split when Seretse took a native wife by the "tribal lion" of his uncle, Tshedeed I Khama, and followers who went voluntarily into exile.

Protest Crown Removal

Toronto, March 15 — (CP) — Highways Minister Doucett has received a resolution from the Ontario Provincial Chapter of the Imperial Daughters of the Empire asking him not to remove the crown from the 1951 automobile licence plates. The resolution said removal of the crown could be interpreted as an indication of a weakening of British Commonwealth ties, the I.O.D.E. said.

Film on Liquor Problem Shown School Children

With the permission of the Board of Education, and the cooperation of the principals Belleville school children from Grade 7 up are at present seeing a film on alcohol education entitled "Liquid Love."

This film was brought to the city by Rev. D. C. McLelland, field secretary of the Ontario Temperance Federation. On Tuesday Queen Mary and Queen Alexandra Schools saw the film.

Today the Collegiate and Vocational schools, the remaining public schools and the Prince of Wales School will be visited.

H. & S. Assoc. to Attend

Tonight Mr. McLelland will speak to a special meeting of representatives of Home and School Associations. This meeting in the Collegiate, will see the Encyclopedia Brittanica film "Alcohol and the Human Body". A paper on the proposal to put more alcohol information in the school curriculum will be read by Mr. McLelland.

By this effort it is hoped that the general public will awaken to the problems caused by intemperance. Very few people know, for example, that last year in Ontario six school-age children were injured every day, or the average, in automobile accidents.

In Hastings district, which includes Belleville, number of accidents in 1949 rose 11.9 percent over 1948. Intemperance entered into many of these accidents. If this increase continues then it can be expected that an average of 45 accidents will occur in this district in each of the remaining months of 1950.

DISTRICT RECORD

District No. 8 (Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Frontenac and Prince Edward Counties) stood lowest of all the districts in Ontario in the rate of increase of highway accidents, 11.7 p.c. In this area there were 1,211 accidents in 1948 and 1353 in 1949.

Compared with this the figures of the whole province show an increase in accidents from 27,406 to 34,272, the all-province increase being 25.8 per cent.

In Hastings County there were 553 reported accidents last year as against 508 the year before. Prince Edward County reported 62 in 1948 and 92 in 1949.

TOLL OF THE HIGHWAYS AND ROADS

The great majority of accidents on the highways of Ontario in 1949 took place in daylight and on good roads under conditions of clear weather. Such facts place the responsibility on every motorist always to be on his guard for himself and for others' sake.

Pedestrians killed numbered 306 and 3,601 were injured. 18 bicyclists lost their lives. Drivers of cars killed numbered 214, passengers in cars 227, bicyclists 38 and persons in horse-drawn vehicles and others 11, motorcyclists 27, and motorcycle passengers 7.

Across the Province the four largest groups of accidents were, collision with other automobiles 20,297, of which 294 resulted in fatality, 4,108 accidents in collision with fixed objects formed the second-largest group, taking a toll of 83 lives, the third largest group being collision with pedestrians causing many deaths and injury to 3,331 persons. Non-collision accidents of cars totalled 3,314 and brought death to 90 persons and injury to 1,310.

One of the surprising facts is the large number of collisions with railway trains. There were 329 accidents of this type last year and 36 persons in automobiles were killed.

It is interesting that the most likely time for accident seemed to be between five and six o'clock in the evening with 2,695 accidents taking 47 lives and causing injury to 1,978. Actually however the greatest number of fatal accidents was between six and seven in the evening with 63 deaths and injury to 902. In the next hour in the evening, there were accidents with 61 fatalities and injuries to 912. From that time there was a shrinkage in the accident total until one and two in the morning. Still many serious crashes occurred from 11 to midnight, there being no fewer than 1,692 collisions with 50 fatalities and 608 cases of personal injury.

The total toll then rose after midnight. There were 3,725 accidents in the hour from midnight to one o'clock and of these 50 were fatal. It was not until after two and three o'clock in the morning that the toll of accidents fell off to a marked degree.

The day of the week last year when accidents were most likely to take place was Saturday which recorded a total of 5,413, of which 173 were fatal. 2,653 accidents of this class caused injuries.

Figures of accidents by groups of drivers prove interesting. 52,827 male drivers were involved and 2,835 females in the accidents recorded. 1,948 drivers under 18 years of age figured in the total of accidents. As to driving experience figures show that motorists with five years or over in accidents numbered 41,970. As to the driver's condition following are the facts, 483 were recorded as intoxicated, 156 as having physical defects, 299 were cases of extreme fatigue while 54,774 were normal.

1,163 unlicensed drivers were in accidents and the licensed drivers involved numbered 54,499.

Of the vehicles in accidents, 56,377 were in apparent good condition, 685 had defective brakes, and 361 defective steering gear. Glaring headlights were given as cause of accident in 30 cases. 106 had one or both lights out, 58 had tail lights obscured or out. Blow-outs were reported in 205 cases.

These are some of the many facts to be gathered from the tables of the Highways Department for last year and lessons can be drawn to impress motorists with the nature of the problems they have to face on the highways and roads.

UNCHANGEABLE

The garden catalog appears
With little change throughout the years.
I see, when e'er I run it through,
The simple flowers the mother knew.
This apothecary's apple bloom will be
Like that which decked her favorite tree.
The pictured hollyhocks recall
The ones beside her garden wall.
In this yea's catalog I view
Her larkspur blossoms just as blue,
And this spring's lilac bloom, the same
The self-same fragrance as of old.
Could she return, since customs change,
She'd come into a changed range.
Devices doing service
She tolled for hours with loving care.
Only the flowers would be the same
Old friends which she could call by name.
She'd find the mignonette this year
Like that she loved when she was here.
Tulips and daffodils she'd know
Still as they were so long ago.
And she would smile to see Sweet Peas.
The purple lilac near the door.

THE COAL I STOLE FOR ME FOLKS OLD MOTHER

If the man who was yard detective at the East River tugboat terminal 40 years ago will drop a postcard to my office, I'd like to present him with a pair of first-row front tickets for the show playing at my theatre.

What did the yard dick do to rate these front-row ducats? Well, it can't answer with a yes without sketching a bit of my bumptious background.

The year Senator Taft's pop became President, the Roses were living in a railroad flat on the lower East Side—four rooms in a row, each with a window that leaked cold climate. Our central heating system consisted of a spanish cook stove in the kitchen, and the cost of coal being what it was (15 cents a ton) it was seldom that the home fires were burning.

Most of the time I went around the house in long woolen underwear, stretched over my ears, but when it got so bluesky that even that didn't help, I would stick an old flour bag into my pants, ease my boy's line for size, and hit the big boat terminal south of Manhattan Bridge, as a part-time coal heaver, as I could carry from the piles used to fire the boilers of the tugs.

Then, as I filled my bag, I'd hit the ground and fast as all get out, so I usually got away clean as a slinker from the yard detective—an oyster faced little man whose idea of a good time was to catch two coal thieves at once and knock their heads together.

One murderously cold February, I was wearing a sack with choice chunks of anthracite when the dick sneaked up and caught me blackhanded.

"Don't ya know what happens to kids who steal coal?" he asked.

I could have told him they get warm, but decided not to.

"Don't tell me—let me guess," he went on. "Ya got a poor old mother and unless ya bring home some coal she'll catch her death of cold."

"How'd ya know?" I said.

"I also suppose yer old man hasn't worked in six months."

"It's been a long time," I said, "but he don't make much even when he does work."

"A dozen times a day I hear the same story," said the yard detective. "I know it like I know my name."

Suddenly, to my unbelief, he hauled off and kicked my coal and walked away "Don't let me catch you again," he called.

As I got to the gate he yelled, "Wait a minute," and scaled a silver dollar in my direction. Maybe he thi'l help out."

I picked up the buck, floated out of the yard and kept floating until I came to a vacant lot on Rivington Street where a bunch of my pals were making a snow man.

"Dig in, gang," I told them adlib.

"Nothing to it," I said.

We used two lumps for the eyes, a large chunk for the nose, a few stray stones for the mouth, and there was enough left over for a row of buttons down the front and a belt clear around the middle.

Then I said, "Let's call it Bessie. Well, there was a little cutie on Rivington Street who had never given me a tumble, but I was dared to buy her a hot chocolate at Slim's Greasepot.

"You meant you got money?" she said.

"If not only got for hot chocolate," I bragged, "but for movies and the Ice Follies, if you want."

"That would be peachy," said the little girl, flashing the kind of smile that in later years I had to give diamonds to see.

Well, dear folks, the nasty little secret I've been harboring for 40 years is that I'm not in love, it's been keeping me awake nights but—well, I'd feel a lot better if CRI to determine the effects.

In spiking tests, not only in CRI but to almost all drugs, it was found that only a few of the many available brands of "antihistamine" have a potent enough to be seriously considered.

Nearly all of the antihistamine drugs have the undesirable side-effect of producing sedation. Drowsiness—actually serves to limit their full employment. Among the potent of the CRI-productive drugs, one was evolved which differed from the others not only chemically but in its action which appeared to be stimulating rather than sedative.

A recent, closely controlled and impartial test of this drug has been reported covering 2300 cases of CRI. Of those who took the

King Leopold III Faces Toughest Decision of Life

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

One of the toughest decisions a man could face was that called on the throne of the little kingdom of the Belgians in Switzerland Tuesday by Belgian Premier Gaston Eyskens.

Sunday's plebiscite in Belgium showed 57.68 per cent of those who voted favored the return of power to his capital and resume his throne. Now, Eyskens wanted to know His Majesty's desire. There were two alternatives:

1. The King could signify a wish to accept this vote as a mandate from the people for him to return.

2. He could turn the tiny mayfority down as not enough to indicate in favor of Crown Prince Baudouin.

Many observers held that the second alternative was the logical one to choose. The majority was reported so to have advised the King at the outset of this fateful meeting.

A king must have the love and support of his people — not half, or three-quarters but all of them. Apparently 57.68 per cent of the voters isn't good enough by a long shot.

Strong Division

There are strong divisions in the Belgian population — political, racial, religious. If the country's constitutional monarchy is to be a success the King must be above these differences, in truth an emblem of unity.

Unhappily for all concerned Leopold has not succeeded into some situations which have made him also the subject of controversy.

The first of these vents was his surrender of the Belgian army to the invading Germans at the outbreak of the war and later becoming a prisoner. That was a terrible blow to his military pride and brought about the British disaster at Dunkerque.

Then came Leopold's second marriage while a prisoner of the Germans in his castle near Brussels. He married a commoner, Mlle. Mary Lilian Baels, daughter of a Flemish cabinet minister in 1941. She renounced the rank of Queen and took the title of Princess De Rethy.

Leopold's first wife was the beautiful Princess Astrid of Sweden. Widely beloved by the people, she was killed in a motor accident with the King in Switzerland.

Sunday's referendum, instead of deciding the issue, served to emphasize differences among the Belgian population regarding the ruler. Leopold has been in public a position where the wise decision seemed"abdication in favor of his son, Prince Baudouin, he was confident with the King in Switzerland.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

A UNIVERSAL LANGUAGE

There is a language of the heart that is universal language. And it is a language that even dumb beasts and birds often can understand. Ralph Waldo Emerson once wrote that "the heart hastily assumes of which reason knows nothing."

The material affairs of this life are not for the intellect, but not the heart. In a discussion of the arts of poetry, painting, music, and all else Blake is quoted as saying that "Imagination is the very essence in man of conversing with Paradise."

Who is there among us, who is a lover of these arts, who doesn't fluently converse with each one when in contact with any of them? I recall noting four small boys, with arms locked about one another, in the National Gallery of Art, in Washington, standing for a long time before a great master's painting, without uttering a word. There was a language being expressed, but it was a silent one.

Never have I listened to the violin playing Fritz Kreisler without feeling that those lones came from the heart as well as from the heart of his instrument. The speech of music and poetry is all nature and the heart, and if you will look at a tree in winter and form of a great masterpiece of painting you will soon feel the language that it expresses.

Without the beauty, the endearments, and the ever-changing refinement of this universal language of the heart, existence in this world of life, we would be poor indeed. It is essential that we should naturally feel it. I don't mean that we should. How small is our intellect, how dark and without an appreciation of them. Said Tolstoy, "Art is a great matter, and its task is enormous."

There is a musical rhythm to the wind, gentleness to the movement of the trees, and a voice of every color in nature—each a language-contact to the human heart. Never does a great human masterpiece, or a musical composition grow old! Each is an inheritance for the ages. Each time ever interpreting itself through the universal language of the heart.

Return to Sound Mental Discipline Aim of Education

Toronto, March 15 — (CP) — A return to sound mental discipline for the individual student is one aim of Ontario's proposed new educational system, Education Minister Porter said Monday night.

Instruction will be more flexible when changes he announced last fall are introduced, Mr. Porter told the board of trade.

In recent years, Ontario secondary schools had turned out students only capable of "reading and cheer at football games but couldn't write or spell properly.

The new system would make provision for the exceptionally bright pupil so he wouldn't be held back unnecessarily.

"We must guard against mass education becoming stereotyped. Students can also think for themselves are a bulwark against communism."

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE SCARLET LETTER

The year 1950 marks the one hundredth anniversary of the publication of The Scarlet Letter by Nathaniel Hawthorne. Perhaps the sage of a century has only confirmed the place of this book as one of the great American novels of nineteenth century fiction. The plot is concerned with great love and great hatred, enduring strength and intense weakness—qualities so central to human life that they always draw and hold us.

But in addition to being a powerful story of life and death in early America. The Scarlet Letter is a book of ideas and psychology. It shows us in a pagent of life and death the inevitable consequences of sin. A single deed but set in motion by the nature and ills effects and counterefrects are patiently traced. Like the ripples from a stone dropped in water, the results from the original act spread wider in all directions, engulfing the lives of those most nearly concerned, and slowly stirring, in one way or another, the community as a whole. To read The Scarlet Letter is to experience which no nature person should deny himself.

THE ANTIHISTAMINE DRUGS IN CRI

CRI stands for common respiratory infection, and of the diseases none is common called "cold". Until very recently, medical science seemed to be of little no avail either in the prevention or cure of this disease.

Allergy is a state of unusual individual susceptibility or sensitivity to certain substances—substances to which most other persons are not sensitive.

Histamine is a chemical substance found in all tissues of the body and in most plants. In the body, histamine is chemically bound to the tissues and inactive except when some action liberates the substance in sufficient quantity to produce specific effects. The actions which may liberate histamine are varied. Tissue injury and invasion by disease — causing microscopic agents — is two of them.

Histamine when liberated or injected into the body, has some effect on all cells with which it encounters. It is thought that histamine may play an important part in the tissue reaction involved in allergy. This concept is strengthened by the fact that drugs which neutralize or resist the effects of histamine serve to relieve the symptoms of allergy such as hay fever, hives and the like.

The idea that allergy is involved in the process of invasion by invading organisms (germs, bacteria, viruses) seems to be gaining credence. In other words this thought, drugs which resist the effects of histamine (called histamine drugs) have been used experimentally in various stages of CRI to determine their effects.

In spiking tests, not only in CRI but to almost all drugs, it was found that only a few of the many available brands of "antihistamine" have a potent enough to be seriously considered.

Nearly all of the antihistamine drugs have the undesirable side-effect of producing sedation. Drowsiness—actually serves to limit their full employment. Among the potent of the CRI-productive drugs, one was evolved which differed from the others not only chemically but in its action which appeared to be stimulating rather than sedative.

A recent, closely controlled and impartial test of this drug has been reported covering 2300 cases of CRI. Of those who took the

Failing Memory

Am 57 and subject to failing memory. What can be done for it? (J. R.).

Answer—Failing memory can be caused by hardening of the arteries of the brain. First, have a physician make a complete examination and institute whatever physical treatment may be necessary. Next, ask him to refer you to a physician whom he thinks may help you. The facts that you need additional aid.

Sea Food

Your article on sea food is confirmed. Anyone living near the sea or the masses of the population to great seafood find it a cost within their reach especially in the areas removed from the sea-side. (E. B.).

Answer — Canned sea food, Ed. There is a saying that storage is but a long time. Salted fish is another possibility. I see no other way in which inland areas can get sea food regularly.

Pelvic Examination

How often do you advise women to have a pelvic examination? (Mrs. T. H. A.)

Answer — A year for women who have children. If abnormalities are present, examinations should be more frequent. (Copyright 1950 by John F. Dill Co.).

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

WARSHIP SAILS WITHOUT POWDER

During the war, a big aircraft carrier was in a fight when an alarming discovery was made. Its vitally needed material was missing. The ship had sailed without it! Only a rush supply was delivered by air.

What was this material that a carrier couldn't do without? It was a special grade of Johns Manville Cellie — a vital ingredient in filler of powder that supplies a ship's boilers.

Johns-Manville research has made Cellie a really valuable product. You'll find it in writing paper, auto polish and plastics. It's a filler of phenolitilin and sulfa and as a high temperature insulation for H. Cellie can be used in your business. Write Johns-Manville, 199 Bay St., Toronto.

Trenton (Special) — At the annual business meeting of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce held at the Town Hall Monday night, Mr. Thomas L. McNeill was elected president, Mr. A. T. Cheesman was elected vice-president and Mr. L. Oliver, secretary treasurer.

Directors for the coming year will be: W. R. McLang; F. Parker; A. Sutherland; T. Gallacher; W. Brown; Lloyd Weese; W. T. Lawson; and Sq/Ldr. M. Holdham.

Plans for the hiring of a full-time manager for the Chamber of Commerce were discussed. A membership campaign is to be launched in the near future. It was felt that increased membership and perhaps a higher membership fee would help defray the extra expense of a full time manager.

Bay of Quinte W. I.

The Bay of Quinte Women's Institute held their March business meeting at the home of Mrs. R. Ketcheson, with excellent attendance.

The program, under the direction of Mrs. R. Woodland, included a debate, being resolved that "women can do men's work better than men can do women's work". Mrs. G. Palmer and Mrs. L. Hunt took the affirmative side against Mr. Albert Jones and Mr. Wm. Jeffery on the negative. The judges were: Mrs. C. Holmes, Mrs. Dudley and Mr. J. Reid. The March meeting was judged by points, showed the ladies the winners by a narrow margin.

Canadian-U.S. Pact May Prevent Manoeuvre News

Ottawa, March 15 — (CP) — Naval and Defence Department spokesmen said Tuesday that a Canadian-United States agreement covering joint military exercises may prevent daily news coverage of the largest post-war manoeuvres ever launched, started Monday in the Caribbean.

(In Washington it was disclosed that 5 commanders of U. S. units and the prime officers covering the joint Canadian-British-American exercises were reminded of the agreement's instructions labelled "restricted.")

The agreement, signed in 1947, provides that no press releases will be issued by either country on joint exercises without prior clearance by both participants.

Spokesmen here said they did not believe special arrangements had been made to expedite news coverage of the Caribbean manoeuvres such as were used successfully during the recent joint exercise "Sweetbriar" in Alaska and the Yukon.

Amusement Tax Increase Criticized By Sport Officials

Toronto, Mar. 15 (CP)—A suggestion that Ontario may extend its 20-per-cent amusement tax to amateur sport, criticized yesterday by sports executives.

Premier Frost said Monday in the legislature that the province may review its system of taxing possibly changing its interpretation of where to draw a line between professional and amateur attractions. At present, the amusement tax is collected on admissions to professional events.

George Painter, secretary of the Ontario Hockey Association, said extension of the tax would make league hockey impossible in many small towns. Most small-town hockey teams now operate at a loss, he said.

Otto Manake, of Kitchener, president of the Intercounty Baseball League, said application of the tax would probably lead senior clubs to raise admission prices to 60 cents from 50 and might force them to drop support of junior clubs.

The tax might make it difficult for some Ontario rugby football union clubs to carry on, said Harold Bailey O.R.F.U. president.

Said Sam Manson of Hamilton, a top man in the Hamilton senior football picture:

"It seems to me that this is the first way for this government of ours to make it difficult to keep sport on the map . . . It's something that would have to be carefully studied. They can go into this thing as low as juvenile leagues and they'll find players receiving trophies, windbreakers and things like that."

Record Revenues And Expenditures Forecast in PEI

(By The Canadian Press)

Record revenues and expenditures are forecast for Prince Edward Island during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1951.

Hon. Walter Darby, making his first speech as provincial treasurer Tuesday, predicted a surplus of $45,434. Its ordinance revenue over ordinary expenses for the coming year, the smallest surplus a provincial government has had to work on in years.

He said the difference between accumulated total expenditures and total revenue will be $1,631,066 after $425,945 is added to the sinking fund.

A large proportion of the province's revenues are derived from sources that may be reduced considerably in the near future, Mr. Darby said. But it was reasonably sure that no serious recession is likely to occur during the year with the large projected works program.

He said the rapidly-mounting public debt is disturbing but the province is still reasonably solvent.

In the New Brunswick legislature Hon. J. G. Boucher, provincial secretary-treasurer, introduced a bill to provide for refunding more than $14,000,000 worth of debentures. It received second reading on the ground of urgency and then was approved plate, fresh from the jungles of by the committee of the whole Africa, broke out, locked enHouse.

At Quebec, Provincial Treasurer Onesime Gagnon tabled record estimates of government expenditure totalling $200,614,850 for 1950-51.

The estimates indicated that the treasurer will announce record estimates of revenues for the province when he delivers his budget speech Thursday.

Estimates of expenditures for the year ending March 31 had been $176,497,660. The treasurer charged that all the rests of the year's financial operations.

In Saskatchewan, B. L. Korcinski, Liberal for Redberry, said the C.C.F. party policies are destroying rural Saskatchewan.

Speaking in the budget debate, he said socialistic legislation causing farmers to move to cities or out of the province entirely. In the last nine years, farm population has decreased by 100,000, he said.

In cities, labor bosses are forcing the worker to toe the C.C.F. line, he said. The C.C.F. is destroying rural Saskatchewan and "labor is helping them destroy the goose that laid the golden egg" because Saskatchewan cities only exist to serve farmers.

Filmland Morals Will be Aired At Meeting

Washington, March 15—(AP)—The United States Senate Commerce Committee set the stage today for an April 4 airing of Hollywood filmland morals.

Chairman Edwin C. Johnson (Dem.-Colo.), who erupted in the Senate Tuesday about the Ingrid Bergman-Roberto Rossellini romance, told a reporter the motion picture industry is going to be called on the carpet to explain why the morals of some of its stars aren't better.

"I'm not a prude or a puritan and I love good movies," Johnson said. "But it seems to me the industry is getting to the point where all an actor has to do is get arrested for something or get messed up in some immoral affair and stardom is guaranteed."

The Motion Picture Producers Association's first back in a statement saying that Hollywood has no more than its share of people who violate the moral code.

Johnson proposed crack-down legislation, the whole of every American actor and producer would have to be cleared by a commerce department bureau and a $10,000 permit obtained for interstate shipment of every motion picture.

Actors and producers could be denied licenses if they had been convicted six months earlier of admitted committing acts "constituting the essential elements of a crime involving moral turpitude."

Is Criticized

Tuesday night, the radio and television industries in the United States came in for some public criticism also. Chairman Wayne Coy of the Federal Communications Commission said in a Oklahoma speech it was time for them to clean house in the matter of crime programs and "every stable humor."

Johnson criticized what he called the "nauseating commercialism" of RKO after its release of the picture "Stromboli" about the time Miss Bergman gave birth to Rossellini's son. Bergman was the star, Rossellini the director.

Johnson later told a reporter that neither Miss Bergman, a native of Sweden, nor Rossellini, Italian movie director, will be welcome as witnesses at the committee's hearing when they are held a month hence. He said they had forfeited their right to return to the U.S.

Johnson said in the Senate that Miss Bergman had taken a "nose dive from the highest pinnacle of respectability during the reign of Edward VI,

Libel Writ Issued Against Socialist Weekly Tribune

London, March 15 — (Reuters) — Newspaper owner Lord Kemsley Tuesday issued a libel writ against the Socialist weekly Tribune for an article headed "Lower than Kemsley," a defence of War Minister John Strachey.

Strachey, who is responsible for tightening security measures following the conviction of scientist Klaus Fuchs for giving atom secrets to Russia, had been attacked in Lord Beaverbrook's London Evening Standard. The Standard story said he had 'never disavowed communism.'

The Tribune counter-attack, written by Michael Foot, Labor Member of Parliament, under the heading "Lower than Kemsley," called the Standard story "the foulest piece of journalism perpetrated in this country for many a long year."

In reply, Lord Kemsley issued his writ against the publishing firm responsible for the Tribune, against Foot, and against Jennie Lee, wife of Health Minister Aneurin Bevan. Miss Lee is a member of the editorial board of the paper.

State Planning Death Penalty For White Man

Mosciusko Miss. March 15 (AP) — The State of Mississippi, which rarely has executed a white man for killing a Negro, planned to seek the death penalty today for 25-year-old J. Windol Whitt.

Whitt and two other men are charged with murder in the massacre of three children Jan. 8 in the home of Negro tenant farmer Thomas Harris.

Whitt goes to trial today and the other two defendants follow in consecutive weeks. They are Leon Turner, 36, and Malcolm Whitt, 21, brother of Windol.

District Attorney Henry Rodgers said the death penalty —execution in the electric chair — would be asked in each case.

Rodgers described the shooting of Ruby Nell Harris, 4, and of Frankie Thurman, 12, and Mary Shandle, 8, as a vengeance slaying. The prosecutor said the three white men believed the Negro family turned them in on complaints of birglary and attempt to rape Harris' wife.

The trio was charged accordingly and placed in jail. Using a beer-can opener, the men escaped jail. Rodgers said they returned to the Harris home to take vengeance against the Negro family.

The state's 21 witnesses included Harris, 50, who is paralyzed from a bullet wound in the 13-year-old step-daughter, Verline Thurman, who is recovering from a bullet wound received at the same time.

Oldtimers here recalled there have been relatively few white men executed in Mississippi for killing Negroes. There was one case back in 1890, they recalled years, recently returned to this when a white storekeeper was hanged for killing a Negro.

Manitoba Loses 275 Acres Swamp Land to Ontario

Winnipeg, March 14 — (CP) — Manitoba will lose 275 acres swampy wooded land to Ontario through a boundary survey to Hudson Bay.

After 71 years the boundary line has finally been drawn and will be marked with concrete blocks this summer.

The point on the shore of Hudson Bay where the Manitoba - Ontario boundary should end was fixed astronomically in 1925. The surveyors' line ended only 15 feet west of the approximate point.

about Food ... What's Cooking?

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

If time is your most precious commodity, serve more shrimps. Although restaurateurs and others regard shrimps, along with crab meat and scallops, as glamor foods, they are actually the simplest and easiest dishes to prepare.

Certainly nothing could be simpler than boiling raw shrimps. You wash them, plunge them into boiling salted water for 10 minutes, and then peel them. To peel a shrimp requires less effort and planning than is needed to peel a potato.

Once shrimps have been boiled, they may be sauted in butter, dipped in batter and fried, combined with cream sauce or served in countless other ways. If you don't want to bother boiling shrimps, many fish dealers carry cooked fresh shrimps ready to eat, as well as canned or cooked frozen shrimps, which merely require thawing.

There is one caution which you should keep in mind. Don't overcook them. Like scallops they will quickly become tough and dry if kept too long on the fire. For a fast main dish, broil fresh shrimps and scallops. The peeled raw and placed under a moderate broiler flame no longer than five minutes.

Broiled Shrimps and Scallops Serves 4.

Remove shells from 3-4 pound raw shrimps. Remove vein running down back of shrimps. Wash. Wash 3-4 pound scallops. If scallops are large sea scallops, cut into 3-4 inch cubes. Small bay scallops needn't be cut.

Sprinkle shrimps and scallops with salt, celery salt and paprika. Place on a greased shallow pan. Douse liberally with melted butter or margarine.

Place pan under a moderate broiler flame. Broil 5 minutes turning seafood once to cook on both sides.

Melt 1-3 cup butter or margarine. Combine with juice of a quarter lemon and 1 tablespoon finely chopped chives. Serve butter sauce separately at table.

Make a quick cole slaw by combining 2 cups finely grated cabbage with 1-4 cup mayonnaise, 1 teaspoon horseradish, 1-2 teaspoon vinegar and 1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley. Add salt and pepper to taste.

WEDDINGS

UNDERWOOD — SULLIVAN

Christ Church, Belleville, was the scene of a pretty wedding on March 4th, at 3 p.m. when Margaret Myrtle, daughter of Mr. Daniel Sullivan, of Belleville, and the late Mrs. Sullivan, became the bride of John Edward Underwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Underwood, of Cobalt, Ontario. The Reverend R. Mann officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charming in her floor-length bridal gown of white taffeta, with lace bodice, headdress and boutonniere of white tulle and a quarter length veil of white illusion. She carried a crescent shaped bouquet of white carnations, tulips and hyacinths.

Miss Bertie Guttarrison attended the bride, wearing a mauve taffeta gown with matching cape and Dutch hat. She carried a small crescent bouquet of white carnations, tulips and hyacinths.

Mr. Earl Underwood, of Cobalt, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman.

The reception was held at the home of the bride, 167 Charles Street, where Mrs. Arthur Ames, cousin of the bride, received the guests.

Following the luncheon, which was served by Mrs. C. Hinkley; Mrs. W. Hunter; Mrs. W. Sullivan; Miss Irene Barlow; Miss Pat Ryan, and Miss June Underwood, the bride and bridegroom cut the wedding cake.

The toast was proposed by Mr. Arthur Ames, uncle of the bride, to which the bridegroom responded.

After the reception, the happy couple left for a short honeymoon in Ottawa; and upon their return they will reside in Toronto.

Previous to the marriage, the bride was the honored guest at a miscellaneous shower by Mrs. C. Hinkley, and the Misses Irene Barlow and Bertie Guttarrison.

O.E.S. No. 5 Sponsors Tea And Sale of Home Cooking

Into an atmosphere gay with the trappings of the patron saint of Auld Ireland, the many guests of the Order of the Eastern Star, Chapter No. 5, Belleville, were cordially received yesterday afternoon by the gracious reception tists, Worthy Matron Mrs. Getzs Baker, and Mrs. Robert Orne. Here, after paying the dues, required to the treasurers, Mrs. G. Cornish, and Mrs. M. Black, they were welcomed to partake of the delicious afternoon tea, by the gracious hostesses, Mrs. H. This ethereal piece of confectionery had been donated by Mrs. C. Brown, and was convened by Mrs. D. Stewart, who insisted that for the price of a small silver coin a ticket might be procured which might bear the lucky number permitting the holder to the sole possession of this delectable piece of culinary art.

Apron Booth

Near to this was the ornate apron booth, bearing on its table-top a wealth of green shamrock, and on its top aprons of every hue and color, size and shape. Some were made from the finest dimity with frilly, some were from pretty prints, with contrasting colors, and a fairy-like effect was obtained fashioned from fine figured white handkerchiefs, having a green satin ribbon for a waistband and ties. Over this popular booth presided Mrs. H. Pitts, Mrs. C. McMullen, with their assistants, Mrs. H. Bonter, Mrs. J. Moon, Mrs. A. Wilson, Mrs. A. Clarke, Mrs. R. Duffin, Mrs. W. Wannamaker, Mrs. W. Bean, Mrs. K. Juby, Mrs. M. Buck and Mrs. F. Westover.

At the home cooking table with its flounce of white and shamrock trim, were the conveners Mrs. W. Harrison and Mrs. R. Adams with their assistants, Mrs. A. Sager, Mrs. A. Evans, Mrs. F. Scott, Mrs. S. Westover, Mrs. L. Grey, Mrs. A. Fisher, Mrs. H. Whitehead, Mrs. S. MacDonald and Mrs. G. Brown, who attended to the sale of cookies, white cakes, buns, chocolate cakes and cakes with green icing in honor of the 17th, and the other mainstay, the delectable angel cake which was presided over by Mrs. Palmer, a shut-in for nearly three years.

It was decided to hold a home cooking sale on the market in the Easter season with Misdames Lent, Anderson, Garbutt and Bedell as a committee.

Club Activities

TEA TIME CLUB

The 6th club meeting of the year was recently held at the home of Pauline Cannons with ten members present. The roll call consisted of "A supper dessert", telling why the dessert would be a suitable one.

This was followed by the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting by Shirley Cannons and Joyce Storms. Collection received amounted to 60 cents.

Some notes were given by Betty on "Canned Vegetables," after which the girls repaired to the kitchen where Miss Lont made some delicious tea biscuits. The refreshments were served by Mrs. Cannons and Pauline.

A vote of thanks was extended the hostess for the delightful afternoon.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Margaret Adams.

MISSION BAND

2nd Thurlow — The first meeting of the Mission Band was recently held at S.S. 4 at 4 o'clock and was opened by the leader, Mrs. Archie Greatrix. Miss Clare was pianist.

The appointment of officers was held with Mrs. Greatrix in charge and the following officers were appointed: President, Doris Stapley; vice president, Patsy Thompson; secretary, Doris Thompson; treasurer, John Simmons; Press reporter, Margaret Thompson; World Friends secretary, Grant Leland; Temperance secretary, Ann Simmons; membership secretary, Barbara Howard.

The president, Doris Stapley, took charge of the program. Mrs. Greatrix read a story portraying what would have happened if Jesus had not come, there would not have been any churches, or hospitals, and no New Testament. A letter was read welcoming the Mission Band to the other 1,800 groups of boys and girls who make up the "Mission Bands."

Paris Evening Gown

By FRUNELLA WOOD

FROM PARIS comes this very pretty and young-making summer evening frock, a model of linen trimmed with eyelet embroidery, which is itself set off with Val lace and organza edging.

The natural color of the linen sets the scheme. The bodice is strapless, the skirt ankle length, and the bouffant is so huge as to be pannier-like in effect. Washable, all of it, but so really important that only a skilful dry cleaner handle it for some seasons.

Verses to memorize are from John 3-16.

Today's men.ory verse was "Enter into His gates with thanksgiving and into His courts with praise."

Collection amounting to 36 cents was taken by Grant Leland and was dedicated. Scripture reading was read by Myra Sanderson and story of a boy learning "The Lord's Prayer," was read.

RAWDON W.M.S.

Rawdon — The March meeting of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Womafs Missionary Society was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Will Potts. Despite the pouring rain, there were ten members, two visitors and three Baby Band children in attendance.

The service opened with quiet music and the president was in charge of the meeting. Owing to the unavoidable absence of the recording secretary, Mrs. Percy MacMullen, the minutes were read by Mrs. Frank Jeffs. She also acted as secretary pro-tem. The roll call was answered with a Bible thought beginning with "M".

The letter re presbyterial on March 30th at Trinity United Church, Napanee, was received but no definite appointment was made re delegates; however, it is hoped some will be able to attend.

It was suggested that the name of the Mission Circle secretary for the presbyterial be sent in as a nominee to hold office for one more year.

The supply secretary read a letter of thanks for bale and the money donated for overseas relief.

Prayer Leaflet Used

As the World Day of. Prayer service was cancelled because of road conditions, the leaflet was used as a devotional.

The theme was "Faith of Our Time" and the major portions of this service were prepared by Miss Michi Kawai, founder of Kelain Girls' School, Japan.

The president, Mrs. Roy Thrasher, presided over the "Adoration—Lifting Our Eyes To God" and the "Confession and Reconciliation—Searching Our Hearts."

Mrs. Ross Hoad took the part of "Examination — Looking at Ourselves" and read the meditations. The fiftieth year for the Ancient Hebrews was the jubilee year — a year of rejoicing and festivities. Can we strive to make this year of our Lord 1950, a year of jubilee for the world?

Mrs. Frank Jeffs presided over "Commitment— Dedicating Ourselves to God;" she read the meditation taken from one of Dr. Kawai's songs.

Prayers Given

In the intercession — "A Prayer for the families and for the children of the world" was prepared by Mrs. Frank Smith and read by Mrs. Will Potts.

Mrs. John Mulherron gave r prayer for the king and the lead• ers of the country. Mrs. John Holmes gave a prayer for the Christians of the world and for the missionaries in every land.

An interesting leaflet "What Your Money Does" was read and a special offering was gathered for the special work in this department.

The afternoon program was arranged by Mrs. Gordon Linn and opened with a missionary hymn. Mrs. Milford Weightman read a prayer on 'The Changeless Christ' Mrs. Blake Sharpe read a selection entitled "Sixty Minutes a Day." The regular offering amounting to $3.50 was received and dedicated.

The service closed with "The Day Thou Gavest Lord is Ended" and special Hebrew benediction.

The hostess served home-made candy.

Fashion Flashes

Steer clear of the pleated skirt, unless you are on the tallish side since this type of skirt which is usually of permanently pleated fabric, is very difficult to handle when it has to be shortened. If an alteration is possible, it is likely to be pretty expensive.

And what do we have now but snowy ermine dyed a deep violet shade! We saw it used for a figure-hugging cape-stole designed for Southern resort evening wear. And very attractive, too!

Back interest lends charm to many new hats. Pink straw is used for a flowing shape, a band of green velvet ribbon crushed around the crown. In back a big bustle of flowers in purple, pink and fuchsia.

An easy way of freshening up last year's gray, brown, navy or black suit is to treat it to a collar of white pique. The collar can be of the flyaway variety, it may have pointed ends or be a big sailor design, but it must be white and it should be pique to be right. Nice for sprucing up slim wool coat-dresses!

A good choice for going-ashore excursions for the Southern cruise continent, is the deftly tailored suit of linen, available in white, pastels and very smart black. Some suits have heavy Irish lace bands inset to shape a yoke, while others have embroidered touches. Many suits use big ocean pearl buttons as functional trimming.

A sensible notion for late Winter and early Spring wear is a little topper with reversible appeal—one side woolen, the other of fur. One such topper is of black Alaska seal, the wool side in a bold black and white bold-check.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Reducing Large Ankles

If there is one girl who will always put her right foot forward it is the lassie with ankles as slender as those of a deer. She will never economize on sheer, beautiful hosiery or shoes that are top-notch in style and appearance. She is envied by the poor dear whose calves and ankles have expanded beyond beauty limitations. But Plumple need not despair. Something can be done, if she will start a campaign for dream-lined pins and keep at it until she has achieved her objective. The prospect of shorter skirts should urge her to a state of activity along those lines.

If bulk is caused by adipose tissue, as is usually the case, the calisthenics can be sent into a state of dissolution by heavy massage and correct exercises. There will be no immediate presto-change; let her realize that fact. She's in for several months of effort if she is to shed her fat cells.

If bulk is due to heavy bone structure, not much can be done about it, though in that event the entire body framework is large and ankles are in proportion to the rest of her body. Make diagnosis. If you are one who would cultivate favorable contour, if you can pick up the thick and roll it between your fingers, you will be able to reduce the measurement considerably.

If you have the habit of shuffling around the house in loose, ill-shaped shoes that provide no support, you must stop it. Purchase a pair of sensible oxfords with flexible leather soles that will provide freedom of movement. Old shoes are not the dear old friends that some women fancy them to be. Extremely high heels are a menace, often destroying the fine, natural lines of the ankles.

Pointing the toes outward causes strain. The ankles are one way hinges, designed for a straightforward up-and-down movement. The reason high heels are deplored by foot specialists is that they cause a sideways movement for which the muscles are not adapted. Ankles are bound to thicken and the tendons of the feet are affected unfavorably.

Figure-molding salons there are sedative rooms for women who would reduce their lees. These machines are wonderfully efficient in the treatment of the fat and the thin, because they are normal in that they have a cycle, one it every day. If you have the time, turn your back on the world, lift your legs as high as you can, and pedal in the air, thus bringing every muscle pulling. Casual movements will not bring results. By associating street exercise, you will send fat cells into a state of dissolution.

Record fifteen cycles each day. Other name ankles a vigorous exercise. Thumb the flesh, pinch it, roll it,

NR Nature's Remedy

Smoother Skin

For a lovely complexion; wash your face every morning with warm water and soap. Then rinse with cold water, follow with an application of food-quality milk based.

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHAT appears to be a congenially acute skin may often be refined in texture by treatment begun at a reasonably early age. Young women, thus afflicted, should endeavor to correct the condition as enlarged pores are inclined to pick up atmospheric dust and that is, indeed, a kettle of beauty fish.

Cosmeticians compound special lotions, or astringents that often have a favorable effect. But it won't do to expect immediate preto-change miracles. Heat water, which is relaxing, should never be applied; use water that is warm enough to form a suds. Rinse with cold water, apply an astringent. Witch hazel will serve the purpose.

Tiny Glands

Ice friction is beneficial for its contrasting powers. The muscles around the tiny glands contract under the astringent, while the added applications and the blood streams become active. Some beautician believes that better circulation may be the source of the trouble.

It has been pretty definitely decided that diet has something to do with the condition. Heavy eaters usually have coarse skins. Fat foods excite the sebaceous glands that do the job, sending out so much of the oily fluid that the pores expand. If your complexion is not of fine texture, eat sparingly of fat meats, cream, butter, oily dressings and pastries. Every year we discover that diet affects hair, skin and finger nails, favorably or unfavorably.

A Change

Follow the foregoing suggestions, be faithful to the ice rubs and applications of a tonic and, within a few months, you are likely to be happily surprised at the change that has taken place. Don't expect results in a few weeks; it just will not happen.

During this period avoid oily lotions and creams. They will prevent the astringents from accomplishing their purpose. The powder you use should not be one that has an oily base and it should never be ground into the flesh with the pad.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Today's good hint for Good manners: "Your conversation," as has been wisely said, "is your thy account of yourself." Therefore both wife and husband should most carefully and appraisingly. Stop, look, listen to hear what your conversation must be about you!

Discourtesy of the wife who always says "miss," never "ours"

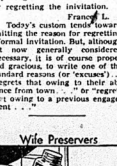
Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Here's the discussion which took place recently among a group of friends . I think it's a very interesting one , and we'd like to have your point of view about it. One girl, married refers to possessions jointly owned by her and her husband as "mine." When a suggestion was made by a person in the group that the term should be "ours" the girl became quite huffy and said that when her husband is in her presence she then refers to their possessions as "ours" but that when her husband is not present, she insists on calling all possessions mine." She says that her reason for this is that if she is in groups and refers to possessions as "ours" people would certainly misunderstand and would think that the articles was jointly owned by her and whoever was present. How do you think about this?

F. C. M.

The discovery of one wife who says "I" instead of "we" "my" or "mine" instead of "our" or "ours" is, alas, a very common example of bad manners. And true it is that the most unfortunate fact about this is that it is not only an unattractive slip of word-usage, but it is always a revelation of a woman's fundamental attitudes. That is, if she speaks in this careless, dominating way, it shows she thinks in the same way. The chances are that the wife who says "I" instead of "we" and "mine" instead of "ours" is a bossy-mannered wife who corrects her husband in public, or constantly interrupts him, or "reminds" him that she "has told the story before." This attitude of mind and manner is most unbecoming, to both wife and husband.

However, it is true that sometimes a wife says and does these things unconsciously, unwittingly, and when it is gently (but firmly) called to her attention, she changes at once to the charming habit of speaking and thinking 'inclusively' of her husband. She can, if she makes up her mind to, immediately change her habit of thinking by changing her habit of speaking. I believe (and hope) the wife of whom you write may do this, now that her discourteay has been called to her attention, the fact that she "seems quite upset" and so obviously grasped at such tedious, meaningless excuses might very well mean, psychologically, that for the first time she was realizing, although she wouldn't admit it, that her way of speaking was the way of charming, gracious manners. Believe me unless she's too stubborn and crass to be influenced, she will do some real thinking about this discussion of her discourteay words!



Not necessary to give reason for regretting formal invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When one "regrets" a formal invitation, is it absolutely necessary to give a reason or excuse for regretting the invitation.

Francis L.

Today's custom tends toward omitting the reason for regretting a formal invitation. But, although not now generally considered necessary, it is of course proper, and gracious, to write one of the usual "social excuses", i.e., "regrets that owing to their absence from town . . ." or "regrets that I owing to a previous engagement . . ."

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The conflict between family responsibilities and fairness to oneself is an insidious one. It is the rock on which many a person's happiness has been wrecked before it began. Unconscientious young people have given up marriage, careers and all sense of freedom because they felt their duty lay in caring for aged parents.

I have a letter from a very distressed woman whose happiness in a second marriage is being threatened by the claims of her super-sensitive conscience.

Her problem concerns an aged mother who lives with her sister well able to care for her. Previous to this remarriage, the ever-respondent also lived in the sister's house and felt a great deal of responsibility, financially and otherwise, for the household as well as her mother. She has decided to remarry the sister resents it and her mother is hurt. Both of them apparently felt that the woman's life belonged to them.

"Did I actually do wrong?" she asks. "I do not love my friend from my mother, and I either telephone every day or go to see her. I like her deeply, and I shall always love her; so much that there is an ache in my heart because I did wrong by leaving.

"I love my husband very much. We both love each other more than when we married. But he says that I am selfish on my mind, and that until it is cleared up, we cannot be entirely happy.

"I feel if my mother should leave us (which I hope will be a reported sooner or later) I may have broken her heart. She feels that I have left her cruel.

Now, right here, there is an inconsistency which this woman should recognize. She says that if the mother were to die, she might feel she died of a broken heart. Yet she admits herself that since her mother is old she must be prepared for her death almost any time. Since this is so, why does she feel she would be responsible when it comes?

If this mother has made her daughter feel she has let her down it is a completely distorted point of view born of the mother's selfishness.

What she wanted, of course, was to lean on this particular daughter for the rest of her life no matter how much such dependence might tap the daughter's strength, nor how it interfered with what she wanted to do.

Since the daughter is keeping in close touch with the mother and, as he says, still helping to support her, and since the mother is perfectly well cared for by the other sister, I cannot see that my correspondent owes her any further obligation. I am sure she is torturing herself, and upsetting her husband quite needlessly when she keeps brooding over the matter. She says that up until the time of her remarriage, she practically "dedicated my life to my mother and family and did practically everything at their disposal." Naturally such domination of a person by a parent and a family was bound to create a feeling of guilt if the too-close ties were broken.

Under all the circumstances, I cannot tell this women too strongly that she should feel no guilt whatever. She did the right thing in marrying again, and she should now concentrate on making the marriage a happy one for both herself and her husband. She has more than discharged her duty as a daughter and a sister.

Dude College

By Oren Arnold

He knew no particular fear. A conceited man seldom does, because conceit is but exaggerated confidence. Anyway, it was more pleasant to meditate on which of two lovely girls he should choose for permanent companionship as it simply did not occur to him that the Mexican Senorita might not care for him.

He purchased a sporty new car during the next hour, and with proper directions drove out a few miles to the expensive Rancho del Sol. There, as a business man from New York, he could be a typical dude guest, loafing the autumn weeks away. It would give him adequate front.

He tried to telephone Ronica and learned that she was not at her father's ranch. He tried the college, with no better results. It occurred to him then that she would be somewhere on the campus and so he drove back there.

Hearty young collegians seemed to be everywhere but he recognized none of them. Some of the co-eds were definitely interesting.

He asked a few if they knew where to find Ronica Bailey. They knew about her, but not where she was.

He kept looking for another glimpse of the Spanish girl, and while he did see several others of obvious Latin heritage, he did not see that particular one. He wished he had heard her name distinctly, somehow soon it would be his his move to approach her and make himself acquainted, but that would have to be handled with infinite tact, at least so far as public eyes were concerned. It must appear entirely natural, normal.

He did see the bespectacled young professor, striding across the main campus court with four books on his arm, but was not interested in that gentleman.

When he was back in his car, Andre drove in a filling station to be sure of his fuel supply, and there encountered a youth as talkative as he and is likely to be, especially out west.

"You hear the news?" the youth asked, between windshield swipes. "About the Pueblo girl?"

"I beg pardon?" Andre was democratic only by effort.

"Yep, College girl from right here at old Pueblo, by George! Plenty of the old nerve, mister, let me tell you. They say she didn't even take a gun out there, but when the right minute come she—Why how-de-do, Miss Montoya!"

A second car had driven up to the pump and Andre found himself instantly forgotten. He had paid his bill anyway, and his windshield hadn't really needed cleaning. He glanced out. Something about that name Montoya had caught his interest and now there she was again!

The same girl. First time he had seen her a bespectacled professor had jumped to help her. Now, obviously, he had a filling station lad enslaved.

"Yes sweet of you, Jimmee," she was saying, musically, "you come so quick to help me."

"Aw, I'm supposed to ma'am. Anyway I, well gee! Say, have you heard the news, Miz Montoya?"

"News, Jimmee?"

"Sure! One of your own Pueblo girls, Goah, maybe you know her! Her old man's the big airplane plane builder. Name of Bailey, ma'am."

"I have only coom here wan week myself, you know, Jimmee. But what is it, Jimmee—?"

"Aw, sure, that's right. Well this Miss Bailey, she was—"

Andre straining to hear, caught no more of it. A roadster piled high with collegians rolled up honking behind him and through their hilarity someone broke in to a college song. All he could do was drive out of their way.

Ronica Bailey felt the utter despair, born of terror, when danger is all around you and nothing is to be done.

She had slipped off her horse and crept forward afoot in sheer adventure spirit and curiosity. She lacked even the pearl-handled pistol that stayed in her place So, she couldn't flee and she couldn't fight, and a hundred yards off an American officer was battling with five desperate men. She peered out between two rocks.

Actually, she had a side view of the little battlefield. She could see that she must be a target for shooting.

"Oh-oh-oh!" It was almost a moan. "I wonder if he is — is dead?"

Terry began to replace the fear that assailed her, because those two men had been there not earlier in this day and she had done nothing to cause it. She decided that that she must go back for help.

Whatever had Mr. Starr meant, coming out here single-handed anyway? She crept back toward their horses. Her own had scattered near his.

When he got there she saw the stock of the rifle in Starr's saddle scabbard. She remembered he had worn two sidearms, but—

"Oh! Oh, my goodness!" Ronica Bailey murmured.

Then Ronica did a characteristic if foolhardy thing. She took the officer's gun, opened it part way to see that it was loaded, and started right back to the spot she had fled from.

Even before she got there she heard more shots.

"All right" she heard Starr yell, and was happy for it. "Come out of that with your hands up! Manos arriba!"

He mixed his commands in English and Spanish, but the tone not the actual words, told Ronica of his desperation. Somehow she knew he was bluffing, possibly hurt.

She crept to a huge boulder, then dropped to hands and knees and started crawling. She had the side view of the battlefield now, and by moving from rock to rock she came within 5 yards of the embattled men. Then she paused behind a rock about hip high.

"I can shoot from here!" she said it, and she was physically calmer than she imagined she could be. Muscles were tense. She lifted the rifle, rested on the boulder, and took a perfect, nerveless aim, a sharp bead right through the sights and onto the torso of a man dressed in dark shirt and levis. Only the poorest of shots could have missed.

"No! No-no!" she murmured that, too, not aloud, but to herself. Try as she would, Ronica Bailey could not fire shoot down any man!

All at once she shouted.

"Mr. Starr! I'm here! You men —you better do what he says!"

Her words sounded inadequate, silly, she realized. Muscles had begun to tremble, and now she was too utterly frightened to speak with anything like the threat and menace she had meant to put into her voice.

Instantly, somebody turned and shot at her.

She didn't try again to call out or aim closely. She just shot back.

The rifle thumped her shoulder. She sat back, astonished, and gazed at the thing before she thought to pump in a fresh shell. Quickly then she raised up and shot again.

All at once she heard voices calling, and while she didn't understand the words, she did know Starr. She peered over her rock again, and the three of the men, standing, arms high. They glanced first toward her and then toward Starr, who was coming forward now with both pistols drawn.

She saw him handcuff the men together, but when she heard him call out to her she was shaking too much to answer.

On the front porch of the Rocking R Ranch, Thomas C. Bailey sat staring fondly at his daughter. She had been home less than an hour, and the tan, strong-faced Border Patrol officer had done most of the talking so far.

"Well, I'll be eternally damned!" Mr. Bailey repeated himself often. "Ronnie, you'll get into trouble no matter where I put you. I had thought that out here—"

"Hold on, Mr. Bailey," Officer Starr interrupted, "if it hadn't been for her, I'd be a corpse, and no fooling! They thought I had help. I'm sorry, I shouldn't have let her go along, but she said she could show me the right place and—well she just kept insisting, and—"

"I know just how it is, Mr. Starr! I am her father, but I—"

Even Ronnie smiled then. "You'd have been a corpse," she said.

"No, ma'am," Starr resumed. "But I am here to say this—when ever you want anything from the U.S. Border Patrol—anything in the world miss—why you just whistle. And you, too, Mr. Bailey. As you know, we have a force of men guarding the line between the U.S. and Mexico to catch aliens slipping in and narcotic smuggling and any criminals we can. And if it hadn't been for Miss Ronnie here—"

"You say those were not Mexicans, Mr. Starr?" Bailey asked.

"No sir. Japanese. Hadn't expected that. We don't catch many here."

"And they weren't aliens, after all, but American born?"

"I know. They had proof of that. Fingerprint records, photos birth certificates, everything. All I can file against 'em is an unlawful weapon charge, and resisting an officer, and the rest are serious misunderstanding and mistaken identity and all to that even. But that don't make Miss Ronnie's help any less impor—"

"I know, I know, Mr. Starr. But—see here, what would five men be doing with in the desert that way?" Mr. Bailey's face was intent now. He looked closely at the officer.

"Said they were hunting."

"You—believe that?"

"Well, no sir. Nothing to hunt now. Especially with just pistols."

"Hm." Mr. Bailey meditated a moment. "Look here, Mr. Starr, you appear to be a level headed man. And you are a federal officer. I—Ronnie, call Fabian to bring out some refreshments eh? Ronica, slightly surprised, nevertheless got up to obey, Fabian, the Mexican cook, would be in the rear somewhere, she knew. When she was gone, Mr. Bailey spoke again to the Border Patrol man, but in low tone.

"Mr. Starr, do you know why I am out here? Besides my health I mean?"

"I have my ideas, sir. Nothing official yet, though—well, I know you manufacture bombing planes, and there's a new bomb sight, and—"

"Exactly Starr! Now sir—about those men, do you suspect what I suspect?"

Officer Starr nodded. Ronica was back on the porch.

Bailey Bridge Span For Thames Festival

London — (CP) — The biggest Bailey bridge ever built in Britain will carry hundreds of thousands of visitors across the River Thames to the 1951 Festival of Britain on London's south bank.

The bridge will be built by men of the 36th Engineer Regiment, Royal Engineers, Work is to begin in June and the engineers have been given until October to finish the job.

Only pedestrians will be allowed to use the bridge. To run from the top of the restaurant on the exhibition site to Charing Cross Station.

"The men will start training soon, for their task," said the regiment's adjutant. "They are a mixture of experienced bridge builders and fresh servicemen.

"The bridge will not be the usual hastily thrown-up operational bridge, but a finished effort. Practically the whole regiment, consisting of three squadrons with 120 men in each, will take part."

London Letter:

Street-Corner Boys Doing Acts of Violence for Profit

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Mar. 15—(CP)—London's "little terror"—street corner boys responsible for the city's latest crime wave—were discussed recently at a Scotland Yard conference.

Inspectors, superintendents and constables told assistant commissioner Ronald Howe, C.I.D. chief, that street-corner boys aged between 15 and 20 are committing "acts of maximum violence for the minimum of profit."

"They are not professional crooks," one inspector said. "They lack the skill of house-breakers and even the wile and guile of pickpockets. But one of these days one or more of these little terrors will be facing a murder charge."

He said he believed the little terrors' use knives more if they could get them. As they could not, they made blackjacks from lengths of rubber tubing, filled with lead, sawn-off gas pipes and even bicycle chains.

Many assaults made by the youths had been without any apparent motive.

The conference was told a gang of eight youths knocked down and kicked a young man walking with his fiance—but made no attempt to rob him.

When the gang was rounded up the leader was asked: "Why did you do it?" he replied: "If we go down a strange area with a girl we go in beaten up—so we do the same."

Several police officials criticized the "excessive leniency" of police courts dealing with such cases.

They contended that hooligans who inflict physical pain should themselves suffer physical pain instead of being treated in a "kid-glove" fashion by magistrates.

Most trouble-makers, it was said, were boys who already had appeared in juvenile courts and had been dealt with leniently.

Authorities agree probably the best way to meet the problem would be formation of more youths' clubs in London. Of the 54,000 youths between 15 and 18 years of age in the city, only about 30 per cent now belong to boys' clubs.

Many of the rest, seeking "adventure and excitement" try to get it by easy methods.

Age Will be Factor In Deciding Dog's Ownership

Coldwater, March 15 — (CP) — A story about a dog that was supposed to have come home after an absence of many years took a new turn Monday when Mr. and Mrs. John Silk of nearby Matachedash township, 15 miles east of Midland, surrendered a collie to Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Boyd of Tay township.

The Silks gave up the dog after arguing that the animal was their lost pet, Bruce, which disappeared during a snowstorm nine years ago. The Boyds were sure it was their dog, Brownie, three years old and missing since last Wednesday.

A veterinary will be called to establish the dog's age.

The Silks said they were sure the dog was theirs when he turned up Wednesday because he had a lip broken off a lower fang and was similar in other respects.

Pretty Nurses Start Drawing Lucky Tickets

Dublin, March 15 — (CP) — Pretty nurses started drawing lucky tickets in the 68th Irish Sweepstakes today that will entitle 1,118 holders to split a prize fund of $2,338,000.

As in the last Sweepstakes, 12 tickets were drawn from each of the 88 horses entered in the classic Grand National Steeplechase to be run at Aintree, England, March 25.

Promoters of the Sweepstakes — which yields millions for the benefit of Irish hospitals — announced the 12 holders of tickets on the winning horse each would receive £35,000 ($70,000 in United States funds and $77,500 in Canadian money.)

Second-place winners get £10,000 and third-place winners £5,000.

Holders of all of the 1,118 tickets to be drawn today are sure of winning at least the minimum of £180, which goes even to those holding tickets on horses that don't run.

Names of overseas ticket holders were not announced today although their non-de-plumes — identifying code words — were given.

The first horse drawn was Rowland Roy, a 50-to-1 shot in the Grand National Sweepstakes observers estimated that almost half of the 13 tickets drawn on Rowland Roy were sold in the United States.

On Rowland Roy, the first ticket drawn was HR 33446 Ever Amber. Second was VA 55228 Bouch, followed by VP 27147 Good Father.

Will Ask UK Govt. If Canada Gave Warning on Fuchs

London, March 15 — (CP) — The British government will be asked in the House of Commons whether it received any warning from the Canadian government about Dr. Klaus Fuchs when the Canadian Royal Commission on espionage was sitting in 1946.

The question will be put to Prime Minister Attlee Monday by Henry Strauss, Conservative member for Norwich South.

Fuchs, German-born British scientist, recently was sentenced to 14 years' imprisonment for betraying western atomic secrets to Russia.

There have been reports that United States authorities who first discovered that Fuchs was giving secrets to Russia received their first tip from the notebook of a Soviet agent who was investigated in connection with the Canadian spy ring.

Long Distance Phone Calls Will Be Simplified

Ottawa, March 15—(CP)—Making a long distance telephone call will be simplified under a program to be started by Bell Telephone Company of Canada next year.

At first, the streamlining procedure will affect only major Ontario and Quebec cities. Eventually, the company hopes to integrate its plan into a continentwide scheme of semi-automatic long distance call-making.

Arnold Groleau of Montreal, general facilities superintendent for Bell, outlined the plan Tuesday before the Board of Transport Commissioners as its hearing continued on the company's application for a 20-per-cent rate increase in Ontario and Quebec.

At present, he said, in placing a call between, say, Toronto and Montreal, two operators must participate. The Toronto operator must call the Montreal operator and tell her the number. She in turn dials it in Montreal.

Mr. Groleau said the program to be started in 1951 will eliminate the need for the second operator. The operator in the centre originating the call will be able to dial the number in another centre directly.

Mr. Groleau, in a detailed discussion of Bell's three-year $252,000,000 construction program, said the long-distance streamlining should be almost completed on a continent-wide scale by 1956.

Catch Up On Service

Striving to catch up with a backlog of requests for service, Bell would spend $83,200,000 this year alone on construction. It installed 300,000 new connections for manual to dial phones in such places as Ajax, Oshawa, Tecumseh, Amherstburg and London.

Dial telephone exchange would be established at Deep River to serve the National Research Council's atomic energy establishment. Bell would also spend $210,000 to move underground cables in Toronto because of the subway.

Some other construction jobs expected to start this year:

Kingston— $220,000 extension for central office dial equipment.

Niagara Falls—$425,000 building for conversion to dial phones.

St. Catharines—$131,000 extension for central office dial equipment.

Toronto—$4,000,000 administration building at University Ave.

Windsor, Ont.—$285,000 garage and work centre on Kildare Road.

Belleville— $359,000 new long distance switchboard.

Brantford—$248,000 for addition of equipment for 2,000 dial phones.

Hamilton — $503,000 for 6,000 additional dial phones.

Kitchener—$87,000 for increasing the size of long distance switchboard.

Electric Bulbs Do Men's Work

Pointe Du Bois, Man. — (CP) — A string of 1,406 light bulbs has taken the place of 10 men at the Winnipeg City Hydro power plant on the Winnipeg River.

The bulbs, suspended a few inches above the river, protect the spillways by keeping ice melted along the dam. They have the old-type carbon filament, instead of tungsten, so they produce more heat.

Originally the company employed men to break the ice constantly. Now the bulbs are merely inspected once a day.

Scientific Knowlege Provided Vital Links in Guay's Conviction

Quebec, March 15 —(CP) — Young technician with up-to-date scientific knowledge at their finger-tips, provided vital links in the chain of circumstantial evidence that convicted J. Albert Guay, small-time Quebec jeweller, of plotting and bringing about an air disaster to get rid of his wife.

During the 15-day trial which concluded Tuesday with a death sentence June 23 for the 32-year-old Quebecer, Crown authorities paraded 80 witnesses before the jury of 12 men.

Many of them, humble people from Lower Town Quebec City —the backyard of Guay's youth and his adult stamping ground— told of his married life with pretty Rita Guay and his treacherous two-year love affair with young waitress Marie-Ange Robitaille.

They described the impact on his wife's mother and sisters of the Sept. 9 air tragedy in which 26-year-old Rita Guay died with 22 others aboard a Canadian Pacific Airlines plane bound for Sept-Iles, down the north shore of the St. Lawrence River.

Prosecutor Noel Dorion also put in the witness box technicians able to declare to a jury that a scrap of aluminum bent this way or that meant that CP-CUA, the plane it came from, did not fall mechanically.

Frank Francis of Vancouver, 23-year-old chief of engineering services for Canadian Pacific Airlines, told the jury through an interpreter translating his words into French, that without doubt a luggage compartment explosion brought CP-CUA down on the mountainside.

Discarded Ideas

David Tennant, 34-year-old assistant director of engineering for Trans-Canada Airlines, was another who told of the possible sources of explosion connected with the operation of a DC-3 plane such as CP-CUA.

These possible explosion sources were high ozone fuel supply, high-pressure hydraulic system, batteries accidentally overcharging, alcohol de-icing supply and a fire-extinguishing tank with comparatively high pressure in it.

As did Francis and a third engineer, Frank Rousseau, a young aeronautical consultant, tennant flatly discarded the idea of a fatal blast due to any of these causes.

The supported their statements with discussions about the condition of pieces of wreckage brought to the courtroom, an elaborate series of photographs taken at the wreck scene and a blue-print showing the exact spot on the Sault au Cochon Mountain where every piece of wreckage was found.

Three Experts Called

The Crown also called as three experts on explosions —Prof. Lucien Gravel of Laval University, 25 year old Bernard Peclet of Provincial Medico-Legal Laboratories in Montreal, and Peclet's brother, Crown police analyst Franchere Pepin.

Gravel said it was a dynamite explosion in the luggage compartment that blew parts of the plane's left side away.

Peclet showed the jury photographic results of tests with a spectograph revealing traces of exploded dynamite and the dust of metal from a smashed alarm clock and a dry-cell battery.

Two metal slivers, not much bigger than pins, found in shreds of clothing blown from the plane into a tree top, were shown to the jury by Peclet.

Takes Two Weeks

He declared examination of the 1,000 bits of zinc were definite values to the size, voltage and make of the dry-cell battery that set off the dynamite in the luggage compartment.

It took the Crown two weeks to bring all its 80 witnesses before the jury as their testimony piled up into a heavy weight of evidence against Guay, he seemed to grow weary of it.

He wept when Dr. Jean-Marie Roussel, another medico-legal expert, listed in detail all the injuries suffered by Mrs. Guay in the plane wreck.

The jury was absent from the courtroom Tuesday only 17 minutes from the time Judge Albert Sevigny concluded his three-hour address to them before returned with their guilty verdict.

Thompson, Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act director, said Tuesday "There should be a law prohibiting farmers from driving tractors faster than 2½ miles an hour while tilling soil. Judgments Given Against Ascap In United States

New York March 15 (AP) — Two anti-trust judgments against "Ascap" — the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers—have limited its music licensing practices and forced changes in its organizational setup.

The decrees were signed in Federal Court Tuesday, with Ascap agreeing to terms drawn by the anti-Trust division of the United States Justice Department.

Ascap, functioning as a pool of music writers and publishers, grants performing rights and collects royalties for almost all the copyrighted music in the U.S.

Canada apparently will not be affected by the U. S. action. In Toronto, S. Lee, general manager of the Composers, Authors and Publishers Association of Canada, Limited, said he could not comment fully until he studied the decrees but that his "understanding is that in as far as Canada is concerned, we are not involved in any way with the result of such a judgment."

Do Not Apply

(Low noted that Canadian Ascap members do not apply to copyright as the U.S. anti-trust laws.

The U.S. decrees will have a wide effect on both foreign and domestic broadcasts, but mostly in a financial way.

The main provisions of the decrees will do this:

1. Force ASCAP to cut all ties with international organizations that might lead to a monopoly of foreign music in the U.S.

2. Make ASCAP end all arrangements giving it sole control of a foreign country's music, or which require similar foreign societies to deal with ASCAP.

3. Require ASCAP to offer radio broadcasters television stations a single licence to cover all performances of music in a film or telecast.

4. Prevent ASCAP from suing broadcasters (theatre owners) for royalties.

5. Give any commercial user of music the opportunity to have royalty rates a court review of them.

6. Allow any of ASCAP's 2,500 members to licence his music independently or to resign from the society at any time.

Thief Sends Back Pool Ticket Left In Stolen Coat

Blackpool, England, March 15 — (Reuters) — Absent-minded Martin Gerrard ended a spell of bad luck at all towards the man who stole his coat recently. Gerrard said:

Richer by $33,000 from a football pool, he explained that the winning entry coupon was in a pocket of his coat. He forgot to mail it before going to the hotel. Then he found the coat gone.

The thoughtful thief posted it. "He's not such a bad fellow," Grewer remarked forgivingly.

Claims He Was Beaten Up, Painted Red, Roasted in Nude In Oven 8 Minutes by 5 Men

Montreal, March 15 — (CP) — A 43-year-old father of seven children charged today he was beaten up, painted red and then roasted in the nude by five men who stuffed him into a bake oven Charles Edouard Roy swore out warrants Tuesday for the arrest of five persons who allegedly beat and tortured him Monday. Det.-Capt. Bill Fitzpatrick, Chief of Montreal's Homicide Squad, said four persons had been arrested and a fifth is sought.

Displaying a black eye and walking with a limp, Roy said he had been beaten, covered with red metallic paint after his clothes had been removed, and then tossed into a 180-degrees 10-by-six-foot bake oven.

He said he was kept captive there for eight months.

Roy said he was lured to a St. James Street building and tortured by five employees of the concern which operates in the building. The attacks, he added, was carried out by the five on orders of their boss who had accused Roy of interfering in the boss's home life.

"There is no truth to that accusation," said Roy.

Roy's brother, Alphonse, is employed by the company in whose quarters the attack allegedly occurred.

Roy told police, and Alphonse confirmed this, that he then was placed in the heat chamber but he had not been as badly beaten up as Roy.

Alphonse told police he had been forced to watch the scene in the nude and the intense heat which unnerved him. When he regained conciousness he was lying half in and halt out of the heat room.

Detectives told The Canadian Press that Roy was being subjected to a medical examination which proved "beyond a doubt" that he had been subjected to severe abuse."

He told police that he had been accused of making telephone calls which were alleged to have caused a rift between one of his attackers and the latter's wife. He denied knowledge of any such calls.

Million Dollar Fire Destroys R.C.A.F. Hangar

London, Ont., March 15 (CP) —Damage unofficially estimated at $7,000,000 was caused by a spectacular fire which raged through an RCAF hangar at nearby Crumlin airport Tuesday night.

Destroyed were a mobile radar station, other radar equipment and 15 motor vehicles. No aircraft were in the building and no one was injured, though one airman was overcome by smoke.

Built of steel and wood, the wartime hangar was occupied by No. 9420 squadron of the RCAF permanent force. A nearby hangar housing several planes of No. 420 City of London fighter squadron (reserve) was saved by a strong southwest wind which whipped the flames away from it toward the open runway.

Air force fire crews, assisted by crews from the London fire department, confined the blaze to the one hangar but officials said it was impossible to save any equipment when the first alarm was given.

The radar equipment was contained in eight trucks, also destroyed were a passenger bus, two other trucks, two automobiles and smaller vehicles, and an $11,000 private plane owned by the Department of. Transport.

Fred Reid, a civilian employed by the government, drove a large bulldozer out of the flaming hangar before the roof collapsed. It was the only thing saved.

Alarm was turned in by Cpl. Norman Haight. A civilian living in the emergency shelter at the airport, John Evans, 43, collapsed while helping to fight the fire and was taken to hospital. His condition was not serious, authorities said.

Child Actress Flees Home Of Foster-Parents, Says Starved So as to Play Little Girl Roles

Hollywood, March 15 (AP) — Lora Lee Michel, nine-year-old child movie actress, ran away from her foster parents' home Monday night and authorities said she reiterated a complaint that she was being starved so that she could play little girl roles.

The sheriff's office reported that the girl fled in her pyjamas shortly after Mrs. Lorraine Michel, 35, her foster mother, had left her saying her bedtime prayers.

She was found by Rev. Elford Sundstrum, pastor of the United Brethren Church, in nearby Burbank. The minister told police that Lora Lee arrived at his house in a taxicab. He quoted her as saying:

"I had to get away. I couldn't stand it any longer."

The minister then told police that the child said she was hungry and had lost 10 pounds in the last month.

At a custody hearing Feb. 8, a judge had advised the Michels to take the girl out of the movies so that she might enjoy a normal childhood. The foster parents agreed but recently Lora Lee was reported back at her movie job. Earlier Judge A. A. Scott said that Mrs. Lena Brunson, the child's real mother, had no right to the child and that the Michels' adoption process in 1945 was legal.

The custody fight started last Jan. 12 when Lora Lee was removed from the Michel home by authorities. The child had complained that her foster parents made her diet so that she could play $100-a-day movie roles. An officer said then that the child weighed only 45 pounds and complained she was hungry all the time. The child also was quoted as saying she was whipped because she once gained a pound. The charges were denied by Mrs. Michel, who is free on bail pending a hearing March 21.

HOUSE REJECTS

Mr. Drew began reading an editorial which he said appeared in the Calgary Herald on the subject, but Mr. Claxton again called for production of the actual report. At this point the minister and Mr. Drew went both trying to make themselves heard at the same time.

Appeals to Speaker

Mr. Claxton appealed to the Speaker and called for a withdrawal of the statement that he had misled the House. Mr. Drew declined to withdraw.

Speaker Macdonald said he would not ask for a withdrawal as long as Mr. Drew was not saying that the minister had attempted to mislead the House deliberately.

The clash occurred after more than a half-dozen opposition members had rejected the defence-committee motion, sponsored by Major-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C. (PC-Nanaimo), a veteran of two world wars.

The motion was in the form of an amendment to a government proposal that the House go into committee of supply to study estimates of various departments.

In rejecting the requests for a committee for about the fourth session in succession, Mr. Claxton said he believed he could say without fear of contradiction that "never in peace-time history has this House been given more information about defence matters."

He said that at the opening of the last session of Parliament, when the statements brought down, he tabled a white paper on defence and made an extensive statement. There was ample opportunity then for the opposition members to ask questions, but they did not.

It was perfectly clear, he said, that the opposition wanted a committee to deal with defence matters which would have the same character and same power as a committee of the Senate of the United States Congress.

If a Canadian committee had anything like the powers of the U.S. Senate committee that would defeat our kind of government.

The cabinet constituted a committee of Parliament responsible to the King's advisers.

Blatant Evasion Claim

Mr. Drew said that when the minister suggested the establishment of a defence committee would represent a breach of the Canadian constitution. He was making a "most blatant evasion." It it was unconstitutional for parliament to have a committee on defence then all other parliamentary committees were unconstitutional.

Mr. Drew said the government was asking for a total of $618,000,000 for defence expenditures. It was most unfortunate" that the minister should "so underestimate the intelligence of the people of Canada and the House of Commons" as to suggest that the chamber, by ordinary procedure, could tell how the money was to be spent.

Mr. Drew and Mr. Claxton clashed on the question of whether U. K. chiefs of staff appeared before a British committee on defence, Mr. Claxton said they had not. Mr. Drew said the chief of staff of the ministry of defence and the director of planning had appeared.

"That," said Mr. Drew, "is the kind of thing that makes it utterly impossible for members of this House to have any confidence in the minister."

Mr. Claxton touched only lightly on various defence questions raised during the debate. He said he hoped to make a comprehensive statement Friday if his estimates are called for discussion.

He disclosed that 1950-51 expenditures for the navy are 22 per cent higher than those for the current year. Most of the money would be spent in providing the navy with ships capable of coping with any submarine on the seas.

No New Types

He stated that unemployment had not caused a large influx of men into the armed forces. He told of improvements planned for the R.C.A.F. in the way of new jet fighters and said the government had decided against purchasing a new type of air transport from the U.S. because it felt Canada could not afford the aircraft at this time.

In moving his motion, Gen. Pearkes said that public "concern and anxiety" about Canadian defence centred into the ranks of senior officials of the forces themselves.

There had been a "radical" change in naval policy and "in naval quarters there is much questioning as to whether our navy is following the right lines at the present time." He asked for information on the type of ships Canada planned to keep pace with submarine developments.

It was questionable whether balance had been achieved between the army and the R.C.A.F. The recent Exercise Sweetbriar had indicated that Canada lacked sufficient transport planes to carry a battalion.

Senior officers were concerned over whether money is being saved on the R.C.A.F. "at the expense of safety."

All forces, he said, were "far below necessary standards of equipment" that would be necessary to fight a global war.

Mr. McIlraith entered the debate briefly to deny a statement (Montreal Gazette) report that Liberal members had met with officials of the crown-owned Canadian Commercial Corporation to discuss the handing of defence contracts on a patronage basis.

He said he had convened a study club of Liberal members of the Commons. They met regularly and discussed subjects connected with the organization of the trade department, such as emergency import controls, organization and the economic research and development branch.

Claxton Denies Charges

Last week, the subject matter of maladministration. The investigation of the constable's charges had cost the provinces more than $12,500.

Wants Act Amended

He said the government might have taken the opportunity of the Throne Speech to forecast amendments to the Charitable Gifts Act, removing retroactive clauses. The Act was an issue in the recent by-election in Leeds but H. A. Reynolds, successful Progressive Conservative candidate had been elected there "despite, not because of the Charitable Gifts Act."

The bill requires charitable foundations such as the Atkinson Foundation, owners of the Toronto Daily Star and the Star Weekly, to dispose of all but 10 per cent of their interest in any business.

Mr. Easton said Japanese dress shirts were being sold in Toronto and Montreal for $1.19. This unfair competition" was possible because of exploitation of Japanese workers, some of whom made only 35 cents a day, he said. The imports "sound the death knell of the shirt industry in Canada."

Mr. Murdoch asked for marketing schemes for all agricultural products.

Survival of Fittest

"Without control or direction farm products are dumped on the speculative supply-and-demand market followed by a ruinous return to that old system of survival of the fittest," he said.

The farmer was faced with competition from "gentlemen farmers", cheap Mexican labor in the United States and low-priced European farm labor.

Earlier Premier Frost withheld a section of a bill amending the Public Services Act when opposition leaders contended it discriminated against women.

The section of the bill provided that where an employee of the Ontario government is retired or dies before he is entitled to an old-age annuity, his widow and children are entitled to twice the amount he paid into the fund at three per cent interest.

C.C.F. Leader E. B. Jolliffe and Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver said this provision discriminated against women employees who might want to provide for an invalid husband. It also discriminated against other relatives dependent on the employee but not mentioned in the bill.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Well, that's that. The Belleville District Hockey League finished in a blaze of puck glory last night in Memorial Arena when the CNR Diesels, which appeared to be a well-beaten team at the end of the second period, suddenly found the best form of the season and ripped home five goals to one return to cop the victory and and the Ontario Intelligencer Trophy emblematic of the league championship. It's the second title in a row for the Trainmen. Just what was the second title in a row for the Trainmen. Just what Manager Carson injected into his troops between the second and third periods, is not known. Maybe Northern should have demanded a saliva test. But the warborne of the squad, the Gayer brothers, Tim Williams, and the rest of the silver-haired and abetted most admirably (listening, Chief!) by the sterling efforts of Myles Lefort, suddenly flashed into concerted offensive action that more or less swept the victory-bound Electrics off their feet, so to speak.

It looked like a fifth game at the end of the second period. Diesels had grabbed a 2-0 lead at the end of the first heat, and then the Barrett-led Electrics swept into action. Diesels were discombined it seemed by the fury of the planters offensive. They ripped home three goals to take a 5-3 lead — and the boys in the back room who had the long green on the planters were figuring the odds. Maybe they planter fans were more or less aghast. Diesels were flaming. Fifty seconds later Dorg Bastello put them in front to stay. Bemark's goal. Then Northern's shell is up from the trusty weapon of Barrett. But the planters fans' joy was shortlived. Two seconds later L. Gayer rammed home his fourth goal to give the Diesels a 7-6 lead. Less than three minutes to go. Northern fought desperately, and with less than a minute to go, Williams' smoke, it backfired. Williams' rink-length shot trickled into the corner of the vacant Northern net, and sleepy-eyed Captain was rung down on the 1943-44 district hockey drama.

It was a fitting finish to a fast and furious battle. The fortunes of hockey battle did not rest with Northern. They had an edge in territorial play especially in the second period when Northern Ketter stood alone between them and three or four goals. But they could not click — and that's hockey. We salute two grand teams and in passing, we might add, that had some of the old fire, spirit and battle that was evident last night, been injected into some of the Diesel-Electric Senior "B" Squad's efforts, as well, heh, who knows. It was just a passing thought.

Aylmer to Build Memorial Centre In Near Future

(By The Canadian Press)

At Aylmer, Ont., operation "knife-and-fork" was completed Tuesday night as the drive for funds for the proposed East Elgin Memorial Centre got underway.

Fifty-two Aylmer and district men paid $100 each for turkey dinners donated and served by men and women of Trinity Anglican Church.

Brainchild of Clifford Lamb, chairman of the building committee, the dinner brought in $5,200 as the first actual cash toward the $125,000 objective for its arena and community centre.

Robert McKeen, finance chairman announced that the Aylmer Kinsmen's Club has promised $10,000, and the Aylmer Optimist Club, $2,500. Three men pledged $500 each, they are Dan Colquhoun, Angus Hughes and Mr. McEwan, all of Aylmer.

Aylmer's R.C.A.F. station was represented at the dinner by Cpl. George Herron, speaking for the commanding officer, Wing Commander Gerald Webster. Station funds paid for the corporal's $100 meal.

The injury jinx, which has plagued Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen through the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" layoffs, has paid a visit to the rival Toronto Marlboro camp. With the fifth game of the best-of-seven championship series on tap at Kitchener for tonight and Marlboros leading three games to one, word has been received that starry Pat Boehmer, leading goaltender in the loop during its regular season, will not see action. Boehmer suffered a dislocated shoulder during a goal-mouth scramble in Monday night's contest which the Dutchmen won, 3-2.

Kitchener-Waterloo, faced with elimination, have Bobby Bauer on the sidelines after a first-game injury and coach Punch Scherer said Tuesday night that team captain and star defenceman Jack Shewchuk will sit it out. He suffered a gashed foot in last Sunday's practice.

At Sydney, N.S., Alex Birukow 23-year-old Fort William, Ont., centre with Sydney Millionaires, Tuesday night was awarded the Cape Breton Senior Hockey League's "Lady Byng" trophy.

Birukow edged Jack Wake of Cornwall, Ont., and Don Mennies, Lethbridge, Alta., in the voting. Wade played with Glace Bay and Mennies, with North Sydney Victories, was the league's top goal getter during the schedule. Millionaires won the league crown Tuesday night, eliminating Miners.

Birukow spent only two minutes in the penalty box, and that was for a technical infraction.

Awarding of the President's Cup speedboat racing trophy to Horace E. Dodge of Detroit has been declared invalid.

Arthur L. Boldrick, chairman of the Inboard Racing Commission of the American Power Boat Association, said Tuesday at Los Angeles that the 14-man commission has ruled the 1949 race on the Potomac "no contest" because only one heat was run because of rough water.

W. L. Houck (I—Niagara Falls) urged Tuesday at Toronto that all boxers be given medical examinations before entering the ring in Ontario. Mr. Houck made the suggestion as a legislature committee approved minor amendments of the Athletics Control Attorney-General Porter said he would check on existing regulations regarding medical examinations.

Edmonton Mercurys Swamp Switzerland 13-2, Expected To Clinch Spot in Final Series

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 15 (CP)— Edmonton Mercurys, hot favorites to win the world hockey tournament, face lowly Belgium at Wembley arena tonight in a game expected to clinch for Canada a spot in the final round-robin among the four top teams.

Fresh from an easy 13-2 victory over Switzerland 24-3 conquerors of Belgium Monday — Canada appears a cinch to top their three-team preliminary group and roll undefeated into the final series.

London bookmakers tightened the odds to 5 to 2 on the Mercurys to carry back world honors to the Dominion.

With Czechoslovakia, the 1949 winners, absent, the teams most likely to accompany the Mercurys into the final round are Switzerland, Britain, Norway, Sweden, and either the United States or the Netherlands.

On form, Canada appears to be several goals ahead in all except Sweden, and the Swedes would have to play the surprise of the season to stop the red-hot Edmonton speedsters.

Took No Bows

But coach Jimmy Graham took no bows for the victory.

"They were nervous," he said in the dressing room. "They can play much better than that. We've got a long way to go yet."

The Mercurys looked pretty good to the 6,500 fans who watched Harry Allen, Leo Lucchini, and Billie Dawe collect three goals apiece to pace the attack. Ab Newsome banged home a pair of counters, while Jim Kilburn and Marsh Darling accounted for the other tallies.

Another stellar performer was big Pete Wright, who played a standout game on defence as well as leading many dangerous rushes.

It was strictly no contest after the Mercurys took a 5-1 lead in the first period. They led 9-2 after the second session and fired four more in the finale after the Swiss changed goaltenders, Banninger taking over from Riesen.

Ulli Pulles scored both Swiss goals.

In other games Tuesday night, Sweden polished off The Netherlands 10-0, and Norway trounced France 11-0.

Britain plays Norway and the United States meets The Netherlands in other games tonight. Britain and Norway have both clinched places in the final round robin, while the U.S. and The Netherlands are battling for the third spot in their three-team loop.

Sport Leaders Raise Objections To Tax Increase

Toronto, March 15 —(CP) — Sports executives today saw a threat to small-town amateur sports in a provincial government suggestion that Ontario's amusement tax may be extended to cover such activities.

The suggestion came Monday from Premier Frost, who told the legislature that the system of taxing sport may be revised to include so-called amateur contests. At present a 20-percent amusement tax is collected only on professional events.

He made the comment after Robert Thornberry, CCF member for Hamilton centre, said the dividing line between amateurism and professionalism in boxing, hockey and football is so thin it barely exists.

Sports leaders promptly raised objections. George Dudley, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said most community hockey clubs are run primarily to provide their towns with good teams rather than to make money.

"We all know that some amateur hockey player get money," he said, "but in my view that doesn't mean that admissions to amateur hockey games should be taxed."

Hockey Impossible

Extension of the tax would make league hockey impossible in many small towns, said George Panter, secretary of the Ontario Hockey Association. Most small-town hockey teams now operate at a loss.

Harold Bailey, Ontario Rugby Football Union president said such a tax might make it difficult for some ORFU clubs to carry on.

Loops like the Senior Intercounty Baseball League likely will turn "professional" if they have to pay a 20 percent amusement tax, secretary Bill Farquharson of the London Major baseball club said.

"The only reason the league is not professional now is the difference of that 20 percent," said Farquharson. He said that in London anyway, a new tax would have to be passed along to the fans because with present admissions the club is operating on a minimum budget.

PRODUCTION GOAL

British trade officials say production in 1952 must be at least 25 per cent higher than in 1947 if Britain is to pay her own way.

Terrific Third-Period Rally Gives Diesels 8-6 Victory And District League Title

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

The Canadian National Railways Diesels are the champions of the Belleville District Hockey League for the second year in succession.

They won the title and the Ontario Intelligencer Trophy in Memorial Arena last night when they defeated their Northern Electric rivals 8-6 in the fourth game of the three-of-five series. Diesels had two games to their credit previous to the resumption of hostilities, dropped the third game to Northern last Friday, and in a terrific third-period surge scored five times to overcome a two-goal deficit to grab out the victory and the championship.

It was blistering hockey all the way. Both squads favored the all-out style of play garnished with heavy checking, with no quarter asked nor given.

With both teams travelling at top speed throughout the entire sixty minutes and with the score in substantial margins favoring both squads at times, it was by far the best game the league rivals waged during the season. It furnished definite proof that a hockey game is not won until the last whistle blows.

Nip and Tuck Battle

It was one of those games that had the financial backers of the teams in a dither throughout. Dame Fortune, if she got her anything to do with hockey was fickle to say the least, but she beamed, with the help of one Mieu Leduc of Diesels goalkeeper, who rose to sensational heights throughout the entire sixty minutes, on the railroaders in the final period.

The rules of victory dipped over the flaming second and third periods. Diesels, aided by a "break" goal, when Porky Yorke accidentally poked the puck behind his own goal in the first period, added another in the first two minutes. Northern raced back into the picture and tied the score.

Vern Goyer on a brilliant solo effort put the Diesels one up near the end of the first period. The score was 3-2.

Northern's Period

The second period was strictly Northern Electric. They hemmed the Trainmen behind their blueline for the first six minutes and only the near-superhuman efforts of LeFort kept them off the score sheet. Finally they broke out. After Peter Jones and his linemates had missed several opportunities to score, Wardaugh, Barrett and MacDonald fired home three goals in a minute and 28 seconds to give the plasterers a 5-3 lead. Diesels appeared to be disorganized and to the majority of the faithful a beaten team.

Came the third period. The fortunes of battle war turned. Diesels, paced by the veteran line of Leo Goyer, brother Vern, Tex Williams and Joe Nolan, flashed a new lease of hockey life. Relentlessly, with their defence backing them in superb manner, they roared to the offensive. And while a more or less stunned crowd of Northern Electric supporters looked on, they scored the tying goals with Leo Goyer aided by Williams and Nolan, being the hero, A minute later Doug Bastedo took Don Sesmark's pass to put the Diesels one up and the game took on the aspect of a survival of the fittest.

Northern Ties Score

Play surged up and down the ice with Tripp in the Northern nets and LeFort between the Diesels piqued burning back on surging goal-hungry opposing forwards. And the crowd stood up as Don Barrett took Ken Murphy's pass with three minutes to go to tie the score. It was terrific hockey with both teams all out, and travelling at top speed.

The Northern fans cheering bedlam had hardly died away than Leo Goyer taking Tex Williams' goalmouth pass scored his fourth goal of the night to give the Diesels a 7-6 lead.

The time clock read two minutes and 48 seconds. Play surged up and down the ice. Lefort time and again turned back the desperate Northern attacking divisions. Fifty four seconds to go and the Red Devils manager-coach pulled goalie Tripp and sent in six forwards in an effort to tie the game.

Strategy Failed

But the last second strategy backfired. Timmy Williams, taking Vern Goyer's pass in a desperate effort to relieve the Northern pressure, fanned the puck—length, into the vacant Northern goal. That was at 19.30. Goalie Tripp returned to the wars but the damage was done and Diesels successfully held off the Northern threat until the final whistle blew.

If there were any "stars" given away last night, the entire three should go to Goalie Maurice Lefort of the Diesels. The hockey goalie held off the surging Northern front line time after time especially in the second period. He was sensational to say the least and played one of the best, if not the best game of the season.

Leo Goyer, Timmy Williams and Vern Goyer provided the scoring power of the winners. Leo got four goals, Williams two and two assists, and Vern Goyer one and one. Nolan, Schreider also turned in fine efforts.

Don Barrett, who got four goals and an assist, MacDonald with one and two and Jackie Wardaugh with one and one were the shining lights for Northern. Tripp, Peckets and Yorke turned in a grand effort as did Ken Murphy (ex-Nylons) Mulvihill and Peter Jones. The latter pair had speed to burn, and only the fine work of LeFort kept them off the scoresheet. Jones was robbed once, at least, of two markers either by missing the net, or being outguessed by the Diesels goalie.

Referee Bill Hunt and Clarence Casterton of Kingston, handled a difficult job in fine style. Eleven penalties were handed out, eight going to Diesels.

The scoring summary:

Northern Electric—Goal, Tripp, defence Murphy, Yorke; centre, Barrett; wings, MacDonald, Wardaugh; subs, Semarck, Jones, Mulvihill, Cousins, Williamson.

Sunday Sport Bill is Ready For Introduction

Toronto, March 15 (CP) — Legislation legalizing commercial Sunday sport in Ontario, after a vote by municipalities concerned is in the final stages of drafting and may be introduced in the legislature Thursday, it was learned Tuesday.

The draft as it now stands is reported to permit municipalities to determine by a majority vote whether they want games on Sunday. Voting would be restricted to those on municipal lists.

Other reported provisions of the draft:

1. If a majority favors Sunday sport it will be up to the municipal council to decide what games will be permitted.

2. Hours at which games may be played are stated, the period mentioned being between 1:30 pm and 6 p.m.

3. All events will be banned at which there is licensed gambling. This would rule out such sports as horse-racing.

In proposing that only a majority vote be required, instead of the three-fifths margin required on local-option votes under the Liquor Control Act, the government is said to feel it will vacillitate a change if experience proves that Sunday sport is unsatisfactory.

Toronto and Windsor plebiscites favoring Sunday sports will stand. This means Sunday baseball at Toronto this summer. The International League has already allotted Sunday dates to Toronto Maple Leafs in its schedule.

The government is reported to have had two caucuses on the subject and to be planning a third Thursday prior to introduction of the bill.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, March 15—(CP)—Despite their lowly position in the Western Canada Senior Hockey League this season, Regina Capitols probably will be back in the loop for the 1950-51 season.

Allan Cup finalists in 1948-49, Caps tumbled into the basement of the four-team league this year and the crowds fell off.

But Tom (Regina Leader-Post) Melville says the lure of the big-time Cup race are willing to take another, awhirl, which should reach them pretty high in the list of those who can grin and bear it. In the two seasons they have operated the club they've had to fork out to balance the books. The three are Jack Boyle, Ross Smeath and Cliff Dorsey.

Dorsey Booster

Murray (Moose Jaw Times-Herald) Brown puts a plug in his column for the Moose Jaw Junior Canucks' Don Dorsey, the former mighty mite with Toronto Maple Leafs.

"Since the 1946-47 campaign when he first took charge, Dorsey has had the club in the playoff spot in every year. The first time he reached the memorial cup finals . . . the next two he has gone as far as the Western semi-finals.

"Furthermore Dorsey has had no powerhouse outfits. The same is true this winter. Yet he managed to keep Canucks in second place in as tough a league as there is in the country (The Western Canada Junior League).

"Frankly, we think Moose Jaw and the Canucks, too, are lucky to have a citizen of Dorsy's calibre and ability in the community."

All-Time Great

Maurice (Winnipeg Free Press) Smith also is in the mood for handing out bouquets.

"Congratulations are in order to Betty Mitchell who has again stamped herself as the outstanding senior women's speed-skater on the North American continent. We hope her performance this year won't be overlooked when it comes to naming Canada's all-time standing woman athlete next December."

Johnny Groth Wants to be Just Another Player

Lakeland, Fla., March 15—(AP) —Johnny Groth, acclaimed "baby wonder of the age" last spring, is happy to be "just another ball player."

"It's a lot better with the pressure off," said the 21-year-old Detroit centre fielder. "Now I'm just another ball player."

Last spring the boys pulled out all the stops when raving about Groth. He was the greatest centre fielder since Joe Dimaggio. Magazines flashed his handsome photo whenever news stand. "Can't miss" was the cry.

Groth started out like another Dimaggio, too. Two home runs the first day. Then another. At the end of three weeks he was hitting .393. Nobody could keep that up.

"I was almost afraid to go up there for fear I'd strike out," said Groth with a grin. "I knew it had to stop, sooner or later."

It did. Gradually the batting average declined to more modest proportions. He finished up at .293, missing the last six weeks with a broken wrist.

"I think I learned a lot last year," said Groth. "I worked hard trying to learn how to hit that curve ball better. Maybe I'll have to the right base more often. But there's so much more to learn."

Manager Red Rolfe expects Groth to improve on his rookie effort

Stirling Will Play Kincardine In Final Series

The first game of the Juvenile "C" O.M.H.A. championship playdowns will be played here in the Memorial Arena on Friday night between representatives of Stirling and Kincardine.

In climbing the ladder to the Eastern Ontario title the Stirling team disposed of Bradford 11 to 9 on the round. Stirling defeated Bradford 8 to 2 on home ice but suffered a setback 7 to 3 in the return match last Monday night. Size of the Bradford rink, however hampered the Stirling boys who were not accustomed to the smaller quarters.

On their way to the top it is understood that Kincardine disposed of some very fast company rightfully taking the Western Ontario honors in championship fashion.

The second game of the best-of-three series is scheduled for Kincardine next Tuesday night and providing a third game is necessary neutral ground for the struggle will be decided upon and announced by the Association.

In the meantime Coach Dr. Ralph Vandervoort is giving the Stirling stalwarts their last minute grooming, hopeful that his charges will bring home red ribbon honors this year.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

For thrills, spills, and chills in bridge, play in a flight tournament. Have you ever played in or seen one? Then it is time your crowd knew about it if there are enough of you.

Play starts with 32 tables. No more and no less. Partners do not change. The pairs do not progress from table to table. The hands are not played in duplicate. It is all rubber bridge.

Each table goes five rubbers. The same two pairs are pitted against each other for these five rubbers. This constitutes one complete session of play. The session ends after five rubbers.

Some tables finish before others and can go home or watch others still at play. At the end of the fifth rubber at each table, the pair with the highest net score is the winner at that table.

The pair with the lowest net score goes to a lower flight and at the next session the same process is repeated. This keeps up for six weeks until a winning pair is found in each of eight flights.

The real tussel comes in the fifth rubber at each table in each session. At that time the pair that is behind must do some jockeying. The idea is not to make the rubber unless the points make you high.

At the last such match I watched, each pair had one game on the final rubber. East and west were then ahead. Being 1200 behind, it did not pay south and north to make rubber with only a game.

Next hand they had enough for a game but not enough for slam. So they deliberately stopped short of game in order not to go out. Then came the deal you see here:

NORTH
♠A Q 9
♥A 8 5
♦K J
♣A K J 8 4

WEST
♠K 5 2
♥7 6 3
♦A 8 5 3
♣9 5

EAST
♠3
♥Q 10 7 4
♦Q 10 9 4 2
♣10 7 6

SOUTH
♠J 10 8 7 6 4
♥K 2
♣Q 3 2

To win they needed nothing less than a slam bid and made. So they did not consider whether they had values enough. Ready or not, they barged into six spades. What is more, they made it.

When you gotta go, you gotta go.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop and ma went out last nite and this morning at breakfist ma said, Well William, I must say you seem ", of injoyed yourself at the party last nite.

You must be thinking of some party, pop said. I was so bored in my life. The minutes seemed like hours and the hours seemed like historical ages, like the glacial period or the grasshopper era, got stuck with the silliest, most unattractive, empty headed woman I ever got i left in a corner with. She was the kind of a woman nobody pays the slightest attention to so I suppose you didn't even notice her, he said.

Of course I noticed her, and I have no doubt she was brainless, but I dont see how you can call her unattractive, at least from a man's unreasoning viewpoint, ma said, and pop said, But yee gods, my dear, she had 3 shades of stringy red hair and 3 shades of stringy brown freckels.

Now you're exaggerting, ma said, and pop said, On the contrary, my dear, I'm trying to give her the benefit of the doubt, but there's not the slightest doubt. Her eyes slanted out and her chin slanted back. I'll admit her eyes mite of attracted me if they hadn't been so tiny, but she had a shape like a stuffed corn stalk, he said.

Oh sutch a man, you know very well I was all prepared to accuse you of paying her entirely too mutch attention, ma said, and pop said, Why, sutch an idea never occurred to me. I'm afraid I'm not that charitably inclined. And he folded his paper and kissed ma goodbye and left for his office whizzeling as if he thawt he was grate.

Which he is.

Escape Injury

About eight o'clock on Sunday morning a car with four occupants from Tweed met with what might have been a fatal accident while passing through Thomasburg village. As they were coming around the bend at Mr. Ross Wilson's, the car began to get out of control on the icy highway which was covered with a light scriff of snow. When the brakes were applied they drew the car to the east side of the highway and it turned completely over falling several feet down the stone wall, where the street is built up, landing with the four wheels up in the stream of water which runs from the spring. All four occupants were able to extricate themselves from the wreckage little the worse, except for a few bruises and scratches. How they ever made such an escape is a mystery.

Mr. Russell Wood spent a few days recently with Mr. and Mrs. T Luffman and family at Sulphide.

$900,000,000 GOODS FOR BRITAIN UNDER E.R.P.

London, March 15 (AP)—Britain expects to receive a total of $900,000,000 worth of goods under the European recovery program during the year ending March 31, Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, furnished the figure in reply to a question in the House of Commons Tuesday.

Privilege System Aids Delinquents

Galt, Ont — (CP) — Jerry is only one of the many that have been directed in the ways of good citizenship at the Ontario Training Schools for Boys.

Jerry doesn't believe his case is typical of what has been done for the more than 350 lads that each year become wards of training schools here and in Bowmanville, Ont. They call it "privilege" and their success in rehabilitation " a system of privilege."

At 13, Jerry was a burglar. His folks were poor, the family large and their home in the city overcrowded. Nobody cared if he sneaked away at night.

After breaking into one house he was caught and let off with a warning. The second time however juvenile court sent the slender lad to training school.

That was two years ago. The Galt school had just been taken over by civilian authority as Provincial Service and a new staff organized.

Jerry, a leader among the boys, initiated the staff to several changes from a varied repertoire. Insolence and insubordination were easily recognizable but not his misconduct was so obvious. Fuze plugs blew mysteriously, light switches went dead—he was gathered a following of admirers.

Detentions Banned

He was caught and given detention to meditate on his misdeeds. But he wasn't detained long. A new system of privileges replaced the old and detentions were banned.

Jerry sneered when he first saw posters announcing: "best boy of the week, best sportsman, best artist, best gardener, etc." But his opposition didn't last long. For the first time in his life Jerry could gain practical recognition for honest enterprise. He won two awards and detentions as best boy.

When his term ended Jerry was sent to a foster home on a farm. He didn't know a goose from a hen at first but he took an active interest in his work and before his term came to an end he finished as announced as one of Ontario's champion plowmen.

The Training Plan is designed to develop a boy by providing incentive which each and hold his interest.

A. R. Virgin, former superintendent of the school at Bowmanville, now director of the department of reformatories, spoke for the department when he said: "It has been our ambition for years to give corporal punishment and detention in the case of boys." The ambition has been achieved.

He Shouldn't Be, But Is

This isn't just any bear cub, but one of the wonders of the zoological world. Keeper Roy Jackson is holding the youngster at the National Zoo in Washington, D.C. Named "Gene" (for genetics), the baby bear is the offspring of an Alaskan brown bear and a polar bear father. The youngster was born three months ago, but was not expected to live. Today he is healthy and thriving. (Central Press Canadian).

MARMORA

Norwood's Circle C Team Defeated By Marmora, 6-4

Marmora—Norwood's Circle C team were taken into camp on the Marmora rink on Monday evening in the first game of the League's championship finals, the score being 6-4 in the homesters' favour. Nicholson got three counters for the winners with Forestell, J. Moloney and Moss getting singles.

Rusaw, A. Scott, C. Lobb and Andrews were the most effective for Norwood each tallying once. The ice was good for what turned out to be a close and clean contest. The crowd was small due to Marmora's Trent Valley team meeting Frankford in the fourth of that league's finals. Marmora plays at Norwood on Wednesday evening, the series being three out of five games.

Norwood — goal, Stinson; defence, Robson, Garden; centre, A. Scott; wings, Andrews, Rusaw; alternates, Wrightly, Fairfield, W. Lobb, McMillan, H. Scott, Walden, Welsh, C. Lobb.

Referee, Wayne Brown, St. Catharines.

Leopold Leaves Decision on Future To Parliament

Belgian King Exiled Since War From His Homeland

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH

Geneva, March 16.— (AP)—Leopold III, exiled King of Belgium, told his people today he will abdicate if that is the will of the Belgian parliament.

Leopold said he would do so "to spare the country the grave political disorder which opposition between public opinion and the only legitimate representative of public opinion could provoke."

On the other hand, his statement added, if parliament should decide to restore him to the throne, the principle of parliamentary majority should be respected. In other words, he should be accepted by all, opponents and proponents alike, if parliament votes that way.

Leopold asked parliament to act "without further delay." Parliamentary leaders who have been conferring with the King here left immediately for Brussels.

Under a law of July 19, 1831, Leopold cannot regain the throne except after a majority vote by parliament.

"Whatever the decision which parliament will take and for which it assumes, in conformity with the constitution, the entire responsibility, my conscience will be low to it," Leopold said in a statement issued by his secretary, Jacques Pirenne, at a press conference.

Leopold, exiled from his homeland since the war, won 57.7 per cent of the vote in an advisory referendum last Sunday on whether he should return to his throne.

Many political leaders in Belgium feel this percentage is far too small for a king, supposed to represent unity for his people. Other political factions feel he should be returned.

WITHDRAW CHARGE SUICIDE ATTEMPT BY MRS. PITRE

Quebec, Mar. 16 — (CP) — A charge of attempted suicide against Mrs. Arthur Pitre, one of the key figures in Quebec's air-disaster case, today was withdrawn.

The charge was laid Mrs. Pitre was a crown witness in the murder trial of J. Albert Guay, sentenced to be hanged June 23 for murder. She told the court she delivered to Quebec airport last Sept. 9 a parcel which Guay had given her.

The crown contended that the parcel was a time bomb which Guay arranged to have placed aboard a Canadian Pacific Airliner to get rid of his wife. Both Mrs. Guay and 22 others died in the subsequent explosion and crash.

Mrs. Pitre, arrested two weeks after the crash, was charged with attempted suicide. She later said in court that Guay had told her to do away with herself and leave a note confessing that she had caused the crash.

Smoking in Bed Blame for Fires In Two Hotels

Hamilton, March 16. (CP)—Fire broke out in two city hotels early today and both were believed to have been smoking in bed. Both blazes were confined to their starting points and one man was arrested following the blaze in the Waldorf Hotel.

Firemen went to the Waldorf shortly after midnight to extinguish a blaze in a mattress in a 3rd-floor room. Damage set at $50 was done to mattress, bedding and walls.

Following a complaint by hotel officials, police arrested Bert J. Thompson of St. Thomas, the occupant of the room, and charged him with drunkenness.

The second blaze occurred at the Windsor Hotel at 4.30 a.m. in a second-floor room and damage there was slight.

Three Youths Held After Man Beaten And Robbed

London, Ont., March 16—(CP) —Three young men were arrested early today a few minutes after 61-year-old Harry Childs of Woodstock had been beaten and robbed on the street here.

Childs, who said the trio had asked him in the Canadian National Railways station restaurant to "have a drink," was returning to the Hotel London where he was staying. He said the three youths followed him and he became apprehensive, "but I was trapped."

Missing from his wallet was a $5 bill and some change. He suffered only a cut lip when jumped from behind and knocked to the ground by the weight of the three young men.

NON-CONFIDENCE MOTION BY C.C.F. DEFEATED 155-55

St. Laurent, Drew Tangle in Debate

Ottawa, March 16—(CP)—The government was upheld by a vote of 155 to 55 Wednesday night on C.C.F. motion of non-confidence.

The vote was taken after a display of temper engendered by charges and counter-charges hurled across the floor of the Commons by Prime Minister St. Laurent and George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader.

Amid a clamor that at times almost drowned out talk, the two leaders tangled over a second time in continued debate on the Speech from the Throne.

Mr. Drew charged the government with attempting to stall on election promises to remove the present last from old-age pension legislation. He accused agriculture Minister Gardiner of trying to make the Commons a political platform for "cheap, political hub-thumping speeches."

Mr. St. Laurent retorted that Mr. Drew was waging "partisan political warfare" and said he would leave it to the house and the country to judge the "value" of the opposition leader's speech.

"I would say that much of Mr. Drew's address would tend to lower the interests of the Canadian people." If all the speeches which came from the opposition were like that of yesterday, he was sure that this country would suffer from a government for a "very long time."

Mr. Drew replied in the public to "assess the value of what is being done here."

Former Customs Officer Fined Total of $2,000

Niagara Falls, Ont., March 16 —(CP)— Magistrate John B. Hopkins, today levied fines and costs totalling $2,000 on Matt Leskiw, 28-year-old former customs officer, after he pleaded guilty Tuesday to seven charges of violating the Customs Act by smuggling six automobiles and an automobile motor into Canada from the United States while a member of the customs staff.

Crown prosecutor Magistrate Hopkins said it was difficult to understand how this man could be trusted by the U.S. and then return to Canada and abuse the privilege in a different style of old car.

"Are customs officers as individuals above the target, such as the bridgehead from other citizens?" the magistrate asked.

"It would appear to be the case o rthis man could not have operated in the manner in which he did."

He said that Leskiw was the simple type of person and it was hard to understand how he was selected to join the customs department.

The RCAF Trenton Training Command band was in attendance. Figure skaters from the Kingston Skating Club gave an exhibition and a hockey game was played. Members of the Havelock Junior C and of Parliament were on hand.

Woman Interrupts Trial to Silence Alienist Who Believes Her Insane

Frankfurt, Germany, March 16, (AP)— Wildly crying "hang me — hang me," pretty Brooklyn-born Mrs. Yvette Madsen today sought to silence a psychiatrist who testified he believed her insane when she shot her husband.

"Hang me if you want. Hang me, I don't care. But make him stop," cried Mrs. Madsen, on trial here on a murder charge in connection with the fatal shooting of her husband, Army Sgt. Jens Madsen for two weeks, testified he believed she was suffering from an insane delusion at the time of the shooting after a party last October.

After several outbursts, her father, Alfred Noack of Brooklyn, sitting by her side, turned to her and said in a voice audible to the packed court room:

"Child, be still."

Dr. Kleist cited a note the prisoner had written to her brother-in-law Madsen, announcing intention to shoot her husband and expressing fear he would beat her and "take it out on the children."

"Her hatred at the moment was so great that she gave him ugly names and wrote them down," Dr. Kleist said.

Mrs. Madsen cried out:

"I don't say that I love him. I love him. I love Andy, my husband. Don't let him say those things."

Referring to what he called Mrs. Madsen's early maturity and erotic tendencies, the psychiatrist said she had lived with a much older man and posed as his wife when she was only 16 years old.

He also said Mrs. Madsen had lived with Madsen for "some years" before they were married.

Shortage of Equipment Not Telephones Holds Up Installation Inquiry Told

Ottawa, March 16 — (CP) — Contrary to what a lot of people think, there is no actual shortage of telephones in Ontario and Quebec.

This fact was brought to light today before the Board of Transport Commissioners, hearing an application by Bell Telephone Company of Canada for a 20-per-cent boost in rates.

Arnold Groleau, general facilities superintendent, said the reason 89,000 persons are forced to wait for phones is not a shortage of the telephone instruments. There are plenty of phones, he said. But there was a shortage of other equipment, particularly central office equipment and phone lines.

The company was spending $252,000,000 in the next three years to construct this equipment in an attempt to catch up with demand for phone service.

Mr. Groleau was cross-examined by Gerard Lacroix, counsel for Quebec, one of the cities opposing the Bell request for higher rates.

Mr. Lacroix wanted to know about Bell's advertising program.

Mr. Groleau said that since there is no shortage of telephone instruments any longer, the company now is advertising that it will install extension phones on request.

Installation of these extensions did not require any additional equipment outside the home. As a result, Bell had no difficulty in filling such request.

Earlier, Lovell Carroll, Montreal consulting engineer, completed examination of the witness. He criticized Bell for planning to spend money on streamlining its long-distance service when the money could be used to catch up with the phone demand for ordinary phone service.

Mr. Groleau said Bell's construction program was based on careful study. The company believed its program was a sound

Mother Rescues 4 Sons Then Gives Birth to Baby

Fort William, March 16.—(CP) —Mrs. Fred Green gave birth to a new baby, then another after herding her four other boys from a blazing home on the Ontario Mental Hospital grounds 10 miles from here.

Assistant Fire Chief Harold Lockwood, scoring lack of "adequate" water supply, said he was forced to pull his men from the fire to concentrate on saving surrounding buildings. The fire destroyed the farm home occupied by the Greens. Mr. Green is the hospital's engineer.

Mrs. Green gave birth to a 7 1-2 pound boy at 6:40 a.m. today. She was taken to hospital, remaining at 9 p.m.

Hospital officials said mother and new son are doing "fine".

Sunday Sport Bill Will be Introduced

Toronto, March 16. (CP)—A bill legalizing Sunday Sport in Ontario will be introduced in the provincial legislature early next week, it was learned today.

It is speculated that the bill will grant the right to any municipality to determine by popular vote whether it wants Sunday Sports and which games will be permitted. Time limits may be set on the hours of play.

Toronto and Windsor previously voted in favor of Sunday Sports and may be in line to take advantage of the legislation almost immediately.

Provincial Ban Urged Against 'Company Towns'

Toronto, March 16 (CP) —A provincial ban against "company towns" was urged today by the Federation of the Trades and Labor Congress in an 80,000 word brief submitted to the Ontario Cabinet Wednesday.

Percy Bengough of Ottawa, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, was present at the lengthy document was read to Premier Leslie Frost and other cabinet ministers. A.F. Totzke, secretary of the provincial body, and Hugh Sedgwick Conboy read the brief which also asked the cabinet for changes in the new labor code.

The brief list 41 items covered entirely by companies which employ nearly all residents of a community. The labor body objected to these corporations owning all stores and houses and asked that a ban be applied which would allow the development of free competition. Company towns said the brief, were contrary to all principles of free enterprise.

Included in about 20 Ontario company towns are: Kapuskasing, Terrace Bay, Schreiber, Smooth Rock Falls, and Red Rock.

MOTHER LEAVES TWIN BABIES IN HOSPITAL

Mishawaka, Ind., March 16 (AP)— Police were looking today for the mother of three-day-old twin girls who left the babies in a hospital after saying she "didn't want girls." The woman, who said she was Mrs. Marjorie Johnson, walked out Tuesday, only a day after the twins were born. She asked to be relieved of any future care of the babies and refused to name them.

CANADA APPLIES ANTI-DUMPING LAWS ON IMPORTS

Prevents Cheap Goods From Flooding Market

Ottawa, March 16—(CP)—Canada has applied her rarely-used anti-dumping laws to prevent cheap Japanese goods from flooding the Canadian market at "ridiculously low prices," a government official said today.

The laws have been applied against Japanese knitted gloves, men's shirts, children's dresses and cigaret lighters, the official said.

Many of the foods were brought into Canada through a private industry barter deal by which about $2,000,000 worth of Canadian wheat was exchanged for Japanese textiles.

The deal was administered by a New York corporation which acted as middleman in the Japanese goods into Canadian ports.

It is understood that complaints from Canadian trade have flooded the government as the result of the appearance of Japanese shirts in Canadian shops at between 20 and 30 cents $1.98.

Criticism of the influx of Japanese goods came from the Canadian Importers and Traders Association.

The Association said in Toronto Wednesday that the Japanese goods offered for sale were purchased by United States occupation authorities as war booty being produced by sub-standard labor.

Special Occupation Job

A U.S. Government official, however, is believed to have explained to the Japanese Government that the shipment of the goods was a special $1,000,000 occupation job.

About 20,000 dozen were shipped to Canada and the official assured the government that the same type of shipment at the unusually low price would not be repeated.

Under the anti-dumping law the revenue department can appraise the value set on a product and, if necessary, apply a tariff to bring the export price up to what is considered a fair market value in the country in which the product was produced.

Toronto, March 16 — (CP) — An amendment to the Pharmacy Act which will require students to take a four-year course instead of the present two-year term, was introduced in the legislature Wednesday by Welfare Minister Goodfellow.

MacLean Guilty Of Manslaughter In MacKinnon Case

No Evidence of 'Murderous Intent' Judge's Comment

Sydney, N.S., March 16 (CP)— A Supreme Court jury today found former Mayor Dan Jack MacLean innocent of murder but guilty of manslaughter in the Dec. 18 death of Joseph MacKinnon.

The verdict was returned at 1.15 p.m., EST, almost three hours after the case was handed to the jury.

Sentence on Saturday

He will be sentenced Saturday.

Earlier Chief Justice J. L. Ilsley told the jury there was no evidence of "murderous intent" in the trial of the 58-year-old former mayor. MacLean was charged with slaying MacKinnon, crippled 68-year-old city registrar of voters, by running him down with his car.

The Chief Justice made the statement in his charge to the jury shortly before the jury retired at 10.30 a.m. EST to consider its verdict.

Chief Justice Ilsley said the jury must find MacLean guilty or innocent of manslaughter.

MacLean was charged with murdering MacKinnon by running him down with a car Dec. 18. MacLean pleaded innocent.

The Chief Justice, sitting at his first murder trial since his recent appointment to the bench, instructed the jury for an hour and 20 minutes as the trial opened its fourth day.

French Assembly Votes to Accept American Arms

Paris, March 16—(CP)—Amid the banging of desks and cries of "fascists, swine," the French National Assembly today voted 416 to 181 to accept American arms for use against the spread of Communism.

While only Communist deputies opposing, the Assembly voted to authorize ratification of the arms pact agreement already signed by France and the United States Nov. 27.

The measure still must be considered by other parliamentary bodies, the council of the republic, which has only advisory and delaying powers.

Three minutes of tumult closed what had hitherto been a surprisingly calm two-day debate.

It came when an Algerian Communist deputy, Abderrahmane Djemad, forbidden by the chair to speaks to speak on the grounds that his party had already had more than their allotted debating time, jumped on his seat to a commission bench and grabbed a microphone there.

As he began to speak, government party deputies thumped their desks and cried that had already the Communists had put more than their fair share of speakers into the chamber.

France should get armaments worth $550,000,000 this year and the total delivery would be worth about $1,100,000,000.

ONTARIO'S BUDGET WILL BE BROUGHT DOWN FRIDAY

Toronto, March 16. (CP)—Ontario's Progressive Conservative government will be put to a formal test today as the Throne Speech debate ends. The result is expected to be an easy victory for the government, which has 52 members including the Speaker in the 90-seat House. There are 21 C.C.F. members, 13 Liberals, two Labor-Progressives and one Liberal-Labor member.

The debate on the address in reply to the Throne Speech has occupied the legislature for and on for almost a month but is expected to end today, in time for Premier Frost to bring down his budget tomorrow. C.C.F. Leader E. R. Gullette and Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver both introduced amendments during the debate.

C. C. Calder, (Lib.—London) leads off the last day of the Throne-Speech debate. Seven members spoke Wednesday—Rose-Spence Hall—Hastings East; W. H. Temple, (CCF—Toronto Riverdale); W. J. Senator Favors More Immigration But Not if Unemployment Increases

Ottawa, March 16—(CP)—Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative Senate leader, Wednesday said he favored increased immigration to Canada, but not if it was going to mean starvation and growing unemployment.

He spoke in the Upper Chamber during discussion of a resolution which would encourage by all means of getting more immigrants into Canada.

The resolution was introduced by Senator Cairine Wilson (L—Ontario) who, in reviewing recent immigration trends, noted that many European countries are anxious to make their homes in Canada.

Many people, such as those in the United Kingdom and The Netherlands, were discouraged by current regulations in their countries. Displaced persons "eagerly awaited an opportunity to establish themselves in another land."

Senator Wilson said it was hoped the federal government now has recognized the importance of immigration and has framed an immigration and civil ceinship department.

She said that Canada could absorb at least 200,000 people a year. The highest immigration it was 123,414 in 1948. The rate recently had declined sharply.

Senator Haig said he would vote in favor of the resolution which directs the study of the standing committee on immigration and labor. However, he asked assurance that the government is acting adequately with the unemployment situation in Canada.

Load of Furniture Comes to Grief Near Marysville

A load of expensive furniture, west-bound from Hull, Quebec, came to grief south of Marysville Wednesday afternoon when the furniture van was crowded by a passing car and both vehicles ended up in the ditch.

A Danis Movers furniture van driven by Roger Nault, Hull, was proceeding north, when a new model car driven by Max Anthony of Ingersoll, Ont., attempted to pass. In doing so the car caught the rear of the truck and both vehicles went out of control landing in the east ditch. The furniture van rolled over onto its side and when wreckers attempted to right it the vehicle's refrigerator broke from the chassis.

The auto was damaged to the extent of about $400 while the truck suffered damage amounting to about $300. Provincial Constable Al. Cockburn investigated.

Probation Officer Outlines Work To Optimists

Probation Officer Don McKinnon, in an address to the Optimist Club, told of the planning and formation of Belleville and Hastings Family and Juvenile Courts. The Juvenile Delinquents Act provides that such a court shall be established in each municipality. Juveniles cannot be held in common cells, and cannot be tried in a common court with adult offenders.

Listing the preliminary steps, the speaker told of the formation of a municipal committee, made up of the mayors, reeves and fraternal representatives. This committee contacted the Lieutenant Governor, who appointed Judge J. C. Anderson as Judge of the Juvenile Court, and Magistrate T. Y. Wills as Judge of the Family Court.

The probation officer himself, was appointed by the Attorney General. He has full police powers, and in addition acts as consultant to those appeling to the Family Court, and as a truant officer. He attempts to locate deserting husbands or parents, and conducts investigations into the environment of juvenile delinquents. Charges under the Juvenile Delinquents Act are laid to the probation officer, and children on probation must make a specified visit to his office. Their conduct, as ordered by the Juvenile Court Judge, is governed by him.

Mr. McKinnon stated that the probation system is now regarded as the only effective means of dealing with juvenile delinquents. Children are treated as misguided persons, rather than as criminals. Their parents may be held as criminally responsible for bringing about the delinquency of their children. Court is held as an informal round table, from which the public is excluded. However, if probation fails the judge is empowered to send a child to an industrial or reform school.

Mr. McKinnon concluded his address with a summary of the provisions of the Juvenile Delinquents Act and the Deserted Wives Act, and appended a list of the most common causes, in his experience, of juvenile delinquency and divorce.

The speaker was introduced to the club by Stan Wiggins, and thanked for his most informative address by Sam Cowan.

President John Ryan welcomed Jack Bond, Jack Colden and Frank Foley as guests of the Optimists.

Past President Don Boyce presented the nominating committee's provisional slate of officers for the coming year, and additional nominations were received.

Harold Bankier acted as sergeant-at-arms, and music was provided by pianist Gerry Simpson and song-leader Joe Agnew.

Religious Night Held by K.G. School, Home Club

The regular meeting of King George Home and School Association was held Monday evening in the school auditorium.

Mrs. P. B. Cross, president, took charge of a short business session. Mr. Lockhart's Grade V. had the attendance award.

This being Religious Education Night, Mr. Howard Hall, in the absence of Mrs. Hall, who is Religious Education Convener, took charge of the program by opening with the singing of the hymn "Stand Up, Stand Up, for Jesus", followed by a prayer. Miss Jane Smythe read a poem "A Friend to All." Five young boys, members of Christ Church choir, rendered three selections, "Lead Me O Lord", "Hurrah for the Evening Showman" and "Hall Gladly Hail."

The guest speaker Rev. H. C. Eastman of Victoria Ave. Baptist Church was then introduced and spoke as his subject, "Strengthening Family Life". He said there are many forces working against the home life today. The standard of living is so high that it takes two wage earners to support the average home and that many young men and women desiring to marry today are compared to conditions arising in every day life. Men and women should be trained to live with one another. Liquor and tobacco are two things that destroy reverence family life, but although there are so many things to contend with, the normal average home is as solid as ever and is pretty safe from any fear of evil to be raised.

There is nothing that fastens family ties like old fashion religion and if the fathers and mothers of the Belleville out to church this helps to strengthen the home. After the address Mr. Eastman for his very interesting talk Mr. Hall closed the meeting by singing "God Save the King". A social half hour was then enjoyed. Refreshments were served by the social committee.

Northern Electric Co. Announces Change in Executive Appointments

The Belleville office of the Northern Electric Company announces that Brewer Hunt, Manager of the Electronics Division of the company has been appointed manager of the new division of the company to be known as the Communication Equipment Division, and will be transferred to their head office in Montreal. This change will be effective June 1.

The new division has been formed to combine the operations of the telephone and electronics functions of the company's business. With the rapid development of the radio art since the last war and the ever increasing part radio is taking in the communication facilities supplied by the company, it is only logical that the wire line and switching equipment manufactured by the telephone division and the radio communication equipment presently produced by the electronics division should be amalgamated in the new communication equipment division to supply a co-ordinated service to its customers.

Will Function as Before

The Belleville operations, although now a component unit of the new communication equipment division, will retain their original identity and the functions of this Belleville unit previously under Mr. Hunt's jurisdiction will continue under the new local manager, Mr. Fraser Fulton.

Mr. Fulton has been with the company since his graduation from McGill University in 1928 and most of his service has been with the present electronics division, particularly in the years which he spent with the armed services. He served in the active forces in September 1939 as a lieutenant and had attained the rank of Brigadier early in 1945. Practically all of his war service was concerned with one of the contributions to the technical services, he was awarded the OBE in the King's New Year's Honour List, 1943.

In the electronics division, Fraser Fulton was serving as sales manager at the outbreak of war. On his return from the services, he was appointed chief engineer of the division a position he has held until his present appointment as manager of the Belleville operations. He is an active member of Belleville Kiwanis and attends Tabernacle Church.

Joined Civic Activities

Mrs. Fulton is playing a relatively short stay in the city since September, 1947, but has become prominent in the city's business and community life. He is vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce and has contributed willingly to the work of the Rotary Club and the YMCA, serving on both of these organizations in the capacity of director. He is also active in church work and is on the executive council of St. Thomas' Church. His outside business and professional affiliations include directorship in the Radio Manufacturers Association and membership in the Engineering Institute of Canada, the Institute of Radio Engineers and the Association of Professional Engineers of Ontario.

Mr. Hunt is naturally very pleased to have received this outstanding appointment in the company but regrets the necessity of leaving the host of friends he has made during the short stay in Belleville. He states this city is certainly a wonderful place in which to live.

MACLEAN GUILTY

He said there is evidence that the car that killed MacKinnon had been operated negligently.

But the jury must decide whether or not MacLean was guilty of manslaughter.

MacLean, testifying in his own defence Wednesday, said that he fell asleep after a drinking party with MacKinnon and could not remember what happened that night MacKinnon was killed.

Crown Prosecutor Donald Finlayson said Wednesday night he would be satisfied with a manslaughter verdict in the case.

In a 55-minute address to the jury, Mr. Finlayson said he did not believe MacLean intended to murder MacKinnon, a cripple.

In an interview later Mr. Finlayson said this could be interpreted as an indication that the Crown would be satisfied with a manslaughter verdict.

MacLean, mayor of Sydney longer than any other man before resigning after being charged with the Dec. 18 murder, was arrested after MacKinnon's body was found in a larkened, muddy south-end alleyway.

Drove Over Victim

The Crown said MacLean drove his car over MacKinnon in the alleyway.

MacLean, re-elected for his fourth two-year term as chief magistrate 12 days before the murder, took the witness stand Wednesday and said he and MacKinnon, a long-time friend, went on a drinking bout and sang gaelic songs together the day before MacKinnon died.

He said he fell asleep and couldn't recall how the party ended.

In tears, he told the court: "It struck me pretty hard to think that I was accused of the murder of the best friend I had in the world."

He said he didn't know of MacKinnon's death until the morning of Dec. 19 when his wife awoke him and said police wanted him.

Rumors Cause Consternation Over S. Boston Parade

Boston, March 16 — (AP) — Published reports that the British Consul-General had received an unprecedented invitation to parade tomorrow in honor of St. Patrick caused consternation in Irish South Boston — until all concerned said it wasn't so.

The presence of a British dignitary marching with the sons of the shamrock would have been unusual enough. But the 17th also commemorates the evacuation of Boston — by British troops — in 1776.

Consul-General C. E. Whitmore was quoted at first as saying he was "extremely sorry" but he could not parade because he had "already scheduled appointments with some very important people who are coming up from Washington on that day."

Last night, however, the Consulate circulated a press release with this statement from Whitmore:

"I am very sorry that my name has been used in connection with the parade on March 17 and I would like to state that I have received no invitation . . ."

SPRING'S ANNUAL MIRACLE

There has been enacted for countless generations at this time of year, much seeking or stirring in nature and in humans, which is associated with spring. Freedom from the bonds and shackles of winter which are melting away before the rays of the sun is felt in inanimate nature and in the nature that lives and breathes, the floral and the animal and the human world.

At this season of the year, long before the advent of man on this planet, nature's fetters were being broken in this part of the world with the coming of the spring.

Just now the rivers are breaking up in orderly manner, however rough nature seemed in those earlier months of winter when all sorts of records were being shattered in so many other parts of the Continent of North America. Now nothing can halt the march of spring in the world inanimate and animate.

The violence or turbulence of the aspect of winter some months ago struck hard at some parts but in this portion of the Continent the winter has been generally mild with unusually warm weather at times.

One of the most appealing sights today is the slow but relentless procession of spring's influences which wear away the barriers of ice and liberate the streams. Sometimes the advent of spring is marked by storms but so far the receding season has been acting quietly and the official arrived at spring is only a few days off.

These scenes have ever been enacted and always spring's return has been welcomed with joy and the sense of a great freedom. What is taking place in nature these days has been watched by mankind for ages back into the dim past until he has become a part of human nature for man is so dependent upon nature that he has long since learned to keep in tune with the beautiful outer world by which he is surrounded and which may at times act with great violence, but usually is very mild and often gentle as any lamb.

SAINT PATRICK

Once again in many parts of the wide world and especially in the Emerald Isle people will celebrate St. Patrick's Day, the day of the year set apart to commemorate the birth and life of the apostle and patron saint of Ireland.

It is a noble instinct to honor the memory of the great men and women who have labored for God and humanity and served not only their own day and generation but all succeeding generations. What the race owes to such great figures it is difficult to measure but no one has any doubt of the blessings which have flowed from their noble characters and tireless labors for the welfare of their fellowmen.

The patron saint of Ireland is held in special veneration and honor in the northern world, towards which history and tradition say he devoted his tireless spirit and strength. It is not strange that the day marking the anniversary of his birth should be one of the most memorable days in the calendar. Though he lived as long ago as the fourth and fifth centuries of the Christian era a great body of fact and tradition is associated with his life and his missionary efforts for the extension of the Christian faith. He felt a call to become an apostle of Christianity to the people of Ireland.

Tradition says he spent 14 long years in Gaul in preparation for his work. In 432 he became bishop of Ireland. Fruitful years followed. He visited Rome and returned to Ireland and made Armagh the ecclesiastical capital of the country.

The record has come down to us of a man of strong will power and great executive ability, a man whose diplomacy served well in a day of warring factions when the power of druidism was still very strong and an apostle fired with Christian zeal to save the people.

He was a tireless builder of churches, 360 being credited to his zeal and with his own hand he is said to have baptized 12,000 people. He possessed besides the spiritual qualities which eminently fitted him for the leadership of a people. His name is associated with scores of places in Ireland and he left an abiding influence upon no small part of the world.

JUST FOLKS

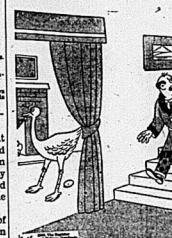
INDIVIDUALITY

How strangely runs the life of man,
With differences shown or hidden;
No two alike of all the clan
With manners favored or forbidden!
Each in his own decisive way
Some pleasure taking or refusing;
One bidding he would go astray
On paths that other men are choosing.



With difference of mood and whim
To live the years are all created.
One man does what seems best to him,
And for his act is loved or hated.

All other creatures live their days
Alike when eating or when drinking.
But mortals go their separate ways,
Their conduct fashioned by their thinking.

The lion as a lion preys
On other creatures that are weaker,
But to the end a lion stays;
Grows neither fiercer nor meeker.
But man some tempting lure may see,
Chooses to scorn it or to take it:
And as he thinks, his life can be
What he has strength and will to make it.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

The coal strike which paralyzed and partially paralyzed so much of American and Canadian activity last month has doubtless converted countless thousands of people to oil furnaces for one thing. The coming year will probably see an unparalleled demand for electrical and oil burning equipment in all branches of industry as well as in domestic use.

Coal burning equipment is already well advanced down the road that the horse and buggy took. The coal strike has done more to give coal a push down that road than all the billions spent in advertising oil since the first oil heater and the first Diesel engine were invented.

There have been coal strikes before; but never one that had quite the sense of fatality that there was about the late one. Suddenly, for the first time, coal appeared unreliable, oldfashioned, obsolete, cooked.

It was hand-hewn in a mechanized age. To millions of us, coal all at once was revealed as inadequate to our needs. Impatiently, we thought to ourselves; why should we be dependent upon a half a million men doing handicraft, poor chaps? Let's free them from misery; and, all use oil!

It is not as easy as that. Immense branches of industry are still based on the use of coal. Enormous capital is invested in coal-burning equipment. But somehow the feeling takes shape, as the result of this one great strike, that coal is obsolescent, if not obsolete; that it is still one of the things that will have, necessarily, run out of the past. And once the public mind gets hold of an impression of that sort, nothing much can divert the revolutions that follow. If the popular mind conceives that coal belongs to yesterday, coal is yesterday.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

IT CAN BE DONE

About one hundred years ago a young man by the name of George Williams went to work as a clerk in a London store. Moral conditions in England at that time were so bad and the dissolute character of most of the employees of this firm so notorious that everyone declared that young Williams would lose his Christian ideals amid such an environment.

Within a few years this particular store which had been notorious for the dissolute character of the people connected with it, became equally well known throughout London for its high moral tone. Young Williams had started an organization which he called the Young Men's Christian Association. Later he was knighted for his efforts, and his little group grew into a world-wide army of consecrated men multiplying to bring wholesome environment and the inspiration of high ideals to young men all over the world.

Let us not ever say that it is impossible for a person to be a Christian amid evil environment. Of course we should avoid evil environment as we would avoid a plague-ridden area. But people can live amid plague and cure it. Paul the Apostle headed straight for Corinth, the wickedest city in the world, and there founded a church. Christianity can be equal and more than equal to the demands of any situation.

Letters to the Editor

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

The Parliament of Canada has authorized this meeting of the line to take the side of the British in the Revolutionary War 1775-83, not the U.E. descendants. United Empire Loyalists are of various national origins and religions, not just English or Protestants. When the Loyalists came to this country they left their stores, doctors, churches, roads, or even underlaying to bury the dead. They came here, not for increased wages but just to be British. My great grandfather was an original Loyalist and settled on a farm in Prince Edward County given him by the government. He built a log cabin in the bush and brought up eight children. I am a member of the fourth generation of my family that have lived in Belleville or vicinity and six generations of my family have lived in some part of Ontario.

Any person who desires to preserve his hereditary rights and wish to join the Association may send to the Secretary his address and the name of his original U.E.L. ancestor to W. C. Mikel, K.C., UEL, Court House, Toronto, Ont.

Yours truly,
W. C. Mikel.

Mackenzie's Column:

Non-Communistic Asiatic Countries Promised Aid

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

State Secretary Dean Acheson's major foreign policy speech before the Commonwealth Club in San Francisco Thursday night was a long non-communistic Asiatic countries limited aid in their fight against "Soviet-Communistic Imperialism," took the unusual form of being directed to the trans-ocean.

Acheson was speaking not only to the American people but apparently was making an effort to reach the minds of Asia's millions rather than restricting his remarks to governments.

American assistance would cover military, financial and technical aid. It could be used only to "reinforce the efforts which others are prepared to make on their own behalf." This was a blunt way of saying the United States can only help those who help themselves.

The secretary stressed that the greatest threat to Asiatic progress and freedom is the attempted penetration by Soviet-Communist Imperialism and by the colonialism which it contains." He emphasized that trust by declaring that communism is a "tool of Soviet imperialism" and that it vents the real democratic revolution. The American people are the real leaders of a "revolution by the common people."

China naturally occupied a prominent part in the address. Acheson said the situation is the all-important fact that the Reds may use that country as a base for new conquests. He entered that the use of China as a base for attacks against neighboring countries would violate the United Nations chapter.

Acheson declared that Russia is shipping "food from China to Manchuria for industrial investment with $2,000,000,000 worth of agricultural machinery."

Acheson also said the U.S. was ready to trade with China on a basis of "mutual benefit." The U.S. in a new Domesday Book" will be the greatest survey of public rights ever made in Britain.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

QUALITY

William Hazlitt was both artist and writer. His essays in his book "Table Talk" are most interesting and stimulating. But his talks on art. Said he: "The little in art begins with technical execution. But what does not tell in connection with the man spells failure. True artist will paint not material points, but moral qualities. In a word, wherever there is a feeling or expression in a muscle or a vein, there is genius and originality, too."

The poet Pliny, in speaking of the artist Phidias, remarked that he showed "magnificence even in small things." We think much of Rodin in his great, heroic creations, but I have a small bronze by him that is hardly more than six inches high, yet it embodies all those fine touches that gave quality and power to his greater things.

One of my favorite short stories is that one by John Galsworthy called "Quality". It is the story of a shoemaker who made boots, but who made them so good that they lasted so long that the customers grew less and less. Others made boots cheaper but he never lowered the quality of leather, or the art and love that he put into his boots. So he finally starved to death. A would not say, however, that he was a failure. I would say that he was an immortal.

If we buy silver, all we do is to look for the name "Sterling" and that is enough to assure its quality. There are other things that are worth more than all the physical assets of the business that produces them, and chief among actor go together. There is a manufacturer of watches who advertises one of his products as the most inconspicuous of his watches and has always intrigued me. Quality always honors any product.

The quality article is always the cheapest. Make no mistake about that. Not only does it last longer, but it gives double the satisfaction and pleasure of ownership as well. Why do people pay so lavish for antiques? It's because makers and designers put quality into their work, as well as love and beauty. As the old German bootmaker in Galsworthy's story said, "Ach, Herr, that is what is behind all quality."

GOOD CITIZEN VERSUS STINKER

When you are coming down with it or "threatened" with it, if you prefer that malarkay, you may pretend it is just a bad, heavy, obstinate or seasonal "cold" and get away with the deception readily enough for your crime has the sanction of many health authorities, physicians and most of the laity. Nevertheless, it is a crime, and a particularly despicable because it brings unhappiness misfortune, illness and too often death to innocent people.

Neither you nor the doctor, and he can tell in the early stage, the stage when the illness is likely to be most communicable, whether or it will prove to be infantile paralysis, virus pneumonia, or measles, perhaps; or whether it will prove to be only a mild cold or even a non-communicable allergic reaction. Therefore, if you pretend it is just a bad "cold" and continue unmasked at work or play until the illness is well started or becomes so serious that you have to go to bed with it, you deliberately expose everyone who is unfortunate enough to come within conversational spray range of you to heaven only knows what illness.

Unmasked, I say. If one with possible diphteria, scarlet fever, influenza or other acute respiratory infection be properly masked he or she will not infect others in the casual association in business, work, play or social life.

Properly masked does not mean just wearing a wisp of gauze over the face in the phony fashion of the great surgeon and the heroic nurse of the movies. It means wearing a mask made of not less than ten layers of gauze (cheesecloth) that had mesh of 32 threads to the inch. The mask need not be white, it may be any color or black. But it must be worn at all times when any other person is within conversational spray range.

Conversational spray range is generally a distance of less than six feet; in quiet conversation it is only two or three feet; in loud conversation, shouting or laughing it is four or five feet. Remember this range next time you find yourself the target of a s-t-i-n-k-e-r who goes bout unmasked pretending he has just a "cold."

Spray is a form in which droplets of moisture or mucus are expelled from nose and mouth of a person who talks, laughs, shouts, coughs or sneezes. If the person has C-R-I (any on-coming respiratory infection) the moisture and mucus droplets are likely to contain the germ of the disease. Some of the droplets are large enough to be visible to the naked eye or to be detected by the sprinkle you, but mostly they are microscopic and invisible and implausible—but they carry misery, incapicity, illness and death just the same.

The purpose of the mask is to screen out these droplets. Of course a mask is just as effective for one to wear when exposed to conversational spray of s-t-i-n-k-e-r-s s it is for one to wear when exposed to the with or ill of c-r-i. Lit catches the germ laden spray droplets going or coming.

The color of the mask is of more than mere whimsey. A good many persons who haven't the moral courage to wear a white or black mask might have sufficient character to wear one of neutral or flesh color which would not be conspicuous.

The ideal mask isn't white nor black. It has no color at all. It is transparent. It is more efficient in trapping or screening out moisture droplets than the finest gauze mask. It is more comfortable to wear for hours or constantly. It is washable and dries immediately so that the wearer may have a clean mask as often as he likes. I refer to the mask devised by Lewis J. Silvers, M.D. especially for physicians, dentists, and others who give personal service to weak and ill sufferers. The Silvers mask or something of the kind should be worn by every doctor who treats or examines nose and throat cases and dentist, every barber, hairdresser, or manicure, every optician or optometrist or optician, every nurse who attends patients with respiratory infections, very daughter or spouse whose life or her own protection against whatever the patient or client has as well as for the protection of the patient or client against contact with the doctor, nurse or attendant has.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Broken Blood Vessels

Is there any way of getting rid of small broken blood vessels in the eyes? They are gradually getting worse (E.A.G.)

Answer — They may be eradicated by the electric needle employing a very fine special needle with which to inject certain drugs. The process is tedious if the condition is extensive.

Paris Adopts Natural Lines In New Frocks

By DORTHY WADDINGTON

Paris, —(Reuters)—The "new look" in women's fashions is changing the "natural look" of mid-century 1950, with a strong 1920 influence.

This spring and summer, skirts are shorter—they average 16 inches off the ground with a few daring models at top mid-calf. Waistlines are normal. Skirts often chiffon, are flared and interest is concentrated on sleeves.

Ribbon panels, intricate workmanship, shadow coats in light fabric and the short evening dress are the order of the day.

Christian Dior, after startling the world with his 'new look' in the early postwar years, has this season launched the 'vertical line'—a natural feminine line with horseshoe neck resembling the shawl-collared tuxedo. Press and buyer alike received his collection enthusiastically.

The new neckline was interpreted in a variety of ways. In the smartest of all, perhaps, a small scarf of white fox fills the decolletes, tucking at the back of the neck. But a close runner-up are deep organda dickies which highlight the bust and frame the face.

Sleeveless dresses appeared everywhere for the summer. In the Dior collection, they start for morning on a grey flannel dress, cut on straight lines and worn under a short matching jacket. Navy lightweight woollen frocks have short sleeves with white pique cuffs while last season's three-quarter length sleeves are right out of favor. The ensemble is important for occasions all round the clock.

Silk Dinner Frocks

Dior calls his short evening dresses "little dinner frocks" even when they are made of such dressy materials as oottned, sequined silk. They are worn under taffeta or organza hem-length coats.

Full evening gowns for next season fill the room and are likely to provide anp a transport problem.

Flash-colored nylons are starting but the milestone of the collections is the swing from the heavy fabrics of last season to fragile fabrics emphasizing great simplicity and natural silhouette.

Pin checks and pin stripes, silk crepes, chiffons and pique are used by every house. The lack of prints is notable—and when they are included they re often designed in vertical bands.

Balmain has designed his own patterns, all of modern inspiration. An all-over pattern of chicken wire on a dark background is used for a slip dress and matching jacket.

The new color introduced this season is a mushroom shade, a pale biege with a rosy tint. This color falls in step with the spicy shades, from gold to honey, that shine orange and yellow promise in bright summer, but for the spring navy blue touched with white remains the favorite.

The bare top and low decolletes are finished. The 1920 long scarf has ousted them. There are long chiffon scarves organdy bows tied round the neck and scarves cut in one with coats and dresses. Where decolletes are low, they are filled in with fabric or jewelry.

New School Drops Progressive Idea Now Tries Discipline

By DAVID TAYOR MARKE

New York — (AP) — A determined mother of four children who thinks progressive education is "hogwash" is busy putting her ideas into actual school practice.

With the slogan "self-expression through self-discipline" and recruits ranging in age from two to 12, Mrs. Isabelle P. Buckley has been quietly spreading her ideas for the last 15 years.

The tall, blone, young-looking mother, founder and head of the Buckley Schools of California, says she is opposed to "progressive" education because "a child needs a sense of order in his world if he is to feel secure. He urgently requires a pattern for living, not only to guide him but to give him comfort and assurance. Disciplined education provides that pattern."

Expanding her theories in an interview between conferences with New York book publishers, Mrs. Buckley compared disciplined education to the fence surrounding a child's play yard.

"It is not a barrier as much as a boundary," she maintains. "It defines—rather than confines — the child's world.

"What has come to be regarded as 'progressive education' has failed to fulfil this vital function. In an attempt to widen the child's horizon it has torn down the backyard fence. The result has been merely to deprive the child of emotional security and to dissipate his creative instincts."

When Mrs. Buckley organized her first small class of students in 1934, "discipline" was not popular word with professional educators of the very young.

Idea Spreads

Starting on a shoestring and dependent upon tuition fees for capital her plan "grew like topsy" Now there are three Buckley schools in greater Los Angeles; two ready to be launched in Omaha, Nebraska and Grosse Pointe Park, Michigan; and other pilot schools in the planning stages for most of the principal United States cities.

Mrs. Buckley considers the desire to learn and the enjoyment of learning 'the essential prerequisites of education." This philosophy is reflected in emphasis on good manners. Visitors to the schools are sometimes startled by the politeness of the youngest pupils.

Mrs. Buckley points to her art classes as an example of "self-expression through self-discipline." Before two-year-olds are turned loose with their paints and crayons, they are taught a "design alphabet," consisting of the basic shapes and forms and given instruction in the meaning of textures and color.

Other innovations are foreign language study (French or Spanish) for all students from two through 12, as insurance against juvenile inertia; thorough training in the fundamental principles of musical theory; Bible study in all grades, and prayers before classes. Older children, six to 12, receive instruction in all primary subjects, as well as public speaking, physical education, dramatics and dancing.

"Psychologists," she says, "have long recognized the formative years from two to six as vital to a child's future emotional and mental well-being. Yet these are apt to be the most wasted years of all, when children are left largely to their own devices at home or bundled off to nursery schools and camps.

This Exhibition Shows What's Not Wanted

London. (CP)— Manufacturers were interested viewers at a show given recently in North London. The show presented the housewives don't like.

Highlight was a quiz between women with grievances and shopkeepers with stocks of goods that come in for criticism.

Mrs. R. E. Greenwall of the Friern Barnet Urban Council Women's Advisory Panel on Housing gave the following examples of faulty exhibits:

Gate-leg tables that give at the legs unexpectedly and upset the best china.

Wardrobes with narrow doors in the middle that leave the interior dark and make it necessary to grope for the contents.

Plastic lamps that are not adaptable and do not throw light on a book when reading in bed.

Engines with removable screws that can be handled by a young baby and lost or swallowed.

Teacups so wide and shallow that tea cools too quickly.

Light fittings that are cumbersome and ugly; catching clothes and making it difficult to fit furniture against the walls.

Light plugs that are cumbersome and ugly, catching clothes and making it difficult to fit furniture against the walls.

Object is to show manufacturers what women—don't like. But one side of the show will be occupied by up-to-date-designed articles selected by the London region of the Design and Industries Association.

Younger Generation Given Chance to Display Clothes At Kinette Club Fashion Show

With fashion shows the order of the day the youngest generation had its turn on Wednesday afternoon and evening at the Capitol theatre when the presentation called "Fashions on Parade" was given under the auspices of the Kinette Club. All the clothes used on the captivating little mannequins were supplied by the Children's Shop.

Mrs. W. C. McCutcheon was commentator, introducing each small model in a delightfully informal manner and describing the type and style of garment each wore. Mrs. W. Warham supplied suitable music at the piano.

The stage formed an attractive setting for the presentation with bright spring blooms banked at both sides. The backdrop was original and novel depicting nursery scenes. This was designed and executed by Mrs. George Faulkner. The flowers on the platforms and in the corsages were donated by Templer's flower shop.

Leading the parade of styles for the younger set, Larry Mott appeared in a weather tickle suit complete with bow tie. Next came Gordie McNaught clad in green bodyguys with a matching cord-uroy cap. Judy McKnight was next wearing a wool coat set designed by Mrs. George Faulkner. The flowers on the platforms and in the corsages were donated by Templer's flower shop.

Judy McKnight was next wearing a wool coat set designed by Mrs. George Faulkner. The flowers on the platforms and in the corsages were donated by Templer's flower shop.

Nylon Jacket Shown

Jimmy Lang wore a scarlet nylon jacket which has the advantage of quick drying when it is laundered. With this was shown grey trousers and cap. Larry and Stephen Mott riding a tricycle appeared on the stage with suede play outfits, popover jackets with the older boy wearing long trousers and the younger one short ones.

Meribeth Follwell and Brenda Black appeared in big and little sister suits of navy blue with collars of white embroidered eyelet and stroller hats. Ronnie Ernstein attired in a cowboy outfit complete with chaps rode a toy horse across the stage in true western style.

Looking sweet and demure in an apricot coat of fine English wool little Heather Ketcheson of embroidered organdy over pink with a pink sash circling her waist.

Jane Scott and Jimmy Lang made a pretty picture in brother and sister outfits, Jane wearing a yellow blazer with navy skirt, and Jimmy reversing the color scheme with a navy jacket piped in yellow.

All ready for bed, hugging their Teddy bears and looking most winsome in their pink blue and lace nighties and pyjamas the three smallest models looked as though nothing but sweet dreams would attend them.

The next age group were represented by Joanne and Diane Rawson who appeared in twin outfits of navy loppers with grey skirts. Brenda Black wore a grey silt with a skirt of pastel blue and grey plaid. Jane Scott was all ready for a rainy day in a navy raincoat trimmed with grey corduroy. This was completed with a red umbrella and gloves to match.

Identical Suits

Rodney Follwell made his appearance in a double breasted camel's hair coat, and following him came Barbara Annis and Margaret Arnott in identical suits of English flannel, one in grey and the other in blue. Barbara Payne wore a checked suit made in coachman style with two boxed pleats which had buttons and jacket outlined with green velvet.

Paul Yanover wore a trench coat belted in the style of a man's. Cara Butler made her entrance in a beige coat in English twill with a brown stroller hat. This was worn over a wool and cotton plaid dress with a wide collar.

Steven Safe modelled a coat with an alpaca lining which could be zippered on making it suitable for cold weather or spring wear.

Sun Dresses Shown

A navy broadcloth sun dress trimmed with lavish embroidery was shown by Maxine Rose. Also showing a sun dress was Linda Lennox whose dress showed the popular eyelet trim and bolero. An unusual dress worn by Vicki Wakefield was a sun dress with a hoop skirt which was detachable and had an underskirt of white. Barbara Payne appeared in smart scarlet corduroy skirt with slacks of the same material and shade as an alternative. John Bonn modelled a coat of Donegal tweed over a brown suit, and John Rawson showed a navy blue grey flannel suit.

The most enjoyable part of the program, from the viewpoint of the male performers was a dash across the stage by five enthusiastic cowboys shooting cap guns. Their costumes were complete ringings for the true gentlemen from the West, and the cap guns and a shield added the authentic touch.

Novel little touches such as handkerchiefs tucked into a pocket in the sleeve or collar of a dress were details that gave distinction to a garment. Swish swish suits which were as brief as possible to allow for sun tanning were shown in striped satin shirred to make a good fit. Lavish use of eyelet trim was shown and corduroy seemed to be a popular material with the well dressed young child. Even riding togs were displayed with popover jackets and jodhpurs.

All Take Part in Finale

The highlight of the showing was the finale in which all took part. This took the form of a party with Linda Lennox acting as hostess. As each small guest came in dressed in a party frock or suit and carrying a gift wrapped parcel they formed a charming ensemble. The crowning touch was a birthday cake complete with lighted candles which revolved on a music box and played "Happy Birthday".

Kinette Helen Wilbur, President of the club, assisted briefly explaining the work which the Kinettes are doing. All proceeds are to be used for charitable work. Other projects are being supported by the club including the purchase of white canes for the blind and talking books. The president expressed appreciation for the interest shown in the work of the club which is an auxiliary service group in the Kinsmen.

Besides the firms and individuals already mentioned thanks were expressed by Mrs. McCutcheon to Dolan's, who provided the Vita Ray make-up; the staff of the Capitol Theatre; Farrar's Home Furnishing; Kent Shoe Store; Northern Electric; the Big A for the spotlight; Reid's Dairy; Percival Furniture Stores; Ernie Colborne from Upper Canada News; McNab's Sports Shop; Walker Hardware; Georgia Salon; Retail Jewellers' and Gift Shop Association; Mrs. Yanover; and all others who contributed to make the show a success.

Movie Shown

A movie of "Father is a Bachelor" was shown following the style show.

The presentation was repeated for the evening performance.

Prize winners in the afternoon were Mrs. Taylor, a table lamp; Mrs. Hales, 30 quart milk tickets; Miss Dorothy Leckie, one year's subscription to McCall's magazine; Mrs. Ken Schulman, aprons; Mrs. Bussey, a flashlight. A prize to the youngest mother went to Mrs. Malcolm; the oldest mother, Mrs. W. J. Moore; the largest family, Mrs. Charles Jeffs and the youngest grandmother, Mrs. Jack Watson.

Manitoba-Born Nurse Elevated To Top Post

Ottawa, March 16. (CP)— A Manitoba-born nurse who saw front-line service in the second World War, has been elevated to the top post in medical post in the Canadian army.

She is Major Edna E. Andrews of Rapid Heights, Sask. Her appointment as matron-in-chief, Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, was announced, today by Defence Minister Claxton.

She succeeds Major (Principal Matron) Dorothy F. Ballantine of Prince Albert, Sask., and Winnipeg, who retires after holding the post since 1946.

Born in Miami, Man., Maj. Andrews graduated from the Saskatoon City Hospital in 1931. She later took post-graduate studies at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, and gained appointment to the R.A.M.C. in 1941.

Like her predecessor, Maj. Andrews went overseas in the Second World War. From the end of 1944 until March 1945 she served as assistant matron at No. 6 Canadian General Hospital during the campaign in Northwest Europe. Later she became acting matron with No. 18 General Hospital. In 1945 she was made an associate of the Royal Red Cross.

From June 1946 until her present appointment she was employed at the Toronto Military hosp-

Lamb Patties with Bacon
Serves 4

The fact that prices were lower in other items doesn't mean much unless you understand the items referred to.

A whole lamb, for instance, which cost all of 72 cents in the 13th century was actually expensive eating because money values were so different from ours. But some habits in the 13th century were remarkably similar to the 20th.

The period between Christmas and Shrovetide was the favorite time of the year for eating lamb, just as it is now. After Lent had passed, the price of lambs dropped. You could then buy a whole lamb for 4 cents.

People who like chopped meat in its varied forms should try lamb patties, which are merely hamburgers made from lamb instead of beef. The lamb must be young or it will have the strong taste of mutton. But you can buy any of the cheaper cuts such as the neck and shank.

An attractive way to cook lamb patties is to wrap each one with a strip of bacon before broiling, and then serve the cooked patties with broiled orange slices.

Order 1 1-4 pounds of ground spring lamb. Neck, shanks or any cheap cut may be used but the meat should not be too fatty.

To the ground lamb add 2 tablespoons grated onion, 2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper, 1 tablespoon catsup, 2 tablespoons fine bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons cold water, 1 teaspoon salt and 1-4 teaspoon pepper.

Shape lamb into 4 individual round cakes, handling meat as lightly as possible to keep it from getting tough.

Wrap 1 slice of bacon around the side of each patty. Fasten bacon with toothpick.

Place lamb patties under a moderate broiler flame. Broil until bacon is brown on both sides and until bacon is crisp.

While lamb is broiling, cut the skins and all white membrane off 2 large California navel oranges. Cut oranges into crosswise 1-2 inch slices. Place slices on a shallow pan. Sprinkle with sugar. Keep under broiler flame only long enough to heat through. Serve orange slices with lamb on serving platter.

Superb Flavour!

WILL GIVE RECITAL

NEIL VAN ALLEN

Again Belleville can lay claim to an outstanding young artist of exceptional talent. Neil Van Allen, who is being sponsored by the Scroptimist Club, and giving a recital next Monday in the Collegiate Auditorium, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. K. C. Van Allen, both of whom were former staff members of the O.S.D.

Local interest and color will be added to Neil Van Allen's performance here due to the fact his immediate relatives still reside in this city.

He was honored by being chosen to represent Young Canada at the Wagnarian Centennial held in Ottawa last year.

This is the second local young artist of outstanding ability to be sponsored by the Scroptimist Club of this city.

Critics say: This brilliant young artist plays with absolute authority and power and builds vast musical volume with character and color.

A limited number of tickets are still available at the Georgia Salon, Bill Cook's cigar store and from members of the Scroptimist Club.

Bigger Breakfasts, Smaller Lunches And Avoid Snacks

Toronto, March 16 — (CP)— People should eat bigger breakfasts and smaller lunches and refrain altogether from between-meal snacks, in the opinion of George Heckman of Montreal, president of the Canadian Restaurant Association.

Here for the association's annual convention, the restaurateur who supervises preparation of 18,000,000 meals a year told a reporter between convention sessions that periods and mid-morning coffee are doing nobody any good.

He said that through morning coffee, afternoon tea and late evening munching, people get stomach trouble.

Rev. John W. Foote, deputy commissioner of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, Tuesday told the convention that "those restaurant operators who put service to the public at their first consideration and the sale of liquor as the second cause very little trouble for our department."

Mayor Hiram McCallum urged the association to "put teeth" into its regulations concerning sanitary conditions in restaurants. He said 300 Toronto restaurants were closed during the last three years because of unsanitary conditions.

Club Activites

Beulah United Church Y.O.U.

Ivanhoe— On Monday evening the regular meeting of the Y.O.U. was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Mitz with approximately 50 in attendance. The meeting opened with quiet music played by Eleanor Reid, and the president, Doris V. Twiddy, conducted the worship service. The scripture lesson, Philippians 4:4-8 was read by Larry Mitz.

A message on the scripture was given by the president, who said that as we live in darkness, but that God has invested every life with the power of influence and as we fashion our own lives, they become forces to shape the lives of others. A challenge was given for each to live a life close to God, and through daily devotion and prayer to Him, we discover a faith that is rich and abiding."

Minutes from the last meeting were read by the secretary and a short business period followed. Plans were made for the Frankford play which is to be presented on Friday evening, March 17, and also for the Y.O.U. supper which will be held on the evening of March 22nd.

The evening's program was conducted by Mr. Keith Bray who read Psalm 8 verses 2-32 "And Jesus increased in wisdom and in stature and in favor with God and man." The topic, given in two parts, was taken by Mr. Harry Lovibond. He opened his talk around the theme: a reading, by Edgar Guest entitled "Service" was read by Mrs. Harry Lovibond; a duet was rendered by Mrs. George Wood, and Mrs. Earl McMaster, "There is a Green Hill Far Away", a poem "The Beautiful Life" was given by Clare Hagerman.

A group of boys and girls sang the hymn "Fairest Lord Jesus," and Mrs. Charles Keeble and son Wayne favored with a piano duet. A humorous reading was read by Larry Mitz and Joyce Reid rendered a piano solo. An instrumental number was given by Doris V. Twiddy, "Star of the Sea" Mrs. Earl McMaster gave a very interesting talk on her recent trip to California.

Recreation was conducted by Margaret Wright and refreshments were served.

A vote of thanks was extended by Mrs. Elymer Rollins for the very kind hospitality accorded.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

A serious problem . . . asking for an invitation for a guest

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm terribly hurt and disturbed by some bitter criticism of a friend of mine, this criticism having been passed on to me by several mutual friends. I'm appealing to you to give me, please, your advice as to what I should do about it. The circumstance was that I was invited by this friend to a dinner at her house, and I accepted. Then a college friend of mine wrote me that she was to be near our city on that date and could she come to visit me for several days. I wired her of course to come, and then I telephoned to my hostess-to-be asking her if I could bring my visitor to the dinner.

The hostess seemed confused, said that it was to be one of her customary dinners for ten, that her dining-table didn't accommodate more guests, and that even so, if there were an extra girl she (the hostess) would have to invite a man guest. Of course I said I understood, apologized for asking. But there was certainly a chill in the air then, and also in my hostess' attitude to me at her dinner. Now I hear that she is criticizing me severely, saying that my request was "horribly rude", "incredibly awkward". Was this such a terrible thing to ask of a friend? If so is there anything you can suggest that I do about making amends?

Joan L.

I'm sorry I can't give you much solace about your rudeness, your thoughtlessness, however impulsive it was. I believe I am right in judging that you knew the type of dinner your friend is accustomed to give, and that, disregarding this, you forged ahead and asked for an invitation for a guest you apparently (am I right?) wanted to impress. I entirely agree with the hostess that your request was "rude", and "incredibly awkward" . . . although I definitely do not approve of your hostess' broadcasting her criticism of you. My advice is that you ask your hostess if you may come to see her, talk this happening over with her, apologize deeply for your unthinking-ness," and ask her forgiveness. Gloomy and humiliating are powerful forces in forgiveness!) Then, as soon as possible, invite her either to a dinner at your house, or to some "occasion" that you think would be of particular delight to her, in other words, as soon as possible re-establish the status of your friendship.

Gift for Third Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A friend of mine is to be married soon . . . her third venture. She has invited me to her wedding. Am I obligated to give her a wedding present? (I gave her a wedding present the first time and the second time.)

Sallie N.

No, there is really no obligation for you to give her a wedding present. However, this does depend on circumstances. For example, if she is an intimate friend of yours and you feel a special interest in the new marriage of hers, it would be quite natural, I should think, for you to give her some thoughtful present to show your friendliness and interest.

Club Activities

West Huntingdon—The March meeting of the Daisy Mission Band was held at the home of the leader, Mrs. P. Hammond.

Sheila Wilson read the scripture from Math. Chapter 11. Lois Cooke and Eleanor Wright sang a lovely duet "Sweet Hour of Prayer."

The roll call was answered with each member giving a Bible verse with 10 present.

Betty and Margaret Devolin of Madoc were guests of the Mission Band and favored with two duets "In the Garden," and "Leaning on the Everlasting Arms." with Betty playing the guitar.

Mrs. Hammond gave a reading "Peter's Denials" telling how Peter learned to spend his money wisely and also to honor God by giving Him His share of all his earnings.

More choruses were sung and Betty Devolin read the Study Book about a little Filipino girl who threw her gambling cards away when she learned to love Jesus.

Mrs. Hammond told the Bible story taken from 2nd King of "Noomon the Leper" and how he was cleansed from the dreadful disease by dipping in the river Jordan seven times.

A Bible contest was enjoyed by all the children and marshmallows, cookies and cocoa were served.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Home-made cosmetics

Illustrated by Alice Dobson Hardwick

This toiletry was kept a great secret

When great-grandmother was a girl, she encased her svelte frame in a steel-riveted corset. She wore silk mitts, carried a tiny sunshade, rode in a phaeton. She believed that sunlight was the enemy of her complexion, and so on hottest days wore a thick veil. That was the era of the clinging vine type. If mama wanted a new black silk dress, she got it by wheedling papa. Fancy that!

Cosmetics were considered sinful, but, just the same, some of the prettier brewed beauty aids. A formula for a cold cream was passed along from generation to generation. This toiletry was compounded on the sly, was kept a great secret. No perfume was added. Some suspicious masculine nose might smell it and the user would be looked upon as a social outcast. Plenty of water has run under the pulchritude bridge since then. What a dull world that must have been for the female of the species.

Why don't women make their own cosmetics now? Why don't they lace themselves into eighteen inch waists? Other days, other ways. Better creams are purchased for moderate sums than any woman can whip together in the kitchen.

Most creams are combinations of oils and fragrant waters. A common formula of the past consisted of white wax, spermaceti, oil of sweet almonds and rosewater—in proper proportions. The oily elements were equalized by means of heat, the rosewater added, the mixture beaten to a fluff. The slightest variations in measurements and weights would produce a failure.

Creams that we use now are somewhat different. Lanolin, which is soothing to the skin, is a leading ingredient. Borax is sometimes included, as it is difficult to get the right consistency without it. The drying properties of borax are overcome by the oily elements.

Some cosmetic chemists employ expensive products that drug stores do not handle at all, so they are not available to the amateur cosmetic mixer.

Anyone who has ever visited a cosmetic laboratory realizes that fine products require the experience of the professional. Complexion powders are mixed with the greatest care, put through special, final sieves—finer than boiling cloth—so they will have the softness and smoothness of the powder on a butterfly's wing.

To endeavor to compound perfumes is just plain crazy. That is the most difficult of all cosmetic projects. Experts will experiment for weeks before producing an exquisite blend.

Home-made hair dyes are out of the question. To use them is to pour troubles on one's head.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Wants to find a lost friend

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am anxious to get in touch with a young man who was a childhood friend. While he was in the South Pacific with the Navy during the war, he contracted a tropical disease, and he told me he was going to stay with the Navy to get medical care.

I have not heard from him now for about three years, and both my husband and I are anxious to know how he is.

Do you know of any way we could locate him? Do you think the American Red Cross could help?

J. C.

Dear J. C.:

I think the Red Cross might be very helpful in trying to trace the young man, and I suggest that you also write to the Navy Department in Washington. Naturally you should in each case give all the data you have about the young man that might make it easier to locate him.

A ludicrous relationship

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am in my middle twenties and belong to several organizations in town, some of which are mixed groups of younger and older people. Through one of these groups I met a nice boy who has shown a great interest in me.

Because of the fact that he is ten years younger than I am, I do not know what to do about him. He calls me up ,asks me to go places with him, and wants to dance with me and no one else. I do not want to hurt him, but I feel that continually being with him will lessen my chances of meeting other young men more my own age. He does not care to associate with people his own age, and he actually does seem much older than they are.

S.

Dear S:

If you are in your middle twenties, say 24, 25 or 26, and this boy is ten years younger than yourself, then he must be either 14, 15 or 16 and any great friendship between you two of any kind would be ludicrous. I think you will just have to consistently decline his invitations as kindly and tactfully as you can ,so that after awhile he will get the point and stop asking you.

I agree with you that it would be too bad to hurt the boy, but at the same time there is no reason why a girl of your age should carry on an unsuitable relationship merely for that reason.

Alaska, Hawaii Seek Statehood, Wait for Senate

Washington — (AP) — Alaska and Hawaii have moved a step nearer statehood. That doesn't mean they'll get in, at least this year.

The United States House of Representatives has approved statehood for both of them. Unless the Senate agrees, and it may not, the House action means nothing.

Next year there'll be a new Congress. And, in a new Congress, what either house did in a previous Congress doesn't count. In that case, the two territories will have to start from scratch again. Both have been seeking statehood a long time.

The U.S. bought Alaska from Russia in 1867 for $7,200,000. It wasn't allowed to become a territory until 1912.

A territory can elect its own legislature but the president appoints the governor.

Alaska and Hawaii are each allowed one delegate in Congress. But he can't vote, even when Congress is passing laws affecting his territory.

The people in a territory pay all the federal taxes but, although they're U.S. citizens, they can't vote in a national election.

The U.S. annexed Hawaii, which was then a republic, in 1898 and made it a territory in 1900.

Alaska with an area of 585,000 square miles, has a population of about 100,000 people, more than many of the present states had when they were admitted to the union. Hawaii, made up of seven islands with an area of about 6,-400 square miles, has a population of 540,000, of which 86 per cent are U.S. citizens.

The people in both territories have voted in favor of statehood. Congressional committees have investigated the problem. The Democratic and Republican parties have promised statehood for both territories in their party platforms. The President approves.

Action in 1947

Pressure to get the job done began in the 1930s. First action came in 1947. Then the House voted to let Hawaii come in. The Senate has never voted. So nothing happened. This year the House now has voted for Hawaii again and, for the first time, for Alaska, too.

The people in both territories argue that they've more than served their apprenticeship as territories. They're both experienced in running their territorial affairs, but, nevertheless, Congress really runs them, and makes laws for them. Yet, their people have no voice in shaping those laws.

Although residents of the territories have to pay federal taxes, they don't receive the full benefits from federal laws that states get.

Congressmen opposed argue that if admitted Alaska and Hawaii would have two senators each, since every state has two senators. In addition, Hawaii would be entitled to two representatives in the House. Alaska would have one.

In their local elections, about 100,000 Hawaiian residents vote. In Alaska the vote is about 20,000. Therefore, Alaska would have two senators representing only 20,000 voters whereas states with millions of votes are allowed only two.

Monthly Foreign-Trade Profit At Lowest Point Since War

Ottawa, March 16 — (CP)—figure for January 1949. Canada's drive for a larger share of the United States market showed marked succes sin January, but tightening markets in other parts of the world forced her monthly foreign-trade profits to the lowest point since the war.

In the first month of the year Canada sold $223,800,000 worth of goods on foreign markets and sharply trimmed her buying from other countries to $211,900,000 for a profit of $11,800,000.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics said Tuesday in a survey of foreign trade that the January profit was $2,400,000 below the $15,200,000 trade surplus for the same month in 1949, and far below the whopping $104,200,000 balance in 1948.

Despite the over-all profit decline, Canadians sold $113,000,000 worth of goods to the U.S. in January—the highest peacetime figure for that month and a marked increase from the $117,500,000

Claims University Kept Father Virtual Prisoner

Reno, Nev., March 15 — (AP) — Charges that Temple University kept a noted Philadelphia surgeon a virtual prisoner in his last years and gave him "exaggerated personal attention" in order to win his million-dollar-plus wealth were made by the man's daughter in a will contest action here.

The action by Mrs. Janice Chase King of Silver Spring, N. D., was filed Tuesday. Lawyers indicated it was the first legal step toward having set aside the $1,400,000 in gifts the surgeon, Dr. Theodore Chase, 84, left to Temple.

Dr. Chase's will bequeathed all but $1,000 to Temple.

Maritime Potatoes Said to be Taking Ontario Market

Toronto, March 16 — (CP) — Maritime potato growers are losing the Ontario market from local growers with better grading and packaging, members of the Ontario legislature agriculture committee said.

Frank Perrin, chairman of the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Board, said Ontario farmers sell direct to truckers who go into the fields and take everything, regardless of size or quality. Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick potatoes, however, were handled through a central organization that graded, packaged and shipped. In shipping to a market 2,000 miles away they naturally shipped only the best.

The Ontario farmer, however, realized more for his crop, Mart-time potatoes that didn't make the grade were scrapped. In one case New Brunswick growers got only 50 cents for a 160 pound barrel of potatoes that was converted into starch.

Roscoe Robson (PC—Hastings East) told of one eastern Ontario shopkeeper who is switching P.E. I. potatoes because potatoes supplied him by a Toronto wholesaler were diseased. All he was offered for return of the shipment was 35 cents a bag.

Alcoholic Deaths Double in France in Post-War Era

RUSSELL HOWE

Paris (Reuters).—Wine is 40 times dearer in France today than pre-war years but liquor is causing more deaths among Frenchmen.

Figures issued by the French ministry of health show that deaths from delirium tremens almost doubled in 1948 compared with 1947, and treatment of chronic alcoholics cost the taxpayers over $8,400,000 a year in government efforts to treat sufferers.

During the German occupation, France suffered a prohibition period more severe than the 'dry' years in the United States. The reaction when wine, rum, liquers, whisky, brandy and spirits again flooded the market was worse than the most pessimistic health experts predicted.

Absinthe — nicknamed "slow suicide"—was banned in 1915 and sixty governments have tried to find a successor, pastis, in 1940. Recently governments have tried to get it back on the counter as a tax-earner; but the idea has each time been rejected as a somewhat comical way of improving French post-war "recovery."

Today the strongest drink which is cheap and at the same time available anywhere is pernold, which has an alcoholic content of 45 degrees and costs about 40 francs a time, depending on the cafe. But the most popular drink is red wine.

Before the war "gros rouge" including the strong, heady marseras and other cheap Algerian wines, cost two francs a bottle and 10 centimes a glass. Today price is 70-80 francs a glass. Wages have risen by a coefficient of approximately 14—which means that in practice wine costs the family budget three times more than it did before the war.

Figures for 1949 are not yet available.

The same hospitals reported a still greater feature of the rise in alcoholism; 43 percent of child mental cases, they say, owe their condition to the alcoholism of their parents or grandparents.

Another state department interested in the drinking habit is the ministry of justice. Three large prisons reported that among their 1948 intake 14.5 percent of prisoners had committed the crimes for which they were sentenced under the influence of intoxicants; 15.5 percent were chronic alcoholics; and 35.3 percent were mentally weak because of "an alcoholic heredity."

During 1948, according to the ministry of health, 6,393,225 working days were lost because of excessive drinking.

The ministry says that the tax on liquor and the income tax paid by those yinrfell, TAOIN paid by those who direct or work for companies or farms connected with the wine industry can never balance the medical and penitentiary costs in which the state is involved through "alcoholism."

The French man in the street is surprised to learn that his country drinks more than ever. Thirty-eight percent of the working population earns 18,000 francs (about $50) a month or less.

Louis Neault, 83 Ice-Cutting Boss

Mattawa, Ont., —(CP)—When Mattawa residents are visiting tourists use ice to cool their food and drink next summer, they will be getting the benefit of Louis Neault's 42 years of experience in cutting and handling ice.

Now 83, Mr. Neault has been superseding this winter's ice-cutting operations on the Mattawa River here.

An ice-cutter, drawn across the bay by a truck, cuts the big blocks out of the river ice. Then men haul the ice to shore and pack it in ice houses.

Mr. Neault has found that it is best to use a few inches of snow to separate the layers of ice cakes. The snow helps keep ice cold and makes it easy for the blocks to be lifted out when warm weather comes.

It's Not Like Home Muses Northern Lad

BY RENO RINALDI
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg. —(CP)—The ways of the city are strange to 18-year-old Lief Ingebrigtsen, but he takes to them like a white whale takes to water. And the youth from Churchill, Man., is more used to white whales than to city crowds.

The younger brother of famed Arctic pilot Gunnar Ingebrigtsen was impressed and a little thrilled by the things Winnipeggers regard as commonplace—tall buildings, revolving doors, street-cars, big restaurants and hotels. This is the first time he's seen anything like it.

He was born in The Pas, Man., but his family moved to Churchill when he was three and his Winnipeg visit was his first trip out of the north.

He flew in with his brother Gunnar and is taking flying lessons while their aircraft undergoes an engine overhaul. He hopes to work with his brother, who flies for Arctic Wings, a charter airline serving such northern communities as Eskimo Point, Pelly Bay and Chesterfield Inlet.

Some of the habits of city dwellers puzzled Lief at first. He had read about the custom of "tipping" in the restaurants. When he paid the check for his first meal in the city, he casually told the restaurant cashier to keep the change.

Revolving doors, too, were a bit of a poser. In his first encounter with them he tried to jump into the same section as his brother who was walking ahead of him.

"I didn't want to lose him," he said sheepishly, in an interview.

As a special treat in the first few days of his visit his brother took him to dine in a restaurant that specializes in both American and Chinese dishes.

"American or Chinese?" queried the waitress as she approached with two menus.

"I'm Norwegian, but what's' that got to do with the food?" said Lief, nonplussed.

Tells of Smuggling By Wartime Pilots

Hamilton, Bermuda, — (CP) — The story of wartime smuggling operations by trans-Atlantic fliers was told here recently by a man who did much to stop the traffic.

He is W. J. Finck, who retired after 32 years service as criminal investigator with the United States treasury department.

The fliers carried goods ranging from fountain pens to Mexican gold, he said. The smugglers operated between the United States and North Africa, by way of Canada.

Mr. Finck said he spent some time in Montreal during the war, checking on the movement of goods smuggled by air across the Atlantic. Many of the smuggled items found their way to the market in Dakar, French West Africa, where the fliers netted larg profits.

The former investigator recalls that two of the pilots who illegally exported gold and gold coins were caught with the goods.

One, arrested in North Africa with $170,000 in United States and Mexican gold coins, was fined $31,000 and his gold confiscated. The other flier, caught with $110,000 in undeclared dollars, also paid a heavy fine.

Mr. Finck has spent most of his carer in bringing smugglers to justice.

During the 1920s he was on the track of bootleggers in the Windsor Ontario, area. They were banded together in what was known as the "Purple Gang" and specialized in moving liquor across the Detroit River from Ontario.

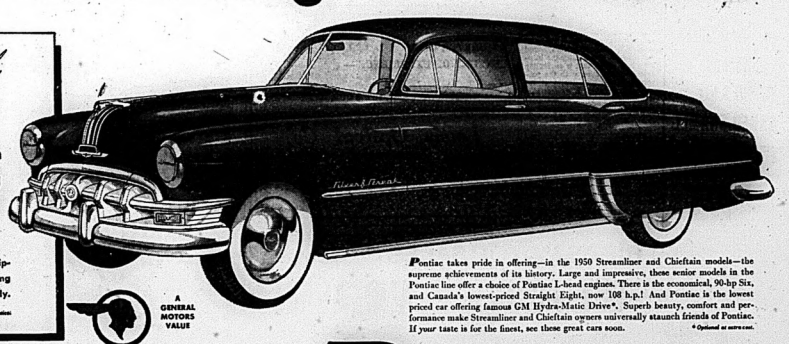
STREET NAMES SNARLED

Ottawa (CP) — About 150 street names in Ottawa and suburban municipalities are duplicated. The problem became worse with the recent annexation of parts of Nepean of Gloucester townships. So city clerk Nelson Ogilvie and representatives from municipalities involved have started weeding out the duplications.

We're Big Spenders!

That doesn't mean we're careless. It's just that in the course of turning out those fine Tex-made cotton products you know so well, we have to buy a great many things from all parts of the country.

We need packing cases and cardboard cartons, construction lumber, paper, potato and corn starches, coal, sulphuric acid, caustic soda, oils, lubricants and a hundred and one other things which we buy from fellow Canadians who grow or make them.



In addition to this the 12,500 men and women working in our plants, earn many millions of dollars a year in wages, dollars which are spent on foodstuffs from the farms of Canada, grains, cattle, hogs and poultry, fish from the fishermen on both coasts and the Great Lakes.

We are the customers of our fellow-Canadians just as they are our customers. We're proud to have a part in Canada's economic life by buying the goods which other Canadians grow, make or provide.

NON-CONFIDENCE

83 Speeches Made

Thus far in the month-old debate, there had been 82 speeches. Twenty-one of them had come from the 40 Progressive Conservative members, 11 from the 13 C.C.F. members and eight from the 16 Social Crediters. The 190 Liberals had delivered only 11.

The leaders' speeches—Mr. Drew spoke for 15 minutes and Mr. St. Laurent for 20—had been followed by the vote on the non-confidence motion moved during the first debate by the 15-member C.C.F. party.

An expansion of a still pending Progressive Conservative motion, it charged the government with deliberately "suppressing" last year's report of an alleged price-fixing combine in the flour-milling industry. It accused the government of "failing" to take action to expand markets, to inaugurate an extensive social-security program and to take steps against espionage and communistic activities.

The motion was supported by the C.C.F., Progressive Conservative and Social Credit parties and by two Independents, F.R. Gagnon, Chicoutimi, and Dr. R. Poulin, Beauce.

No sooner had the division ended than Solon Low, Social Credit leader, announced that he will move today a non-confidence motion outlining the views of his party.

Charges Govt. Stalling

Mr. Drew dealt with each of the four points mentioned in both his own and the C.C.F. motions of non-confidence.

At the outset, he charged that the government was "stalling" on a pre-election promise to abolish the means test now obligatory for old-age pensions.

(Under the present pensions system, a person to qualify for a pension must prove he is at least 70, that he is in need and that he has no other means of support. In some cases the pensioner is required to give a lien against any of his possessions so part of the pension may later be recovered from his estate.)

The government, said Mr. Drew, was asking for establishment of a committee to study the whole pensions question.

This move "exposed in all its naked reality the sham that has been behind the propaganda that has been carried on now for several years in regard to the responsibility of some provinces for holding up social security of various kinds."

The government had been saying for years that Ontario and Quebec, by refusing outside a taxation agreement with the federal government, were responsible for Canadians not having an over-all social-security program and an old-age pension system without the means test.

The government's move to establish an old-age pension committee showed there was nothing behind the allegation. The committee was to obtain information on old-age pensions, including figures on costs, and the number of pensioners.

"If the government has not the figures then the government was perpetrating a tremendous fraud on the provincial governments in 1945 because in that year the Dominion government presented to the conference a detailed statement of what they were prepared to do."

Mr. Drew, premier of Ontario during the 1945 conference, said he and Premier Duplessis of Quebec had urged that the Dominion-Provincial conference be reconvened.

Statement Brings Denial

The statement brought a denial from Mr. St. Laurent. He said he had never received any application from Quebec for a renewal of the conference. He knew that the Quebec government had stated it would not consider any constitutional amendment that would be required to tie contributions to social-welfare services.

Mr. Drew replied that Mr. Duplessis was capable of taking care of himself as he had in the past. However, as former premier of Ontario, Mr. Drew had on record as having asked that the conference reconvene.

Commenting on his 12-minute speech, Mr. St. Laurent said:

"Well, I may have been unfair in my appraisal of what the honorable member then wanted. I felt that he wanted to have partisan, political warfare. It probably was unfair to him—but you have heard his speech this afternoon."

In any event, the conference now was being reconvened—this fall.

Mr. Drew turned from social security to the major issue of the last session—the government's withholding for 10 months of a report on an alleged combine in the flour-milling industry. The combines investigation act requires that such reports be made public within 15 days.

He said that anyone who supported the government on the non-confidence vote would "declare his approval of the government's breach of one of the laws of this parliament."

Hand-in-Glove Charge

Mr. Drew added:

"If there is any party which by its acts has demonstrated that it is hand in glove with big interests with a capital 'B'—and I say capital 'B'—it is the party which has seen fit to say to one group of manufacturers, 'we are so virtuous we will prosecute you,' but to a very much larger group dealing with the main primary product of this country, 'oh, no; we dare not touch you.'

"If anyone wonders just why that should be so, let them look at and see who are the men in charge of some of these companies. Then they will not have to guess very long as to why there was such consideration."

Mr. Drew also spoke on the question of criminal-code changes to suppress activities of communists in Canada.

He said there is need for a criminal code section that will enable the courts to deal with the situation of anyone who advocates the overthrow of the state by force.

Mr. Drew also had something to say about the suggestion of Fisheries Minister Mayhew that a national export-import board be established to arrange for barter of Canadian goods with those of non-dollar countries.

The opposition leader said the minister originally had suggested that the board be financed and managed by the government and include representatives of Canadian manufacturers and wholesalers. A day later the minister had asked that a correction be made, but even with the correction it still was clear that Mr. Mayhew wanted a board that would be controlled by the government.

Correction Makes Clear

Mr. Mayhew rose twice and said his correction made it clear that what he wanted was a board that would be established, managed and financed by Canadian manufacturers and wholesalers. The government would contribute through trade commissioners abroad.

Mr. Drew persisted in saying that Mr. Mayhew was putting a new interpretation on his earlier remarks. Finally, Mr. St. Laurent interjected that Mr. Mayhew had made it clear what he meant.

Mr. Drew then accepted the statement, but said he felt Mr. Mayhew's subsequent change was prompted by "subsequent thought and discussion." The Fisheries Minister's statement was "senseless and meaningless" unless it meant what it originally did—that the government set up the proposed trading corporation.

On unemployment, Mr. Drew said there were power projects, irrigation and drainage programs that could be undertaken across the country to relieve unemployment. They could be paid for through the issuance of public debentures.

Mr. St. Laurent replied that hydro developments, irrigation, and drainage were matters which came within provincial jurisdiction. It was up to the provinces to take the initiative on such projects.

ONTARIO'S BUDGET

East Hastings Member Heard

In short Wednesday, Mr. Robson said lack of parity prices—a C.C.F. theme—was commensurate with increasing costs of goods they use—may reduce Ontario farmers to a class of peasant.

Farmers had formerly been reduced to a peasant condition by "vested interests", he said but a "brand-out" which the irresponsible organized labor.

"His Labor got such a hold on the throat of Ottawa as to make us hewers of wood and drawers of water" he said.

Rising farm costs were due to increased industrial wages, he said.

Eamon Park, (CCF—Toronto Dovercourt) asked: "Would the $9,000,000 profit of Massey-Harris have anything to do with it?"

Mr. Robson: "I don't know much about the intricacies of company financing but I do know that every time wages go up or social services are increased—which is the same thing as wages —up goes the price of the ploughshare we buy."

Quality Not Improved

"We wouldn't mind so much if the quality of things we buy were improved but they are not," he said. "Shorter hours, bigger pay watching the clock and being agitated by certain organizers doesn't help."

Mr. Robson said the national economy could ill afford not to pay farmers "the few dollars subsidy" required to offset the increase in the period of falling farm prices caused by the failure of the British market.

Mr. Grummett charged police were not enforcing laws regarding men who deserted their families and men could "walk away with impunity," leaving their wives and children a burden on the municipalities. A crime against property received more attention than a crime against humanity.

Wants Stiffer Penalties

Children of unmarried women were another burden on municipalities, and police made little effort to prosecute the putative father. He also called for stiffer fines against minors illegally entering beverage rooms.

Disagreeing with two CCF colleagues, G. I. Harvey (Sault Ste. Marie) and F. O. Robinson (Port Arthur) who have asked the government to designate Highway No. 17 around the north shore of Lake Superior as the Ontario section of the Trans-Canada Highway, Mr. Grummett favored Highway No. 11, which runs north from North Bay to Cochrane and west to Nipigon Bay and Port Arthur.

The road had been built for a considerable number of years and was in "appropriately first-class" condition.

A tremendous amount of construction" would be required to make Highway 17 around the north shore of Lake Superior suitable for the Trans-Canada Highway. There was 170 miles of the road still unfinished. The money required to finish this stretch would be "more than enough" to make Highway 11 "one of the best in the province."

"The money to construct one mile of the north-shore highway would finish not less that. 10 or 15 miles of Number 11," Le said Should Be Right

Mining municipalities should have the right to tax mines in the same way they tax ordinary businesses, he said. At present mines pay on profits and as much as no tax was levied until the mine showed a profit of $10 000. This was divided, 88 cents to the Federal government, eight cents to the province and four cents to the municipality.

Mr. Grummett said the provincial government subvention in lieu of mine tax was nothing but a "hand-out" which the municipalities should have as a right, not as a gift.

Mr. Temple charged that Ontario's liquor legislation is "designed to preserve the monopoly of the Ontario Liquor Control Board who won the Victoria Cross as a chaplain at Dieppe, Mr. Temple said he loved the liquor interests would not be allowed to use his clerical collar and his great reputation as a war hero" as a screen for their activities.

Surplus of Butter

Mr. Frost said sale of margarine in Ontario should have been permitted only as long as it was not detrimental to the butter industry. At present there was a surplus of butter and margarine sales which were causing dairy farmers huge losses.

Government grants to municipalities for construction or maintenance of homes for the aged tended to concentrate old people in country institutions. The "logical" place for them was their own homes, he said.

Mr. Thomas called for a government hospital-care program "Hundreds of thousands of wage earners" were living "in dread of the cost of prolonged medical attention" which the government now might "save them needless expense and endless pain," he said.

The government's program of assisting prospective home-owners with second mortgages had been a "disappointment." The government was "just making it easier for the mortgage companies to induce some people to accept commitments they can never fulfill."

Interest Too High Claim

The Municipal Improvemnt Corporation, set up to buy debenture from municipalities to aid construction of sewers and filtration plants, embodied a "very good principle" but at 2 1-2 per cent interest was too high. At interest rates of from 2 to 2 1-2 per cent it would be "a very fine piece of legislation."

Mr. Pringle asked the Lands and Forests department to formulate "some general policy" to give small saw-mill operators a better chance for "permanent survival". There were a number in his constituency who made a living cutting and selling small quantities of wood, mostly for local use.

"We should help the little fellows," he said. "The big fellows can look after themselves."

Mr. Sandercock said the present government had a "splendid" record in regard to homes for the aged. Before the government came into power in 1943 there had been no improvements in administration of homes for the aged for 100 years. Municipalities had been charged almost entirely with costs of maintenance of the homes. The province now paid 50 per cent of construction costs and 50 per cent of maintenance.

Big Profits too Easy to Make Under Socialism Says British MP

London, March 16 — (CP) — One man's opinion: The trouble with Britain is that it's too easy for business men to make big profits.

The statement, snatched slightly out of context, comes not from a soap-box orator in Hyde Park, but from a Conservative member of parliament who has now easy become Chancellor of the Exchequer.

As a young man, David Mc-Adam Eccles entered London's competitive business world without money or influence, and emerged with considerable of both. He does not oppose profits of such He just argues that under socialism money is made too easy to make and too hard to keep.

The tall, 45-year-old member long regarded as one of the Tory party's "coming young men," delivered his party's first major financial address of the year in the parliament. His chief theme was high profits and high taxes.

"One of the really bad features of the past few years," he told the House of Commons, "has been the ease which which profits could be made.

"What is now required is a return to competitive activity. Competition is a much better instrument for dealing with excessive profits than the deadening purgative of taxation imposed up on profits too easily made."

Eccles thus echoed a frequent criticism of government financial policy—that cozy markets in sterling countries dull the desire of British manufacturers to switch to dollar outlets. Taxation, regarded as probably higher here than anywhere else, is another common complaint.

As chief Conservative backbench critic on financial matters Eccles is occasionally caught in cross-fire of criticism. Some members of his own party are believed to consider his theories of "planning" a little precocious.

He has frequently lauded what he calls "popular capitalism." He says Tories should not be shy about recognizing the fact that suffrage is incompatible with great extremes of wealth. Eccles lives on a 200-acre Hampshire farm and is married to the daughter of a Lord.

MADOC

St. Peter's M.B. Holds Fine Program

Madoc—On Friday evening last, the Seed Sower's Mission Band of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc, put on a successful program. In keeping with their study of Japan this year, the children were Japanese costumes and had a corner of the platform decorated with cherry blossoms and articles that would be in a Japanese home.

In the songs and choruses which followed even the youngest members took part. They were accompanied on the piano by Miss Grant Lewis. In an interestitg lecture by the Rev, M. W. Heslip coloured pictures of Japan were shown.

Greetings from Mrs. W. D. Turner, Mission Band secretary for Kingston Presbyterial, were read by the leader, Mrs. M. W. Heslip. Then Mrs. John McCaffrey acting for Mrs. Turner, presented the Presbyterial banner, which for the second year in succession has been won by the Band of St. Peter's Church. Mr. Bob Bateman president of the Band, expressed their appreciation of this great honor as he accepted the banner.

Mission Band History

Mrs. McCaffery. in her address, gave some of the history of the Mission Band which was first organized in 1893. Many Christian leaders had been trained in this children's organization, and now children of the third and fourth generation were taking part.

Prizes for attendance and good work done in 1949 were presented by the leaders, Mrs. Heslip, Mrs. Robert Miller, Mrs. Donald Love, Miss Cecilia Heslip and Mrs. Emil Wannamaker. Four of the members, Barbara Bateman, Marcia Miller, Carolyn Reid, and Lameine Love had perfect attendance.

Two Junior Life Memberships, and pins given by the Women's Missionary Society were presented by Miss VanDieck and Mrs. Walter Brett to Mr. Tom Blue, past president, and Miss Carolyn Reid, past treasurer, for their faithfulness.

A very pleasing addition to this ceremony was the presentation of a Junior Life Membership to Mr. Bob Bateman by his grandmother, Mrs. Ben Miller, and to Miss Linda Weet by her grandmother, Mrs. George West. Linda is the fourth generation to be active in the W.M.S. in Madoc.

After Rev. M. W. Heslip closed the meeting, all enjoyed the refreshments which were provided by the members of the Women's Missionary Society.

Had Rheumatic Pains, Headaches, Dizzy Spells! Praises Syntona

Condition followed years of suffering with stomach gas, acidity and constipation. "Felt better after first few doses," he says.

MR. JOSEPH CLANCEY

"Syntona certainly has been a wonderful tonic for me, and I advise anyone who is feeling run-down this time of year to take it," said Mr. Joseph Clancey, Base Line Road, London, Ontario, in a recent report.

"For years I had been troubled with stomach gas, diarrhia and constipation. The gas pressed up into my chest and heart. I suffered with terrible headaches and dizzy spells. Later pains in my back and limbs and I became fatigued and rundown.

"I took all kinds of medicines and tonics and tried many medicines and ointments for my stomach and rheumatic pains that I was disconsolate. Then, one day I read about Syntona. I got some and before I had finished the first bottle I could tell it was helping my stomach, and in a few weeks I could eat foods that I didn't dare touch before. I had no more headaches and rheumatic pains, I began to sleep better and my whole system felt so much better. Now, when my friends ask me how I keep so fit, I tell them to try Syntona. I feel the need of a good tonic."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

MODEL GAS TURBINE

Ideas for gas turbine development in Canada were given a visual form by Seymour Levine, McGill University graduate, who constructed this scale model in workshops of the 1,200-horsepower engine. Shown here examining the model is Prof. Donald L. Mordell whose teachings on the subject prompted Levine to build the turbine. Police Believe Farmer Staying Away on Purpose

Port Perry, March 16. (CP) — Police said today they believe Harry Gray, 72-year-old Scugog Island farmer, is "voluntarily staying away."

The farmer, missing since Feb. 28, has cashed a $500 cheque, police chief George Holmes said. The money was apparently a personal loan from a friend, Ernest Wright, and the chief said he thought Gray "may be staying away as long as the money holds out."

A new development disclosed by police today was that a writ for $350 has been issued against Gray by a contractor who dug two holes on Gray's land last summer in search of clay. The chief said that Gray had formed a company last summer with ten shareholders. The company was to manufacture bricks from a type of clay he had discovered on the island, about 15 miles north of Oshawa.

The chief said he believed Gray went to Toronto to "straighten up some things".

Four days after he was reported missing Gray's wallet was mailed to his home with a note scribbled on a torn match folder. The note said the billfold was found in the East End in suburban Toronto. The note was received by his wife, still on crutches from the effects of a recent fall.

Two Psychiatrists Disagree Over Wolfe's Sanity

New York, March 16 (AP)—Two psychiatrists on Wednesday disagreed in court on the mental condition of Lewis Wolfe, convicted wife murderer who faces the electric chair if he is found sane.

WWolfe, a wealthy, 42-year-old Montreal contractor, was convicted in 1944 of murdering his Viennese actress wife with a steel-tipped shoe after she confessed infidelity.

Adjudged insane, he was committed to a state hospital. Last month he was adjudged sane and brought before Judge Louis Goldstein for sentencing.

But Wolfe talked so wildly in court, referring to himself as "the Messiah," that the judge ordered an examination by two independent psychiatrists.

One of the psychiatrists, Dr. Louis Berg, told the court today that he believed Wolfe was sane.

Dr. John F. McNeill told the judge he believed Wolfe insane.

Eskimo Trappers Take to Fishing

Churchill, Man.—(CP)—A lake 200 miles northwest of this Hudson Bay port is providing a new source of livelihood for some 300 Eskimos hard-hit by a drop in fur prices.

Nueltin Lake, which lies athwart the boundary between Manitoba and the Northwest Territories, teems with whitefish and lake trout. Six-pounders are the smallest the Eskimo-fishermen bother with.

Last fall, most of the Eskimos in the 12,000-square-mile area northwest of here existed almost entirely on family allowances because of the low prices for fox pelts, their only source of income.

Then, officials of the federal fisheries department flew to Nueltin Lake from Churchill. They reported that the fish there was of high enough grade for export.

The officials added that the lake could be a source of livelihood for Eskimos in the region for many years.

Plane Transport

Now a plane carries a 1 ½-ton pay load of fish twice a week from Nueltin Lake to Churchill, the end of the steel.

So far, the fish has been fast-frozen by nature herself. During the summer, the fish will be iced as they are pulled from the net and re-iced at least once before being placed aboard the plane.

During the winter, the Eskimo "jigs" his line through a hole in the ice. This is similar to the Newfoundland fisherman's method of going after squid, which is used for bait.

From as far north as Baker Lake and the Kazan River, the Eskimos have trekked south to Nueltin Lake. Though not all are fishermen, there is work for everybody. Hauling fish, chopping wood and putting up ice are some of the jobs connected with the fishery.

Duplessis Says Municipal Force A Strong Unit

(By The Canadian Press)

Premier Duplessis was speaking as Attorney-General of Quebec when he told the Quebec Legislature assembly Wednesday that while morality conditions in Montreal are not perfect, he is sure Montreal is as good a city as any other city of the same size in America.

Premier Duplessis said that the municipal force is entirely responsible in the city of Montreal. He noted recent reports of a vice situation and added that bookies in Montreal do the same kind of business that is done at race tracks. He said "some people don't understand" that bookies are illegal but betting at tracks is legal.

The Newfoundland legislature heard further arguments on Confederation with opposition leader G. Higgins declaring the terms of union were not properly negotiated. Premier Smallwood promptly interrupted him to say that no member of the Newfoundland delegation which negotiated the terms, including anticonfederates, was "prepared to see Newfoundland knifed."

The Prince Edward Island legislature was in committee on reports of the Fishermen's Loan Board, transportation division and the fish and game division.

Continues Debate

The New Brunswick House continued Throne-Speech debate with Dr. J. Clarence Bourque (L.—Madawaska) supporting establishment of a provincial mental clinic and a rehabilitation centre for accident victims. He also advocated religious training in public school and a program of anti-liquor education.

The Ontario legislature heard seven speakers in the Throne-Speech debate which is expected to conclude in formal divisions later today.

Speakers on both sides of the Manitoba legislature arose to criticize education policies and expenditures at Winnipeg when the provincial education department estimates were under discussion. A coalition government member, J. F. Anderson, said he felt a Royal Commission should investigate all phases of municipal costs including education.

At Regina the Saskatchewan Hansard reported Highways Minister Douglas announcement of a long-term 3,000-mile "black topping" estimates program. He said Saskatchewan has completed 600-miles of black-top road and about $3,000,000 would be needed in the next six years to replace or rebuild 1,100 worn-out bridges.

Colonel and Mrs. Rufus T. Spooner, Principal of the Salvation Army Training College, Toronto, who will visit the city with the "Standard-Bearer" session of officers in training.

Special services will be conducted in the Citadel March 21st to 26th, inclusive, and on Monday, March 27th, in the Collegiate Auditorium a very spectacular presentation in dramatic form, "The Flame of the Evangel."

Ulcer Victims Ignore Liner's Epicure Menu

Naples, March 16—(Reuters)—The British luxury liner Caronia, carrying many millionaires and more crew than passengers, arrived here with a full cargo of dyspeptic ulcers.

The main-lounge barman surveyed his well-stocked shelves and reflected sadly: "We ought to have run a milk bar instead."

The Caronia's 550 American and Canadian passengers left New York January 12 on this British dollar-earning junket.

The $2,000,000 they paid in fares alone include $20,000 contributions from Mrs. Harold S. Vanderbilts of New York City, and from old king Charles F. Urschel of San Antonio, Tex.

$4,500 Fares

The Vanderbilts and the Urschels occupy the only two three-room suites, one on each side of the afterpromenade deck. "Ordinary" passengers paid an average of $4,500 each for the 23-day cruise.

For this they got two-room suites, strung out like graduated rows of pearls on each side of the promenade deck.

Ship's officers aboard the 34,000-ton liner were quite privately that her cruise has probably made mercantile history, since her passengers are worth at least 10 times more than the ship. The Seagreen Caronia cost £7,000,000 ($21,700,000 to build.

The barman and stewards also think pleasure-cruise history has been made—but for another reason.

What a Menu!

"Look at this dinner menu", groaned a waiter. "Grapefruit maraschino, sliced pineapple, crab flakes, consommé royale, potage St. Louis, filet of sole, supreme of halibut, guinea chicken, roast Long Island duckling, galantine of capon, soufflé sicilienne, pear grande duchesse, fromage a la— but what's the use? I could go on all night.

"This is not a menu. It's an inspiration. Menus like these are not prepared every day.

"I am proud to present it. I present it with a flourish. I wait.

"Then what do you think happens? What . . . do . . . you . . . think . . . happens?"

The waiter's voice at this point rose to a crescendo which died a despairing moan.

He asked for a glass of milk and some crackers. Cold milk mind you, and plain crackers. Me, who served some of the best meals ever eaten by man.

From other parts of the ship similar tales poured in. The barman, who wished he had gone into the milk bar business, observed mildly that he had never known so little drinking among so many people before.

First of Winters

The leader of the ship's orchestra said he was getting just a tired of the Missouri waltz as Harry Truman must be. I have a slow-fast little bop-ping number here. Just arranged it. Night after night I try to put it over but no."

The ship's barber refused to say a word when asked about his customers. He pointed silently to a pile of cut hair on the floor. It was almost all grey.

The same would have been true in the ladies' department too, only that there has been an extra-heavy run on tints and dyes.

The purser and his officers maintained a discreet silence on the average age of the passengers. One of them, however, relaxed sufficiently to observe that "they are probably most over middle age."

THOMASBURG School Observes Education Week

Education Week was observed in Thomasburg Public School by all by two special meetings. A church service was held in the United Church Sunday evening, March 5th., with the minister Rev. M. Father Remembers Only Nicknames Of Seven Children

Atlanta, Ga., March 16—(AP)—A flustered taxpayer, making his United States income returns on the last-day deadline Wednesday, was the father of seven children.

But he couldn't think of their names to claim exemptions for them. Finally, one of the 68 special agents assisting with the returns let him use his children's nicknames.

Nor was this father alone in the deadline rush and confusion. Another late-comer wanted to claim his mother-in-law as an exemption, but couldn't remember her name.

New York, March 16—(AP)—city authorities, baffled for weeks by the steady disappearance of new trash baskets put on the streets at a cost of $10 each, today solved the mystery—of one of the baskets.

It was found in the basement of a restaurant, and a porter for the establishment was charged with stealing it from the street.

That leaves only 745 baskets to be found.

REACH FOR A RENNIE

Nurse May Not Get More Than $4,500 in Estate

Toronto, March 16 — (CP) — Mary Irene MacDonald's share of Ivanhoe Byrne Reynolds' estate may amount to $4,500.

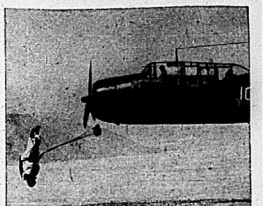
This was made known today by a lawyer acting for the 43-year-old former Edmonton nurse who said she lived for 18 years with the married Hamilton salesman.

The lawyer said a conference between legal representatives and court officials led to belief that the amount the woman will receive will probably be much less than the $18,000 it was originally reported she would get under terms of a will contested by Reynolds' widow and four grown daughters but declared valid Wednesday.

The final settlement has still to be determined. It may be decided after another court ruling as to who is entitled to what the will refers to as the "residue" of the estate.

The secret double life of the wealthy salesman came to light Wednesday.

Lamb Incurable, To be Put to Death, Tests Will be Made



Guelph, Mar. 16—(CP)—The three-week old lamb, brought to the Ontario Veterinary College after suffering injuries to both forelegs, is to be put to death today.

Dr. F. W. Schofield, head of the department of pathology, said the purpose of bringing the animal here was to perform a post mortem examination to determine the nature of a paralysis disease it was suffering and if possible find a remedy for it.

He said there was no hope of recovery for the animal and therefore it would be put to death mercifully and the carcass used for research purposes.

He made a request for an animal afflicted with a particularly mortem examination on it, he said. There was no intention of attempting to effect a cure.

BEGINNING A LONG, LONG DROP

Camera angles create the illusion that the chutist in this photo is about to be buzzed by an oncoming plane after he had dropped from another plane, near Los Angeles, Calif. But the plane passes over head with room to spare as he soars downward. Youth Sentenced On Forgery Count

Niagara Falls, Ont., March 16 —(CP)— Magistrate John B. Hopkins, today sentenced Keith Neveaux, 18, of North Bay to a reformatory term of one year definite and six months indeterminate on four charges of forgery to which he pleaded guilty.

Neveaux was brought here from Toronto where he was placed on probation for two years on charges of attempted false pretences and attempted uttering.

Deputy Chief George Hughes told the court that the youth, when arrested in Toronto, had in his possession a toy gun, eight cheques prepared to be drawn on Toronto and North Bay Banks, and a pass book for a North Bay bank which he had personally built up from the original entry of the $2 to $625.

The officer said that the boy came here to visit his grandmother and passed several cheques on her account, but she had made restitution.

Pilot Lops Nearly Half-Hour Off Air Record

Rome, March 16 — (Reuters)— Group Capt. John Cunningham, flying Britain's new four-engined jet passenger plane, the Comet, today lopped nearly a half-hour off the London-Rome air record.

Flying at an average of 480 miles an hour at a height of 40,000 feet he made the trip in two hours, two minutes from take-off at Hatfield Airport, London, to touch-down at Ciampino Airport, Rome. The distance is 915.86 miles.

The Comet is expected to make the return flight to London this afternoon.

The previous record was held by another Briton, Sqdn. Leader Neville Duke, Hawker test pilot, who made the trip in two hours, 30 minutes, 25 2/5 seconds, in a Hawker Fury aircraft in May, 1949.

Pilot Cunningham, greeted by roars of cheers as he stepped out of the plane, said "It was an excellent flight but we had a head wind."

Grandmother Serves On University Board

London, (CP) — Mrs. Mary Stocks, small, dark-haired college principal, has been appointed a member of the British government's University Grants committee.

The committee deals with questions of financial assistance for British universities.

Serving on government bodies is nothing new for Mrs. Stock, 58, and a grandmother. She has been a member of government committees on betting, midwifery, unemployment insurance and teaching.

For the last 11 years, she has been principal of Westfield College, University of London. She has also found time to fight two by-elections as an Independent. She lost both by only a few hundred votes.

Mrs. Stocks, a widow since 1937, married when she was a girl student of 22 at the London School of Economics. Many years after, however, she was advising girls at Malvern College not to fall in love if they wanted to pass examinations.

TRUTHFUL OR NOT, JUDGE NOT SURE

Lora Lee Michel, nine, the little star who doesn't want to twinkle any more, is shown in juvenile hall, in Los Angeles, where she was taken after she hid left the home of her foster parents. Lora Lee's story is that she ran away because she "was hungry all the time" and did not want to be a movie star. She would much rather be at juvenile hall where "I can play with other kids and eat all I want." Judge A. A. Scott, juvenile court judge, said he did not know if Lora Lee was "acting" in her accusations or if she was telling the truth. — Central Press Canadian.

Poland Withdraws From World Bank

Washington, March 15—(AP)—Poland today withdrew from the world bank with an angry charge that the 46-country institution is under the thumb of the United States and "its imperialist policy." It also pulled out of the International monetary fund.

In a communication to the bank, the Communist-dominated Polish government cited the refusal of the bank to grant it a $200,000,000 loan. It said the reason was Poland's rejection of "the so-called Marshall Plan which had as its aim the subordination of Europe to the United States and the rebuilding of the war potential of Germany."

Camille Gutt, managing director of the International Monetary Fund, announced Poland's withdrawal from membership in it. He did not make public the letter of resignation but presumably it was along the same tenor as that given the bank.
